Good Afternoon.
 It is to be hoped that the good work of extending the concrete sidewalks is not to be stopped. No improvement of last year did so much for the advancement of the city as the sidewalks constructed in each ward. Justice to the abutters of 1898, who contributed one-half the cost, demand that they have continuous sidewalks. Patches here and there lose much of their value unless connected. Quincy can afford to be liberal in its sidewalk appropriations where abutters pay one-half the cost. If the city cannot afford sidewalks, it cannot afford to abolish grade crossings.

Drift of Opinion.
 This is the time of year when people plant a lot of congressional seed that never grows, and then get mad at their congressman for it. — Topeka State Journal.
 Not fighting, but peace among nations is to bring the world on fastest toward the millennium of prosperity and true living which we all long for. — Admiral Sampson at the Queen's birthday banquet in New York.
 "We are inclined to think" that if the Samoans could have realized in the past that the civilized nations would become savages, as far as Samoa is concerned, they would have eaten every missionary that reached their shores. — Wade's Fibre and Fabric.
 Sam Jones says that what with the girls cutting down their corsages for the ballroom and cutting up their dresses for their bicycles, he is getting uneasy, for he fails to see where they propose to stop. If Sam fails to see, what difference will it make to him? queries the Boston Globe.
 It begins to look as if Mr. Moody may after all be accorded the compliment of receiving the support of the New England delegation for speaker until it has been determined who among the other candidates stands the best chance of an election. And a mighty good plan it is. Who knows but that in the excitement aroused by a hot canvass, Mr. Moody might slip in? — Haverhill Gazette.

It is a wonder that some men do not wear out their hope. Within a year, a certain Atchison man has invested in four different schemes, all of which promised to make him rich. He believed that each one would make him rich, and now he is interested in the fifth, the other four having failed. Of course he has neglected his business, which would be very profitable if attended to, to fool with these schemes. — Atchison Globe.
 Seventy-five thousand commercial travelers are said to have been thrown out of business by the formation of trusts. A monopoly has small need of men to drum up trade. In turn, the hotel proprietors are complaining of the loss of patronage through the reduction in the ranks of the traveling men, and together they are facing a serious problem. The matter will adjust itself in a little time, but in the meanwhile those thousands of men are wondering how they and their families are going to live. — New Bedford Standard.

The Carney hospital appropriation was saved by one vote in the Senate on Wednesday.

THE FINALS TODAY.
More Records Broken in Golf Tournament.
Smith Makes Double Round in 75.
Then Suffers Defeat at Hands of Cracknell.

The second round for the Wollaston cup in the open golf tournament was played Wednesday and resulted as follows:
 R. Cracknell beat B. Tilton, 9 up 8 to play
 F. F. H. Smith beat J. G. Thorp, 5 up 4 to play
 G. E. Atherton beat J. G. Averill, 2 up 1 to play
 J. F. Curtis beat H. W. Barker, 2 up 1 to play
 The Smith-Thorp match was a remarkable one, and resulted in a new record by Smith, who went the second round in 35 and the double round in 75. In the whole 18 holes he made but two mistakes, the first being a short approach for the second hole, and the second a missed putt for the sixteenth. Thorp played steadily as he has done throughout the whole tournament, but he could do nothing with such a fast opponent, and succumbed gracefully to the inevitable. The card of the match shows these figures:

Cracknell had an easy thing with Tilton, the pair only playing 11 holes. The Atherton-Averill match was closer, but the crack Harvard player fell before the Wollastonian. The Curtis-Barker match was equally close.

THE SEMI-FINALS.
 Cracknell and Smith then met for the semi-finals, with the latter the favorite. Cracknell won the first hole, Smith playing into the pond on his second, and the play was even until the fifth, which Cracknell won, making his two up. Smith, however, evened up by winning the next two, and after halving the eighth won the ninth and ended the first round with one hole up.
 The tenth was halved, Smith took the eleventh, Cracknell the twelfth, the thirteenth was halved and Cracknell won the fourteenth which made matters even again. The fifteenth was also halved, but on the seventeenth, Cracknell ran down a fine five-yard putt for 3. The seventeenth was halved, and Smith won the eighteenth, 4 to 5.
 For the nineteenth, the extra hole, both drove long, and on the second Smith was six feet away, while Cracknell was five feet off. Smith missed his putt and Cracknell's stopped an eighth of an inch off the cup. The hole was halved in four. Good drives and brassy shots brought the players well up to the twentieth green.
 Smith's approach was fifteen feet to the right of the hole, while Cracknell was fifteen feet on the other side. Smith overran his putt by six feet, while Cracknell laid his dead. Smith missed his putt by an inch, losing the hole and the match.

The Atherton and Curtis match was almost as exciting, and was not decided until Atherton, with a lead of 1 up, halved the last hole in 4.
 The card gave the score thus:
ATHERTON-80.
 3 7 5 3 5 4 5 4 4-40
 4 6 7 3 5 4 4 4 3 4-40
CURTIS-80.
 5 6 5 4 5 5 4 5 5-44
 4 5 4 4 4 3 5 3 4-36
 The contest for the Wollaston cup is now narrowed down to the two Wollaston men Cracknell and Atherton, who are today playing the finals over the 36 hole course.

CONSOLATION CUP.
 Two defaults robbed the second round for the Consolation cup of some interest. The defeat of Dr. Ernst by Swan was somewhat of a surprise. Tarbell and Chase had a closer contest and required 10 holes, the former winning 1 up. The summary:
 W. U. Swan beat Dr. H. C. Ernst, 5 up 4 to play
 J. Merrill Richards beat D. K. Swartout,
 W. E. Page beat F. L. Dunne,
 E. C. Tarbell beat Perry Chase, 1 up in 10 holes
 Both of the semi-finals were close as the score shows:
 J. M. Richards beat W. U. Swan, 2 up 1 to play
 E. C. Tarbell beat W. E. Page, 2 up 1 to play
 Richards of the Comiquid club and Tarbell of the Wollaston club are playing the finals today for the Consolation cup, and it is possible that Wollaston players will defeat all comers for both cups.

BATES VS. BAILEY.
The Former Won the Open Tennis Tournament at Wollaston.

The success of the first open tournament of the Merrymount Tennis club was assured with the entries of such men as Warland and Macomber of the Longwood Tennis club, Thatcher of M. I. T., Belcher of the Winchester and Bailey of Yale.
 Without exception the matches were well played, especially considering the fact that few of the players had obtained any practice, whatever. The match between Belcher and Thatcher was brilliantly contested throughout and it was anybody's game until the last point had been played.
 The playing of Bates and Warland was heartily applauded and Mr. Bailey's game fight against Bates in the finals was very interesting.
 Mr. C. W. Bates of the club won first prize, an ebony mounted toilet case, and Mr. Bailey second prize, a banjo racket case. The scores:
PRELIMINARY ROUND.
 Witham beat Albee, 1-6, 6-3, 6-2.

CHECKS RECEIVED.
Stockholders of Q. & B. Now Have $150 for Their Stock.
 Today is the day upon which the stockholders who gave options upon their shares to the syndicate receive checks for $150 a share. P. Sullivan of Lowell has been appointed general manager of the system which has been divided into four districts, each of which will have a manager. The manager of this district which includes the Quincy & Boston, Norfolk Suburban, Brockton, Braintree and Milton systems has not been appointed as yet, but probably will be today. The position has been tendered to John R. Graham, president of the Quincy & Boston system, but it is not known whether he will accept or not.
 It is said that there will be no change in the employees of the system and the only change the travelling public will know is an improvement and better service.

Three Kindergartens.
 The Quincy Home Science Association met at the Unitarian chapel on Wednesday afternoon. The secretary reported a successful year. The total amount in the treasury was $358.97, —$305.00 of which was received from the May festival afternoon and evening. It will thus be possible to support three free summer kindergartens. After the election of officers it was announced that the prizes for the prize essays were awarded to Mrs. Annie E. Faxon and to Miss Florence Faxon.
 A most interesting talk was given by Mrs. Richards of the Institute of Technology on "Income and Expenditure" which will be reported in tomorrow's Ledger.

Birthday Surprise.
 Some thirty of the ladies of Atlantic and a few from Boston tendered a surprise party to Mrs. Alfred W. Jelenek on Friday evening, May 26, it being the anniversary of her birth.
 It was a most enjoyable and informal affair. Miss Kathleen Russell of Boston sang two solos charmingly and Mrs. Coe and Mrs. Bruce played piano solos.
 Mrs. Jelenek was the recipient of a beautiful chafing dish, tray, spoon and alcohol flask, the presentation speech being made by Mrs. W. F. Cummings.
 A very elaborate collation was served. The party broke up at a late hour, with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Vaccination Recommended.
 The state board of health recommends a general system of vaccination throughout the state. It has no authority to compel such operations, but so far as it can influence public opinion, its voice would be raised in favor of observing a precaution now too often neglected. Immunity from smallpox scares has brought about an apathetic condition of affairs which may induce serious consequences. This warning is being given not only in Massachusetts, but throughout the country, as well.
 —The Nantasket bill weathered all amendments on Wednesday in the Senate.

The Sewer Commissioners have notified the Commissioner of Public Works that nearly all the main sewers have been built and that those not built have been provided for or laid out, thus fixing the grade, and suggesting that grades for cellars be given by the Commissioners as provided for by Ordinance No. 20.
 The audience at the second section of the choir guild festival tested the capacity of St. Paul's church, Boston, Wednesday evening. Master Henry Donlan of St. Paul's church, Boston, who has a remarkable contralto voice, did some fine solo work in Hainer's anthem, "The Hallowed Day Hath Shined Upon us." Martin Potter of Grace church and Messrs. Philip Brown and W. H. Gerrish of St. Paul's, Boston, also sang solos.

Mr. Herbert M. Federhen of Quincy Point is moving into his old home. No pains have been spared in making it more beautiful than it was before the fire, with its large and spacious rooms beautifully decorated; large billiard hall upstairs with steam heat; and the new veranda on the east side are all very attractive. Also the large plate glass windows, which have been lowered and enlarged, makes this house one of home comforts; together with a library which any man might be proud of.

MARCHAND IS GUARDED

Government Will Take Care That Nationalists Do Not Gobble Him.

People Becoming Tired of the Dreyfus Affair.

Emily Crawford Writes That General Situation in France is Solid.

[Copyright, 1899, The Associated Press.]

Paris, June 1.—The government is taking care not to let Major Marchand be gobbled by the Nationalists. The director of the railway terminus where he will arrive in Paris has, accordingly, been instructed to exclude the public from the station and only to admit the representatives of the ministers of the colonies and of marine, of the military governor of Paris, of the Army and Navy club, whose guests the Marchand mission will be during their stay in Paris, of the Geographical society or of any other constituted bodies qualified to claim admission. Relations of members of the mission who can show police passes will be admitted, but the police have received instructions to prevent the presentation of flowers and to request those who wish to present them to send them to the secretary of the Army and Navy club.

Marchand is regarded by emotional people as the victim of parliamentary republicanism, and he himself thinks so himself. He is to meet with unusual honors at the ministry of marine, where he is to be received by the minister, M. Lockroy. After an hour's conversation he is to be the chief guest at a luncheon given in his honor. The other guests will be vice admirals, generals of marine, divisions of marine, artillery, the minister of the colonies, M. Guillaumin, and senators and deputies prominently connected with marine and colonial affairs. The medal which Mezières tore from the government in the chamber of deputies will be presented at dessert. M. Delcasse, the foreign minister, once said to Sir Edmund Monson, the British ambassador to France: "There is no Marchand mission." But on the medal is the inscription, "The Marchand Mission; From the Atlantic to the Red Sea; 1896 to 1899."

The government in promoting Marchand from captain of marine to general, and speaking of the march on the Nile. This omission was to avoid inflicting a "pin prick" on Queen Victoria. "From the Atlantic to the Red sea" includes the Nile.

The anti-Dreyfusites are not convinced by the declaration of M. Baillet de Lattre that Esterhazy is the traitor. Indeed, they are all the more obstinate in refusing to admit that Dreyfus is innocent; but the people are so tired of the affair that by the time Dreyfus has returned to France angry passions will have subsided.

The nationalist attacks on President Loubet are hotter than they were Wednesday, but they will not come to much. The general situation is solid, if France keeps out of war; and this the republic wishes to do. All danger of war with England is over, thanks to M. Delcasse; and there is no immediate danger of war with Germany, although the talk of General Herve at the Derouville trial may irritate the Germans. A delegation of the senate has called on M. Loubet to ask what the government thinks of Herve's utterances.

EMILY CRAWFORD.

Found Not Guilty.

Paris, June 1.—M. Derouille and Marcel-Habert, who have been on trial before the assize court on the charge of instigating soldiers to insubordination in connection with the election of President Loubet, were acquitted yesterday.

PAUL DEROUILLE IN A CHARACTERISTIC POSE.

ident Loubet, were acquitted yesterday. The court became so crowded that the police were obliged to close the doors, whereupon those who were shut out began banging at the doors.

Sloane's Horse Crippled.

London, June 1.—The derby, otherwise the 219th renewal of the derby stakes, was won yesterday by the Duke of Westminster's bay colt Flying Fox. Damocles was second and A. J. Miller's bay, a second place, then broke his fetlock joint and had to be shot. Tod Sloan, Holcaust's mount, was uninjured.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, June 1.—Governor Wolcott's veto of the trades union insurance bill and the bill to extend exemption from civil service rules to veterans of the Spanish war were read in the legislature soon after the assembling yesterday. The first went into the house and the second into the senate. Both branches deferred action on the messages.

The governor signed the bill allowing Boston to expend $1,650,000 for laying out and construction of highways. At the meeting of the executive council Governor Wolcott sent in the following nominations for confirmation by the council: To be members of the re-organized cattle commission, Austin Peters of Boston, L. F. Herrick of Millbury and C. A. Dennen of Pepperell. Joseph Healy of Fall River was re-appointed to the position of that city. F. J. Barnes of Cambridge and Elizabeth E. Coolidge of Boston were appointed members of the board of trustees of the school for feeble minded.

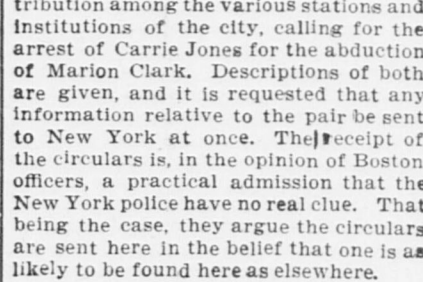

In the senate, Mr. Hodgekins moved to reconsider the vote whereby the Bass river canal between New Bedford and Fairhaven was reached. President Smith read a lengthy ruling on the point of order raised by Senator Moran, that the bill reported by the railroad committee was beyond the scope of the original bill and petition. The ruling was that the point was well taken, in that it created a new commission, while the petition asked that the work be done by the Bristol county commissioners. It also gave the new commission discretion as to grade separation and apportionment of cost, while the petition took away all discretion. The rules were suspended until the next general court, when the petition asked that the work be done by the Bristol county commissioners.

The bill to revise the law relative to the distribution of estates of deceased persons, after the adoption of an amendment that the bill take effect July 1, 1900, was engrossed. The bill to enable the city council of Boston to obtain information in certain cases was engrossed. An amendment to make the bill general was rejected. There was a lively discussion in the house over the question of continuing the publication of the Province Laws. In the forenoon session the bill for it was referred to the next general court without attracting much notice and in accordance with the ways and means committee's report; but in the second session this action was reconsidered and a long debate followed.

The house took up the bill to provide for an annual payment of $200 to the town of Ashland by the metropolitan water district for damages occasioned by the construction of reservoirs there. On a rising vote the bill was ordered to a third reading, 75 to 31.

Seeking Outside Aid.

Boston, June 1.—Chief Watts yesterday received 100 circulars from Chief Devery of the New York police for distribution among the various stations and institutions of the city, calling for the arrest of Carrie Jones for the abduction of Marion Clark. Descriptions of both are given, and it is requested that any information relative to the police be sent to New York at once. The receipt of the circulars is, in the opinion of Boston officers, a practical admission that the New York police have no real clue. That being the case, they argue the circulars are sent here in the belief that one is as likely to be found here as elsewhere.

PAUL DEROUILLE IN A CHARACTERISTIC POSE.

A Bridgeport Mystery. Bridgeport, Conn., June 1.—The body of a man, evidently an Austrian Jew, aged about 35, was found about 11 a. m. yesterday, covered with coats and blankets, lying in the bottom of a wagon in Seely's lane, near the Huntington road. There were three bullet wounds in the body, two of which were in the left breast, also a fracture of the skull over one eye. The man was alive when found, but died shortly afterward, without regaining consciousness. It is believed to be a case of murder, as it is thought impossible for him to have inflicted such wounds upon himself.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Tom Casey of Chester, Pa., came to sudden grief in his fight with Jack Root at Chicago. The bout was to be for six rounds, but Casey went out in the first half minute of the first round. Resolutions were adopted at the annual meeting of the Civil Service Reform association of Maryland disapproving the order of President McKinley withdrawing wholly or partially several thousand positions from the protection of the civil service rules.

General Degany, formerly military attaché of the French legation in Washington, died at Paris. Two freight trains on the White mountain branch of the Boston and Maine railroad had a head-on collision at Tilton, N. H.

Ferdinand Rodloff, the oldest mill official of Lowell, Mass., is dead, aged 93 years. He had been connected with the Hamilton mills for 72 years. Mary Sullivan, aged 22, fell down an elevator well at Boston, a distance of four stories, and was frightfully injured. She will die.

General Joseph Wheeler applied and was accepted for membership in the Legion of Spanish War Veterans at Boston, the first camp organized receiving his application.

A VETO BY CANADA

Interrupted Plans For Settlement of Boundary Dispute.

Statement by Laurier Said to Evade the Point.

Lord Salisbury Had Conceded That Pacific Ports Were Ours.

Had Agreed With Ambassador Choate to Submit the Question to Arbitration.

Washington, June 1.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's statement about the controversy between the United States and Canada, as telegraphed from Ottawa, agrees with the understanding of the case at this Capitol as far as they go. But they evidently do not tell the whole story.

In the first place, Sir Wilfrid confines his revelations to what occurred within the joint commission's conference. Even these he does not uncover everything, for he gives no account of the reasons why the proposal to arbitrate came to naught. The fact is that the United States agreed absolutely to the proposal to arbitrate after the precedent established in the Venezuela case. The only point on which the two countries differed was that the United States demanded that this arbitration should be actually "on all fours" with the Venezuela arbitration. In other words, the arbitration about Venezuela covered matters which had been in controversy between the two governments for more than 50 years.

Our commissioners were not disposed to draw the line quite so sharply as they might on an equal lapse of time, but they did insist that, as the commission had been created distinctly for the settlement of "existing differences" between the two countries, and the scope of its authority was thereby limited to such differences, it had no right to take up any new differences which might be added to the catalogue at later dates; and hence, as the territorial claims which now form the gravamen of the controversy had never been advanced by Canada till after the creation of the commission, that body was without authority to settle them.

This seemed like a sufficiently logical proposition, but Canada would not take that view of it. New conditions, she thought, had arisen, owing to the recent gold discoveries and the apparent necessity for her procuring an outlet to the seacoast. She was not moved from her position, even though the newness of her claims was demonstrated by the fact that she had permitted our people to build up large towns within the disputed territory, like Skaguay and Dyea, and even at Pyramid harbor to put up a cannery with American capital and under the protection of American law.

The commission adjourned its sessions so as to allow the two principal governments to reach a diplomatic agreement. During the week ending April 20 an amicable understanding was reached between the foreign office in London and Ambassador Choate, to the effect that the territorial claims of Canada should be submitted to arbitration, except as to Skaguay and Dyea, which the British government candidly admitted should be treated as belonging to the United States.

The president approved the preliminaries and the whole matter was on the eve of arrangement when the British foreign office suddenly called a halt, necessitated, according to its own statement, by the fact that Canada had put her veto upon further negotiation on that basis.

The officials here are unwilling to be drawn publicly into a controversy over the boundary question, even though the matter has been made the subject of a statement by Mr. Laurier, which, in the ordinary course, would relieve them from the obligation to maintain silence.

They take the view, however, that the pendency of the negotiations with Great Britain on this subject make it inadvisable at this time to make public the official record of the proceedings of the joint commission. It can be stated, however, on authority, that there is no disposition to question the accuracy of the statement made by Sir Wilfrid Tuesday as to the position respecting arbitration of the Canadians. But this is subject to the important qualification that the statement referred to a state of affairs existing when the commission was in session and at its termination and not later. Since then there have been negotiations directly between the British government and the government of the United States, conducted of late through Mr. Choate and Lord Salisbury in London, and of what has taken place there Sir Wilfrid Laurier's statement takes no account. It is reiterated in the most plain manner by the officials here that in these negotiations Canada stood in the way of an agreement which the British authorities after mature consideration had accepted as eminently fair and just.

Respecting the Canadians' demand for the possession of Pyramid harbor on the Lynn canal, pending the decision of an arbitration or some other competent authority that his title is good, it can be stated that the position of our government remains unchanged. It does not recognize any parallel between the Canadian claim to Pyramid harbor and our claim to Dyea and Skaguay. Of the latter we have been in undisputed possession for many years, in fact our title has never before been questioned.

The proposition from the British side to declare neutral a strip of country leading from the head of the Lynn canal back across the mountains to the Canadian line has not commended itself to the state department, which fails to see why the United States should voluntarily surrender absolute title to territory belonging to the United States.

IT CAN'T BE DONE

No One Can Remain Well, No Chronic Disease Can Be Cured Unless the Stomach is First Made Strong and Vigorous.

This is plain because every organ in the body depends on the stomach for its nourishment. Nerve, bone, sinew, blood are made from the food which the stomach converts to our use. How useless to treat disease with this, that and the other remedy and neglect the most important of all, the stomach. The earliest symptoms of indigestion are sour risings, bad taste in the mouth, gas in stomach and bowels, palpitation, all-gone feeling, faintness, headaches, constipation; later comes loss of flesh, consumption, liver and heart troubles, kidney diseases, nervous prostration, all of which are the indirect result of poor nutrition.

Any person suffering from indigestion should make it a practice to take after each meal one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, allowing it to dissolve in the mouth and thus mingle with the saliva and enter the stomach in the most natural way. These Tablets are highly recommended by Dr. Jemison because they are composed of the natural digestive acids and fruit essences which assist the stomach in digesting all wholesome food before it has time to ferment and sour.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by druggists, full sized packages at 50 cents. They are also excellent for invalids and children. A book on stomach diseases and thousands of testimonials of genuine cures sent free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. 27-29-1.

BABY CLARK

Restored to Arms of Her Anxious Parents.

Two Alleged Kidnappers Are Placed Under Arrest.

Little One Had Evidently Been Well Cared For.

Had Been In Seclusion on a Farm Near Sloatsburg, N. Y.

Postmistress Gave Information Which Was Promptly and Successfully Acted Upon.

Garnerville, N. Y., June 2.—Little Marion Clark, victim of the most mysterious abduction since the kidnapping of "Charley" Ross, was restored to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Clark, last night. She had been found secreted in a mountain farmhouse, 19 miles from Haverstraw. Her whereabouts was learned just 11 days to the hour from the time she had been abducted in Central park, New York.

Attention was first attracted to the woman and child Wednesday morning when they called at the postoffice and asked the postmistress if there was any mail for Mrs. Jennie Wilson. The postmistress, Mrs. Ida B. Carey, who is also the matron of St. John's Episcopal home at St. John's Station, recognized her as a teacher who had taught there about four or five years ago. She was at that time known as Cassie McNally. In response to her inquiries, the matron told her that she was married, and that the child with her was her baby. Mrs. Carey noticed a resemblance between the child and the pictures of Baby Clark. As soon as the woman was gone she went upstairs, and, taking a look at a picture published in the newspapers, became convinced that this was the Clark child.

Mrs. Carey at once rode over from St. John's to Justice of the Peace Herbert of this place. He was not home, and she made a call on Deputy Sheriff Charleston.

The next morning Charleston secured a warrant from the justice and rode over to St. John's to arrest the Wilson woman and secure the child. Arriving at the house of Charles Youman he inquired for them and was told that they had gone to Sloatsville. He rode into Sloatsville, found they had left and started back.

About a mile on the road he overtook Mrs. Wilson, accompanied by a man. As he had known her formerly he addressed her as Carrie and asked her if she was not Mrs. Wilson. The woman gave an evasive answer, and he asked for the child. She then denied that she knew anything of the child and stated that she was accompanying her husband to the depot. Charleston told her that she was under arrest and requested her to get into the carriage. This she refused to do until the man spoke to her. "Get in," he said, "and go with him; it will be all right." The woman got into the carriage and they drove to the house of Frank Oakley, where the child was found.

Mrs. Wilson at first appeared rather indifferent, but on her arrival here and when questioned by the justice she broke down and cried bitterly, declaring it was all a mistake. She was at once given a hearing, and she was represented by Irving Brown. Acting on his advice she refused to make any statement, and the examination was put down until Monday.

About 9 o'clock Deputy Sheriff Charleston announced to the justice that he was ready to drive the prisoner over to the jail. Again she cried and clung to her husband. He soothed her, saying: "This will all come right when we have a chance." Turning to Justice Herbert he asked permission to accompany her to the jail. This was refused.

"None but prisoners can go." "Well, I'll do that. I arrest you as being an accomplice to the kidnapping," said the justice.

The man thanked him and the woman looked relieved. The justice accompanied by two assistants called for them and they were driven to New City.

The woman is about 24 years of age, of slight figure and of rather timid manner. She has dark hair, parted in the middle, a prominent forehead and nose. She is about 5 feet 3 inches tall, and wore a dress of dark red material.

The man who claims to be her husband is about 30 years of age, tall, clean shaven and dark eyed.

Arthur Clark, the father of the abducted baby, arrived here last evening accompanied by Sergeant Morris of Captain McCluskey's staff. Mr. Clark Immediately identified the child found in the custody of Mrs. Wilson by Deputy Sheriff Charleston as his lost Marion.

Little Marion appeared in the best of health, and as though those who had her in their keeping had taken good care of her.

The arrest of the man giving the name of James Wilson, and claiming to be the husband of the woman, took place soon after Mr. Clark and the detectives had left the justice's house. The man was the same whom the deputy sheriff had refused to arrest in the morning, and whose detention was effected at his own request. He arrived in West Haverstraw on the train which left New York at 5:45, and was driven at once to the house. The woman cried bitterly and all she could say was: "I knew you would come."

The man admitted that he had been with the woman that morning, and that he had been to the city attending to some money matters. He gave his name as James Wilson, remarking as he did so, that that was not his name, but that it would do for the present.

He cautioned the woman against making any statement to the reporters. They conversed together in low tones, and once the man was heard to say: "Don't drag the poor girl's name into this affair."

According to the people in St. John's the Wilson woman first made her appearance in the neighborhood about the time the child disappeared. She was at that time accompanied by the man who was arrested, and another dark complexioned woman whom the local authorities think may have been the nurse. They appeared to have plenty of money, and as soon as she had secured a room at the Youmans' the dark woman disappeared.

Since then they have been living quietly there. The day that Mrs. Wilson called at the postoffice she received two letters. The man has been noticed by the people of the place walking on the road from the station from West Haverstraw. The news of the arrest of the alleged kidnapper traveled rapidly, and by noon the justice's frame house back of the road was surrounded by the country people. They came from all directions, peering in the windows and endeavoring to get a look at the baby and the prisoner. Later they escorted Mr. Clark and the detectives back to the station.

Baby Clark at Home.
New York, June 2.—The arrival of baby Clark and her overjoyed father here last night was the occasion for a remarkable demonstration.

From the depot in West Haverstraw the party made their way as rapidly as possible to the Clark home in East Sixty-first street. Hundreds of people were gathered before the house, and the party with the baby had to struggle through the frantic crowd. There was considerable cheering as the two people hurried around the carriage, as it drove up to the door, and in spite of the efforts of the police to keep the sidewalks clear, the child was almost suffocated in the crush of the people who were so anxious to get a glimpse of the baby.

Mr. Clark rushed up the inner steps and met his wife at the top. The mother took the child in her arms and wept and sobbed.

The crowd on the outside yelled to see the baby, and Mr. Clark held the child up to the window so that all could see it. This was greeted with great cheers. Then they cried for Mrs. Clark and the child. Mrs. Clark appeared holding the baby in her arms. This was more than even the least emotional ones of the great crowd could stand, and they yelled themselves hoarse.

Police Claim Credit.

New York, June 2.—Captain McCluskey last night made a statement concerning the efforts of the police to trace the child. He said that on Thursday after the baby was taken, he received a call from Mrs. James Cosgriff of Brooklyn, giving the first important information. Mrs. Cosgriff said that on Saturday afternoon, May 20, a woman about 25 years of age called at her house to rent a room. The woman took the child to her for two weeks for a longer period as the need might be. The next day she returned, accompanied by a dark girl, who carried a baby. The woman who hired the room said the baby was hers, and that the dark woman was her sister. Mrs. Cosgriff noticed, however, that the baby was more affectionate towards the nurse. That night, when Mrs. Cosgriff returned home both the women had disappeared, leaving behind a note which said they had to leave the city because of an accident which happened to the nurse's husband.

Thursday following the abduction Mrs. Cosgriff was shown a picture of Marion and at once identified it as the likeness of the little one who had been with the two women at her house.

Mrs. Cosgriff had heard the women speak of some "burg," which she imagined was some place up the state. On this suggestion Detectives Reidy, Armstrong and Herlihy were sent to scour towns along the Hudson river in the hope of finding the "burg" spoken of. It was a clue furnished by Mrs. Cosgriff which led Detective Herlihy to Sloatsburg, whence he went to West Haverstraw to send the first telegram notifying the police that they had located the baby.

SOLID FOR M'KINLEY.

Cuckeye State Republicans Will Endorse the Administration.

Hanna's Candidate Meets Strong Opposition.

Somewhat Surprised at the Well Organized Forces of Dougherty.

Columbus, O., June 2.—The Republican state convention met here yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, under the temporary organization that has been selected by the state central committee. Previous to the first session it was expected that the selecting of committees would precipitate a warm contest in the Cleveland district, owing to the fight between the Hanna and McKisson factions, but there was no open hostility shown.

The platform caused little discussion, as all the delegates seemed to be for the renomination of McKinley for president, for the endorsement of the administration and for the usual other party declarations.

Yesterday was a Dougherty day as much as Wednesday was a Nash day. The conference continued, however, and the field may next turn on Dougherty. There is as yet no winning slate, and there are those who believe that no winning combination can be formed until the test of balloting. The committee on rules and order of business limited all nominating speeches to five minutes, with only one seconding speech of one minute.

Among the feature of the day were the speeches at the hotels that were bitter and defiant, and those at the convention that were all for harmony. The leaders, who joined the chorus at the Auditorium from 4 to 6 p. m. in a sort of peace jubilee, spent the night, however, in contests and conferences that were not very harmonious.

While H. N. Dougherty has apparently had the best of it all day, at the conferences in the morning, in the selection of committees in the afternoon, in the demonstrations at the convention and in the proceedings of the committee last night, yet he is having odds as the leading candidate, and not yet as a winner. Nash will be a close second, and Lieutenant Governor A. W. Jones, a much closer third than has been anticipated until now. In the field, R. M. Nevins of Dayton, is looming up.

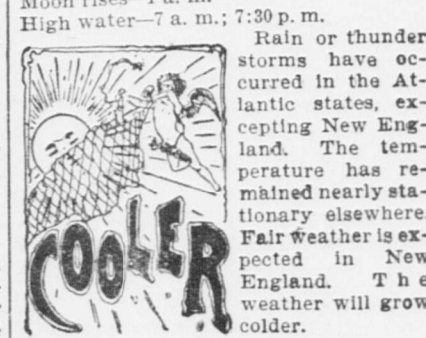

With the forces of Cox, Dougherty and Kurtz combined against Nash as the Hanna candidate in all the preliminary work, yet this combine cannot apparently get together on any one man for governor. Cox awaits a dark horse, and is grooming Shattuck till he names his favorite. Foraker wants Jones. Kurtz does not want Jones or Dougherty if he can get some one he likes better. Meanwhile Dougherty insists that he has more votes than Jones, Cox and Kurtz can command; that they should come to him if they want to defeat Nash, and thereby indirectly defeat Hanna. It is in this complication that Nevin may be brought out.

Dougherty is not only a leader in the prospective balloting, but he also has the best organization of any of the candidates. Ex-Chairman Huling, who opened the convention, and Chairman Kerr, who presided, were both for Dougherty, and all of those at the state headquarters last year are actively in the field for him. Senator Hanna and Judge Nash, as well as many others, have been surprised at his organization. The new state committee elected Vivian J. Chase, United States ambassador, in favor of reopening the case.

Mrs. Maybrick May Be Freed.

London, June 2.—The Daily Chronicle announces that Mrs. Florence Maybrick is likely to be liberated shortly, as the result of the pressure brought to bear by Joseph H. Choate, United States ambassador, in favor of reopening the case.

Good Afternoon.

Undoubtedly there is a woeful lack of knowledge of the value of food, and as to the kind and quantity which an individual needs. Many will agree with Mrs. Richards' comment on income and expenditures, but until we have more information on each individual case we fear the same waste will continue.

Henry H. Faxon, Esq., has an interesting communication today upon refunding the city debt. He invites criticism, and the Ledger will make some comment in opposition to his stand tomorrow. Some of his arguments against the measure are decidedly in his favor, while in others he lacks information. Taxes interest all property holders, and they should discuss such important measures as the refunding of the debt in the local press.

Drift of Opinion.

Every citizen in the United States is interested in the honest collection of the revenues. No matter how much we may differ about the details of tariff taxation there can be no division to sentiment as to the necessity for an exact and impartial enforcement of the tariff after it becomes a law.—Buffalo News.

The movement to abolish free text books in the public schools of Providence, on "sanitary grounds," strikes us as unutterably funny. The advocates of the measure say it would save the city $25,000 annually. Why not close the schools altogether? That would save a much larger sum.—Woonsocket Call.

The American girl is winning her way at the universities which make provision for co-education. In 1894 there were 39 girl students at Brown university, Providence, R. I. Now there are 145, exclusive of those taking graduate work. Bachelor degrees were not granted until 1891, when the college finally offered the B. A. to girls who had passed the required examinations. In 1892 women were admitted to the graduate courses, and since 1896 the "annex" has been an essential part of the university.—Bangor Commercial.

A German claims to have invented a scheme for the prevention of smoke when coal is burned. If the same process could be applied to some of the pipes and cigars used on the streets and in public places it would be heralded as a most welcome benefaction to mankind.—Kennebec Journal.

The large number of people who purchased the three per cent. government bonds a year ago and held them, have made an excellent investment. Today these bonds are quoted at a premium of eight and three-fourths per cent. above cost. The government has been the means of many citizens turning a dollar and the best part of the transaction has been that the every-day citizen is a large holder of these bonds.—Lawrence American.

LAUNDRY FIRE.

The alarm at 2.50 this afternoon from Box 23 was for a slight fire in the boiler room of the Old Colony laundry on Granite street. The roof caught from the boiler but was extinguished with a few buckets of water.

TOO MUCH FOR FOOD.

Talk on Income and Expenditures.

Illness Due from Wrong and Ill-Prepared Food.

A Better Knowledge Needed of Food Values.

Prof. Ellen Richards of the School of Technology who addressed the Quincy Home Science Association Wednesday afternoon, is considered one of the first authorities in the country in regard to domestic matters, sanitation, expenditure and food values. She is a little lady with a pleasant address and convincing simplicity and directness of speech.

Mrs. Richards is not a stranger in Quincy, as she was instrumental in forming the Association here, being present at the preliminary meeting.

Before beginning her talk Wednesday she warned her hearers not to lose sight of the practical side of household economies in the pleasant study of theory. Her subject was "Income and Expenditure in Relation to Food."

She first called attention to the fact that in America half we spend as a nation goes for food. Among our wage earners fifty to eighty per cent. earned goes for food. Just as a locomotive must have fuel a human being must have food. Clothes and shelter can be almost entirely dispensed with in some climates, but food must be had always and everywhere.

In America, however, no doubt more food is provided than is really necessary or wholesome. Ninety per cent. of the present illness in this country comes from wrong and ill-prepared food. A condition of things quite preventable.

Mrs. Richards spoke of the new fad of going without breakfast. The theory being that persons over forty years of age can dispense with the morning meal. The stay-at-homes can undoubtedly do without or do with only fruits or cereals, but the brain and body workers must have larger supply of fuel for the wear and tear of the day.

It is generally admitted that in a family of six—four children average as four adults, where the man is the only producer, the average income is twelve dollars per week. Out of this from seven to eight dollars go for food.

Mrs. Richards stated emphatically that it is possible to spend but five or six of the twelve dollars and still fare well. To accomplish this, however, a better general knowledge is needed of food values and its preparation.

This can be done through our public schools. People living on an income of from twelve to fifteen hundred a year spend half that sum for food. A fourth would be quite sufficient, leaving a fourth for rent and the rest for clothes and general necessities, as well as some pleasures. Undoubtedly the American housekeeper pays out a good deal for what the railroad call "operating expenses," and which seem unavoidable.

It is of course difficult to lay down a final rule for all, but a plan of living should be decided upon according to the income and adhered to. A young couple starting in life really need some rules and statistics of living to go by but so far nothing of the kind is to be had. The French say twenty per cent. of the income must go for rent. In America this is hard to gauge, especially in our suburbs where rents are high and houses as a rule ill-planned and undesirable.

Miss Parola says our housekeeping troubles arise largely from trying to do with one pair of hands what really requires three or four.

We need more compact quarters, with conveniences, for the average income. After the house is found the food problem is next to be solved. In China rice is a food and constitutes a meal. In America it is an accessory. Bananas have as much food value as potatoes and yet we add them to a hearty meal. We take them as appetizers or dessert instead of as food.

Young people who want to live well on a definite though small income must learn there is food material to be had at a cost of nine cents per capita a day, and with this something can be put that attracts the eye as well as the palate. It is not well for the housekeeper to talk at home too continuously of food values or account books, but nevertheless these things must be. We need to live better with less cost and with a greater knowledge of our resources.

Mrs. Richards frankly said she and the new school of housekeeping which she represents cannot tell exactly what can be procured for the sum of eighteen or twenty cents a day per person, but it is nevertheless a fact that no larger sum is necessary for right and comfortable living. She asked the assistance of the housekeepers present or anywhere to assist in preparing a schedule or budget of expense to be made useful as practical information on the subject.

Mrs. Richards statements were interesting and undoubtedly indisputable, however one hearer at least questioned if the proper amount of comfort and nourishment could be obtained from the low figures she quoted. And if it were not better to live more generously, if the income allowed and take advantage of the varied foreign and domestic products brought to our very doors. All who have read and enjoyed Julian Ralph's article "Housekeeping in London," in a recent Harper's, will agree that America cannot claim all the complications and superfluities of modern housekeeping.

TOOK SEVEN PRIZES.

Honors for Quincy Young Lady at Thayer Academy.

Founder's day at Thayer Academy is usually observed June 9, the birthday anniversary of Gen. Sylvanus Thayer, who was born in 1785, but this year in order to have the presence of Secretary Long, they were held this forenoon. There was a large attendance of friends of the school who enjoyed this programme:

Music, Overture, Cavalier
Welcome, Kingsley A. Barnham
In Memoriam, Gen. Geo. L. Andrews,
Dr. Gallagher, The Head Master
Class Prophecy, Ernestine M. Litchfield
Music, Flower Song
Announcement of School Prizes.
Address by Hon. John D. Long, Secretary of the Navy.
America Forever
Planting of Ivy.

The welcome was hearty and pleasing; the prophecy hopeful and bright, and the music excellent. Dr. Gallagher paid a warm tribute to the late Gen. Andrews, one of the trustees. Secretary Long was in his usual happy vein. He complimented the prize winners and recognized in Miss Litchfield of Quincy, who won so many prizes, a prize. He spoke of the praise of Dewey and believed it was deserved, but it was nerve more than fighting that made him great. Such quick should stimulate all.

The trustees were generous this year in prizes, and early in the year placed $150 in the hands of the head master to be distributed for excellence in the various departments. Miss Ernestine Morse Litchfield, who won second prize in Cicero last year, was this year awarded six first prizes and one second prize. Some of the other prizes also came to Quincy.

Musicals at Quincy Point.

One of the most enjoyable musicals given at Quincy Point, was that at the Washington Street Congregational church Thursday evening by Miss Anna M. Brown of the New England Conservatory. It was of an unusual high order and deserved a far better audience than that which greeted it, but it was not well advertised. Miss Brown has a sweet contralto voice and was heard in duets with Mr. Charles Carter and Miss Annie Goss, and in pleasing solos. Miss Goss who has a pleasing soprano voice was also heard in solos. Miss Stevens of the Emerson school gave several readings, Mr. Horace Farrington viola solos, and Mr. Choate piano solos. Mr. Choate and Mr. Herbert Hayden were the accompanists.

It was reported Thursday that an Italian residing on or near Douglass street had killed his 13-year-old son and buried the body in his garden. The report said that the man had frequently beat and abused his boy and that the end was the child's death. The boy has been missing for a few days and this started the rumor that he had been killed and buried. Inspector McKay, who investigated the story, was not able to learn much other than that the boy had left home and was at work in Boston.

Handsome Memorial.
One of the prettiest monuments erected in Mt. Wollaston cemetery this year is the new one to the memory of Lucy Isadore McQuarrie. It is a tablet in shape.

On a raised panel on the face of the monument is the inscription: "Lucy Isadore McQuarrie 1886—1894." On the top, which is in the shape of a scroll, is a branch of a rose bush carved in bas-relief. There is also considerable carving on the sides of the monument.

John R. Graham Now General Manager.

Contemplates Many Improvements for Public.

Mr. John R. Graham, who has been the president of the Quincy & Boston street railway for a number of years was Thursday appointed general manager of this district of the Massachusetts Electric company, which has recently come into control of thirty-three of the street railway companies in Massachusetts.

The roads over which Mr. Graham assumes the management are: Quincy & Boston; Boston, Milton & Brockton; Norfolk Suburban; Norfolk Central; West Roxbury & Roslindale; Needham & Boston; and Hyde Park Electric Light & Power Co.

Mr. Graham will make his headquarters in Quincy. He has in contemplation many improvements which will be of great benefit to the traveling public. One of the most important is a through line between Quincy, Milton, Mattapan, Hyde Park and Dedham. This line will probably be put in operation at an early date as the Milton road, which is the connecting link, will be completed not later than July 1.

It is also among the possibilities of through cars from Quincy to Providence, R. I.

Other improvement in local service in addition to the present through cars between Neponset and Holbrook, are through cars from Neponset to Weymouth Landing thence to Nantasket by the third rail electric, and through cars from Neponset to Nantasket via North Weymouth and Hingham.

The first degree will be worked at the next meeting of Wollaston lodge, A. F. & A. M., and the other degrees will be rehearsed.

The Assessors are a little late in issuing their annual notice, but taxpayers have until June 15, to make returns of their property of May 1. See advertisement in this issue.

Myer Rosenfield intends to increase the equipment of his West Quincy factory so that one hundred machines will be kept steadily going and will assure from 100 to 125 people permanent employment.

A Wollaston woman, while alighting from an Atlantic bound car late Thursday evening, fell and struck on her head. She was picked up in a dazed condition and removed to her home. This morning she was quite comfortable and it is thought not seriously injured.

Alexander Gourley, a long and well known resident of Quincy, died at his home on Canal street this morning of heart trouble, after an illness of some weeks' duration. Mr. Gourley was a veteran of the war of the Rebellion, having served in Co. A, 30th Mass. He was 60 years of age and leaves a widow and several children.

Some of our taxpayers seem to think, especially those along Washington street at Quincy Point, that when the assessment comes in for water tax that the city should get left, for only one-half of the street is being watered while the other half is left dusty and dry. They consider it a breach of contract and the request is for more water and less puddles.

A resident of Quincy vouches for the following story: In one of our schools a certain sum of money was to be raised for Old Glory, and the room or grade collecting the largest sum was to have a prize of their own choice. The lower grade collected the largest amount towards the flag so they won their choice. The teacher asked the scholars whether they would buy a silk flag for their room or a picture. One boy said a picture of Dewey; another said a picture of Miles; another a picture of Lincoln. A little girl stood up and said a picture of St. Cecilia. A vote was taken and carried among the scholars, and they are to hang up St. Cecilia.

ONLY TEMPORARY.A Worse Predicament for City Later.*Says H. H. Faxon of Refund Movement.*Will Not However Impair Credit of City.

Editors of the Ledger:

The issue of refunding the city debt is one that commands the closest attention of the taxpayers. Nearly everybody dislikes to part with money, but there is a class that dislikes to pay their own debts. They are continually borrowing money and when payment is absolutely demanded they borrow of a third party and thus cancel the debt to the first one. This is just the system now advocated by our city authorities and they are moving heaven and earth to get the City Council to give its sanction to the scheme.

If we must have all these luxuries when the burden of taxation is hard to bear, then we must surely pay for our excessive living at a future time. It is idle to say that "coming generations will have the benefit of these improvements and they should help pay the cost." Allowing this to be logic, I can see that if the desire for improvements increases during the next ten years as it has in the past decade and the same habit of putting off the payment day is encouraged, the coming generations will struggle under a load hard to bear.

"It is easy enough to borrow money, and hard to pay it back," is evidently the motto of some of our officials, and they would carry their own business methods into the conduct of the city affairs.

THE CREDIT OF THE CITY

would not be impaired if the city refounds all of its debt, for money lenders know that the security is gilt edged, but how different it would be with a private individual. Let any business man try the experiment and he will soon be convinced that the policy is bad. Then what is bad for the individual is also bad for the city.

Let us profit by the errors of the past and take up our burdens, for each succeeding generation will have its own wishes to carry out and will not thank us any more for the financial responsibilities we impose upon them than we today thank those who heaped this pile of debt on our shoulders.

It was because cities showed a lack of knowing how to live within their means, that the Legislature passed a law limiting the amount to be raised for current expenses each year, and besides this gave a limit to indebtedness. This law provides that all within ten years of their contraction. All of the debt falling due this year has been contracted in accordance with that statute and there is no reason why any part of it should be borrowed over again in this pernicious system of refunding.

Of the $81,000 falling due this year it is asked of the City Council that they authorize the borrowing again of $40,000 of it, quite one-half. You may talk of your low rate of borrowing money for the city, but I fail to see the benefit to be derived by paying twice for the same improvement. As the loans were for the most part originally at 4 per cent. if they are refunded, we shall pay at least 3 per cent. thus the loans has called for 7 per cent. interest, or in all over $15,000. The brokers are willing to loan the city money, for it is business for them. The only way to have a low tax rate is to stop spending money. So long as we spend we must have

and by putting off payment we add to, rather than diminish the chance of a high rate.

The claim, that if we refund this amount, extending it over the next ten years, we shall reduce the tax rate, is refuted by the fact that already schemes are advanced in the council which will more than offset any gain that can be made by deferring payment of our debt falling due this year.

Two new schoolhouses will have to be built, at a cost of some $80,000, a boulevard to Houghs Neck under contemplation, an innumerable number of street improvements to be made, grade crossings to be abolished, a police station, and heaven only knows just what other notion some ranting councilman will advocate in the interest of his much abused constituency. Already the curbstone politician has announced that if its scheme of refunding is put through we shall have plenty of money to spend. Where is the gain coming for the overburdened taxpayer? We get only to find ourselves later in a worse predicament.

The necessity for improvements is growing rapidly in Quincy, so that succeeding years will have to make heavy demands on the treasury, to keep pace with the times. They will be hampered by the burdens we are putting on them and they too must seek relief and shift their load upon others.

The wise and successful man of business, if stress of circumstances obliges him to spend in excess of his revenue for a time, practices rigid economy until he has cancelled his indebtedness, before making any further drafts on his resources, and the city would do well to follow the same conservative course.

In conclusion, I hope that no member of the City Council will be influenced because some rattle-brained politician has obtained signatures to petitions favoring the financial blunder contemplated. Henry H. Faxon. Quincy, June 2, 1899.

Better Connections.

Editors of the Ledger:

Superintendent Weeks of the Quincy & Boston would remove one of the greatest causes of the friction which exists between his road and the Houghs Neck patrons if he would compel the car conductors on that division to start their cars exactly on the schedule time thus allowing people ample time to take the train as well as making connections with the electric. The writer who for years has been a constant patron of that line, notices that "When the spirit moves" the conductors give the signal to start regardless of the advertised time. Then the chances are 99 out of 100 that the north or south bound trains are missed and the passengers talk like pirates and blame the company.

On Saturday last he had occasion to come up from the Neck on the car scheduled to leave at 4.20 P. M. The conductor was busily engaged in conversation when 4.20 arrived, but as he had another funny story to tell he held the car until 4.24 (Q. & B. railroad time as was afterwards proved) and then leisurely got on and gave the signal to start. When the car arrived at the turnout the down car had been waiting there some time. The car arrived at the Quincy station in ample time to miss the Boston train.

On Tuesday forenoon on the scheduled 11.50 down trip the conductor started at 11.55 thus holding the car up an unnecessary time. Cars have been also known to start three minutes ahead of time, which is equally as bad.

These two illustrations are but samples of the lax way in which the conductors have handled matters on that road for the past few years and largely accounts for the feeling engendered by the Houghs Neckers against the company.

Superintendent Weeks has but to say the word and this grievance will be removed.

WON BY ATHERTON.Finals of Golf Tournament Lacked Brilliant Plays.

The ending of the open golf tournament at Wollaston was not as brilliant as the plays of Tuesday and Wednesday, evidently because both Cracknell and Atherton were over anxious. It was a hard days work too, to make four rounds under such a strain, upon such a hot day. The play is summarized as follows:

Mediation Authorship.

London, June 2.—The correspondent of The Daily Mail at The Hague says: Frederick Hollis, secretary of the American delegation, is the author of the American mediation proposals. In one of the most forcible and lucid speeches the conference has yet heard he argued the utility of special mediation, as illustrated by the lessons of the Hispano-American war. He said that had Spain and America been each assisted by a mediator, peace would probably have been arranged after the battle of Manila.

Sensational Development in Dreyfus Case. Paris, June 2.—Lieutenant Colonel Du Paty de Clam, seriously implicated by the recent proceedings before the court of cassation as the probable instigator of some of the forgeries that have figured in the Dreyfus affair, was placed under arrest at 7.30 last evening and taken to the Cherche-Midi military prison. This move is looked upon as almost revolutionary in its character. The friends of Dreyfus are jubilant, and say it is the first step in the complete vindication of the prisoner, whose release is hourly expected. It is thought to mean that the court of cassation has decided to grant a new trial, that it is convinced of the innocence of Dreyfus and that it has decided to punish the real guilty parties.

Paid Out $6175. Havana, June 1.—The payment of the Cuban troops continued yesterday at Santiago de las Vegas, under the supervision of Colonel Randall, 109 men receiving $5 each. Twenty-one applicants, who had no arms, and who did not furnish the necessary identification, were refused payment. The arms surrendered were delivered by Colonel Randall to the alcalde. Colonel Randall and the pay train left last evening for Molina, where payment will begin today.

Two Ocean Disasters.

St. John's, June 2.—The Danish steamer Orskov, Captain Callesen, from New York for Copenhagen, carrying a general cargo, with a crew of 45 men, beside 20 shipwrecked seamen going as passengers by her, went ashore yesterday seven miles west of Cape Race and became a total wreck. A dense fog prevailed at the time, and the ship struck while going at full speed, crushing in her fore compartment and tearing out her bottom. The crew and passengers escaped with great difficulty, but without serious injury, being hoisted up the cliff by coast fishermen.

Newport, R. I., June 2.—During a dense fog, half way between Watch Hill and Point Judith, schooner Mattie Holmes of Bangor, Me., was in collision with the schooner Ada Ames of Rockland, Me. The Holmes was struck in the bow and so badly damaged that she went down in less than five minutes. The crew of the Ames with great difficulty saved Captain Mattox and his crew of five men. They lost their personal goods. The Holmes was coal laden, bound to Brewster, Me.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR.

Paris Goes Almost Wild With Excitement Over Major Marchand.

High Honors Are Paid Him by the Authorities.

Enthusiastic Crowd Broke Into a Procession and Cut Off His Carriage.

Paris, June 2.—The civil and military authorities and a big crowd of people went to the railroad station at Lyons at 1 o'clock yesterday morning in order to welcome Major Marchand, the African explorer, on his way to Paris from Toulon.

A tremendous shout of "Vive Marchand!" announced the arrival of the popular hero's train at 9:10 a. m. A victoria was sent by the minister of marine. The carriage was literally covered with flowers, and had a tri-color flag at each corner, while the coachman's whip was tied with tri-color ribbons.

Major Marchand and the representative of the minister of marine, Lieutenant Darrien, entered the vehicle, which, on merging from the railroad station, was greeted with shouts of cheering. All present, with the exception of the officers and non-commissioned officers on the sidewalk, uncovered their heads as the explorer passed.

The military men saluted in military fashion. Delirious enthusiasm marked every step of Marchand's progress. On either side of the carriage stood a policeman, who kept the explorer's frantic admirers from entering the vehicle.

The crowds, in spite of the efforts of the police, broke into and repeatedly cut off Marchand's carriage from the others, and surrounded it, cheering and waving hats and sticks. The procession arrived at the Palace de la Concorde at a walking pace and stopped in front of the ministry of marine, where Marchand entered.

The other warships finally arrived with Captain Baratar and the other members of the expedition. The minister of marine and Major Marchand then appeared on the balcony and the other members of the expedition followed, formed a group and repeatedly bowed to the spectators, who acclaimed until they were hoarse. Marchand and his companions lunched at the ministry of marine, a number of generals and admirals being among the guests.

The demonstration in the Place d'Opera last evening was not surpassed by anything of the kind during the Boulanger agitation. Fully 30,000 people congregated there, and when the mail coach returned from Versailles and was obliged to run into the crowd it had a narrow escape and was saluted with hostilities. The people made an ugly rush for the vehicle, but the police executed two energetic charges and enabled the passengers to alight safely.

Marchand has been on the move ever since his arrival here. He attended the state luncheon at the ministry of marine, where he received a gold medal and sword of honor. The Nile was prominently symbolized on the sword handle by a crocodile and a palm tree.

The company at luncheon was chiefly official. Many admirals, generals and other naval and military commanders attended, and they were all in full dress uniform. Marchand, as the chief guest, took Mme. Lockroy, the wife of the marine minister, into the banquetting room. At luncheon Marchand pleaded with Mme. Lockroy for his Senegalese sharpshooters to have an opportunity to visit Paris. He told her that the prospect was their great incentive to exertion in the march across Africa. Whenever their courage flagged, Marchand cried to them: "Boys, another strong effort to make sure of seeing Paris!" This electrified them. They are all now at Toulon; and he told Mme. Lockroy that he strongly felt his promise should be kept, and that their deep disappointment prevented him enjoying himself.

Mme. Lockroy repeated what he said, talking across the table to her husband; and all the company sympathized with the explorer. It is now settled that his brave blacks are to come to Paris.

The setout of the table at luncheon was original, charming and poetic. The floral decorations were entirely of wild flowers, blue, red and white. Mme. Lockroy thought Marchand and his companions would prefer after their long sojourn in Africa the flora of the French woods and fields to any other. Did they not also better symbolize a democratic army than cultivated flowers? Another consideration was that they are less stinging. Wild oats and grasses lent grace to the floral harmony.

Marchand looks a hero after Victor Hugo's heart. He is silent, thoughtful, modest without bashfulness. He might almost be an American so strong an impression does he give of unaffected staidness and countless firmness.

BY A SUBSTANTIAL MARGIN

Boston Took a Game Which the Cleverly Had Started to Capture.

Boston, June 2.—The Cleverly, after their record performance of Wednesday, started again at a winning gait, but the champions took a brace in the early part of the game and won out by a most substantial margin.

In the melee Sudhoff, who puzzled the champions Tuesday, again operated against Captain Duffy's boys, but with less success. The humid air had a depressing effect on the work of both Willis, who tossed for Boston, and Sudhoff, and neither could find the plate in the opening rounds.

Willis was speedy, but wild, and in the first two innings the visitors scored four runs on two clean hits. That which enabled them to bring in the quartet of runs was four bases on balls, two men hit by pitched ball, a wild throw by Willis to second on a force play and the brace of singles.

CANNOT SELL SOFT-DRINKS.

Vermont State Attorney Is Vigorously Rounding Up Law Breakers.

St. Johnsbury, Vt., June 2.—Herbert L. Doyle was sentenced to 60 days in the house of correction at Rutland yesterday, having been found guilty of 18 second offenses of selling intoxicating liquor. Doyle is proprietor of a local hotel, and the hotel has been adjudged a nuisance. He has also paid a fine and costs amounting to $519.02.

State Attorney Slack has been prosecuting the bottlers and dealers in so-called "soft drinks," which by analysis of the state chemist have been proved to include larger beer and thus come within the law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor.

Two bottlers and 12 retailers last week pleaded guilty either of selling, keeping with intent to sell or keeping a common nuisance, and paid fines and costs varying in amounts from $20 to $200.

Eleven places adjudged nuisances have been ordered by Police Justice Nichols to be closed against the parties in occupancy, and cannot be opened until bonds have been given of from $300 to $500 to obey the law in future.

State Attorney Slack has also brought proceedings in chancery, asking that the places in question be abated and enjoined at the June term of the county court, which will open next week.

These proceedings also include the property owners as well as the keepers, and the owners are among the most prominent citizens and include three of the St. Johnsbury banks.

When the proceedings against "soft drinks" were begun, Doyle left the city. It is asserted, however, that he did not care to appear before Judge Thompson, the judge whose services in liquor cases formed the basis for the play of "A Temperance Town." Doyle returned and appeared before Justice Nichols.

These prosecutions have been the most vigorous and thorough, as well as most successful, of any conducted in these parts for many years, and are likely to produce some comment throughout the state, especially after the recent high-license agitation at the last session of the legislature.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, June 2.—Three important bills were signed yesterday by Governor Wolcott. They were the bill to repeal the Boston board of apportionment law, and to abolish the board; the bill chartering the Boston, Cape Cod and New York Canal company; and the bill repealing the sewer-rental tax in Boston.

By a vote of 144 to 55, the house voted in favor of passing the trades union insurance bill over the veto of the governor, and the question of which charges of a trade of votes on the trades union bill and the bill for the publication of the province laws were hinted.

The province laws bill was passed immediately afterward. The bill as it now stands carries no appropriation for carrying on the work, and unless something of the kind is provided, the work may have to wait a year.

The bill to exempt newspaper publishers from the law of 1897 prohibiting the soliciting of orders for the sale of liquor was rejected on a roll call, 88 to 72.

The house voted to reconsider its adverse vote on the recommitment of the New Bedford and Fairhaven bridge bill, and the rule was suspended and the bill recommitted.

The bill to allow the city of Cambridge to go outside its debt limit for the purpose of constructing sewers was engrossed, under suspension of the rules.

The senate concurred with the house in passing over the governor's veto the bill exempting trades unions from the laws governing fraternal beneficiary associations. The vote was 24 to 9. The bill now becomes a law.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grains. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee. It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 10c. and 25c.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

LATEST!
EXPLOSION.

Followed by a Disastrous Fire.

Fortunately Employes were at Dinner.

East Weymouth Woolen Mills
the Scene.

A boiler at John E. Mann's woolen mill at East Weymouth blew up with a loud explosion at 12.25 o'clock this noon, demolishing the roof of the building tearing out the sides and throwing bricks and other debris in all directions. Some of the bricks crashed through the windows of the Electric Light & Power plant some two hundred feet away and another brick struck a lady on the head cutting a deep gash, but fortunately not causing serious injury.

Fire followed the explosion and the building will become a total wreck.

There was no one in the building at the time, the employes being at dinner, and no cause can be given for the explosion.

Had the explosion taken place a half hour earlier, or later a terrible loss of life must have resulted, as the mill employes some twenty-five hands.

The mill is what is known as the lower mill of the Old Weymouth Iron Co. It is situated on the bank of Weymouth Back river at the foot of a high embankment just east of the East Weymouth station of the N. Y. & N. H.
& H. R. R.

The property was purchased some years ago by John E. Mann and enlarged and fitted for the wool scouring business, being specially adapted for that purpose as the water which ran the upper mill passes beneath this mill
on its way to the river.

GRAB HANDLE MAN.

Will Now Take His Medicine at Quincy.

John Dietz, who is known among street railway people as the grab-handle man, was arrested Friday as he was released from the Cambridge jail
and turned over to Inspector McKay,
by whom he was wanted for getting $25 from the Quincy and Boston street railway company by false pretenses.

The alleged defrauding took place in December, 1898. Dietz was riding on a Houghs Neck car, and as he attempted to leave it the handle on the platform came off and he fell into the street.

He immediately put in a claim for damages and the railroad settled the case for $25. It afterward developed that Dietz had experienced several similar falls that same week in different sections, and had settled for from $25 to $100. He finally struck a road that refused to pay his demand, and the result was that Dietz was arrested for attempting to defraud and was sentenced to the Cambridge jail.

It developed at the trial, that the game Dietz was working, was to get onto a car and stand on the platform,
when unobserved by the conductor he would remove the nuts on the grab handle so that when anyone attempted to use the handle it would come off.
This done he would signal the car to stop and would fall off with the grab handle in his hand. The railroads learning the circumstances would settle.

When brought into court this morning Dietz was perfectly num. He refused to answer to his name, and refused to plead to the charge against him, or to stand up when the warrant was read.

LAWYER WAS BOUNCED

Lively Tussle Between Captain Price's Counsel and Sergeant-at-Arms.

Latter Not Dismayed by His Opponent's Knife.

Mazet Committee Witnesses a Scene Not Down on the Program.

New York, June 3.—By far the most sensational incident of the sittings of the Mazet investigating committee occurred at the beginning of the session yesterday. Police Captain Price, who had charged Counsel Moss of the committee of subornation of perjury, was immediately called to the stand and Mr. Moss made an effort to get him either to substantiate his accusation or withdraw it.

Price was accompanied by his lawyer, Mr. Henderson, and to the surprise of everyone persistently refused to answer any questions regarding his charge and moreover, absolutely declined to give the name of the witness whom he claimed Moss had induced to testify falsely. This course he took, he declared, at the advice of counsel.

Moss tried hard to pin Price down, and finally tried to the breaking point, gave up in disgust.

Price's manner of replying to questions was irritating to the committee, and Chairman Mazet repeatedly reprimanded him and also Henderson. Mazet finally told Henderson he would have to put him out of the committee room, and Henderson said: "Try it, I will not leave the room while I am alive."

After Price had declined to answer a long string of questions Moss lost patience entirely, and the most sensational occurrence of the entire investigation was precipitated.

"Now, Mr. Mazet," Moss shouted, "you have declared you would put Captain Price and his counsel out of the room if witness declined to answer my questions. It is time to act now."

"Captain Price, if you refuse to answer you and your counsel must leave the room."

"All right," said Captain Price, "I'll go out."

Price then started out, but Henderson refused to go, saying he stood upon his rights as an American citizen and would not go. There was something of a wrangle between Mazet and Henderson and then the former said: "Mr. Henderson, your client has left the room and you will have to leave."

"When I want to speak as counsel I will let the committee know. I shall remain as a spectator."

There was trouble at the argument that ensued, and the chairman ordered the sergeant-at-arms to put Henderson out.

"You'll never do it," shouted Henderson. Henderson had a knife in his hand. It is claimed that he had pulled the knife out of his pocket with the intention of sharpening his pencil, but Mazet and others thought he intended to intimidate the members of the committee and Sergeant-at-Arms Crawford. The sergeant-at-arms, however, seized Henderson and the two struggled about the room, scattering men and chairs and papers in all directions. Several doorkeepers and assistant sergeants-at-arms ran up and endeavored to help Crawford, who was saying in a low voice: "Come out, come out, and don't make such a show."

Henderson was finally forced through the gate and Chairman Mazet ordered Price as a police officer to assist in restoring order. Crawford, by this time, had got a good hold on Henderson, and the two disappeared out of the big double doors followed by policemen, doorkeepers, Price and most of the spectators. When the excitement had abated Price again took the stand and the investigation proceeded along the usual lines.

Sugar Maples Ravaged.

Chester, Vt., June 3.—The tent caterpillar has overspread Windsor county and the damage will be extensive, even more so than last year, when the pest ravaged the sugar maples throughout this section of the state. A determined effort is being made in all the villages to destroy the caterpillars and their nests, and at Woodstock the fire brigade has been enlisted in the work. The caterpillars' ravages are generally on heavy foliage trees, the maple being the chief sufferer.

They Want the Earth.

Havana, June 3.—There is much comment here over the fact that Cuban officers have been demanding $5 as compensation for identifying Cubans who have been applicants for the $75 allowed by the United States authorities to former soldiers of the Cuban army who surrender their arms. A majority of the Cubans here do not believe the statement, thinking the story was prepared to injure them in public opinion, but facts prove the story to be true.

Probably Hiding in Woods.

Keene, N. H., June 3.—No further clue to Lewis Castor, who killed his wife on Wednesday, has been found. He is believed to be hiding in the woods within a few miles of this city, and the officers believe they will capture him in a short time. The city council has offered a reward of $200 for Castor's apprehension.

Italians Fill Strikers' Places.

South Pass, Me., June 3.—The places of strikers in the section gangs along the Grand Trunk road in this part of the state were yesterday filled with Italians. A car containing several deputy sheriffs was in readiness, but the strikers made no demonstration against the foreigners.

Hobart Leaves Washington.

Washington, June 3.—After a period of complete rest, lasting since his return from Thomasville, Ga., about two months ago, Vice President Hobart left the city last night for Long Branch, N. J., where he expects to spend the summer.

THE CLARK KIDNAPING CASE.

Nurse Who Was Connected With It Said to Have Confessed.

New York, June 3.—The World today says: "Carrie Jones," the nurse who helped steal Marion Clark, was found last night near Summit, N. J. Her arrest immediately followed. She confessed to being a party to the abduction. She was taken to Summit in the custody of State Detective Edward Kelly. Bella Anderson is "Carrie Jones'" real name. She swears she was led into the scheme to steal children by George B. Barrows and his wife, Jennie. In her confession she tells that the child was stolen to demand ransom for her; tells how the kidnapping was accomplished.

While the New York detectives and the police of nearly every city and town in the country had been searching high and low for "Carrie Jones" the girl had been staying quietly at the Mills hotel annex in Bleeker street.

She had not been in hiding and had gone boldly forth on the streets daily, either walking or riding.

Until Thursday she had no fear of arrest. Then she saw Barrows, and fearing that the police might learn where she was staying she took her wheel and went to the home of her aunt, Mrs. James S. Henderson, at White Oak ridge, five miles from Summit.

It was the resemblance of Bella Anderson to the missing "Carrie Jones" that led to her being discovered at the home of her mother, Mrs. Jack Dowling, near Old Short Hills. At first the girl denied all connection with the case, but finally broke down and confessed.

A LIVELY ENCOUNTER.

Syrians and Portuguese Indulged In a Mixup in a Lawrence Street.

Lawrence, Mass., June 3.—A riot among the Syrians and Portuguese in this city was started last evening shortly after 6 o'clock by a street fight between a Syrian boy named Asig and a Portuguese named Mellis. The latter's father came to the son's assistance, and both were stoned by the Syrians.

The latter was compelled to take refuge in a Syrian's store close by and several of his countrymen assisted him in repelling the attack of Mellis and his Portuguese followers, who had by this time joined in the fracas. The Syrians were also reinforced by numbers of their countrymen just returning from work, and the hottest kind of a general fight ensued between the two factions. Clubs, knives, stones and chairs were freely used.

The scrimmage attracted mill operatives on their way home, and Valley street, the scene of the encounter, was jammed with an excited crowd of spectators. The cry of police had the effect of putting an end to the riot. Three of the rioting leaders were arrested. An excited crowd of friends followed the prisoners to the police station, and six of the number, also Syrians, were also locked up. Most of the prisoners were subsequently released on bail. A detail of police was placed in the vicinity of the fracas to maintain order. All of the participants were more or less bruised, but none fatally.

Boston, June 3.—The legislature was not prorogued yesterday, although the end of the present session was almost reached, and it is expected that today will see its departure. Each branch sat all day, but while the senate wrestled with state problems of importance the house indulged in a hilarious mock session and accomplished little actual work.

The upper branch sustained the governor in his veto of the bill giving veterans of the Spanish war preference in the civil service list, passed the resolution giving the Carney hospital $100,000, and killed the bill continuing the publication of the province laws of the state. These three matters took up the time until 7 o'clock last night and then the senate adjourned until today.

During the afternoon elaborate presents were given to Speaker Bates of the house and other officials of that body.

The serious business of the house occupied but a few minutes, the only bill on the calendar, for dredging and deepening Cohasset harbor, being rejected after a brief discussion.

The committee on military affairs reported reference to the next general court on the bill for a drill shed for the mounted arm of the state militia.

The bill to allow Chief Wadlin of the bureau of statistics of labor to take the position of supervisor of the national census in this state was engrossed.

The house concurred in the senate amendments to the bill for state pay for soldiers and sailors of the Spanish war. The house concurred in the adoption of the report of the committee on labor on the Mariboro strike. The bill to punish officials who exceed the appropriations for their departments went over to the next general court. The house concurred in the senate amendments to the bill relative to the estates of deceased persons.

Cattle Stricken.

South Hampton, N. H., June 3.—A disease, at present not definitely determined, deadly in effect, has appeared among cattle in this town, one owner having lost five head. The animals, when stricken, suffer great pain, and die in a short time. Word has been sent to the New Hampshire state cattle commission to come here to investigate the disease.

Aged Man Found Dead.

Franklin, Mass., June 3.—James Shaw, aged 80, was found lying amid some burning brush on Pond farm yesterday, and life was extinct. He had been working around the fire, and it is thought that he was stricken with heart disease.

WROTE THE BORDEREAU

Esterhazy Admits That He is Author of the Now Famous Document.

Says Others Must Share Responsibility With Him.

Military Chiefs Denounced as a Set of Scoundrels Who Have Deserted Him.

London, June 3.—The Daily Chronicle says that Major Comte Ferdinand Walsin Esterhazy called at its office late last evening (Friday) with a confidential friend, and, after declaring that the time had arrived when the whole truth should be told, although hitherto, by reason of constant orders and inducements, he had kept silent on the essential point, made the following statement:

COUNT FERDINAND WALSLIN ESTERHAZY.

"The chiefs of the army have disgracefully abandoned me. My cup is full, and I shall speak out."

"Yes (raising his voice and glaring around), it was I who wrote the bordereau. I wrote upon orders received from Sandherr."

Esterhazy, The Chronicle says, then proceeded to explain that for months before 1895 moral proofs had been obtained of leakages which were only possible through an officer belonging to the ministry of war, and it was necessary to catch the guilty party by material evidence. Hence the bordereau.

When asked what the chiefs of the French general staff would say to this confession, Esterhazy, shrugging his shoulders, disdainfully replied: "They will lie as they know how to lie, but I have them tight. They have proofs that they know the whole thing, and share the responsibility with me, and I will produce the proofs."

He then denounced the chiefs as a "set of scoundrels, who have abandoned me basely," and added, "but at one time they used to come to thank Madame Pays for her assistance."

Esterhazy asserted that, quite recently, the chiefs sent M. Laguerre, a former deputy, to London with seductive offers to him to keep silence.

"Now they are using threats," he shouted, "but I will not be deterred." The Daily Chronicle got Esterhazy to sign the notes of the interview.

Means Much For Dreyfus.

Kingston, J. A., June 3.—Advices received here from Cayenne say that all preparations have been made for transferring Dreyfus to the charge of officers from Paris, who are said to be coming on board the French steamer Lafayette, which, it is alleged, will take the prisoner direct from Devil's island on her return voyage to France. The advices add that Dreyfus has been in the enjoyment of good spirits since he was notified that he was to be taken back to France for the purpose of undergoing a new trial.

Bryan Talks on Silver.

Louisville, June 3.—The formal visit of W. J. Bryan to Louisville, under the auspices of the Ohio Valley Bimetallist league, occurred yesterday. He spoke to an immense audience at the auditorium, saying, in part:

"The party adopted at Chicago a platform which applied Democratic principles to the conditions then existing. The conditions existing today require the application of the same principles. No question brought to the attention of the people by the last campaign has been settled. The Ohio Valley Bimetallist league has adopted resolutions declaring that the contest for independent bimetalism at the ratio of 16 to 1 must be continued. I am in hearty sympathy with this determination. The demand for the restoration of bimetalism does not mean that there are no other issues before the people, but it means that this issue cannot be laid aside or surrendered until the financial policy of the American people is determined by the American people themselves, without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation."

Warrant Out For Assemblyman.

Harrisburg, June 3.—Counsel for the defense in the senatorial and the McCaull jury bill bribery suits yesterday retailed by presenting information against Representative John Engler, charging him with perjury in testifying before the legislative investigating committee that he was offered a certain sum of money by ex-Senator John C. Coyle of Philadelphia to vote for reconsideration of the McCaull bill in the assembly last February. A warrant was issued for Engler's arrest.

After Long Shutdown.

Holyoke, Mass., June 3.—A meeting of the stockholders of the Glasgow Manufacturing company of South Hadley Falls was held here yesterday. As a result the mills will probably resume operations within six weeks. The mills have been closed for about three years. They will employ about 500 persons and will manufacture ginghams and sheetings.

COLONY FOR SOUL STUDY.

Plans and Purposes of a New Settlement on Richmond Hill, N. Y.

A colony is being formed on Staten Island by the School of Psychic Philosophy organized in the spring of 1898. A tract of 150 acres in Meisner avenue, near the village of Richmond, has recently been bought, and preparations are being made for the erection of a house of worship and many small cottages. The site is on Richmond hill, and it commands a fine view of the lower bay. A great part of the property is wooded, and the clearing away process has been begun.

The object of the school, as stated in its constitution, is "the investigation and study of psychic phenomena and the relation of such phenomena and their underlying principles to daily life." Mrs. Lucy B. Sheffelin, who is building a cottage on the tract, says the society proposes to begin in July to hold meetings every Sunday morning and afternoon in its place of worship, in which will also be given lectures and psychic demonstrations. The society will do no advertising and does not court publicity, but any one desiring to attend the meetings to listen to and study psychic philosophy will be welcome.

Others who have begun to build houses in the settlement are Edward A. Spring of New Dorp and R. F. Woodward and Mrs. J. A. Butterfield of San Francisco. The present officers of the school are: Mrs. M. E. Williams of Manhattan, president; R. F. Woodward, vice president; Edward A. Spring, secretary; North McLean of New Dorp, treasurer; Mrs. Hattie E. Allen of New Dorp, librarian.—New York Sun.

CALF ON HER BICYCLE.

Peculiar Accident That Upset a Young Woman.

Miss Clarice Dubois of Deposit, N. Y., while bowling on her wheel the other day came to the top of a hill which offered a fine opportunity for a coast. Accordingly her feet went up on the rests and the wheel started for a cruise down the incline.

The coast was clear, with the exception of a calf standing in the road about half way down the hill. Had it been a mouse, in all probability the fair cyclist would have at once dismounted and gone around by another route or stepped into some house for assistance, but as it was only a calf that would probably make room at once at her approach; she kept steadily on.

The calf, however, had different views concerning the right of way and calmly stood his ground. The wheel had now gained a great impetus, and, despite the frantic effort of the rider, it struck the astonished calf, and in some way the fair lady brought up on her hands and knees, with her head between the calf's hind legs.

The wheel lifted the animal up, and there it was just for a minute astride the wheel, but after a frantic struggle released itself and moved off at double quick time. The fair cyclist was not seriously injured.—New York World.

DRESS REFORM MOVEMENT.

Women Clerks in the Colorado Capitol Adopt Bicycle Costumes.

The advanced woman at the capitol in Denver, and she is many, has started a movement in favor of divided skirts, dainty tan booties and golf hose that is bound to be a winner. A few days ago these becoming, well fitting costumes were a rarity among employees of the building, but two women in the secretary of state's office got their heads together and decided that bicycle apparel was just as dressy and neat and pleasant to wear during working hours as at any other time. They took several of their sister clerks into their confidence, and it was agreed after a prolonged discussion that there was too much conventionality among state house women in their manner of dress and that the sooner they adopted divided skirts and the like the better off they would be for it.

Accordingly the following morning five of the lady clerks appeared at the capitol in cycling costume. Two of them were the originators of the movement and were employees of the secretary of state's department. Since then just 14 of the 32 women in the building have adopted the costume, and the others are rapidly getting in the swim for dress reform in work hours.—Denver Post.

To Test Liquid Fuel in Naval Vessels.

In order to test the practicability of liquid fuel on naval vessels the navy department at Washington has decided to conduct experiments with the torpedo boat Talbot, now at the Norfolk navy yard. The Talbot will be put in condition for the tests at once and then taken to New York, where the experiments will take place. Twelve months will be consumed in conducting practical trials with different burners and the several systems recommended to the department. Lieutenant J. C. Leonard will be assigned to the command of the Talbot and will conduct the tests.

If you are gloomy and the world is not going right with you, dig you some bait, get your hook, come to Dew's pond, pull out a few of those trout and you are permanently cured.—Calhoun (Ga.) Times.

Good Afternoon.

But a limited time has been offered to prepare a reply to Henry H. Faxon's communication relative to the refunding of a portion of the maturing municipal debt of Quincy, but some important data has been gathered and a few comments are offered. Not until this year has the city had the privilege of refunding any debt, but the Legislature of 1899 has passed a bill authorizing the refund of $100,000 of the municipal debt. An order is before the City Council and has taken one reading, authorizing the refund of $40,000 of the $81,950.25 maturing this year. If $40,000 is refunded this year, $40,000 next year, and the balance of $20,000 in 1901 the standing would be:

Year.	Now Maturing.	Readjustment.
1899.	$81,950.25	$41,950.25
1900.	$2,700.00	$25,700.00
1901.	$2,656.61	$25,656.61
1902.	17,300.00	27,300.00
1903.	16,300.00	26,300.00
1904.	16,000.00	26,000.00
1905.	15,500.00	25,500.00
1906.	13,500.00	23,500.00
1907.	5,000.00	15,000.00
1908.	4,000.00	14,000.00
1909.	0.00	10,000.00
1910.	0.00	6,000.00

As the debt of $205,505 now matures, the tax payer of 1899 will be called upon to pay over 30 per cent. of the total. After the refund of $40,000 they must pay 16 per cent. Isn't that enough? Had the debt been so apportioned in the first place, it would have met with no opposition now. It is generally admitted that the City Council in the past have been careless in apportioning the new loans. That they made great mistakes. Now that it is legal to correct those mistakes the City Council of 1899 should avail itself of the privilege. It is not a fact, as Mr. Faxon states, that in the past all debts have been contracted in accordance with the 10-year statute. The following summary will show that less than $30,000 of the $81,950.25 was spread over ten years:

For 1 year,	$10,336.25
For 2 years,	500.00
For 3 years,	500.00
For 4 years,	6,000.00
For 5 years,	9,000.00
For 6 years,	0.00
For 7 years,	10,000.00
For 8 years,	17,150.00
For 9 years,	1,000.00
For 10 years,	29,164.00

The only forcible argument advanced against the refunding is that it was bad policy, and would injure the credit of the city, but Mr. Faxon does not believe that, and recent loans since Quincy obtained permission to refund have been on more favorable terms than ever. Mr. Faxon said, "The credit of the city would not be impaired if the city refunds all of its debt." It has not been the policy of Quincy to put off its debt; neither is its municipal debt increasing. It is not as large now as it was on January 1, a year ago, two years ago, five years ago, or even seven years ago, as this summary will show:

MUNICIPAL DEBT.

	Town.	$
Jan. 1, 1889.		$4,422.55
Jan. 1, 1890.	Mayor Porter.	168,811.79
Jan. 1, 1891.	"	191,200.39
Jan. 1, 1892.	Mayor Fairbanks.	262,886.89
Jan. 1, 1893.	"	323,542.36
Jan. 1, 1894.	"	339,730.00
Jan. 1, 1895.	Mayor Hodges.	311,091.00
Jan. 1, 1896.	"	294,895.61
Jan. 1, 1897.	Mayor Adams.	306,335.61
Jan. 1, 1898.	"	277,615.61
Jan. 1, 1899.	Mayor Sears.	265,505.86

Since Jan. 1 City Treasurer Burke has cancelled $23,100 of the maturing municipal debt, and no new loans have been contracted so the standing is even better than that shown above.

The municipal debt of Quincy is but $15 per capita, and a special assessment of $15 per $1,000 now would wipe it out entirely. Such a small debt ought not to be oppressive, and a tax rate of $15 per $1,000 is unnecessary.

Because there are the usual number of improvement orders before the City Council, many of which will not pass, has nothing to do with the refunding order. The refunding will be wholly within the debt limit, and there will continue to be a big margin inside.

The refunding order is not a temporary relief, but will be a permanent relief if future Councils are wise and not extravagant. The tax rate of Quincy can be kept below $17 for many years. We say, refund.

It may be a fact, but we doubt it, that "so long as we spend we must have a large tax rate." It is some of the small towns that have nothing that have the highest tax rate. If Quincy had made no improvements since it became a city, it would not have levied as much money, but it would not have developed the real estate; property would not have been worth so much; new residents would not have been attracted, and a population of 15,000 would have been called upon to pay all the taxes, possible at the rate of $20 per $1,000.

Through cars are appreciated by the trolley riders and will undoubtedly introduce the scenery of the "City of Presidents" to more people, but it is not quite so certain that through cars are a benefit to the business of the city. If travellers on the different routes have to make a change in City Square, they may stop over a car or a few hours and do a little trading, or they will do their trading at Quincy and not go further, as they might if whisked through. Quincy as a railway centre is all right, but we don't want to be a way station.

The Quincy & Boston has realized this fact, and business men of City Square have not fully appreciated what the company has done to make Quincy a centre. The more local lines with a terminus in Quincy the better. It will also be of advantage to extend them from Quincy, especially through Milton to Mattapan, Hyde Park and Dedham. Why not a local line also from Quincy via Norfolk Downs to Squantum?

The Assessors are often met with the claim by property holders that they were not aware that June 15 is the last day in which lists of taxable property can be filed with the board. The Assessors advertise this fact, and endeavor to make it plain that the laws of the Commonwealth limit the time to the date named. Our taxpayers have 12 days in which to file their schedules, and failing in this they must accept the judgment of the Assessors. It will be wise for those who are affected by the notice to give heed to the warning of the board and make their returns before the end of the last day of grace, which is June 15.

Drift of Opinion.

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore is in failing health and it is thought she cannot live long. In the agitation against slavery, as a nurse during the civil war, by her notable lectures and meetings against intemperance, and as an advocate of the ballot for women, Mrs. Livermore has been one of the most conspicuous and noble leaders of her generation. Although a born agitator, she was possessed of an unusual fund of practical common sense, and this, together with her unquestioned sincerity, gained and held for her the respect of all who came within the range of her influence, regardless of whether they agreed or disagreed with the positions she took.—Beverly Times.

General Wheeler's visit to Massachusetts impressed him strongly with the cordiality of our people, and he returns to Washington with very friendly feelings for those who played the host during his stay in Boston. The more his address is read the better it is liked, and the cleverness of the General in a trying situation is warmly commended. He was in a sense between two fires. The North listened jealously for an expression out of accord with the occasion and the South read his words to see if in any way he should compromise their "lost cause." The General offended neither, but added to the honors that were already his, and his expedition was in the fullest sense a success. It was a difficult situation fully as hard as any he had ever faced, but with skill and courage he went through the ordeal, and few Union Generals, and none of the Confederate officers, are more popular today than Fighting Joe Wheeler of Alabama.—Lynn Item.

Gold and Copper Stock FOR SALE.

I have had left with me to sell for a limited time 5000 shares of mining stock in a safe and conservative company, its property is situated in Colorado and consists of 17 mines with 27 true fissure veins in one group, all very rich in gold and silver and well developed by shafts and tunnels. In addition to the above is another vein nearby, recently added to the company's list, which is one of the most wonderful veins of copper yet discovered in Colorado.

A party not in any way connected with the company recently had four specimens of this copper ore assayed in Boston at his own expense that averaged $33.34 to the ton.

The President of the Company I have known for over thirty years, and he is all right. The Treasurer is one of the solid men of Quincy. Par value of shares $1.00 but for a very limited time, or until a sufficient amount is raised for the machinery required at the new copper mine, the stock can be had for 50 cents a share. Sales have been made every day this month so far, and it is expected the necessary amount will be raised by June 15, when the stock will certainly be advanced to par, partial payments received. Specimens of ore, on exhibition, also circulars, maps etc., can be procured by addressing

PLUMBING HEARING.

And Still Another One Next Week.

Chairman Thompson
Asks Questions.

Testimony Not Damaging to Inspector Keniley.

Another hearing on the charges against Inspector Keniley was held before the Board of Health last evening.
The evening was so warm that the hearing dragged and but little headway was made.

At the opening Lawyer McAnarney, counsel for Mr. Keniley, offered a letter from B. F. Curtis, which was that during the years he was chairman of the Board of Health, the Board had approved of and construed the ordinance to admit the use of wrought iron vent pipes.

Timothy F. Ford, a member of the Board of Health during the years 1894,
1895 and 1896, in answer to Mr. Mc-Anarney, said that complaints of the inspector were made orally to Mr.
Curtis, the chairman of the board. He did not think that the board took any vote on the use of wrought iron pipe
but thought Mr. Curtis instructed Mr.
Keniley to allow its use.

In answer to Lawyer Jenness, Mr.
Ford said short lead connections, not exposed to view were also allowed.

William A. Bradford of Ames &
Bradford, said he had been a plumber for twelve years. He was shown the drawing of the Parker house and asked if he considered that a trap at the foot of a vertical soil pipe. He replied that he did not so consider it. He considered the soil pipe ended at the cellar wall and that when it ran along the cellar it was a cellar drain. The force of the fall of any material would be broken at the bend.

Mr. Jenness—Has that got a running trap within the meaning of the law?

Mr. Bradford—In my opinion it has.

Mr. Jenness—Can you enter a running trap vertically?

Mr. Bradford—No; but that is no reason why it is not a running trap.

Mr. Jenness—Do you call that a proper connection as complying with the ordinances?

Mr. Bradford—Yes.

Mr. Jenness—Is there any danger of that trap being unsealed?

Mr. Bradford—No.

Chairman Thompson then asked the two counsels if they had any objection
to his asking a few questions, and receiving a negative reply asked the witness, Is there any difference in the actual seal or amount of water that is contained in the different traps, designated as, running, quarter S, half
S, or full S.

Mr. Bradford—No; the seal is as strong in one as another. The seal is the same in all.

Mr. Thompson—What is the usual method of making a joint in a soil pipe?

Mr. Bradford—Packed oakum and moulton lead, tapped with steel and iron. The lead is afterwards corked
as it contracts in cooling.

Mr. Thompson—Does lead contract and expand the same as iron?

Mr. Bradford—It does, but I do not know the relation. That is the reason they are corked.

Mr. Thompson—Will such a joint,
of pipe if flushed alternately with hot
and cold water, remain sound?

Mr. Bradford—The iron pipe would be likely to expand and contract upon the use of hot and cold water, which might loosen the joints.

Mr. Thompson—Is there a rust
joint and what is it?

Mr. Bradford—A rust joint is made of iron filings, salamouiac being used to cause rust. They have got to stand until chemical action forms rust. They take more time, and are used where a practical light joint is necessary, mostly used in hot houses. A rust joint makes a stack so tight that the pipe would break before the joint came apart.

Mr. Thompson—Is not tarred pipe
an outcast?

Mr. Bradford—There are lot of defects in it.

Mr. Thompson—Is it not a fact that a cast iron soil pipe that is sold as a plain pipe is of better quality than what is called a tarred pipe?

Mr. Bradford—The plain pipe is the best.

Mr. Thompson—Is it not a fact that when they have a rough piece of pipe
at the foundry, or pipe that have little pin or sand holes in them, that these pieces are thrown to one side and tarred?

Mr. Bradford—Yes; the danger in using tarred pipe is that the pin or sand holes have been filled up with tar are liable to be forced out by water.

Mr. Thompson—Would it not be better to have plain iron pipe?

Mr. Bradford—Yes.

Mr. Thompson—Would it be a benefit to Quincy and safety if nothing but plain pipe and rust joints were used?

Mr. Bradford—I think so as to the pipe, but can not say as to rust joints
as there were places where a rust joint cannot be used.

Mr. Bates and Mr. Keniley were asked their opinion on the same questions and they agreed with Mr.
Bradford.

Mr. Lyons—Do you know of any city or town where the ordinances
prohibit the use of tarred pipe?

Mr. Bradford—I know of no place in Massachusetts, but do know it is prohibited in New York city.

Michael F. Corbett, a plumber for thirteen years, now employed by J. E.
Keniley & Co., in answer to questions of Mr. McAnarney about the Parker house, did not call that a trap at the foot of the vertical soil pipe. The soil pipe ceases to be a vertical pipe when it turns and passes along the cellar floor. He knew of other places in Lynn and Brockton where similar connections were made.

Mr. Jenness—Does not that violate
the ordinances?

Mr. Corbett—No; plumbers would not consider that at the foot of a vertical soil pipe.

E. W. Branch, engineer of the Sewer Commissioners in answer to Mr. Mc-Anarney, said that when the sewer was laid on Copeland street a drain was found coming from the direction of the Craig block. In this drain was water which was of a very offensive nature.
He could not say where the drain came from, except that it crossed this trench near the Craig block at right angles. The stream had the appearance of being a continuous one delayed in its passage.

Henry H. Faxon said he thought there was an old drain built from the hill above Prout's store which came down across Copeland street, which took the water from the hill.

William Harkins testified as to the cesspool at the Craig block, which was about fifteen feet in the rear of the building. There was an old drain of the city which leaked into the cesspool which filled very quickly. He opened the cesspool at one time to stop it, and found that the contents was above the top of the pipe. This was in the spring of 1897. The nature of the soil was such that the cesspool would fill quickly.

The old drain runs along the line of the curbing five or six feet from the cellar. At the lower south-east corner of the cellar, under the Craig block,
was an old stone drain running out into the street. He thought that the city at one time objected to this cesspool as it leaked into the blind drain.

Hearing adjourned until next Friday evening at 7.30.

Slight Fire.

Again last night the fire department was called to the Drake shoe manufacture, now occupied by the Carlton Belted Co. The alarm came at ten o'clock before some of the night hands had left the shop. It was discovered by a neighbor who pulled in Box 171,
but was extinguished by employees.

Spontaneous combustion among oily overalls, etc., was the probable cause.
Elm street being closed to travel the department went via Canal and made a quick run.

The committee appointed last October, to consider the question of forming a social club, will make its final report at a meeting of those who have expressed their intention of membership, next Friday evening at Pythian Hall, Braintree.

It will be remembered that this committee made a preliminary report of the plan of a club, a few weeks after its first appointment, and at that time the committee was enlarged and rein-structed to continue and complete the preliminary details of the formation of a club in accordance with the plan presented. This the committee have done and are now ready to report.

Every interest relating to the formation of a first class club has been thoroughly considered, and the best suburban club of Boston have been visited and their work and administration have been observed. The committee have given much attention to the form of organization, the character of the membership the social life, the location of the club and the plans for a club house.

An intended membership of one hundred of the leading citizens of the town and surrounding communities has been secured; and the committee are assured of a much larger membership
when the club is formed and its regular social life is instituted.

In one important particular the committee have been peculiarly fortunate and that is in securing the indorsement and cooperation of our most substantial people. Of course, this has been done only with the assurance that the new club shall be established on a high plane and shall be of real service to its members and to the community.

In making the by-laws for the government of the club the committee have considered the relation of the ladies to the club and will recommend such membership for them as will serve to strengthen its social life.

Three sites for the club have been considered by the committee, — the Storrs place, Mr. Norris's home on Elm street, and Mr. Thorndike's lot of land on the south side of Elm street opposite Mr. Norris's house. They are all very desirable places, are centrally located and are easily accessible to all of the steam and electric roads of the town. The committee have secured options on these lots and will report in favor of the lot considered most desirable.

The size, cost, arrangement and convenience of a club house have been considered and plans will be presented for a house that will make an elegant and attractive home for the club at a moderate cost.

The preliminary details of obtaining a certificate of incorporation have been gone through, so that the organizing of the club can be accomplished at once.

In short, it may be said the plans of the committee will recommend the formation of a club that will be a genuine addition to the social life and many attractions of the town. The club will not be a place merely for smoking and loafing but will be a common meeting place where our people will come together and exchange con ties and opinions.

When the report of the committee has been accepted, steps will be taken at once to purchase a lot and to build the club house, so that it may be occupied early in the fall.

IN THE LIBRARY.

The fire is dim, the light is low,
And silent in my easy chair
I sit and dream, and fancies flow
About me in the darkling air.

The walls with books are covered well;
Quite to the ceiling high they rise,
And in the darkness I can tell
Where each beloved volume lies.

But now they seem to live and move,
And faces from their bindings stare,
And all the authors that I love
And their creations fill the air.

They never speak; their eager eyes
Look for companions never gone,
As each into the darkness dies
In turn and makes no sound.

And groups float by, but never gaze
Upon each other; all intent
On unknown errand go their ways
Or stand in mute bewilderment.

What are ye—real or feigned things?
And will ye live some grander life,
When we who breathe have lost our wings
And fallen, silent, in the strife?

And who are greatest—those who found
A city grand, a palace high,
Or those who till the spirit ground
Of fancy that can never die?

For men may live and do and dare,
Yet fade away, by all forgot,
But these creations, foul and fair,
Live on and perish not.

—From Watson's "Songs of Flying Hours."

THE VOLUNTEER.

A Sketch of the Cuban War.

With the intensity of a tropical day the sun seemed to expend its entire force of furnace heat upon the unsheltered spot in front of Santiago, where lay a grievously wounded American soldier boy. The wide, tortured eyes of the youth stared fearfully upward to the glaring zenith, past the foul birds watching his sufferings with calculating vision and waiting for their human feast which seemed sure to come. He thought with sickening brain of his northern home—the green hills, the running streams, the dear mother. Tears welled up into his aching orbs, and the hot drops crept down his cheeks. He did not try to wipe them away. He could not. A Mauser bullet had struck him in the thigh, another in the right arm and another in the left. He was helpless. But what matter! The dead could not see, and the mother would probably never know how he had nobly fought even to the gates of death. At his feet lay the dead body of a Cuban, black and burly, slain by the bullet of a Spanish sharpshooter. For these Cubans he was dying, for them he had come to help free the island from the tyranny of Spanish rule.

Then he recalled the events of that day at San Juan hill. The American troops had been on their feet since day-break. There was a scanty breakfast, and as the men ate it there were indications of the coming clash of arms. The files on the march to the firing line were closed up. Every sense was alive. The bugle sounded, and then came the order to advance. The tempest of musketry and shrapnel through which they moved forward drove like a storm of steel into the faces of the men, but nothing could resist the imperious advance, and the first line of the enemy was swept away.

The battle grew. Here and there a soldier went down, but the column stood firm. The officers marched close by the men. Sometimes through the smoke they caught a glimpse of the colonel leading on in front.

The din increased. The earth seemed reeling underfoot. Shells burst with horrid shriek and flung out quick death. Still the men pushed on. An officer picked up the gun of a man who had fallen and spoke a cheery word.

The Spanish artillery and the far-reaching Mausers swept within a certain limit every inch of ground, but with a firm and rapid step that unflinching column moved forward.

Louder grew the tumult, and thicker came the angry messengers. A sharp cry of pain, and one of the men is helped to the rear. The bullets came hotter and faster from the Spanish in the trenches and from the blockhouses. More comrades stretched out quietly with the death mark on their faces. There was no time for words—only a mad swelling of the heart and a throbbing of the brain. A deadly thirst for blood dried up all other feeling as another man was lifted back.

Suddenly a cool voice they had heard before rang out an order: "Come on, boys! Charge!" And the thin line rushed through the smoke and advanced up the hill. With a cheer they answered the fiery blast that swept into their faces with sudden fury. The air seemed instinct with leaden life, and volley after volley pealed forth from the deadly rifles.

For one awful moment the men faltered! Groans of agony and hoarse commands mingled, and all around American soldiers lay down to die. But the check was only momentary, and on into the jaws of death the column went. Every man leaned forward as though breathing a heavy wind. From right, left and front they felt the pounding of the enemy's guns, and shrapnel swept through the ranks like hail.

On the summit of the hill the blockhouse swarmed with the foe, dimly seen through puffing lines of smoke from our guns. The Spanish were entrenched—Americans in the open. But never mind! Forward! And soon the foreign foe was driven back and the stronghold captured.

Half way down the slope, as the victors pursued the flying enemy, a withering blast of Mauser bullets swept across the open ground, and the boy who now lay dying in the open space in the tall grass fell forward with a ball in his thigh. A comrade ran to his assistance, and he made his way painfully to the rear, but as he passed along another Spanish bullet struck him in the right arm, and presently he was wounded in the left. Then his day of battle was done, and the black hours of unconsciousness followed.

When reason returned the sounds of battle had ceased, and he wondered where his comrades were. Were they all dead? Would they search for him? He was alive, but he knew that death would come in a few short hours. How hot the sun beat down! How still everything seemed to him—no whizzing of bullets in the air, nor shriek of screaming shell, nor the yell of charging troops—nothing but the silence of an ocean of grass. There was the dead Cuban lying at his feet—a ghastly bunch of mortality. How big and black he was! His eyes were staring at him like balls of glass! What were they staring at him for? The night was coming on apace—would he have to lie in the tall grass until the morrow? He could not tell. And then the dark cloud again settled o'er his senses and it was hours before the light came into his soul.

Death's door is a mirror, and the dying have good memories. When consciousness returned the boy's mind went back to his home. He wondered if all was well on the old farm, where he and his mother and brother had lived in peace until the war with Spain called him to the front. He had a letter in his pocket from home—he would read it again. But, alas! he could not reach his pocket—both arms were disabled and in the inky darkness he could not see.

How long since had he left home? Three months! only three months! And now he lay dying in his young manhood. He remembered the morning that he left his home. The birds were singing and nature was at her best. The fields were clothed in green and the brook softly murmured over the pebbles at the bottom. He had donned his new uniform, and he felt a little sharp pang as he left his home. He remembered it all very well.

"Goodby, Bill," he had said to his brother. "Take good care of mother." "Look out for Spanish bullets and bring back a machete," said Bill. "I'm off, mother."

"Goodby, my son. Be brave and serve your country like a man." Then she embraced and kissed him, and the parting was over.

The old house cat rubbed against him and purred as if to bid him goodspeed. His faithful old dog followed him down the lane, but with stern words his master drove him back. At the edge of the town a blue eyed, fair haired girl stood at the gate. "Are you really going to fight the Spanish, John?"

"Yes, Helen, and I have come to say goodby." There was then a hasty kiss, a warm pressure of hands, and thus he left home.

Everything was so hushed and dark now. Was the whole world dead? Why was he lying helpless here? How had it happened? Then he remembered—the furious charge across the open field, up the hill and over the crest in the face of a rain of Spanish bullets. The air hummed and whistled. From the trenches and blockhouses the Mausers spit at them. Then the blow came to him. It was a terrible shock. It seemed to lift him from his feet and double him up and pitch him forward; then the painful journey to the rear, two more bullet wounds, and then unconsciousness.

Now he was dying in the darkness. How strange it all was! That dead Cuban—how black he looked, and how his eyes glared! There was a tiny hole in his forehead where life had leaped through. Some one was crying for water. Was it himself? He could not tell. The night was getting cold, and the heavy dew made the tall grass soggy. There were no stars to watch him. Would nobody help him? Hark! That was his dog howling, and how loud it was!

How weak and dizzy he felt. "Goodby, Bill." He could not see. Everything was growing dim. "Farewell, mother! Helen!" And the deep, dank grass waved a weeping requiem to another brave young soul.—Detroit Free Press.

America in Old World Eyes.

"Last year," says the Chicago Times-Herald, "the United States occupied only 44 pages of the space in the world's great annual, 'The Statesman's Year Book,' and these followed Turkey in the alphabetical arrangement of its contents. This year 282 pages and four maps are devoted to what amounts to a comprehensive register and review of our government, politics, commerce, industry, social condition, resources and progress. And as if to emphasize the new departure the new data precede all the rest and have a special index of their own. Such is the revolution wrought in the old world attention to American affairs by the remarkable year of stress and expansion through which we have just passed."

Cut and Run.

"Cut and run" originated in a peculiar custom of the Egyptian embalmers. A low caste was employed to make the first incision in the corpse, a process viewed with much dislike by the people, who held him accursed who should mutilate the dead. As soon as the fellow had made his "cut" he had to run through a storm of curses, stones and sticks. He "cut" for a living and had to "run" to save his life.

The true origin of the expression "to dun a man" is curious. In the reign of Henry VII a bailiff of Lincoln named Joe Dun was so active and clever in collecting debts that it became a proverb when a person tired to avoid payment. "Why don't you Dun him?" "Hobson's choice" is derived from one Hobson, who used to let out horses for hire, and who obliged every person who wanted one to take that next the stable door, being the one that had taken the most rest.—Chicago Tribune.

WHEN DEWEY COMES HOME.

By Cyrus Sylvester.

Things are going to happen when Dewey comes home. The bottled up enthusiasm of the American people is to be uncorked. He is to be welcomed in a manner such as has never been seen before. The reception which the English gave Kitchener when he returned to London after crushing the mahdi will be a Quaker convention compared to it.

It matters not that the great admiral is coming home for rest and quiet. He can have these afterward, if he survives the boisterous greeting which is being prepared.

Although the announcement that he is on his way back is but a week or two old, the plans for his reception are fully under way. Hardly a city of importance in the whole country but is looking for some pretext to secure his presence at some time or other after his arrival.

As the Olympia is to sail home across the Atlantic by way of Suez canal, New York will have the honor of first greeting the admiral. And New York proposes to do the thing handsomely. The city government has already appropriated $150,000 as an entertainment fund. Just how it is to be expended still remains to be seen.

Many absurd schemes have been proposed. The president of Manhattan borough suggests a dinner party, that an immense barbecue be held on the Polo grounds. Evidently he is of the opinion that Admiral Dewey would be highly honored to watch a New York crowd of unwieldy size fight for hot roast beef sandwiches in an open lot.

Another project, which has the merit of having been the first in the field, is the $10,000 dinner scheme. One hundred rich New Yorkers propose to have Dewey all to themselves for one evening. To accomplish this they are going to give a luxurious dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria at a cost of $100 a plate. It is still a question whether or not the admiral will care to tackle a $100 dinner, but the promoters of the scheme are merrily making preparations. The details of the banquet arrangements are awaited with some curiosity. The average American citizen wants to know just how a dinner can be made so expensive.

The New York Chamber of Commerce, whose members are accustomed to eat once a year the most expensive meal served in public anywhere in the country, started to get up a Dewey banquet, but the plan has received a setback.

A banquet will undoubtedly be one of the features of New York's civic welcome. If this is accomplished, it will be a stupendous affair, for the pressure to get invitations will be something unparalleled.

Countless other organizations in other cities want to dine and wine the heroic Dewey. If he should accept all these invitations, he would have to eat in public for the rest of his natural life. When he reaches the point to which Consul Stevens has forwarded all the mail which has been directed to the admiral since he left Manila, the sea fighter will find a bushel or more of these invitations awaiting him.

The principal feature of New York's reception will be the welcome which the Olympia will get as soon as she pokes her nose inside of Sandy Hook. Whatever the time of day or night it may be, the flagship will find there such an aggregation of water craft as has never before been assembled anywhere. New Yorkers have seen harbor mobs before, but none such as this one will be. The owners of excursion steamers are "HERE HE COMES!" already making their plans for coining money out of the popular enthusiasm. Besides the steamers which regularly engage in such business, there will be pressed into service every kind of craft which can carry a passenger. These will camp in the pathway of the approaching Olympia, packed with patriots who want a chance to shout a welcome to the hero of Manila.

The suggestion that the reception at New York be made one of national character has been adopted, and it is now planned to have representatives from all of the big cities present. Thus, when Admiral Dewey drops anchor, he will be presented not only with the freedom of Gotham town, but of Philadelphia, Chicago, San Francisco and other cities.

Unless some means of heading off these civic delegations can be found,

this will doubtless be a most tiresome ceremony to the admiral, who is a modest, law abiding man and who does not care for the freedom of cities. Why not fit one of the Olympia's ash cans with a slotted cover and let the spokesmen drop into it their printed speeches and various civic freedoms?

An up to date poet has expressed his views of the Dewey welcome in verse:

We have welcomed many presidents, likewise a king or two.
And princes of most every race and sort.
But the greetings of those meetings will eternally be lost
When Dewey comes a-sailing into port.
Just now we're going to do it we really cannot say—
The plans are not complete enough to tell.
Of course there'll be gunpowder, music,
Speeches, grub, but louder
Than the best, I know, will be the people's yell.

Then he proceeds to dilate on the extent and depth of that yell and ends with the conclusion that

Altogether rolling in one tremendous roar
It will meet and set the Narrows all a-foam.
And the man whose ears it reaches by those whoops and howls and screeches
Can bet his life they're glad to see him home.

Just what the date of this Dewey jubilation will be cannot be determined for some time to come. According to the latest reports, the Olympia will leave Hongkong about June 1. If she sailed straight home through the Mediterranean, she would reach New York about July 15. Europe wants to see our great admiral, however.

The English are especially anxious for him to stop at one of their ports. They will have banquets and receptions awaiting him. Probably the French would like to see Dewey too. It is not expected that he will have very urgent invitations to stop at Barcelona or any other of the Spanish ports. The dons have seen quite enough of Dewey.

If he accepts any of the French or English invitations, his passage home will be delayed. The navy department has given him free choice in the matter, and he has liberty to be as leisurely as he pleases.

In the meantime the project to give Admiral Dewey a home in Washington has become the most popular movement of the kind that was ever set rolling. It is proposed to give every Dewey admirer an opportunity to subscribe to the fund. The matter has been put in the most reliable and competent hands. No less a person than Frank A. Vandellip, assistant secretary of the United States treasury, has been made chairman of the committee, and Ellis H. Roberts, whose name is on so much of the government's money, has consented to act as treasurer.

The following is an extract from the address recently issued by the national Dewey committee:

"A grateful nation cannot do better than provide liberally for Admiral Dewey's comfort in a home fitted to his tastes, worthy in some measure of his services and indicative in a small degree of the gratitude which is not of a day, but of all time. A popular subscription will afford all the privilege to join in such a testimonial, in which patriotism will have a monument."

"On his return from the scene of his victories and his statesmanship, the official duties of Admiral Dewey will be performed in Washington. He should have a home there. The national capital cannot fail to have attractions for him in the present and future. For a winter residence during his life he can hardly find a more desirable place. It is for a home for Admiral Dewey in Washington that subscriptions are invited."

"Suggestions to this general effect have been put forth in several quarters. Assurances have been conveyed to the undersigned that the general enthusiasm can be directed into a single current through the agency of a national committee. Each of us, busy with manifold occupations, accepts as a duty, not to be set aside, the task of organizing the popular munificence for this purpose and of administering the patriotic trust for a Dewey home fund."

"Subscriptions may be sent at once to the treasurer of this fund at the treasury department, Washington. Temporary receipts will be promptly returned, and, as soon as it can be prepared, a duplicate of the same date and number, bearing a fine portrait of Admiral Dewey, will be forwarded to every subscriber."

A Brooklyn kite expert is to greet the admiral in a most novel way. He is going to suspend an American flag from a pair of kites and send it far out to sea.

These are some of the ways in which we are preparing to welcome Dewey home.

LETTERS OF SOLDIERS.

Interesting Information From Our Men In the Far East.

A SOLDIER'S VIEW OF THE NATIVES

John Titzell, Writing From Malabon, States That They Will Make Good Citizens—What a Successful Oregon Farmer Thinks of the Philippines—Soldiers' Life in Manila.

Miss S. E. Titzell of Franklin, Pa., has received a letter from her brother, John Titzell, who is a member of the Third Infantry, now doing garrison duty at Malabon, P. I., the New York Sun. After giving an account of the capture of Malolos, Titzell says: "We have fine food and good quarters and a general good time. We have no sick, and I think this a very healthy climate and am well satisfied. The natives are of Malay origin and speak a jabbering language. They have considerable intelligence and will make good citizens as soon as the insurrection is over and they get settled down to business. They have very coarse features and are a very small race of people, the men seldom being over 5 feet in height and the women 4 feet 6 inches. They have straight, black hair, which the women let hang down their backs, and it sometimes reaches the ground, which makes them look very picturesque and odd.

"These people are very sociable and will do anything for the Americans. They are also industrious, and till the soil to perfection, raising rice, coffee, sugar and tobacco, and as all the tropical fruits grow wild in abundance they have a great variety of food, or 'chow chow,' as the natives term it. They are also great fishermen, and catch a great variety of fish and shellfish, oysters, clams, crabs, shrimp, etc. They are perfectly at home in the water, their boats being catamarans equipped with outriggers. The boats are light and hewn out of logs, and it is great sport to get soldiers in boats of equal size, when we have a genuine regatta.

"Malabon is a large city, its population being 15,000, but at present there are not more than 5,000 people here, as the insurgents have driven them into the country, but they are now returning, and in a few weeks we expect to have most of the people back and at work. The principal manufactures are a large sugar refinery, a rice factory, indigo factory, three cigar factories and a banyard. The best buildings are four churches and the residences of several foreigners. The business portion of the city was burned when the insurgents were driven out, but it is expected that it will be rebuilt as soon as the natives return.

"If we should stay in this city until the insurrection is quelled, we will have a genuine picnic doing duty. As it is now, we have guard duty every third day. But we have no other duties to perform—that is, not very hard ones."

George R. Mustard writes home from the Philippines as follows, says the Pender Republic: "Well, Mike, Bill and I are all right. We are having the best of health and have escaped the bullets so far, except a couple of scratches which I got on the first day on the left arm and one on the finger the second day, but they only just burned the skin and did no harm. The weather is fine. It gets pretty warm during the day, but most of the nights are cool enough for a blanket. We get plenty to eat besides the government fare. We do a little foraging. It is strictly against orders, but who can eat bacon when there is chicken in sight? And the sweet potatoes are fine, and there is a nice patch only a short distance from camp. The captain doesn't see us, but he hasn't eyes in the back of his head and has a sort of hankering for chicken.

"Well, Mike, it isn't all fun here. The mosquitoes average about 100 to the square inch, and little red ants, black ants, white ants and all kinds of ants around, some an inch long, with jaws like a blacksmith's pinchers. They slide under our clothes and take a piece out of our hide any old place they get hold. But that isn't the worst, so Bill says. There are lizards of all sizes, from two inches to two feet long, and it is nothing to wake up in the night while on outpost and hear a night bird as big as a crow screeching a deathlike song just over our heads or feel a half dozen bamboo rats under our blanket. Bill says he isn't afraid of a dozen 'niggers,' but hang these lizards. He says he and they can't sleep under the same blanket."

John I. Howland of the Second Oregon volunteers, now in the Philippines, whom The Oregonian vouches for as a successful Oregon farmer, writes home as follows:

"This is a fine country. We want to keep the Philippines. The volunteers here have been invited home, but the boys do not want to go. All the boys are willing to remain until the war is over. I think if the United States will give us each 160 acres of land and guarantee us the title that one-half of Company I will be settlers in these islands. We will defend the islands against invasion, because they are the most valuable part of any country that the United States ever obtained possession of. The Filipinos are used to fighting, but are not as good fighters as the American Indians. These people are not equal to self government. They are not as capable of self government as were the American Indians, although they are more advanced. If the United States government will guarantee 160 acres of land to each settler, I shall take a quarter section myself and live in the Philippines. This is going to be, as I believe, the gateway from the west to the east."

THE NEW MODERATOR.

Chosen to Preside Over the 111th Presbyterian Assembly.

The office of moderator of the general assembly is the highest gift which the Presbyterian church can give to any of its ministers, so the Rev. Dr. Robert F. Sample, who was elected to this post the other day in Minneapolis, is to be considered from now on as one of the prominent men of that faith. Besides being one of the most polished preachers in New York, he is a traveler, author and poet. He is a man of strong character, and his selection as moderator of the one hundred and eleventh general assembly was regarded as a victory for the conservative element of the church.

The newly elected moderator was born at Corning, N. Y., in 1834. He graduated from Jefferson college and

REV. DR. ROBERT F. SAMPLE, from the Western Theological seminary. His first pastorate was at Mercer, Pa.; the next at Bedford, Pa. From this charge he was called to the Westminster church, Minneapolis. He preached in Minneapolis for 21 years. During the past 13 years he has been the pastor of the Westminster church, New York city.

Dr. Sample is a member of a number of boards and important committees under the control of the general assembly—among others, the board of church erection. He is also a trustee of Lincoln university. He has been moderator of the synod of Minnesota and also moderator of the presbytery of New York. He was a delegate to the pan-Presbyterian council held in Belfast, Ireland, in the year 1884 and read one of the papers on that occasion. Force, eloquence and earnestness are as characteristic of this noted preacher as delicacy of literary shading, effective imagery, pathos, scintillations and wit and all that goes to make the accomplished man of letters as well as the fervid preacher. For 25 years he has been a constant contributor to papers and periodicals, and volumes published anonymously, which have found their way to classification of high rank among choice works of the kind.

The whole province of Quebec is very much interested in the marvelous stories which are being told about the cures effected by little Jean Louis Taillon, the boy healer of Montreal. People are visiting the Taillon house at the rate of over 200 a day. Not all of them are allowed to see the boy healer.

Jean Louis is the seventh son of Joseph and Rosanna Taillon, French Canadian folks in moderate circumstances. His home is at 533 Trunk street, Montreal. It is alleged that he cures simply by the laying on of hands and that he charges nothing at all for his services, merely asking the afflicted ones to say a pater and ave for their relief.

According to Jean's mother, he had never tried to cure anything but toothache until last summer, but he is said to have relieved the pain of aching molars ever since he was 6 months old. Mme. Taillon says that they all expected he would possess some power to cure because of his being a seventh son.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning June 4—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Wheat and tares.—Math. xiii, 24-30.

In the parable of the wheat and tares a field is sowed by the husbandman with good seed. But before it springs up an enemy steals in in the darkness of night and sows tares, a very noxious weed resembling the wheat, with the wheat. Both spring up. The servants of the husbandman inquire if they are to pull up the tares, but he, realizing that in so doing they would endanger the wheat, also replied, "Let both grow until the harvest." Then the separation could be safely made. According to Christ's own explanation, the field is the world, the sower of the good seed is the Son of Man, the sower of the tares is Satan, the wheat represents the children of the kingdom of heaven, the tares the children of the devil. The harvest is the end of the world, when God will separate the good and the evil.

What does this parable teach? It seems to declare against all discipline in the church, but this cannot be its real significance. Discipline is clearly taught in other portions of the word of God, and Scripture does not contradict Scripture. It must certainly therefore only intend to declare that there should be a spirit of patient forbearance and tolerance in the church and in Christ's kingdom, because of the impossibility of having a perfectly pure church in this world and because an intolerant spirit is calculated to do more harm than good. With this as the key to the solution of the parable several important facts are set forth.

1. Good and bad will always be found in the church and world. Wheat and tares will ever be entirely separated in this life. The perfect state is a Utopian dream. The ideal church is in heaven, not upon earth. The old dispensation had its false prophets as well as its good. The apostles had their Judas and the early Christian church its Ananias and Sapphira. It will always be so in this life.

2. Rash, intolerant attempts to root up evil at any cost do more harm than good. How many blackened pages of history prove the wisdom and truthfulness of Christ's words! Zealous reformers in state and church might profit well by a frequent, prayerful study of this parable.

3. The harvest will come when God will make the separation. Then it will be done without injury. We need never sanction or condone evil, but in the spirit of this parable, which is the spirit of Christ, we can patiently tolerate and endure until God Himself decides the issue, whether He do it now or postpone it till the day of judgment.

Bible Readings.—Job xx, 4-9; Dan. xii, 2, 3; Math. vi, 1-7; vii, 1-6; xxiii, 23-33; xxv, 31-46; John v, 28, 29; I Pet. ii, 1-3; Rev. iii, 1.

Our Motives.

Every individual should be able to assign a reason for any particular act he may perform, and while he may blunder in the performance, there should be left the sweet reflection that he meant well. This, however, is not always a sufficient excuse for failure.

There should always be intelligent action, wise planning, connected with a pure motive. Indeed some motives are so imperfectly understood, so crude and so ill considered, that it is exceedingly important to obey the gospel injunction, "Try the spirits." Personal interest may seem to justify the doing of a thing which in itself may be good, but which if done even with a good motive may greatly damage some persons beyond recovery—as, for instance, a wholesome motive may prompt one to acquire a fortune which may involve many questionable methods of the acquisition of property.—Philadelphia Methodist.

Retain Your Ideals.

Let each one obey what is deepest, highest, purest in him. That is the word, the revelation, the Adesh of God. He that allows the consideration of carnal comfort, even of carnal necessity, to stand in the way runs the risk of losing the highest self in him. The struggle for existence in a truly spiritual man points to absolute fidelity to the ideal, while hunger and fatigue stare him in the face. The whole question of worldliness and asceticism centers here. The bread that man eats is a small matter and the sure accompaniment of what he holds as his highest pursuit. But he that sacrifices his ideal to his bread finds when it is too late that man does not live by bread alone.—Episcopal Recorder.

The World Passeth Away.

It is a solemn truth that "the world passeth away and the lusts thereof." The very things the world desires and longs for fail to satisfy. They see that change and decay are busy ever. Their best laid plans are thwarted. Their fountains of delight are constantly failing. Men grow weary of a profitless quest for happiness. There is no solid assurance save as a man's life harmonizes with God's will. "He that doeth the will of God abideth forever."—Christian Inquirer.

Be Contented.

Do not quarrel with your lot in life. Do not complain of its never ceasing cares, its petty environment, the vexations you have to stand, the small and sordid souls you have to live and work with. Above all, do not resent temptation. That is the practice which God appoints you and is having its work in making you patient and humble and generous and unselfish and kind and courteous.—Drummond.

Another Application.

The golden rule applies all around, even to business transactions; therefore, if we wish to keep it, we must be willing to sell to others at the same rates as we would they should sell to us.—Lutheran.

A PLEASING DESIGN.

Plans For a Handsome Cottage—Cost to Build Reasonable.

[Copyright, 1899, by George Balliser, 32 Park place, New York.]

Many men of many minds give variety and spice to cottage architecture, which is best adapted to our country. One man will be excellent in theory, and from the theories expressed the more practical mind will work into possible shape ideas and examples by which thousands may profit and gain inspiration for higher and better things. The dreamer not only dreams. He soliloquizes and is proud of the suggestions born of his dreams. He is constantly putting forth ideas, many of which are wild and often so extravagant as to be out of the question. Still once in awhile he strikes the keynote, and in his vapors the practical worker is reached, and the thought assumes tangible shape and form.

I know numerous dreamers and theorists, and I love to hear them talk, to have them point out their grand ideas for the nation's welfare. I can learn from them, for good ideas come from such sources when least expected. The theorist is a necessity, but he needs reliable governors, like an engine, to keep him in control. The practical mind brings everything down to hard facts. It must have a reason for everything, and all things must be worked out for a purpose. In the planning of a home this is forcibly exemplified. The end attained must be the greatest degree of fitness at the most economical cost.

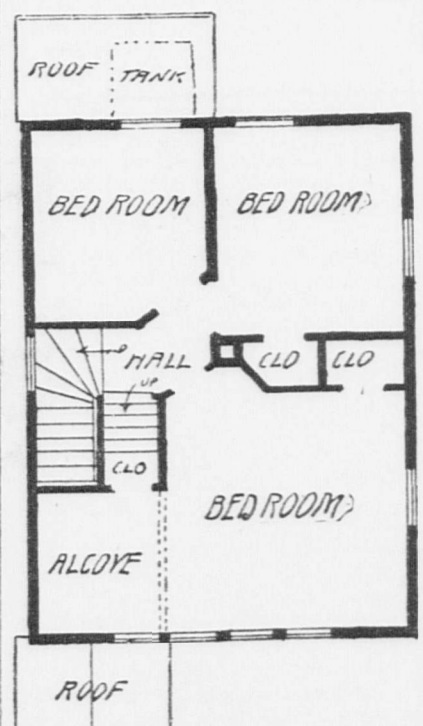

Any one can build a house regardless of cost, as this only means starting in and keeping it up till the job is done—building up and pulling down and building up again till the work is finished and one is suited and counting the cost when done. Many a piece of work is carried on in this way, and I have seen people build a house on these lines where they started in with an intended cost of $5,000 and actually brought up when $50,000 had been spent. But these people were millionaires and could afford it. Unfortunately we are not all in this category and hence must count the cost before we begin. This the poor man must do always, and this is his safety valve, keeping him inside the lines of prudence and within his ability to pay.

Such small homes as this are the bulwark of the country. The mechanic, the laborer, the farmer, all who need a small home, can testify to the truth of this. They are the wealth producers and are entitled to the fruits of their labor. Let them, then, bend by their labor. And in no way can their interests be so advanced as by being householders and owners of the soil. This gives them new life, new hopes, something more to live for, and makes them better citizens, better husbands and fathers, keeps them alert in the great matter of education, in politics and in the general good of the community. Even though it is a small interest at first, it will grow. Let there be fewer paupers, homes, and there will be a worthier middle class. It is within the province of all to do something to bring about better things. The home owner is the man who may be depended on, since his interests compel his attention, and his vote is the power that will work for the revolution toward a happier life.

WEATHER-CROP BULLETIN.

Rain Must Come Soon to Relieve the Season From a Partial Failure.

Boston, May 31.—Clear to partly cloudy weather has prevailed during the past week, with variable temperature. The week opened somewhat cool, with light to heavy frosts in the more exposed localities on the 23d and 24th. The temperature acquired an upward tendency on the 25th, and the 26th and 27th were warm days, with maxima of 75 degrees to slightly above 80 degrees.

The precipitation continues very deficient. Very light, scattering showers occurred on the 23d and sprinkles on the 25th. In no section has the rainfall been sufficient for present needs, and the week has been absolutely fair in many portions of the district.

The general situation is a matter of serious concern at the present time, and unless relief comes soon from the prevailing drought the season will be at the best a partial failure. While the weather is all that could be desired for planting it is extremely unfavorable for germination and growth. There is not enough moisture for sprouting small seeds. Nothing grows well, except maybe garden truck, and in fact nearly every crop is at a standstill awaiting a good, soaking rain. All over the country, with reason, feeling rather depressed over the outlook. Ravages by the caterpillar continue to be reported locally.

The prospect for a good crop is seriously affected by the protracted dry spell. It will soon be too late for proper growth of grass, and the opinion is advanced that the crop cannot now fully recover even if future conditions should be favorable. In portions of the north where the drought has not yet struck severely, the crop is considered to have an excellent start, but such reports are not general. From nearly every section comes the request for rain. Pasture is failing rapidly, and stock is being fed from the barn extensively.

Rye is heading in the south, and the general outlook for grain continues promising. Oats are not making as good headway as could be desired, and corn is in a backward state. Considerable corn has been planted during the week in the northern section, although many farmers are awaiting more favorable weather. In the south the soil is entirely too dry and cold for corn; it is coming up unevenly, looks yellow, and much replanting has become necessary.

Correspondents are almost unanimous in their reports concerning fruit, and it is quite safe to predict that the apple crop will be light. This is especially true of the late varieties, while the early kinds have a fair prospect for a moderate yield. All other fruits are generally in excellent shape. In the north there is a full bloom. In the south cherries and plums are setting freely, and an immense bloom of the quince fruit is reported. A rather curious circumstance regarding apples has developed locally in Rhode Island, western Connecticut and portions of the southern Massachusetts coast sections. In those districts a heavy bloom has occurred, and in direct contrast with other localities, a heavy yield of fruit is expected. There is loud and general complaint of the ravages of forest worms in orchards.

Potato planting has continued in the north. In the south first hoeing is in progress, but the growth at present is slow and not even. Onions and the other small vegetables are probably in better shape than most crops, although growth is retarded.

A party of boys many of whom are from the Monaquet school is to spend four weeks with Principal Field at Lake Webb, Maine. The party consists of Joseph Morrison, Bennie Woodsum, Clifton Woodsum, Harold Faxon, Thurlow Torrey, Willie Davenport, Haven Belcher, Fred Arnold, Harold Hollis, Newton McKean, and Ferdon Shaw.

Mrs. Daniel Hayward, of East Baintree, kept open house on Tuesday, and many of her friends and neighbors called to congratulate her on having reached the 80th milestone. Mrs. Hayward although having passed through a severe illness, a few years ago, from which she has not fully recovered, can read the Baintree Observer without the aid of glasses.

Mr. J. M. Holbrook, one of the youngest members of Gen. Sylvanus Thayer Post, died at his home of Hancock street on the morning of Memorial day after an illness of but two days. The funeral took place in the M. E. church on Thursday. Rev. C. H. Williams officiating. There was singing by a quartette composed of Mr. L. W. Thayer, Mr. W. E. Wilde, Mrs. C. H. Stone and Mrs. Neal McLeod.

An Exchange Observes

That no one has discovered a sure cure for laziness.

That a man who has no enemies has but few friends.

That a man never becomes too shiftless to give advice.

That it is said that a burned child dreads fire. Probably that's why the newly married man tries to avoid his old flames.

That some men are truthful at all times—except when their wives ask for money.

That now the season is at hand when papa's pocketbook should go into training for fall openings.

That a man can never walk as though he owned the earth when the collar on his overcoat is worn to the nap.

That a man can learn more of a woman's tastes by going through her pocketbook than by reading her diary.

That a person who sits in a theatre box for the first time is about as comfortable as the much-quoted sardine.

That photographers always insist upon taking the side of your face that you consider least attractive.

GIVE THE CHILDREN A DRINK

called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee but is free from all injurious properties. Grain-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder, and children, as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about 1-4 as much as coffee. 15 and 25c.

ATHERTON LEADING.

Wollaston Golf Champion Playing Great Golf at Allston.

Atherton of the Wollaston Golf club, who won the Wollaston cup this week, was a favorite at opening of the Allston tournament yesterday. The scores made will not be announced until the completion of the event this afternoon, for the reason that if they were known many of those already entered would not compete today.

The Herald says, From a spectator's standpoint, the best playing yesterday was done by "Ned" Atherton of the Wollaston club and George Wright of the Allston club. That part of the course free to the sun, had become so hard that the greens were too keen and fast, while the greens that were shaded were slow. Hence it was next to impossible for a player to make a good gauge of his stroke.

The driving of Atherton was particularly good. In the open tournament held at the Country club a few weeks ago, his driving was the subject of much favorable comment, and yesterday it was equally as good. Wright excelled in his approach work.

Boston Museum.

Viola Allen begins her last week in "The Christian" at the Boston Museum next Monday evening, June 5th. There will be but eight performances—matinee Wednesday and Saturday—and these will comprise Miss Allen's farewell appearances in Boston and New England for two years and positively her last times as Glory Quayle in this part of the country. There will be no further extension of her engagement under any circumstances and Saturday evening, June 10th, definitely marks its close. Miss Allen's next appearance in Boston will be in a new play, now being written for her by a great English author, during the season of 1901-1902.

Castle Square Theatre.

"A Temperance Town" has completed another so successful week, at the Castle Square theatre, that the management has decided to continue it as the attraction at this popular play house for the coming week. The satirical treatment of the issues growing out of the temperance question in this play affords immense amusement to the Castle Square theatre audiences, and the laughable series of absurd scenes and situations introduced by the author makes the comedy a strong attraction. All of the members of the company have won new honors in this production and the record of its four weeks' run promises to equal that of any of the Castle Square theatre attractions during the last two years. Mr. Hoyt's "A Midnight Bell" will be one of the earliest productions after the present attraction is withdrawn.

Keith's Theatre.

The programme at Keith's theatre for next week will include: Felix Morris in "The Vagabond;" Gerald Griffin and company, in a new sketch called "Silence is Golden;" Panzer Brothers, grotesque comedians; Falke and Semon, musical comedians; Mario, the juggler; Ray L. Royce, mimic and impersonator; Willis Sweetman, blackface comedian; Maude Amber and Healy and Saunders. The biograph will have a number of new subjects and the great Boston school regiment picture will be continued. Ching Ling Foo, the Chinese magician, who is creating the greatest sensation known to New York vaudeville, is soon to appear at Keith's Boston house, probably the week of June 12.

MESSAGE TO FAITHFUL.

Christian Scientists Listen to Address of Pastor Emeritus Eddy.

Thankful For Persecution and For Prosecution

If the Latter Days of the Nineteenth Century Are to Be Benefited Thereby.

Boston, June 5.—The annual communion service of the mother church of Christian Science in Boston, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, was observed yesterday. The service was the subject of the sacrament, and in accordance with the usual method pre-valing in the Christian Scientist churches the sermon consisted of alternate references from the Bible and the Christian Scientist textbook,
"Science and Health, With Key to the Scriptures," by Mrs. Eddy; these selections bearing upon the subject of spiritual communion, which is the communion believed in by Christian Scientists, as they dispense with all material symbols
at such service.

Thousands flocked into the edifice,
merely for the privilege of kneeling in silent communion for a few moments,
of listening to the reading of a brief message and the exchange of kindly greetings with fellow members. As fast as the brief services were concluded and the congregation had departed another concourse streamed into the church, and the simple service was repeated.

Each gathering was a representative
one, for all sorts and conditions of men and women were present. The rich and the poor, the high and the lowly, the democratic citizens of the United States and the nobles of England touched elbows, and all seemed imbued with health, happiness and fraternal affection.
Even the knowledge that Mrs. Eddy would not be present had little effect on those who joined in the services, and her message was received with undiminished fervor. At each of the services the worshippers knelt for a few moments in quietness, after which the first reader, Septimus J. Hanna, invited those present to join in the communion.

His words of invitation were: "I now invite all present, whether members of this church or not, and communicants of other churches, if there be any present,
to enter with us into the inner sanctuary
of Saul, for a brief moment, into the holy of holies, into the secret places of the most high, for there is nothing as near as infinite love."

After the silent prayer the annual message of the pastor emeritus, Mr. Baker Eddy, to the mother church, was read by John W. Reeder, and listened to with great interest. It was, in part, as follows:

"Looking on this annual assemblage
of human consciousness, health, harmony, growth, grandeur and achievement, garlanded with glad faces, willing hands, and warm hearts, who would say today: 'What a fond fool is hope?'
The fruition of friendship, the world's arms outstretched to us, heart meeting heart across oceans and continents, the bloodless sieges and fearless triumphs,
the 'well done' already yours, and the undone waiting only your swift hands,
are enough to make this hour glad.
What more abunds and abides in the hearts of these hearers and speakers pen may not tell.

"Nature reflects man, and art pencils
him, but it remains for science to reveal man to man; and between these lines of thought is written in luminous letters, O man, what art thou? What art thou? Whence and whither? And what shall the answer be? Expressive silence, or with finger pointing upward—thither! Then produce thy records, timetable, log, traveler's companion,
etc., and prove fairly the facts relating to the thitherward—the rate of speed,
the means of travel, and the number en route. Now what have you learned?
The mystery of godliness—God made manifest in the flesh, seen of men, and spiritually understood? And the mysteries of iniquity—and how to separate the tares from the wheat—that they consume their own fires, and no longer kindle altars for human sacrifice. Have you learned to conquer sin, false affections, motives, and aims—to be not only sayers, but doers of the law?
"One thing is eternally here; it reigns supreme today, tomorrow, forever. We need it in our homes, at our firesides, on our altars, for there with win we the race of the centuries; and we have it only as we live it. This that needful one thing —divine science, whereby thought is spiritualized, reaching outward and upward—to science in Christianity; science
in medicine, in physics and in metaphysics.

"Happy are the people whose God is all in all; who ask only to be judged according to their works; who live to love.
We thank the giver of all good for the marvelous speed of the chariot-wheels
of truth, and for the steadfast, calm coherence in the ranks of Christian Science.
"On comparison, it will be found that Christian Science possesses more of Christ's teachings and example than all other religions since the first century.
Comparing our scientific system of metaphysical therapeutics with material medicine, we find it completely overshadows and overwhelms it, even as Aaron's rod swallowed up the rods of the magicians of Egypt.

"We should thank God for persecution and for prosecution, if thereby ensue a purer protestantism and monotheism for the latter days of the 19th century. A siege of the combined centuries, cuidamus in fierce attack, cannot demolish our strongholds. The hosts of Christian Science, garrisoned by God's chosen ones, can never surrender. And wherefore? Because it is 'Peace on earth, good will towards men'—a cover and defense adapted to all men, all nations, all times, climes and races. I cannot quench my desire to say this; and words are not vain when the depth of desire can find no other outlet to liberty.

"A coroner's inquest, a board of health,
or class legislation is less than the constitution of the United States; and infinitely less than God's benign government, which is no respecter of persons.
Truth crashed to earth springs spontaneously upward, and whispers in the breeze man's inalienable birthright—liberty. God is everywhere, nor crown nor scepter, nor rulers rampant can quench the vital heritage of freedom—
man's right to adopt a religion, to employ a physician, to live or to die according to the dictates of his own rational conscience and enlightened understanding. Man cannot punish a man for suicide—God does that.

"Christian Scientists abide by the laws
of God and the laws of the land; and following the command of the master they go into all the world, preaching the gospel and healing the sick. Therefore be wise and harmless, for without the former the latter were impracticable. A lack of wisdom betrays truth into the hands of evil men as effectually as a subtle conspirator; the motive is not as vicious but the result is as injurious.
Return not evil for evil, but overcome evil with good.

"I reluctantly foresee great danger threatening our nation—imperialism,
monopoly and a lax system of religion.
But the spirit of humanity, ethics, and Christianity, sown broadcast—all components of Christian Science—taking strong hold of the public thought throughout our beloved country and in foreign lands, and is tending to counteract the trend of mad ambition.

"And how is man, seen through the lens of spirit, enlarged, and how counterpoised his original dust—and how he presses to his original, never severed from spirit! O ye who leap disdainfully from this rock of ages, return and plant thy steps in Christ, truth, be one that the builders reject. Then will angels administer grace, do thy errands, and be thy dearest allies. The divine law gives to man health and life everlasting—gives a soul to soul, a present harmony wherein the good-man's heart takes hold on heaven—whose feet can never be moved. These are his green pastures beside still waters,
wherein faith mounts upward, expiates,
strengthens, and exults.

Beloved, that which purifies the affections strengthens the resolves, cleans subdues sin, and endures with divine power; that which refines character
humbles, exalts, and commands a man,
and obedience gives him courage, devotion, and attainment. For this hour,
for this period, for spiritual sacrifice,
and ascension, we unite in giving thanks. For the body of Christ, the life that we commemorate and would emulate for the bread of heaven—
"Whereof if a man eat he shall live forever"—for the cup red with loving restoration, redemption and inspiration—
we give thanks. The signet of the great heart, given to me in a little symbol,
seals the covenant of everlasting love.
Many apostates, proud to return to the love, above the symbol seize the spirit, speak the 'new tongue'—and may thought soar, and soul be."

Among those from abroad who attended the services were Countess Dun-
more of London and Lady Mildred Murray, also of London; Viscount Fincastle, who is in the British army in India; the two Misses Ramsay, daughters of Sir James Ramsay, Baniff, Scotland; Mrs. Lincoln, Melbourne, and Mary Landers Sands, Nashua, N. H.
This annual church meeting is held for the purpose of electing the various officers of the mother church, readers and some auxiliary officers. The present membership of the mother church is about 13,000. About 2500 new members were admitted to membership in the mother church at this communion.

It is estimated that over 5000 of the followers of Christian Science have come to this city during the past two days, and that at the present time there are over 10,000 in Boston.

The church where the services were held was built in 1894, as a testimonial to Mrs. Eddy, the founder and leader of the denomination.

Exit the Great and General Court.
Boston, June 5.—The legislature was formally prorogued at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the secretary of the commonwealth announcing that during the session of 1899 the governor had signed 473 bills and 103 resolves, and had returned three bills, with his objections in writing. In the senate there were two very sharp debates at the morning session, one for the publication of the proceedings of the Carney hospital. Both, however, were passed. In the afternoon, the exercises attending the presentations to President Smith and other officers of the senate took place. There was little for the house to do except to wait for the senate, so when the latter cleared up its calendar, the final exercises were brief. The legislature met Jan. 4, and was in session exactly 150 days.

Daring Robbery of Railroad Station.
East Weymouth, Mass., June 5.—The station of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad was robbed of $50 yesterday. It was just before one of the trains arrived that Agent Todd, who was temporarily in charge of the office, saw a man on the platform, who seemed to be very ill and in danger of falling on the track in front of an approaching train.
Mr. Todd rushed out of his office and pulled the man back from the edge of the platform. At the time another man was in the station, but he had gone when Mr.
Todd returned, while the man on the platform took the train, which was on its way to Boston. Half an hour after Mr. Todd found that the cash drawer had been robbed and soon came to the conclusion that the two men knew of the affair.

SUPPORT GOES TO HENDERSON. Congressman Moody Is Not In the Race For Speakership of the House.

Boston, June 5.—The following authorized statement was given out by Congressman Roberts:

CONGRESSMAN W. H. MOODY.

"A meeting of the Republican members of the Massachusetts delegation was held to consider the question of the speakership. The names of all the candidates were considered and their merits carefully discussed. Mr. Moody was the unanimous choice of the delegation, but after a statement from Mr. Moody and a free and full discussion of the situation,
it was deemed inexpedient that Massachusetts should present a candidate.
"Then the other names proposed for nomination were carefully considered, it being agreed that those present would act upon the views of the majority. A decided majority favors the nomination of Colonel Henderson of Iowa, and accordingly it was agreed that the delegation should support Colonel Henderson."

Sure of Election.

Chicago, June 5.—Congressman D. B.
Henderson of Iowa has come to Chicago
in connection with the recent developments, which seem to assure his election to the speakership. The following votes, General Henderson says, are now pledged to him: Illinois, 11; Iowa, 11;
Ohio, 15; Wisconsin, 10; Minnesota, 7;
South Dakota, 2; Massachusetts, 10; Maryland, 4. To this will be added, to a certainty, it is asserted, the votes of the 12 Michigan and Indiana congressmen, giving him a total of 94 votes, or one more than a majority of the Republican votes in the house.

Was a Maine Woman.

Boston, June 5.—Lizzie S. Holt is the name of the woman who committed suicide at the Metropolitan hotel, New York, last Thursday. Her home is said to be near Bangor, Me. She was identified at the morgue in New York Sunday
by her nephew, Charles A. Holt of West Somerville. The body of the woman arrived in this city last night.

Fate of Captain Crapo.

Wickford, R. I., June 5.—The body found on Charlestown beach Saturday
by Captain Charles Church has been identified by Captain Saunders of the Quonset Point life saving station as that of Captain Thomas Crapo of the skiff Volunteer. The identification was made by a mark on one of the arms. In the clothing were found papers, the captain's bible and $9 in money.

At the Pope's Direction.

New York, June 5.—At the direction of Pope Leo, Archbishop Corrigan, at yesterday's services in St. Patrick's cathedral, ordered a call to consecration.
It is binding on all the faithful, and was issued simultaneously in all the dioceses throughout the world. It is now 23 years since a similar call has been made,
and the occasion for making it at this time is the peace conference at The Hague.

No Signs of Settlement.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 5.—This is the sixth week of the molders' strike, and as yet there are no signs of a settlement of the difficulty. When the strike was started in this city between 150 and 200
men quit work in the different foundries.
At the present time there are only about 100 of these molders in the city, the remainder having secured work elsewhere.

Thirty-Seven Years Old.

New York, June 5.—Chamblon B.
Fitzsimmons was 37 years old yesterday.
He celebrated the event quietly and after the ordinary manner in which he celebrates the Sabbath. On that day he usually rests.

Good Afternoon.

There was a wee little sprinkle Sunday afternoon, so we may hope for rain some time.

The promoters of new street railway between Sharon, Canton and Mansfield are so anxious for that location that they offer to light the streets over which the cars pass.

Fitchburg has taken up the suggestion to evangelize the small villages without churches in its immediate vicinity as suggested in the Fast Day proclamation of Gov. Rollins of New Hampshire. Some of the small villages of Quincy which are struggling to support churches, might welcome occasional sermons by the different pastors of the city, while Germantown, Quincy Neck, Montclair, Squantum and other sections might be reached.

The Fitchburg announcement reads: "The object of these meetings is not to establish new churches, but simply to hold union gospel services in districts where it is not convenient for many to attend services at the central churches. All of whatever name or religious preference, are earnestly invited to attend. Every effort will be made to have the meetings interesting and helpful to all. This will be an opportunity to hear the ministers of the city during the summer season. The meetings will begin at 3 o'clock, and, when possible, two clergymen will be present at the services."

Drift of Opinion.

There were 400 Rough Riders and 15,000 regulars in the Santiago skirmish, but from the noise the Rough Riders are making in the magazines and newspapers, you would be led to suspect that they did all the fighting.—Lowell News.

The suggestion that sleeping car companies should be required to provide a safe for the valuables of passengers is an excellent one. It is surprising that so desirable a convenience has not been installed long before this.—Kennebec Journal.

The different Grand Army organizations continue to indorse "Comrade McKinley" and as their patriotism is at least as sincere as that of the anti-imperialist league, Comrade McKinley probably feels that he can stand the fanigations and anathemas of the latter.—Malden Mail.

A St. Louis "bearded lady" has threatened to commit suicide because the authorities won't let her wear male attire, which is certainly a shame. But perhaps she can compromise on some ultra bicycle costume that will make them hasten to offer her anything in the line of masculine garb that she wishes to wear.—Lewiston Journal.

The latest Texas lynching—that is, the latest at the moment of writing this paragraph—was of three men who were not criminals. They were simply "undesirable characters." It was not a case where "the safety of the home and the honor of the women" could be invoked as an excuse. For that matter, only a part of the lynchings are.—New Bedford Standard.

There are some pretty small "colonels" in these days, when all sorts of societies, civil and military, are graduating a crop of men with military titles every year, and that Chelsea "colonel" who wanted the roof of the Boston theatre to fall in and crush those who went to hear Gen. Wheeler, is doubtless one of that class. But then small men have taken this method to bring themselves into notice before. It hasn't even the merit of originality.—Malden Mail.

If the sanction of the church upon remarriage could be secured only with difficulty, and given only to the aggrieved and innocent party, and if the practice of the ministry could be appealed to as uniform in its protest, reform in the law would not be long delayed. That a man and a woman can conspire to break up a happy home, make necessary a divorce upon the one indisputable ground, and then in defiance of the decree of the court, at once themselves get married, with no fear of legal punishment and but slight concern for social reprobation, is evidence of a condition of things that threatens the very existence of society.—The Evangelist.

The time of the graduate is upon us, a time of great interest rather for the possibilities that the future holds to the young people than for what they are at the present. It is somewhat pathetic to those who have stood upon the stage and hidden farewell to school and faced the future of responsibility to note those who are there now. One cannot forget the difference in feeling between now and then. It tingles one's vision of what is to be and gives one a sympathetic feeling for those who do not realize that there is the least need of any such emotion.—Gardner (Me.) Reporter-Journal.

The rich man who buys a privilege from a board of aldermen for a railway which he represents; the rich man who gets a privilege through the legislature by bribery and corruption for any corporation, is committing an offense against the community which it is possible some day have to be condoned for in blood and destruction, not only by him, but by his sons, but by you and your sons. The proper use of property is to use it as an honest man would use his property in reference to his brother.—Gov. Roosevelt.

Lord Nelson was the best of his kind in the old wooden-ship days, but he never in his life steamed over torpedoes, captured a defended harbor and bay and destroyed the whole Spanish fleet before breakfast without even losing a man. You can wager heavy that he never did; not on his quarter-deck! Ambassador Choate may drag Sampson from his similes if sensitive Britons cry about it, but he has the permission of the whole United States to use the name of Dewey on the same day he is obliged to speak of Nelson as a hero.—Bangor Commercial.

Sudden Death.

Mr. Nelson V. Titus, a well-known resident at Squantum, died at his home at four o'clock this morning of neuralgia of the heart. Although Mr. Titus had not enjoyed good health of late, still his death came as a shock to his friends and the community.

For several years he has been in the real estate business and has an office in the Tremont building, Boston. He has been an active worker for Squantum and for improvements. He worked very hard for the proposed boulevard from Squantum to the Blue Hills reservation and if the boulevard becomes a reality it will be largely because of his untiring efforts in its behalf.

Band Concerts.

The first band concert of the season was given Saturday night in City Square, under the auspices of the Street Railway Co., by the National Guard band of Boston, who were assisted by a vocalist. A large crowd turned out and thoroughly enjoyed the concert.

The band stand was first located in front of the chains surrounding the First church, but complaint was made by the church people, and it was later removed to near the street railway office. This location however, was not satisfactory to the company, and Manager Graham says no more concerts will be given from the location, and City Square may lose all concerts.

What the city needs is a small central park and a good permanent band stand of its own. If the street railway is willing to furnish the band the city should furnish a band stand and a location.

The junction of Hancock and Washington street is too congested by the fountain, green plot, electric cars, carriages and bicycles, to be a desirable spot. All locations have their disadvantages, but a location nearly in front of the present Y. M. C. A. building would please most of the merchants of City Square, and offer about as much open space as is available anywhere. It would be directly on the line of the electric cars, yet removed sufficiently so as not to block the Boston and Houghs Neck cars. The Nightingale estate, the Coddington school lot, the Woodward school lots are among other locations suggested.

DIED.

RUDDERHAM—In Braintree, June 3, Mr. William E. Rudderham, formerly of Quincy, aged 67 years.

CONLEY—In Holbrook, June 3, Mr. Timothy Conley of Pleasant street, aged 97 years.

TURNER—In East Weymouth, June 2, Mrs. Mary, wife of Mr. Waldo Turner, of Raymond street, aged 64 years.

LOTS OF BUSINESS.

City Council Almost Swamped.

With Reports.

The indications are that tonight's session of the City Council will not only be a busy one, but a long one, as there is a large amount of business to come before it.

There will be two public hearings, one on the acceptance of Arthur and Nelson streets, and on a location for street railway tracks in the centre of Washington street between Chubbuck street and the bridge.

The Committee on Licenses will report on a number of petitions for licenses.

The Committee Ordinances will report a new plumbing ordinance.

The Committee on Streets will report on the following matters: laying out a new street from Granite street to Water street, street watering; Furnace avenue; wall on Willard street; widening Copeland street between Crescent street and the West Quincy depot; rebuilding the Squantum causeway; rebuilding Grove and Rodman street; paving portion of Hancock and Quarry streets; laying out Goddard street and Federal avenue; regrading Nightingale avenue; resurfacing Beale street; defining lines of Willard street; finishing Payne street, rebuilding Trafford street; laying out Albertina street; widening travel way on Quincy avenue; raising sidewalk on east side of Adams street between Hancock street and the bridge; sidewalk and paved gutters on Greenleaf street; stone crossing on Beach street; sidewalk on Hancock street, between Russell and Butler road; the completing sidewalks already ordered; public hearings on Webster street, Glover avenue and Madison streets, and a loan order for street improvements.

The Finance Committee will also report upon some of the matters before them including the refunding order.

More Trouble.

Work was commenced this morning by the contractors, building a section of the sewer on Farrington street, between Brook street and Central avenue.

For about half the distance the trench is within six inches of the street railway tracks and for the remaining distance the trench is directly under the tracks this means that after today not only will this section of the track be blocked so as to prevent the running of cars, but the street will also be blocked for public travel between these two points.

The contractor says that it will take from four to six weeks to complete this section and that they desire to close the street to travel of any kind after today. This cannot fail to raise a howl of indignation on the part of Wollaston people who use the street cars, and the number is legion, for they will be deprived during the summer of the cars which they have come to depend upon for pleasure riding and for business.

Manager Graham when seen this morning said if the street was blocked, as was now probable that it would be useless to attempt to run cars on this line as the walk to transfer from one car on the north end of the trench to the car on the south end would mean a walk of nearly a quarter of a mile, and the only thing the road would do would be to run one car back and forth between Quincy centre and Brook street.

This is the worst time of the year that the street could be blocked, for it will discommode more people than if the laying of this section had been undertaken earlier in the season or put off until September.

Class Trip.

The young lady teachers in Grades 4, 5 and 6 of the Adams school, gave 40 of their pupils a delightful and memorable visit in Boston on Saturday. They went to the new Public Library, Art Museum, through the Public Gardens, taking in the sentiment of the statues erected to honored men, enjoying the flowers, having a boat sail; then later under the elms on the Common a short rest and little luncheon were taken.

After seeing the Shaw memorial, they went up in the State House. Good fortune led Representative Sheppard to meet them, and to chaperon them through the House of Representatives, Senate chamber and the grand new hall in the annex to our capital.

The children appreciated this kindness from their teachers, and the teachers further appreciated the courtesy from Mr. Sheppard, to whom their thanks are here extended. Later the girl's hearts were gladdened by a visit to Jordan, Marsh & Co. where their dolls received souvenir slippers.

A tired but happy party arrived in Quincy in the late afternoon.

Weymouth.

The Mann Wool Scouring mills, the scene of the big explosion of Saturday were objects of interest all day Sunday. The works are but a short distance from the terminus of the Quincy line of electric to East Weymouth, on the continuation of the tracks. The building was not burned but the boiler house and big chimney were demolished and considerable other damage done. The boiler which exploded was of 200 horse power. It was about five feet in diameter and twenty feet long and had 60 three inch flues. Bricks and debris are scattered all over the neighborhood. The loss was $10,000 or more.

Mr. Frank Taylor of Lynn is the guest of his father Mr. Joseph Taylor at Porter.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Pratt of Porter are receiving congratulations on the birth of a little daughter.

Catherine Pratt of Porter entertained a number of her little friends Friday afternoon June 2, it being her third birthday. Cake and ice cream were served.

Interesting games were held by the Weymouth High school on Saturday at South Weymouth, including 100-yard dash; hop, step and jump; running broad jump; quarter mile run; pole vault; one-mile bicycle race; half-mile run; 12-pound shot put; and running high jump. The classes of 1899 and 1902 made 52 points, and the classes of 1900 and 1901 made 29.

Buffalo Bill's Wild West.

The appearance of "Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Congress of Rough Riders of the World" at Boston, week commencing June 12, will be the occasion of an immense pouring of people. The Buffalo Bill show, always an instructive and interesting exhibition, has added many new and thrilling features for this season's tour, the most noteworthy and timely being a magnificent reproduction of the Battle of San Juan, which will be presented with great accuracy as to detail, and participated in by hundreds of actual survivors of that historic struggle, including a number of Roosevelt's Rough Riders. With the realistic scenery, the din and roar of the musketry and cannon, the fierce battle raging all the while, the spectator will easily imagine himself at the very scene of the struggle. All the wild west features that have made this exhibition the talk of two continents for years passed are still retained.

MOB AGAINST LOUBET.

Enraged Royalist Strikes the President on a French Race Track.

Anna Gould and Her Husband Among the Leaders.

Police Had a Difficult Task in Keeping the Crowd at Bay.

Paris, June 5.—President Loubet, accompanied by Premier Dupuy and the chief of the military household, General M. C. Bailloud, drove to the Autel races yesterday afternoon, closely followed by Mme. Loubet in a second landau. As they drove along the Avenue des Champs-Elysees the crowds bowed respectfully, but, on arriving at Autel, they were met by a violent demonstration, evidently organized, and directed against the president.

There was a storm of hoots, yells and cries of "Panama," "a bas Loubet" and "vive l'armee." A few shouts of "vive Loubet" were drowned in the clamor. A strong force of police kept order and arrested many of the disturbers, including a man who tried to force his way to the president's carriage.

PRESIDENT LOUBET.

During the second race the clamor increased to violence and was plainly directed by a committee of the League of Patriots, collected with their supporters both before and behind the presidential stand, around which a formidable array proceeded. During the grand steeplechase many blows were struck, and several policemen were injured in their endeavors to prevent an invasion of the presidential stand.

At the crisis of excitement, while shouts of "vive l'armee" and "vive Loubet" were heard on all sides, Count Christian rushed toward the president brandishing a stick and directed a blow against him, striking his hat. President Loubet remained all the while quite unmoved, talking to the premiers, while the officers of his military household were defending him against violence. Finally, after 30 arrests had been made, the prefect of police ordered the Republican guards to surround the presidential stand.

Count Christian is a member of the Steeplechase society, a very select body, and his conduct has produced the greatest indignation. A special cabinet council was summoned at 9 o'clock last evening to consider the situation, and important measures were concerted, to be submitted to the president at another council today for the preservation of order. The ministers, who were in session until 11 o'clock, maintain strict reserve as to the nature of their measures; but a semi-official note has been issued, which says: "The government will act with the greatest energy and will oppose respect for the president and for the state." It is reported that a number of fresh arrests will be made.

The events of the day will lead to an important discussion in the chamber of deputies, where the government will demand a vote of confidence.

There is some fear of a renewal of the disturbances, although the police precautions are of the most thorough character, and, at a late hour last evening, more or less excitement was still observable on the boulevards.

Further accounts show that the whole race course, particularly the enclosure, witnessed scenes of the wildest excitement. Comtesse de Castellane, who was Miss Anna Gould of New York, placed herself at the head of the Jeunesse Royaliste and marched up and down the lawn, shouting "vive l'armee." Comte de Castellane and his brother Jean were arrested, but soon liberated.

Comte de Dion, when arrested, resisted and fought with his cane, smashing it on a policeman's head, and causing the jeweled top to fly off, striking a journalist. He was detained in custody. Altogether about 120 arrests were made, one being that of M. Danette, deputy mayor of Arrondissement.

Demonstrations and counter-demonstrations continued until M. Loubet left the race course, at 4:20 p. m., the arrival of his carriage being the signal for an indescribable tumult. The mounted guards, with difficulty, opened a passage through the crowd, the president being pursued to the last with hoots and yells. Even eggs were thrown. It was noteworthy, however, that the people generally cheered him loudly, the cheers increasing as he drove toward the Elysee, which he reached safely at 4:45 p. m. During the demonstrations a number of hats labelled "resignation" were picked up.

Count Christian was thrown, trampled upon and severely bruised in the melee. He is a grandson of a general who was well known during the empire. The race course committee apologized to M. Loubet, who replied that he could not think of holding them responsible. He remarked that he did not intend being intimidated into resignation.

During the demonstration, M. Rochefort, editor of the Intransigent, was seized, and an attempt was made to induce him to lead the manifestation, but he discreetly slipped away.

GAME AT WEEKAWKEN.

New York Club in Need of Money, So It Played on Sunday.

New York, June 5.—Freedman allowed his team to play their first Sunday engagement at Weekawken. Two congressional agents are here to Sunday ball games, and Freedman, although heretofore opposed to letting the New Yorks break the seventh day with base hits and home runs, is compelled to acquiesce with the needs of the times and his treasury. The whilom Giants are divided against each other, and are playing in a happy-go-lucky vein, which means poor crowds and disastrous all-round results to the finish.

Poison and Drink.

Providence, June 5.—Frank R. Marchant, 35 years of age, swallowed a quantity of Paris green last Wednesday night, supposedly with suicidal intent. Yesterday he died from the effects of the poison and excessive drinking. He received medical treatment after taking the poison, and seemingly had fully recovered, although he was drinking heavily at the time. The medical examiner pronounced it a case of suicide.

to the coffee drinker. Coffee drinking is a habit that is universally indulged in and almost as universally injurious. Have you tried Grain-O? It is almost like coffee but the effects are just the opposite. Coffee upsets the stomach, ruins the digestion, affects the heart and disturbs the whole nervous system. BREAK IN A STRIKE.

Manufacturers the First to Yield In the Rockport Labor Troubles.

Willing to Give Stone Cutters
a Nine-Hour Day.

Recognition of Labor Union the Only Bar to a Satisfactory Settlement.

Gloucester, Mass., June 6.—The first break, with the possibility of an early settlement in view, in the strike involving stone cutters resulting in the closing of the quarries in this vicinity, came yesterday, when, after 13 weeks of idleness,
the officials of the Rockport Granite company issued the following notice:

The Rockport Granite company hereby gives notice that on and after June 19, 1899, nine hours' labor shall constitute a day's work in all its quarries. All overwork done at the request of the company to be counted time and a half.

This practically concedes to the demands of the strikers, although there were three other demands forwarded by the strikers in their recent ultimatum to the company, but as compared with the above concessions, they were unimportant. When the notices were posted they were greeted with evident satisfaction
by the citizens, and the hope prevails that with this action the struggle which has resolved itself into one between capital and labor shall end peaceably, and a new era of prosperity
entered upon.

A visit to the different sections of the cape, and interviews with the strike leaders, precluded that idea, however.
It has developed that until the granite company is willing to meet a committee of the stone workers, and jointly sign a bill, the strikers will not return to their old places. This is the almost universal sentiment expressed. The men say their union must stand for recognition, for therein, they assert, lies their protection.
Their union has been recognized in conferences three times since the strike began, and it must be recognized
now. They insist, further, that if the company will recognize the union the entire matter can be settled up in 15 minutes.

Later this information was communicated to Mr. Rogers, treasurer of the company, who did not care to express himself in regard to signing the bill.
From the tenor of his remarks it appeared that on June 19 the company intended to open their quarries as free shops.
At the Pigeon Hill granite quarries,
where the men have been on strike since the one at the Rockport quarries was instituted, operations have begun under the nine-hour system.

The foremen of the Rockport company
have been notified and preparations are in progress to set the quarries in operation on the stated time.

A Short One.

Branchford, Conn., June 6.—The strike
which the 60 employees in the annealing
department of the Malleable Iron Fitting company inaugurated yesterday morning, was settled in the afternoon.
When President Hammer acceded to demands of the men for the restoration of their wages, and the men returned to work.

ABNORMALLY HOT AND DRY.

Long Continued Drought Has Wrought Much Damage In New England District.

Boston, June 6.—The New England
section of the United States department of agriculture, climate and crop service,
issues the following bulletin:
Another week of abnormally hot and dry weather has been recorded. Average number of clear days 3, partly cloudy
4, cloudy 9.

High temperatures have prevailed almost continuously, the daily departures above the normal ranging from 5 degrees to 13 degrees. This report closes with the warm wave increasing in severity, temperature registering above 80 degrees over a large portion of the district, and no immediate prospect of relief. The weekly mean temperature for the district at large was 64 degrees, or 8 degrees above the mean of the previous week.

There has been practically no precipitation during the week. Springs and streams are unusually low for the season,
the Connecticut river being at about July stage of water. At Boston the total deficiency in precipitation since April 1
now amounts to 5.45 inches.

The general situation remains practically unchanged from the previous report. The prevailing drought has been intensified during the week, and, if anything, the conditions are a trifle more unfavorable at the present time. The showers which occurred early in the week produced growth for one or two days, but their beneficial effects soon passed away, and every New England
crop is now positively suffering for rain.
Meadows cannot produce normal crops,
the question of pasturage is becoming serious, and there is general complaint
of seed sprouting poorly and unevenly.
This is a critical period for agricultural interests, and fear is expressed this early
that crops will yield far below the average. There is, of course, an occasional bright spot amid the gloom, but the general opinion is that the drought has wrought damage which cannot be retrieved unless abundant rain comes soon.

Patriotic Action.

Lovell, Mass., June 6.—At a meeting of company M, Ninth regiment, M. V. M., last evening, the company voted unanimously to tender their services to the president for duty in the Philippines.

This company is one of the three Lowell companies which saw service during the Spanish war. Company M was in the trenches before Santiago and returned to this city with much depleted ranks.
The action of the company will be forwarded by Captain Mitten through the proper military channels to the president.

Amherst's Probable President.

Amherst, Mass., June 6.—The trustees of Amherst college appointed to select a new president for the college have extended an invitation to Rev. George C.
Harris, president of the Andover theological seminary, and professor of that institution, to accept the position. Dr.
Harris is a member of the class of '67.
He has been very active in college work since his graduation. An answer to the invitation has not yet been received,
but it is expected that he will accept.

Tarred and Feathered.

Bangor, Me., June 6.—Messenger from Levant report that a mob of 75 or 100 men took Rev. George Higgins and Ruel Clement from the latter's house about 10 o'clock Monday night, presumably to tar and feather them. Rev. Mr. Higgins has been conducting a revival there for six months, preaching the "Holy Ghost" doctrine. The people have been greatly aroused over the matter and have been threatening for some time to run Higgins out of town, and this feeling culminated in the action taken.

Whole Family Sick.

Boston, June 6.—Six members of the family of William J. Dillman were taken severely ill yesterday and the physician who was called pronounced the cases as that of promine poisoning. Three of the children were sent to the city hospital, while Mrs. Dillman and her other two daughters were looked after by local physicians, as their condition seemed less serious. At the hospital the diagnosis was given as acute indigestion and not poisoning. It is expected that all will recover.

Bullet In His Neck.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 6.—While fishing from a boat on Long pond, in Valley Falls, yesterday, Lewis Handford was struck in the neck by a stray bullet, receiving such a severe wound that he was sent to a hospital in Providence. The bullet was from a 45-caliber revolver.
John B. Babbitt, who was in the boat with Handford, stated that he did not know from which direction it came.

Six Lives Saved.

Boston, June 6.—The efficiency of the life-saving station in Dorchester bay yesterday was shown in the speedy rescue of six men, who had been thrown into the water by the capsizing of their yacht. At the time of the accident
there was not a boat in the vicinity, and had not the life savers arrived quickly
the scene the men would probably have been drowned.

'Bloodhounds' Services Required.

Keene, N. H., June 6.—Although a constant search has been kept up no further trace has been found of Lewis Castor, wanted for the murder of his wife. It is believed, however, that he is still hiding in the woods north of the city. Four English bloodhounds were brought from Boston yesterday and will be put on the trail.

Peter Wants to Die.

Boston, June 6.—Peter Callahan, a veteran of the Civil war, attempted to end his life yesterday by cutting his throat. He claimed to have made a previous attempt, and that he would try again if he had the opportunity. He said that he did not have money enough to sustain life.

Palmer's Trial Begun.

Providence, June 6.—Amos D. Palmer was arraigned yesterday before Judge Wilbur on the charge of murdering his wife, Adelle Palmer. He pleaded not guilty, and the drawing of a jury then proceeded. At the time of adjournment seven jurors had been secured.

Is It From Andree?

Christiania, June 6.—According to a dispatch from Mandal, two boys on May 14 last found on the north coast of Iceland a small cork case containing a slip of paper dated July 11, 1897, signed
"Andree, Strindberg and Franckel,"
and bearing the words: "All well.
Thrown out about longitude 51; latitude unknown." Professor Andree's brother thinks the case was probably one of the letter buoys with which the Andree expedition was provided.

Many Arrests to Follow.

Owego, N. Y., June 6.—A prize fight for a small purse was pulled off just outside the village limits in the town of Tioga between Enoch Cheeks and Frank Stebbins.
After seven rounds Stebbins was awarded the fight by the referee, a physician of Owego. There were nearly 200 spectators, and District Attorney Glezen
has issued subpoenas for many of them
to appear before the grand jury.

Champion Sluggers Succeed In Capturing Another Game From Cincinnati.

Boston, June 6.—The home team had Buck Ewing's Lambs outpointed from the first inning in all round hitting ability, and Damman was shugged 17 times for base hits. Although Boston put a good game, had an attack of inaccuracy in the third inning, when two gifts and a man hit by a pitched ball filled every base. Corcoran smashed the first ball pitched to center for a base and two Reds scored.

Again in the fifth Cincinnati got a triple, two singles and a pair of gifts, eight men going to bat. Yet they scored only two runs. Willis managed to strike out hitters like Smith and Pettz with men on bases.

Every champion except Stahl earned one or more base hits off Damman, who put the ball over the plate throughout the game.

Death Was Unexpected.

Philadelphia, June 6.—Frank Thomson, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, died last evening at his home at Merion, a few miles south of the city. Mr. Thomson had been ill about two weeks from acute indigestion. Mr.
Thomson had enjoyed extraordinary good health, and his relatives and friends believed he would soon rally and recover from his indisposition. His death was wholly unexpected. He was 58 years of age, and since he reached the age of 17 years had been in the service of the great railroad company of which he had been the head during the last two years of his life, he having succeeded to the presidency in 1897 upon the death of George B. Roberts.

Too Early to Fix Policies.

Milwaukee, June 6.—The Journal publishes an interview with David Henderson of Iowa, in which he says that now is not the time for individuals to fix policies. "See where we are," said he, "and then see whether it is reasonable for us
to attempt to anticipate the conditions which time brings. We are in a period of transition and readjustment, and congress will not meet until next December unless, which is not likely, there should be a special session—and we should not attempt to forestall the future action which the light of development may show to be advantageous and proper."

Found Town Deserted.

Manila, June 6.—Two battalions of the Washington troops, under Colonel Wholley, on board the Cascosco, were towed up from Pasig to Morong on Sunday and landed under cover of a well-directed fire from the "tin-clad" army gunboats Napidan and Covadonga. The Washington troops then took the town,
the rebels fleeing to the hills.

Anti-Trust Convention.

Austin, June 6.—Governor Sayre has telegraphed all the governors and attorney generals of the southern states
a call for an anti-trust convention, to meet in St. Louis, Sept. 20, for the purpose of securing concerted action against trusts.

Good Afternoon.

Is the world upset? We are led to ask this question when we learn that the maximum temperature of Portland, Me., was 94 yesterday, while New Orleans reported 88 and Key West but 86.

Quincy might very likely be in the same situation as Swampscott today but that we are now supplied with Metropolitan water. The Quincy reservoir would not have carried us through this summer. In Swampscott the use of the hose has been cut off. The Metropolitan water is of excellent quality and is being freely if not extravagantly used, and Quincy does not propose to dry up.

Nelson V. Titus.

In its sketch of the late Nelson V. Titus who died Monday, the Journal says: For many years Mr. Titus was connected with the stores of Jordan, Marsh & Co., R. H. White & Co., and Houghton & Dutton, Boston, and with the Chicago store of A. T. Stewart & Co. In 1874 Mr. Titus, who for many years had been manager of the wholesale department of Jordan, Marsh & Co., was promoted to the position of general buyer for the retail and wholesale departments of the great business, with headquarters in New York. In 1875 he resigned this position to accept a flattering offer from A. T. Stewart to take charge of the Chicago store of A. T. Stewart & Co.

After holding that position two years he relinquished it to return to the store of Jordan, Marsh & Co. Later he was with R. H. White & Co., and with Houghton & Dutton. His own business interests became so extensive that he was obliged to withdraw from general mercantile life and devote all his time to his own affairs. He was the owner of the larger part of Squantum, and the development of that extensive property had occupied his time since he relinquished mercantile life. He had an office in Tremont Building. In the winter time he lived on Beacon street, and the summer he passed at Squantum.

But Two Days Hotter in '98.

The temperature at noon today was 97 degrees which is the highest point the mercury has reached since July 4, last year when it was 99 degrees. There were but two days last year when the temperature was higher than it is today, and those two days were July 3d, 101 degrees, and July 4th, 99 degrees. Were it not for the light breeze today it would be suffocating.

The following is some of the local talent which will appear at the City Hospital benefit: The Wollaston Orchestra; Mr. N. B. Grignon, who will give a skillful sleight of hand performance; Mr. Phelan and other members of the St. John's C. L. & A. A.; Mr. William Biganess will sing; Miss Beatrice Walker will appear in a Scottish dance; young ladies from Atlantic will give the "Hoop drill," and Mr. Alfred Smith a cornet soloist.

The quarterly entertainment by the Faxon lodge, I. O. G. T., was held in the Methodist church, Atlantic, Monday evening, and was largely attended. Remarks were offered by the Chief Templars. The concert consisted of Walkers Dealing, a male chorus, solo by Mr. Edgar Brown and selections from Green's orchestra. The affair was a complete success.

The Fate of Many Petitions in Council.

Refund Order Advanced a Reading.

More Sidewalks and Street Paving—New Business.

The Street Committee occupied a good part of the time at Monday night's meeting of the City Council, and much of the business that has been before them for some time was disposed of. Many of the petitions for street improvements and new streets received a black eye, while some of the more important were acted upon.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The Mayor forwarded a communication stating that the City Treasurer had received $5,063.78 from the State Treasurer as the street railway tax for 1898.

The Mayor also forwarded the letter from Capt. Kincaide in relation to the blankets, as published in Monday's Ledger.

PETITIONS.

Petitions urging the favorable consideration of the refunding order were received from Wards 3, 4 and 5, and were laid on the table.

A petition was received urging the erection of an eight room school building in the Lincoln district. To Committee on Public Buildings.

Petitions were received for the laying out of Delford street, and Cranch street. To Committee on Streets.

Petitions were received from Mary E. Moran and Georgiana S. Murray that their sidewalk assessment be apportioned over ten years. Laid on the table until later when an order was offered granting the request.

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Co. petitioned for a location for poles on Sea street and Highland avenue. To Committee on Streets.

A petition for the rebuilding of the culvert on Chubbuck street was referred to the Committee on Streets.

A number of petitions for license to sell fireworks were received and laid on the table until later in the evening when they were granted.

A number of petitions for minor licenses were referred.

TWO HEARINGS.

At 8 P. M. a hearing was given on a petition of the Q. & B. street railway for a double track in the centre of Washington street from Chubbuck street to the Quincy Point bridge.

Manager Graham and ex-Councilman T. H. Newcomb appeared in favor.

The same committee also asked for an additional turnout on Sea street, near the Adams farm house, and for a new connection with the car house on Washington street, City Square.

Mr. Graham explained that the former was necessary in order to make better connection with trains. The latter was in connection with an enlargement of the car house.

No remonstrants appearing the hearing was closed.

No one appeared in favor or in opposition to the order laying out Arthur and Nelson streets as public ways, and the order was recommitted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The License Committee reported favorable on a number of minor licenses which were granted.

The Committee on Streets reported "leave to withdraw" upon orders for laying out Albertina street; regrading Grove street widening and paving Copeland street; $300 for finishing wall on Willard street; repairs on Furnace avenue; laying out a new way from Granite to Water streets and crossing on Beach street, all of which were accepted.

The same committee reported reference to the executive on the widening of roadway of Quincy avenue, and raising the sidewalk on the east side of Adams street between Hancock street and the bridge.

The same committee reported ought not to pass on orders for paved gutters on Greenleaf street; $700 for rebuilding Rodman street and $3,000 for rebuilding the Squantum causeway; all of which were accepted.

The same committee reported orders for public hearings June 19, on laying out Glover avenue; laying out Madison street; acceptance of Webster street and laying out Avon way.

STREET WATERING.

The same committee reported ought to pass on the order for $4,400 for street watering.

Councilman Jameson moved to amend so as to read, Brook street from Newport avenue to Highland avenue.

Councilman Pinkham asked if the street was in condition to water, if not it was an injustice to make people pay the assessment.

Councilman Jameson believed the street would be completed in a few weeks.

Commissioner Cavanagh doubted if the sewer would be completed in this street before the end of the season.

Amendment lost.

Councilman Alden offered an amendment by adding Sagamore, Newbury, Billings and Squantum streets to McClure's corner. These were the streets upon which the street car tracks were located in Atlantic and the residents should get something in the way of street watering.

Councilman Swithin said the committee were informed by the Commissioner that it could not be done within the appropriation.

Commissioner Cavanagh in reply to questions said, we are doing all we are able with the sprinkling car which runs from 5.30 A. M. to 7 P. M. He could not tell the time it would consume to go over these streets. If the car goes there it may lose its turn on the main line.

Councilman Hill spoke in favor of the amendment. The city would get $110 in assessments on these streets.

Councilman Poland hoped amendment would prevail. He thought it would be provided for. There had been no inclination to water Atlantic.

Councilman Packard favored, saying that the section was entitled to be watered.

Councilman Pinkham said when the budget was passed the Council refused to increase the amount to $5,000 as he moved and now you are trying to get more than can be done.

Commissioner Cavanagh said to give good service the streets must be watered three times. He had tried to run the car to Atlantic and found if he did other streets would have to suffer. It takes nearly an hour for the trip.

Councilman Poland could not see how one hour was necessary when it took but eight minutes for the trip and four minutes to fill the car. The car could be run after 7 o'clock.

Councilman Jameson thought it would be dangerous to run the car after dark.

Councilman Blanchard thought Atlantic should have a little water. Why not water some of the other streets twice instead of three times?

Commissioner Cavanagh in reply to questions said the car was hired for so much a season. It would take another cart to cover these streets which would cost $400.

Councilman Bryant favored the amendment. Any street that the street cars should be watered. Let us appropriate more money if necessary. A way could be found.

Councilman Pinkham moved the matter be referred to the Finance Committee. Lost.

The amendment of Councilman Alden was then adopted.

Councilman Bryant moved to amend the order so as to read, Adams street to the Milton line. Adopted.

The order then having taken its second reading was referred to the Committee on Finance.

QUARRY STREET.

The same committee reported ought to pass on the order for $10,000 for paving a part of Quarry street. The order took its second reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance.

TO PAVE HANCOCK STREET.

The same committee reported an amendment to the order for $13,000 for paving a part of Hancock street, changing the amount to $11,000 and striking out the words on the west side of Hancock street between Savil and Adams streets. Amendment adopted.

Councilman Jameson asked if the Committee had considered a bicycle path and estimated the cost.

Councilman Swithin said the cost would be $1800 and the committee thought the street too narrow.

Commissioner Cavanagh in reply to questions, said there would not be sufficient strength if the paving was left two inches below the surface and then filled with concrete, as the heavy teams would cut it up. He thought four feet perhaps a little wide but it should be at least three feet.

Councilman Jameson thought this

Gold and Copper Stock FOR SALE.

I have had left with me to sell for a limited time 9999 shares of mining stock in a safe and conservative company, its property is situated in Colorado and consists of 17 mines with 27 true fissure veins in one group, all very rich in gold and silver and well developed by shafts and tunnels. In addition to the above is another vein recently added to the company's list, which is one of the most wonderful veins of copper yet discovered in Colorado.

A party not in any way connected with the company recently had four specimens of this copper ore assayed in Boston at his own expense that averaged $33.34 to the ton.

The President of the Company I have known for over thirty years, and he is all right. The Treasurer is one of the solid men of Quincy. Par value of shares $1.00 but for a very limited time, or until a sufficient amount is raised for the machinery required at the new mine, the stock can be had for 50 cents a share. Sales have been made every day this month so far, and it is expected the necessary amount will be raised by June 15, when the stock will certainly be advanced to par, partial payments received. Specimens of ore on exhibition, also circulars, maps etc., can be procured by addressing matter should be considered. He moved to refer back to the committee.

Councilmen Packard, Clark and Dugan objected, and the amendment was lost.

The order then took its second reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance.

BEALE STREET.

The same committee reported favorably on the order for $1,500, for resurfacing a part of Beale street. To Committee on Finance.

OTHER REPORTS.

The same committee reported an order for $500 for laying out Goddard street and Federal avenue. To Committee on Finance.

The same committee reported an order for $500 for regrading Nightingale avenue. To Committee on Finance.

The same committee reported a slight amendment to the order for $1,500 for defining the lines of Willard street, and building it to its full width. To Committee on Finance.

SIDEWALKS.

The same committee reported a substitute order for $8,000 for completing sidewalks ordered by the City Councils of 1897 and 1898.

The same committee reported an amendment to the order for $750 for regrading Trafford street, changing the amount to $500. To Committee on Finance.

The same committee reported favorably on the order for $900 to finish Payne street. To Committee on Finance.

The same committee reported an order for $4,500 for various street improvements. To Committee on Finance.

The Committee on Finance reported a slight amendment to the order for $2,000 for plans and surveys for sewer assessments. Rules suspended and the order passed.

The Committee on Finance reported no legislation necessary on the petition of Margaret Minor and Caroline F. Newcomb for refund of taxes. Adopted.

The Committee on Finance reported slight amendment to the order for $4,000 for maintenance of the sewer system. Rules suspended and order passed.

The Finance Committee reported an additional appropriation of $200 or the completion of the culvert and retaining wall at the corner of Washington and Canal streets, which was voted.

REFUND ORDER.

The Finance Committee reported that the order to refund $40,000 of the maturing municipal debt ought to pass. Without any debate the order took its second reading, and there it will slumber for another two weeks, no effort being made to suspend the rules.

PLUMBING ORDINANCE.

So many changes were found advisable in the "Ordinance concerning Plumbing" that it was reported in print as amended by the Committee on Ordinances. It was given one reading.

VALUATION BOOK.

Councilman Packard offered an order for the printing of 1,000 copies of Assessors valuations of all the real and personal property of the city as assessed in 1899. Read once and referred to Committee on Printing.

SPITTING A CRIME.

Councilman Packard offered an ordinance against spitting on the cars, in public hall, and on the sidewalks, imposing a fine of $100 for all offences. Read and referred to Committee on Ordinances.

PLAYGROUND IMPROVEMENT.

Councilman Hill offered an order appropriating $2,500 for the improvement of the playgrounds of the city, the money to be taken from receipts for Ward Five playgrounds.

Councilman Bryant moved to include parks.

Councilman Hill thought the money was a playground fund.

Councilman Bryant contended that Merrymount park was the Ward Five playgrounds, especially since the lot on Third hill had been sold.

Councilman Dugan called attention to the fact that Mr. C. F. Adams, who gave Merrymount park, desired it improved only as he should direct.

Councilman Bryant said Ward Five wanted its share.

Councilman Poland said Park Commissioners had plans for improvement of parks.

The amendment was adopted and the order referred to the Committee on Public Grounds.

FOOT BRIDGE.

Councilman Jameson offered a resolution requesting the Mayor to urge upon the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. the necessity of widening Beale street over the railroad that there might be a safe foot way. It would be only a temporary arrangement, but it was imperative that something be done.

Councilman Packard did not believe it would amount to much, and was opposed to temporary arrangements.

Councilman Bryant asked if order was at request of the Mayor. Receiving a negative answer, he said he was in favor of the improvement and hanging away at the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. every chance possible. But as the DEITZ SENTENCED.

Grab Handle Man Goes To Dedham for Nine Months.

John Deitz, otherwise known as Shultz and Zimmerman, the grab handle man who operated extensively among the street railways of the State and defrauded them out of various sums was given a hearing before Judge Humphrey in the District Court this morning, for obtaining $25 from the Quincy & Boston street railway by false pretenses.

Supt. Weeks testified that Deitz claimed to have fallen from a Houghs Neck car in October, 1898, by the grab handle coming off as he was about to alight from the car. He said he lived on Quincy avenue and claimed to be badly injured.

Dr. Jones examined the man's injuries and was convinced that he was a fraud, but the company paid the fellow $25 rather than have a law suit, as there was some question as to the liability.

Conductor Danham, executive Clerk Gardner of the company, and Claim Agent McAlloon identified the fellow. Mr. McAlloon also said he had examined the car after the accident and was convinced he had gone to every house on Quincy avenue but could find no one by that name.

Mr. Tarbox of the Lynn & Boston company identified Deitz as the man to whom he had paid $40 to settle a claim for a similar accident. Mr. Snow a conductor on the South Framingham road also identified the fellow as having been the one who fell from his car last year by the grab handle coming off, and Mr. Sullivan of the South Middlesex road identified the fellow as the one who tried to work his road. He had identified him however, by a photograph, and refused to pay, but had him arrested and sent to jail for six months for vagrancy.

Deitz remained mum during the hearing, and all he would say was that he did not understand. He evidently understood the sentence of nine months in the house of correction, for when it was pronounced by the clerk Deitz murmured, "I am getting all my money's worth."

The method of Deitz "or whatever his name may be," was to board a car and when the conductor was not looking to unscrew the nuts of the grab handle. He would then when the conductor was forward, signal the car to stop, and as it slowed down would jump off with the grab handle in his hand and fall down. He would then claim damages and in most cases the roads would settle rather than have a suit.

All-Newton Defeated.

There is one thing in which Quincy can down Newton and that is golf. The Wollaston club team enlarged to nine met the All-Newton team on Monday and played an interesting match. Although Smith, Atherton and Cracknell fell before their adversaries, Freeman defeated Wellington, and Price and Bremer had snaps, so that the score was 14 to 9 in favor of Wollaston, viz:

Only a Grass Fire.

The alarm from Box 51 at 12.40 this noon was for a grass fire near a fence on the Taylor estate on Hancock street, and was needless, as a bucket of water and a broom would have easily extinguished it. On a day when the temperature is as high as today it seems almost cruel to run the fire department horses unless the apparatus is absolutely needed, and if the person who sounds the alarm would only use a little judgment the useless calling out of the fire department would be avoided.

LEAVETO WITHDRAW

Mayor was acting he thought order would complicate and endanger success.

Councilman Pinkham would refer it Committee on Streets.

Councilman Jameson was glad to hear something was being done. It would do no harm to pass the order, but he would withdraw it.

TREE CUTTING.

Councilman Hill offered an order instructing the Commissioner of Public Works to notify the Telephone Company that cutting trees was in violation of the city ordinances. Trees on Billings street have been woefully disfigured.

Councilman Packard thought such an order unnecessary.

Councilman Swithin had noticed that trees were lying because of contact of wires and had seen those on Billings street. It was a shame.

Councilman Poland moved to amend so as to instruct Chief of Police to enforce ordinance.

The amendment was accepted and the order passed.

WILD WEST SHOW.

Councilman Packard moved that a license be granted to the Wild West show for $15. Upon motion of Councilman Bryant the amount was increased to $50 and passed.

Adjourned at 10.45.

Newcomb-Spearwater.

On Monday evening, June 5, the residence of Mrs. John L. Eldridge on Quincy avenue was the scene of a pretty home wedding. The contracting parties were Mr. Herbert Harris Newcomb, son of Samuel F. Newcomb and brother of Councilman Arthur W. Newcomb, and Miss Helen Augusta Spearwater, a cousin of Mrs. Eldridge.

The ceremony took place in the presence of the immediate family of the bride and groom the bride being given away by City Solicitor Paul R. Blackmur. Rev. Edward Anderson of the Quincy Point Congregational church officiated. The bride was dressed in a travelling suit and carried a bunch of white pinks.

Congratulations were followed by refreshments, after which the couple left for a bridal trip.

The rooms were prettily decorated with potted plants and cut flowers, green and white predominating. Mrs. Blackmur played the wedding march.

Very Busy.

Brigham Electric Company is very busy just at present rewiring Hotel Nantasket and pier. On account of the big storm in November the electric work has got to be all overhauled and rewired, and about 1,000 lights put in.

M. S. Brigham, manager of the Brigham Electric Company, and family, are stopping in this city with S. A. Brigham, at 102 Washington street. He has returned with his family from Bermuda, where he has spent the last six months putting in electric plants.

AN ENTERING WEDGE

Toward Securing Universal Peace Throughout the World.

The Mediation Scheme Meets With Approval.

Plan For Reconciliation of Conflicting Claims and Allaying of Bitterness.

The Hague, June 6.—The draft scheme of mediation was read at a meeting of the arbitration committee of the peace conference. All the members of the committee were present.

Articles one and two are declaratory—to the effect that the signatory powers, in order to prevent a recourse to force, have agreed to effect pacific solutions of differences and will, except in exceptional cases, have agreed to effect pacific solutions of differences.

Article three: "Independently of a recourse to such amicable means, the signatories deem it expedient that one or more powers not concerned in the conflict should offer, of its or their own initiative and, so far as circumstances will permit, its or their good offices of mediation to the states at variance. The right to offer good offices of mediation belongs to powers not concerned in the conflict, even during the course of actual hostilities; and the exercise of this right can never be considered by the parties at variance as an unfriendly act."

Article four provides that the role of mediator shall consist in the reconciliation of conflicting claims, and the allaying of bitterness between states at variance.

Article 5, defining the limitation of the functions of a mediator, says these shall cease on the moment when it is stated by one of the parties to the dispute, or by the mediator, that the arrangement or the basis of a friendly understanding proposed by him is not accepted.

Article 6 says that the good offices contemplated, either at the instance of the parties at variance or on the initiative of uninvolved powers, are exclusively of the character of friendly counsel. Article 7 asserts: "Acceptance of mediation cannot have the effect, except by virtue of a convention to the contrary or interrupting or retarding or hampering mobilization or other preparations for war. If mediation intervenes after the opening of hostilities, it shall not interrupt, except by virtue of a convention to the contrary, military operations in course of execution."

Article 8: "The signatories are in accord to recommend, in all circumstances permitting it, special mediation in the following form: "In the event of grave differences threatening peace, the states at variance shall choose respectively a power to which each shall confide the mission of entering into direct relations with the power chosen by the other side, in order to prevent a rupture of friendly relations. During the currency of their mandate, which, except in the event of a stipulation to the contrary, shall not exceed 30 days, the question in dispute shall be considered as referred exclusively to those powers. They shall apply all their efforts to settle the dispute and, in the event of an actual rupture of friendly relations, shall remain charged with the mission of taking advantage of every occasion to restore peace."

The draft was adopted without modification, although the committee stipulated that it should be subject to modifications at the second reading.

The naval section of the armaments committee has unanimously rejected the Russian proposals.

Soldiers Can't Wear Bangs.

Hallifax, June 6.—It is stated in army circles that there are nearly 150 soldiers confined in the various barracks on account of the refusal to obey the order of General Seymour, commanding them to cut their hair short, divest it of fancy curls or frills, wear gloves in the city streets, walk not more than two abreast on public sidewalks and keep their watches and trinkets out of sight. The order has caused a tremendous amount of dissatisfaction in the garrison. The order under which the general is acting is an old army regulation which has never before been enforced in Halifax.

French Government Strengthened.

Paris, June 6.—The scenes at Auteuil on Sunday and in the chamber of deputies yesterday have only had the effect of increasing the popularity of President Loubet and of strengthening the hands of the government. Interviews with various high personages who witnessed the incident at Auteuil are published this morning, all testifying to the savagery of the demonstration. It is asserted that, although the price of admission to the paddock was 20 francs, this was full of coachmen, footmen and valets, evidently sent there to create a disturbance.

Rioting at Belfast.

Belfast, Ire., June 6.—There were exciting scenes here in consequence of the Nationalist demonstration, headed by William O'Brien, and accompanied by bands of music and the display of banners. The Protestants threatened trouble, with the result that large bodies of police and military were stationed in the streets. Several conflicts took place, and the infantry charged the crowd with fixed bayonets. Several persons were injured.

They Don't Like It.

Santiago, June 6.—The local press violently denounces the censorship order issued by the governor general. The Independence calls it a "horrible crime against a free press." The Forerunner says: "Cuba has fallen from her position of a dignified Spanish colony and become an abject slave of the Intervener." The censor has not yet been named.

Rumor Contradicted.

London, June 6.—The Berlin correspondent of The Times says: "The rumor that Germany has offered to exchange a cable station in the Carolines for a similar station in the Philippines is contradicted here."

TO LOOK OVER BOOKS.

Two Banks at Dover, N. H., Compelled to Close Their Doors.

Police, Meanwhile, Are Looking For Harry Hough.

Was Treasurer of Savings Bank and Book-keeper For National Bank.

Dover, N. H., June 6.—Harry Hough, treasurer of the Cochecho Savings bank, is being sought by the police. Dispatches have been sent from Dover giving a description of Hough.

The financial community in this section of the state received another shock through the closing yesterday of the doors of two of the best known banks in this city. The Cochecho Savings bank was enjoined from paying out or receiving money, and a warrant was issued for the arrest of its treasurer, Harry Hough, who is charged with a shortage of $3500.

The doors of the Cochecho National bank were also closed, and National Bank Examiner Carroll is temporarily in charge. While Hough was not an official of the National bank, he acted as assistant cashier, did all the bookkeeping of the institution, and had free access to the funds of the Savings bank. That amount was drawn from the Strafford Savings bank yesterday by Treasurer Hough's wife and paid to Trustee Nason, who turned it over to the Cochecho Savings bank to settle the shortage. This will not deter the county officials, as well as the officials of both banks, from securing the arrest of Hough, as he is charged with a shortage of the National bank funds.

The closing of the banks caused considerable excitement in the city, but the residents recognized the fact that they could do nothing until the books are examined and action is taken by the courts.

It was learned, when notices were posted on the bank doors, that State Bank Commissioners Hatch, Parker and Cummings were in this city last Saturday and made an examination of the books of the Savings bank. They learned that the accounts were not straight, and after holding a brief conference, Commissioner Cummings applied for a warrant for the arrest of Treasurer Hough. A shortage of $3500 was found.

National Bank Examiner Carroll says he is unable to say what the shortage of the National bank will be after a full examination has been made. Everything that has so far come to light places it at about $7000. Mr. Carroll made the discovery over a week ago that there was something irregular in the accounts, and he has been working on the case since that time. Last Saturday he discovered a shortage of $3500 in the Savings bank and $13,000 in the National bank accounts. Hough was confronted with the situation and paid back $9000. He further agreed to pay the remaining $4600 out of the Savings bank. Monday morning the National bank was closed, and the discovery of the shortage was made public. This promise is the reason why he was not placed under arrest at that time.

The treasurer's father, Ralph Hough, who is one of the directors of the National bank, says his son went to Boston for the purpose of raising money from brokers to pay the shortage, and he expected him to return yesterday. The directors claim they knew nothing of the shortage until Saturday night, when they were informed by the examiners. Cashier Harrison Haley of the National bank said that Hough had full access to the books of the institution at all times, as he acted as assistant cashier, yet he was not an official of the bank.

Mr. Haley says he knew Hough had been speculating, and was also aware of the fact that there were worthless checks in the bank, with no collateral behind them. He called Hough's attention to the matter a few days ago, and he said he would make it all right, as his relatives would assist him. Hough's friends believe that he will return.

The suspension of the two banks leaves the city with no financial institution, except the Strafford National bank and Strafford Savings bank, the Dover National bank and the Dover Savings bank having collapsed several years ago, following the discovery of a heavy shortage in the accounts of Cashier Isaac Abbott, who afterwards committed suicide. The capital of the Cochecho National bank is $50,000.

It was late Saturday night when Bank Commissioner Cummings received an order from Judge Pike of the supreme court, enjoining the Savings bank from paying or receiving any money, pending an examination.

A thorough examination of both banks' institutions will be made. Until that time it will be difficult to ascertain their condition, so far as shortages are concerned. It is alleged that Hough's irregularities were discovered through the sale of property, and the failure to make a return of the money received. The Cochecho Savings bank held a mortgage on the Gorman estate in this city and proceeded to foreclose, the purchaser paying Hough $3500 in a check on the Strafford Savings bank, which, it is claimed, was not turned over to the Cochecho Savings bank. This $3500 was the amount made good yesterday by Mrs. Hough. It was discovered last Saturday that the payment for the property had not been made through the proper channel.

Bank Examiner Carroll telegraphed the situation to the controller of the currency at Washington last night, and he expects to receive the appointment of temporary receiver.

It is claimed that Hough's method was to take money from the bank and put in worthless checks and notes, with no collateral to make them of value to the bank. Mr. Hough is highly respected in this community, and has a family composed of a wife and three sons. He is about 45 years of age. County Solicitor Scott and Sheriff Hayes have asked the assistance of the police in all sections of New England to assist them in the arrest of Hough.

Grand Jury Acts in Clark Case.

New York, June 6.—The grand jury lost no time yesterday in indicting all the kidnapers of Marion Clark. The first indictment is found against George W. Barrows, alias Mark Beauregard, alias James W. Wilson. The second is against Addie Barrows, alias Addie Beauregard, alias Jennie Wilson. The third is against Belle Anderson, alias Carrie Jones. The first two persons named in the indictment were put on trial yesterday at West Haverstraw, on the charge of kidnapping the Clark child, but no evidence was adduced, as the prisoners waived examination, and were held for the Rockland county grand jury, which sits tomorrow night. The prisoners were recommitted to jail. The indictments charge abduction, kidnapping and conspiracy. Justice Fursman of the supreme court transferred the case of the defendants from the court of general sessions to the criminal branch of the supreme court, as the case was supposed to all proceedings thus far instituted against the defendants in this state.

The cause of the trouble was the killing of Roy Paley, 3 years old, by a motor car.

All is not gold that glitters, and even a water paint can be made so that it has a high gloss. A poor paint often has its distinguishing characteristics, such as short measure, and a smell of benzine, and you must be careful and not leave it out over night lest it freeze up. When you open a can of Chilton Paint, it smells as paint should smell, it covers as no other paint will cover, because it is better made with better materials than any other paint, and it lasts longer, because nothing is put in it in order to cheapen it.

IN MARSHAL'S HANDS.

Warrant For Arrest of Hough, Alleging Embezzlement of $10,000.

Missing Man Was Seen In Boston on Sunday.

Believed to Have Had $5000 With Him When He Left the City.

Dover, N. H., June 7.—United States Attorney Hamblett of Nashua arrived here yesterday, as did also United States District Commissioner Kelley of Portsmouth. After a brief conference among those who are directly interested in the affairs of the two banking institutions, Mr. Hamblett had a complaint sworn out before the United States district commissioner for the arrest of Hough, the complaint alleging the misappropriation of $10,000 of the funds of the Cochecho National bank. The warrant was placed in the hands of United States Marshal Nute of Farmington, who started out today in search of the missing treasurer of the Savings bank and assistant to Cashier Haley of the National bank.

Sheriff Hayes and County Solicitor Scott returned to Dover last night, after being in conference with the police of Boston during the day. The twenty-one officials are of the opinion that Hough partook of dinner with his sister, Mrs. O. F. Waite, in Malden, Mass., last Sunday, yet they are not in possession of facts to substantiate their claim. Mrs. Waite visited this city Monday night.

A traveling salesman in town made a statement to the effect that he saw Harry Hough in the waiting room of the Boston and Albany depot in Boston last Sunday afternoon at about 2:30 o'clock, and that he passed the time of day with the missing treasurer.

A large number of the National bank passbooks have been handed in to Temporary Receiver Carroll, who will give them a rigid examination in comparing them with the books of the institution. It is generally believed that the books will be found in a badly mixed condition, and that it will take considerable time to straighten them out. It is thought Hough had at least $5000 in his possession when he left the city. Mrs. Hough informed County Solicitor Scott that her husband had some trouble with the bank in 1894, and that she furnished $5000 of her money to settle the shortage. The $5000 that was paid by Mrs. Hough Monday morning to square shortage of the Savings bank was also her own money.

Mr. Hough, as treasurer of the Savings bank, gave bonds for $20,000, the bonds being purchased by a guaranty company. He did not furnish bonds to the National bank, as he was not an official of the bank, simply being employed by Cashier Haley as an assistant, with a salary of $600. He received $500 per year from the Savings bank.

No particularly new points have come to light, but the general mixed condition of affairs, especially in regard to the books, puts a decidedly bad light on the matter, and in no way eases public feeling.

When the work of examination is completed the depositors will be given receipts, certificates, and these will undoubtedly be good for nearly, if not all of their face value at the Stratford bank. By this measure the depositors will not be compelled to undergo any great inconvenience.

TARRED AND FEATHERED.

Leader of "Holy Ghost and Us" Sect Harshly Treated by a Mob in a Maine Town.

Bangor, Me., June 7.—It has been learned that Rev. George W. Higgins, the leader of the Holy Ghost and Us, was tarred and feathered by the mob which carried him away from Levant Monday night into the woods. The sheriff has secured a large number of names of the mob and every step will be taken to bring them to justice.

The affair was a most serious and brutal one. It was an act of contempt was made to burn Higgins after the feathers had been applied, matches being applied three or four times, but some of the cooler headed ones put out the blaze each time. After Ruel Clement had been dragged from his house with Higgins he was roughly used, being struck in the face and head several times and dragged over the road. As they reached the road Ruel Henderson, one of the men in the crowd, seized Clement and dragged him to one side, rescuing him from the mob.

Higgins was dragged off, however, and was ridden on a rail for about two miles to a grove near the Glenburn town line. All his clothing was stripped off on the way except his shoes and stockings and his collar, which had resisted the scuffle. A patch of skin a foot square had been torn off Higgins' back by dragging him around. Clement followed the crowd, and after the mob had left Higgins went to his aid and accompanied him home. His condition was pitiable, and Clement, that aided in removing the coat of tar and feathers. Higgins is now abed and will not be able to be about for some time. Clement's wounds are not serious.

Castor Still at Liberty.

Keene, N. H., June 7.—A week has elapsed since the murder of Mrs. Lewis Castor, but the police are no nearer capturing her husband than ever. Apparently he still lingers in this vicinity, as he was positively identified by Mrs. Levi Morse, at whose home on Woodbury street, at the edge of the woods, he called Monday night. Mrs. Morse was alone at the time and was so frightened that she did not dare give the alarm until several hours later. Then the officers spent the night in search. Bloodhounds were taken to the spot where he was seen, but the ground was so dry that the animals were unable to find a trail.

For $15 a Week.

Boston, June 7.—A large number of tenders to plasterers in this city struck yesterday for $15 a week and pay by the day. There is, however, considerable friction between the tenders and the plasterers, as the latter have decided to accept help from non-union men. The tenders will ask for the expulsion of the plasterers from the Building Trades' union.

Boston Loses an Honored Citizen.

Boston, June 7.—Frederick Octavius Prince, ex-mayor of the city of Boston, died at his residence on Beacon street yesterday. He had been ill for several months, and it was not expected that he would recover. For days his death had been expected, as his strength was fast wearing out. Mr. Prince's last illness was of a dropsical nature. He leaves a wife and four sons. Mr. Prince, mayor of Boston 1877, 1879-81, was born in Boston, Jan. 18, 1818, son of Thomas and Caroline (Prince) Prince. He came of English stock on one side and Scotch on the other, and his ancestors were among the earliest settlers in New England. He was a Democrat.

Lost Child Found.

New Britain, Conn., June 7.—Anna Eschholz, the 6-year-old daughter of Herman Eschholz, a Hartford banker, who mysteriously disappeared from a picnic resort in the suburbs of this city, where Mr. Eschholz and his family were spending the day, was found yesterday about a mile from the scene of her disappearance. Robert Voigt, son of the town treasurer of New Britain, who was in a searching party, found the little girl lying near a tree, and as the vicinity had been previously gone over thoroughly without success, the unexpected finding of the girl only adds to the mystery.

It Was an Accident.

Worcester, Mass., June 7.—Edward Francke was arraigned on the charge of manslaughter in the district court yesterday, but as the evidence showed that Samuel Goldfein met his death by accident, the boy was discharged. Francke and Goldfein worked in the same place. On May 5 Francke poured some oil down Goldfein's neck, and the latter started to chase Francke, who, in fun, threw a hammer in Goldfein's direction. The hammer hit Goldfein on the forehead, and he died in a few minutes from a broken skull.

Went Clear Through Deck.

Bristol, R. I., June 7.—The club top-sail of the Defender fell to the deck yesterday while the yacht was on a sailing trial off Newport and narrowly missed killing a number of the crew. A big hole was torn in the mainsail, and the pole of the topsail went through the deck into the cabin below. The yacht was brought up to the Herreshoff dock under storm trysail and jib. It is thought that it will take four or five days to repair the damages.

College in Gloom.

Orono, Me., June 7.—Several students of the University of Maine were swimming in the Stillwater river yesterday, when suddenly Leon Livermore cried for help and sank immediately. Livermore lived in South Sebecton and was quite prominent in college. The accident has cast great gloom over the college, which for several weeks has been in a condition of unrest owing to illness among the students and several unfortunate happenings.

Grover Was a Guest.

New York, June 7.—Richard W. Gilder says that the story printed to the effect that ex-President Cleveland had been ordered from the fishing grounds of Frank Johnson, a farmer of Tynningham, Conn., is untrue. Instead of being ordered away, Mr. Gilder says Cleveland was on Johnson's land as the owner's guest, and there was no unpleasant incident in connection with his presence there.

Probably Crazy by Heat.

Haverhill, Mass., June 7.—Thomas Walsh, a teamster, dove from a wharf into the Merrimack river yesterday, and was drowned. It is presumed that Walsh had been affected by the heat, as he jumped into the water with his clothes on, and there is no reason to entertain a theory of suicide.

Intruders Dispersed.

Guthrie, O. T., June 7.—Three squads of Osage Indian police and light horsemen evicted several hundred intruders from the Osage Indian reservation yesterday. The white intruders defy the orders of the Indian agent, Pollock, and boldly move upon Indian allotments, build houses and raise crops.

WHEN KILLEN UNLIMBERED.

The Louisville Team Realized That They Were Up Against a Defeat.

Boston, June 7.—Louisville came to town for the first of three games. The once mighty Colonels have been up against it recently and hold that technical position in baseball known as "the rut of defeat." They couldn't climb out of the depths, although in the opening they went away in the lead.

Two runs were scored on three clean hits and a sacrifice before Killen unlimbered, and for a minute it appeared as if the visitors might give the champions a hard battle.

In the second and third the home club touched up Professor Cunningham, and, aided by a few errors, the Colonels were headed and never after they were close enough to cause anxiety.

Killen pitched good ball after he unlimbered his arm, but Hans Wagner and Ritchey being the only ones to evince a fondness for the new twirler's benders.

Counsel Barred.

New York, June 7.—When the Mazet investigating committee resumed its session yesterday the first thing done was to declare that in the future none of the witnesses subpoenaed to appear before the committee should be represented by counsel. This was followed shortly after by the excluding from the courtroom of Police Captain Price's counsel, H. C. Henderson. The committee, then, in an attempt to show corrupt practices by Police Captain Price in the Tenderloin district, brought out from John C. Ellis, former proprietor of a Sixth avenue resort, a story of "protection" that did not protect. His statement involved ex-Alderman A. B. Waite.

Quaker City Tragedies.

Philadelphia, June 7.—At Olney, a suburb, William Keaton attempted to kill his wife, Ida, and her sister, Annie Shellenberger, as the result of a family quarrel. The two women were shot. Mrs. Gilles, a 70-year-old neighbor, who came to the door, was accidentally shot. Keaton was afterwards arrested. None of the women will die. A second tragedy yesterday was the result of a lovers' quarrel. Frank Wilmer, aged 51 years, asked Mrs. Mary Ruhl, a widow, aged 28, whom he was courting, to marry him, but she refused. Wilmer then shot her in the forehead and himself in the neck. Mrs. Ruhl is not expected to survive.

Wife as Informer.

Philadelphia, June 7.—The arrest of Samuel McKinney yesterday, upon charges of cruelty to his wife, has led to surprising results. Mrs. McKinney told the police that in 1874, while they were living in New York, her husband planned to rob a country house on the Hudson, near Irvington. In trying to get away with the booty, she says, he was surprised, and killed the owner of the house. His biggest haul was made in New York three and a half years ago, when $20,000 in negotiable securities and cash were taken from the residence of John Wendell of New York.

Good Afternoon.

The Herald wants the Quincy Yacht club to invite the Yankee of the White Bear Yacht club of St. Paul, Minn. to race for the Quincy cup. The Q. Y. C. has invited the Yankee and all other flyers who would like the Quincy cup to challenge, but it is too late to enter this year. Besides the Quincy club has quite enough on its hands to defend the cup against three yachts at one time. The Yankee is a 17-footer and carries but 500 square feet of sail. She will sail against the Dominion next Monday in Lake St. Louis near Montreal.

With all the talk over new valuation by the Mayor, the newspapers and the taxpayers, it was not surprising that an order was introduced into the City Council this week for the printing of a valuation book. Such a book has never been printed by the city government, and it was about twenty-five years ago that the town issued a valuation book. Reference to it shows some marked increases in valuations. The cost of the book should not be as great as the sum mentioned in the order, and taxpayers would be willing to pay the cost that they might see for themselves whether there are inequalities in assessment.

A City Council which kills so many projects as did the Council of 1899 this week should not be charged by Mr. Faxon, collectively or individually, with reckless expenditure. In his communication of June 2 in speaking of petitions he said:

"And heaven only knows just what other notion some ranting councilman will advocate in the interest of his much abused constituency. Already the curbsome politician has announced that if its scheme of refunding is put through we shall have plenty of money to spend."

It is very evident that the City Council is giving considerable and faithful attention to business. Members should not be held responsible for petitions which they introduce upon request, and they are entitled to thanks rather than abuse for their services given without pay or reward. The city has leeway enough within its debt limit to appropriate all the money asked this year; if it had not it would not advocate refunding any portion of the debt, for that reduces the limit. Refunding therefore has a tendency to reduce expenditures.

There is not only an injustice to taxpayers in the selection of streets to be watered, but the cost is more than it should be. A Quincy gentleman of experience in watering is ready to sprinkle the streets for $50 per month per mile. If the whole cost was assessed upon abutters (two sides of the street with 280 feet left for intersecting streets) the assessment would be but half a cent per front foot, or three cents per foot for six months. Yet the city assesses two and two-tenths cents per foot, and levies as much more upon the taxpayers, whether they are benefited or not.

If the city can be sprinkled for $50 per mile per month by horse carts it should be sprinkled cheaper by electric cars. At $500 per mile it would cost but $500 per month, or $3,500 for seven months, to sprinkle the ten miles of street included in the order. Yet it is proposed to appropriate $4,400.

If abutters could get the street in front of their houses watered for half a cent per foot frontage they would be willing to be assessed for the whole cost, but to secure concerted action it should be done by the city upon petition of a majority or two-thirds of the frontage on a street. Then those who wanted their streets watered could have the benefit. Now it does not seem possible for some to get satisfaction.

Drift of Opinion.

"Don't sell or surrender the Philippines" is Admiral Dewey's advice; and what he says "goes" with the American people.—Milford Journal.

At the present moment we are reading in a good many papers about the duty of "standing by the government, first, last and always." And yet, there is not one of them that ever did that thing, or that probably ever will.—New Bedford Standard.

Neither are we under obligations to admit to the full privileges of citizenship the inhabitants of our distant dependencies. And if our refusal to admit them is tyranny or imperialism, well and good. It isn't the variety of tyranny or imperialism that will destroy American liberty.—Fall River Herald.

A banker in South Dakota complains that times are too prosperous and that people have too much money, that farmers are paying cash and being able to go where they please to trade. It makes it hard for business men. But while the South Dakota banker may be distressed by this situation, it is safe to say that it doesn't disturb other people very much.—Beverly Times.

Judge Bond has decided that the Massachusetts courts cannot prevent a church from expelling a member for violating its rules of conduct. It is a relief to learn that there are some things that the courts consider beyond their jurisdiction. Sometimes it has seemed that they would claim to hold "the keys of heaven and hell" and decide on the man's future as well as present state.—Worcester Gazette.

The conviction and fining of a Lowell publisher for the "soliciting of custom" for a liquor concern, by the act of printing an advertisement, is an example of the frequent successful endeavors to give statutes a meaning that the enactors never intended, and goes well with the straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel that accompanies the administration of law in many communities.—Woonsocket Reporter.

If Josiah Quincy becomes a democratic candidate for governor, Massachusetts will see a campaign such as has not been witnessed since the late Gen. Butler took the country towns by storm.—Haverhill Gazette.

This is another one of Editor Wright's jokes. Josiah Quincy could not corral as many votes as George Fred Williams even, and the Dedham oracle has fared about as badly as any democratic candidate in recent years. If it were not for republican votes Quincy could not be elected mayor of Boston, though it is a democratic city.—Brookline Times.

It is not importance of subject matter that makes a work great, but a great mind—a great personality—behind it. The same is true in all walks of life. Men like Washington, Lincoln and Blaine left an impress on their times, not because of the great work they were called upon to do, but rather from the tremendous and unique personality they gave to the work. It is not so much what we have to do, as the way in which it is done, that marks the distinction between greatness and mediocrity.—Beverly Times.

The federal census of 1900 will show beyond all doubt that we have expanded in a decade more than some of the most favored nations in Europe have expanded in half a century. If the present rate of increase in this country is maintained, it is probable that the accumulated wealth of the nation will show by the census of 1900 not far from $110,000,000,000, or more than double that of Great Britain. In the language of the Boston Globe, "expansion is a fact and not a theory. We cannot well deny our own identity." No real American wants to.—Milford Journal.

AGAINST BONDING.

Hearing on Consolidation of Street Railways.

Stockholders Object to Terms of Syndicate.

Rights of Small Stockholders to be Protected.

The hearing of the Railroad Commissioners on consolidation of street railways held Tuesday is of local interest. The petition for the consolidation of the Hingham, the Hanover, the Rockland & Abington, the Bridgewater, Whitman & Rockland and the Braintree & Weymouth street railways, under the name of the Hanover Street Railway Company.

The Herald says the hearing was doubly interesting because of the presence, as objectors, of several stockholders of the Rockland & Abington and of the Braintree & Weymouth roads, who objected to an exchange of their stock at par for stock on the proposed new company.

The petitioners represented the majority of the stock of the five roads which have recently passed into the hands of Pepper & Register.

Arthur H. Brooks represented the petitioners, and he explained that the name Hanover had been selected, as that was the only one of the roads with no mortgage outstanding. He admitted that eventually that name might be changed. He desired permission to increase the capital stock of the Hanover road from $50,000 to $900,000, which was the total amount of the present capital stock of the five roads. Furthermore, the petitioners asked permission to issue $650,000 in bonds.

This latter portion of the petition was at once ruled out by the railroad commissioners, who said that the consolidation, if approved by the railroad commissioners, must be ratified by the stockholders of the five roads before any permission to issue additional bonds could be given.

The petitioners state that they desire to exchange the stock of the five roads for stock in the consolidated road at par. It was this that the remonstrants were present to object to.

William J. Coughlan of Abington was the first to remonstrate. He said that he represented 26 shares in the Rockland & Abington company, and that that company and the Braintree & Weymouth, were the only two of the five which were paying a dividend. He did not think that it was fair to the minority stockholders of those two companies to exchange shares at par.

Louis A. Cook of South Weymouth, who held five shares in the Rockland & Abington and two shares in the Braintree & Weymouth, said that a few men owned a majority of the stock, and that they could elect whom they please for directors, and those directors must fall in line or get out. He desired that the stock be apportioned on its intrinsic value.

James H. Elwell of Weymouth, representing 38 shares in the Braintree & Weymouth, said that that road had been paying dividends, while some of the others had not. He, too, objected to an even exchange. Lott Phillips of Hanover, holding 15 Braintree & Weymouth shares, also objected.

Bentley W. Warren, representing the holders of over $15,000 of the first mortgage bonds of the Rockland & Abington road, asked that the transfer be made in such a way as to retain the present security of the bonds after the consolidation.

After considerable discussion, Chairman Sanford announced that the board had decided that the petitioners must purchase the minority stockholders' shares at a fair price, or the exchange of stock would have to be made on terms which had a relation to the real property values of the respective roads. The minority stockholders of the Braintree & Weymouth road said that they would sell out for par. Mr. Coughlan wanted 120 for his clients' stock in the Rockland & Abington road. The board took the matter under advisement pending a settlement with the minority stockholders.

DIED.

TITUS—In Quincy, June 5, Mr. Nelson V. Titus, aged 56 years, 5 months and 24 days.
Prayers at his late residence at Squantum, Thursday, June 8, at 11 A.M. Funeral from Trinity church, Boston, at 2 P.M.
CHASE—In Quincy, June 6, Helen Marie, daughter of Mr. William L. and Mrs. Sarah E. Chase of Bigelow street, aged 9 months and 12 days.
NEWCOMB—In Boston, June 6, Mrs. Lucy A. widow of Dr. George Newcomb of Quincy, aged 92 years and 6 months.

A NONAGENARIAN.

The Hot Days Too Much for Mrs. Lucy Ann Newcomb.

Mrs. Lucy Ann Newcomb, who had the distinction of being the oldest lady resident of Quincy, died in Boston Tuesday, where she has been for some months, at the advanced age of 92 years and 6 months. Mrs. Newcomb up to within a few months has enjoyed remarkably good health and was unusually smart for one of her advanced age. Of late, however, her eyesight had commenced to fail and her health also. Last Sunday, however, she appeared as well as usual, but the two hot days together with her age were too trying for her to withstand.

Mrs. Newcomb was born in Quincy and was the daughter of William and Lucy Packard, and was the oldest of a family of seventeen children of whom only three are now living: Col. A. B. Packard and Mrs. J. F. Burrell of Quincy, and Mrs. L. P. Stowe.

Her early life was passed in Quincy and she had the honor of opening one of the first private schools in Quincy, way back in the 20s. She was also one of the first teachers of vocal and instrumental music and was one of the first to play the pipe organ at Christ's church in 1826. She also taught school for a short period in New York.

She married Dr. George Newcomb, by whom she had two children, Georgiana, mother of Mr. George H. Brown of this city, who married Mr. C. H. Brown of Detroit. Another child died in infancy.

Upon the death of her husband in 1865 Mrs. Newcomb went to Detroit, and resided with her daughter until 1880, when she came to Quincy once more, where she has since resided most of the time with her grandson.

A Family of Teachers.

The honors won by Miss Ernestine Morse Litchfield at Thayer academy last week recalls the fact that the Morse family is a family of teachers.

The mother of Stephen Morse taught in Sudbury, Mass., 12 years. Mr. Morse taught 20 years in Marlborough, Framingham, Westboro and Quincy, coming to Quincy 50 years ago, April 2, 1849. Two years later he married Wealthy Holmes who had taught 12 years in Bridgewater, Mass., and Quincy.

Mr. Morse's sisters (one a graduate of Wellesley) were both teachers, one teaching 25 years in Marlborough, the other 12 years in the High school at Marlborough.

His daughters four in number, taught as follows, viz: Elizabeth, the eldest, began at Quincy Neck at the age of 16 and has completed 30 years, and is still teaching in Ames school at North Easton, Mass. Carrie is still teaching and has completed about 25 years at Quincy, Jacksonville (Fla.), Louisville (Kentucky), Lowell, (Mass.), Chicago (Ill.), and is now a teacher in Boston. Hattie, the mother of Ernestine Morse Litchfield, taught the grammar school at Wollaston several years. Mary, the youngest, taught in North Easton, about three years, then in London, England, two years, then she returned and married William Jackson, a teacher in the State Normal school at Bridgewater, Mass.

One Round Trip Less.

The building of the sewer on Farrington street, Wollaston, has necessitated a change of the timetable on the street cars between Quincy and Neponset. Until the sewer is completed cars will run as follows:

Quincy for Neponset via Wollaston 15 minutes of and 15 minutes past the hour.

Quincy for Neponset via Hancock street 20 minutes of and 10 minutes past the hour.

Quincy for Neponset via Norfolk Downs on the even hour.

Neponset for Quincy via Wollaston 15 minutes of and 15 minutes past the hour.

Neponset for Quincy via Hancock street 5 minutes of and 25 minutes past the hour.

Neponset for Quincy via Norfolk Downs 30 minutes past the hour.

The car leaving Quincy for Neponset at 30 minutes past the hour and the car leaving Neponset for Quincy at 10 minutes of the hour are discontinued.

Chief Williams made quick time yesterday going to Box 51. While driving through City Square he lost a red bucket, and then his hat blew off, and both fell into the street but away went the chief bareheaded like "Tam O'Shanter pursued by the witches." W. L. Chase, who has devoted himself closely to business since he purchased the bakery of W. A. Hodges, started on Monday for a two weeks' visit in northern Maine leaving his family well. Tuesday his infant daughter was taken critically ill and died about 10 P. M. It is doubtful if Mr. Chase can reach home before the funeral. He and his wife have the sympathy of neighbors and friends.

PEARL WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood M. Litchfield Celebrate Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood M. Litchfield observed their thirtieth or pearl wedding anniversary Tuesday evening by entertaining a large gathering of their many friends, at their residence on Quincy avenue.

Guest were present from Duxbury, Scituate, Cambridge, Weymouth, Boston and Braintree, besides many from Quincy.

Mrs. Litchfield was Clara Alice Harris and was born in Scituate, as was also Mr. Litchfield. They were married in that town and came to Quincy shortly after, where they have since resided.

Three daughters have been born, all of whom reside in Quincy. They are Mrs. Walter M. Packard, Mrs. Edward E. Miller, and Miss Alice who lives at home.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Litchfield are identified with local societies and possess a legion of friends, who remembered them on this occasion with many handsome presents. The Woman's Relief Corps sent a silver ice pitcher and salad dish, and the permanent members of the fire department a set of linen.

The house was very prettily decorated with flowers, and the lawn where those seeking cool breezes gathered was illuminated with lanterns. The interior of the stable was also trimmed with red, white and blue and illuminated with lanterns, and here there was dancing, of the old-fashioned kind, to the violin music of Mr. Hyland of Scituate.

Games were provided for those who did not desire to enter into the more heating exercise of dancing the "Morning Glory," "Hull's Victory," "Virginia Reel," "Money Musk," etc.

There was also vocal and instrumental music by Misses Minnie, Elvira, Ruth and Dorothy Packard, grandchildren, and vocal selections by Mrs. Stoddard of Scituate and Mrs. Laura Tirrell of Quincy.

Refreshments were served during the evening.

Help Necessary.

Regarding the alarm from Box 51 yesterday for a grass fire, the residents in its vicinity claim that they had fought the fire in the hot sun for some time; that it was getting beyond their control and near buildings; that they had no means of assistance to adequately cope with it; that Hose 2's house was nearly three-quarters of a mile distant and there was no means of quickly communicating with it; that there was a fire alarm box within 300 feet of the fire and that naturally seeing that they could not extinguish it they immediately turned to the box for the desired assistance.

AFTERNOON GOWN OF CHECKED GINGHAM FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

The costume published today, and taken from Harper's Bazar, is one that represents simplicity of outline and of making, and presents no difficulty to even an inexperienced, needle-woman. The apron-shaped upper part of the skirt is in three pieces, cut upon the straight of the goods, and fitted to the form by darts placed at intervals. It closes in the centre of the back in under-turned pleats. The ruffle flares about the bottom, but is joined smoothly around the curved edge of the skirt under flat stitched bands of plain gingham, cut in bias strips and stitched on each side, as was the fashion in satin band trimming during the past winter. The ruffles should be cut upon the straight of the goods, and the breadths joined according to the demands of the ruffle pattern. The pattern does not allow for hem at the bottom of the ruffle. A shaped facing for the latter accompanies the pattern, which is that of a skirt of simple walking length, just touching the ground in the back. The gingham bodice has a slightly shirred back, the fullness being distributed gently between the shoulders at the collar line, and caught into the centre of the back at the waist line. The front fits smoothly over the shoulders, and closes down the centre under a wide box-pleat, which narrows slightly at the waist. The fullness which would ordinarily be taken into darts is folded under slight outward turning pleats on each side of the centre box-pleat. The simple but effective collar is edged with flat bands of plain gingham. The sleeves are of the medium coat variety, gathered into the armhole, and finished with a turned-back cuff, trimmed with plain stitched bands like those that trim the collar. Chamberlay, linen, percale, batiste, or any strictly wash fabrics will bring out this design effectively, and linen braids or wash ribbons may be substituted for the stitched bands of plain material.

Of any material 27 inches wide, 11 yards will be found sufficient to make this gown for a person of medium size.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.
Sun rises—4:07; sets, 7:18.
Moon sets.
High water—11:30 a. m.; 11:30 p. m.

Abnormally high temperatures have been experienced in the Atlantic states and Ohio valley. New York city reports 98 degrees, which is three degrees higher than ever before noticed in the first decade of June.

Philadelphia and Washington report 96 degrees; Parkersburg, Louisville, Lynchburg and Boston, 94 degrees; Norfolk, Charlotte, Augusta, Montgomery, Nashville, Pittsburg, Chattanooga and Toledo, 92. Farther Point, in Canada reports the lowest temperature at 46 degrees. Thunderstorms have caused a decided drop in temperature in the lower lake regions and upper Ohio valley. Thunderstorm conditions will move eastward, reaching the Ohio valley, the middle and north Atlantic states this afternoon, with a decided fall in temperature, and tomorrow will probably cover the whole country from the Mississippi to the Atlantic.

Skeleton in Bishop's Closet.
Washington, June 7.—A deed recorded here yesterday by which Bishop John F. Hurst of the Methodist Episcopal church transferred through an intermediary to his wife, Ella R. Hurst, their fine home on Massachusetts avenue, in the fashionable part of the city, caused a great deal of comment here, it being reported that the transfer was preliminary to a legal separation. Bishop Hurst was out of the city, and his attorney said he had nothing to say about the matter. Mrs. Hurst has been in Europe for two years.

News to Washington Officials.
Washington, June 7.—The statement made in the Canadian house by the premier, to the effect that the Canadian government has proposed to the Americans to establish a customs house on the Dalton trail, to be regarded as making the provisional boundary there causes great surprise here, the officials asserting that this is the first that they have heard of any such provision.

—Taking down a board that had a knot hole in from the side of his house, a Farmer, Mo., man found that a swarm of bees had made their hive there and there were 125 pounds of good honey waiting for him.

It is claimed by those people who live on the route traversed by the electric car sprinkler that it does not do the work in a thorough manner; that the car goes so fast the street is simply sprayed instead of watered.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. BAREFOOTED BANDITS

Cause Americans to Encounter Many Difficulties.

Great Endurance Shown by Our Soldier Boys.

Military Officer's Comparison of Regulars With Volunteers.

Thinks the Latter Not Fitted For Service In Far Away Countries.

Washington, June 7.—The American forces, according to dispatches from Manila, have occupied the peninsula, and General Hall's column is encamped at Morong. Major Truman, marching across from Binangonan, found it impracticable to form a column, and the insurgents, with the exception of a hundred or two, escaped through the mountains after General Pio del Pilar, dragging their battery by buffaloes, by night. The Washington troops have returned to Pasig, but the program of the other troops is uncertain.

The present expedition shows the difficulty which is encountered by an army which must depend upon wagon trains in catching bare-footed bandits in their own mountains, and also gives proof that the rebels do not intend to fight battles.

General Hall left Santa Teresa yesterday morning and marched 12 miles to Morong, up and down rocky hills and through woods and swamps. Scores of his men fell out owing to the extreme heat, and were left to follow as best they could. The head of the army arrived at Morong at noon, having exchanged only a few shots with insurgent skirmishers on the way. Groups of stragglers followed all day, but the force was 200 smaller than when it started.

The men were almost 36 hours without rations, and it was considerable of an achievement for them to cover the ground they did.

En route to Morong the Americans met flocks of Filipinos, under flags of truce, many of them young men with the bearing of soldiers. Many discarded uniforms were found in the houses, apparently those of soldiers who had escaped by changing their costumes from "insurrector" to "amigo," and walking boldly past the army which had expected to corral them. Few were found about Morong.

One member of the Washington regiment was killed and two were wounded in the encounter with the outposts.

General Lawton, on board a gunboat searching the coast for Major Truman, stopped at Binangonan, opposite Morong. The natives immediately ran up a flag of truce, and a delegation in canoes put off and greeted the Americans with the usual protestations of friendship.

"There may be a political as well as an economical side to the president's reluctance to call volunteers just now," remarked a high military officer yesterday. "He wanted the right to raise the regular army to a maximum of not less than 100,000 men. There was no reason on earth why congress should have refused him this power, unless it was ready to say the United States should cease conducting warfare anywhere."

"Nobody would have denied to congress the right to forbid further military operations and bring the Philippine trouble to a summary conclusion if they thought best to do so. But to permit the Philippine war to continue and then deny the president the means of carrying it on vigorously was not only inconsistent, but wicked, for it meant the loss of a great deal more blood and money in the end."

"You may say that congress gave him 100,000 men. So it did. But what he wanted was 65,000 regulars and 35,000 volunteers. Now we all know, after the experience of the Spanish war, what it means to be left dependent upon a volunteer organization. There is no way of escaping continual clashes of authority between the state and federal governments. State troops, as such, have no business fighting the battles of the nation, except where trouble has come upon it so suddenly as to give the federal government no chance to prepare itself. Some of the volunteers have done good service and deserve all the credit given to them; but frankly, these are the exception rather than the rule. For the most part the volunteer remains a volunteer in some of his least agreeable characteristics, no matter how long he serves under the flag. There is altogether too much boys' play about the volunteer organization, even in the field. Soldiering with the regular is a stern about half appreciated on its serious side. The president knows this as well as anyone. Congress knows it. The wretched beat-about-the-bush by which congress went through the form of supplying 10,000 of the best troops and actually supplied only 5,000 unworthy of it, and the president proposes to let the country understand this."

"One of the most damaging things you can do, if you are going to have an army at all, is to manifest your distrust of it in advance by arbitrary limits on its term of enlistment and in other details. We are seeing the effect of Senator Gorman's handiwork in the army bill by the reluctance of so many of the best class of young officers to stay with the army and risk the chance of losing their careers while good offers are outstanding for them in private life. If the president lays this matter again before congress at its next session, and points out what has been done to hamper him, I cannot help thinking that the Republicans will be able to use his message as a very effective campaign document next year."

WE NEED MORE SHIPS.

Admiral Sampson Sees No Reason For the Enlargement of the Navy.

New York, June 7.—The Independent this week contains an article by Rear Admiral Sampson on "The United States Navy." He says: "I have long believed that the navy of the United States is not adequate to the needs of the nation, and in spite of our victories the naval war of the past year has tended strongly to confirm the view I held before the war began. For an army increase I fall to see the necessity. It is hardly conceivable that we could use a large army except for wars of foreign conquest, which the sentiment of our country would not permit. No power except Great Britain could hope to attack us on land. No two powers combined could hope to effect anything against us by sending an army to this country."

"Foreign armies, therefore, do not constitute a danger to this country. The possible wars which confront us are naval wars, and in order to wage them successfully we need more ships. I believe that we should have at least twice as many as our navy at present contains."

Tallest Man Got Whipped.

New York, June 7.—At the Lenox Athletic club last night there was a bout between two negro giants. They were Bob Armstrong of Chicago, who measures 6 feet 2 inches in height, and Ed Martin of Denver, who is two inches taller. Each weighed 190 pounds. Martin had decidedly the better of the early part of the first round, but Armstrong went ahead in the latter part and with a hard left jab and a right cross to the jaw practically took all the fight out of Martin. The end came in the second round. Armstrong knocked Martin out with a right on the wind. Martin sprawled all along one side of the ring, while the referee counted him out. Time of round, two minutes.

Crooks Got Away With $5000.

Louisville, June 7.—The German Insurance bank of this city was victimized out of $5000 by two well dressed young men. The assistant cashier of the German Insurance bank was called up by telephone and asked if he could accommodate the Citizens' National bank in currency. On being answered in the affirmative the inquiring party said he would send two men around to get the money. Shortly afterwards two young men appeared at the bank with a check for $5000, bearing the supposed signature of the cashier of the Citizens' National bank. The assistant cashier, suspecting nothing wrong, counted out the money. The signature was a forgery.

Sherman Withdraws.

New York, June 7.—The Republican members of congress from the state were called together yesterday to decide how they would vote in the contest for the speakership of the next house of representatives. Congressman Lippauer insisted on an endorsement of the candidacy of Congressman Sherman. This was opposed by Messrs. Ray and Wardlaw, who left the meeting. Chairman Odell also left. The seven remaining called in Mr. Sherman for further conference. After a complimentary vote to Mr. Sherman, that gentleman withdrew as a candidate in favor of General Henderson, and it was voted to support Henderson.

Sheriff Killed in a Fight.

Cheyenne, Wyo., June 7.—Sheriff Hazen of Converse county and the posse in pursuit of the Union Pacific robbers had another fight with the bandits late yesterday. The robbers were surrounded in a gulch when they were forced to abandon their horses, which were captured. They hid behind rocks and made a desperate fight. Sheriff Hazen was shot through the body and killed. Reinforcements for the posse are going out from Casper as fast as the men can be mounted and armed. The entire country is aroused and the prospects are good for capturing the train robbers.

Gladly Paid Fines.

Princeton, Ky., June 7.—Every man in town was fined yesterday for contempt of court. A petition had been signed by all of them asking the grand jury not to indict the insurance companies, and no indictments were found. The state attorney moved to proceed against the signers for contempt of court. After considerable argument the judge fined every man 1 cent, and the decision was applauded by the defendants.

Too Little and Too Much Rain.

Washington, June 7.—The weekly summary of crop conditions issued by the weather bureau says: In New England, New Jersey, Colorado, New Mexico and over the greater part of the southwest the states drought generally prevails, while the states of the Missouri and upper Mississippi and Ohio valleys have suffered from excessive rains and local storms in some sections.

Fruitless Conference.

London, June 7.—A special dispatch from Bloemfontein says that the conference between President Kruger and Sir Alfred Milner proved abortive.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Attorney General Oren gave the governor of Michigan an opinion to the effect that the best sugar bill is unconstitutional for the reason that it appropriates money raised by taxation for other than a public purpose.

The memorial monument to the South Carolina dead, buried in the Stowaway cemetery at Winchester, Va., was unveiled in the presence of 10,000 people. The cord was pulled by Miss Marguerite Trenholm of South Carolina, and the address was made by Colonel Franklin McCan of Washington.

The Mexican government has awarded at an American—William K. Smoot of Washington—the contract for harbor work at Manzanillo, amounting to $600,000 (Mexican). The plan calls for a breakwater of granite blocks, ballasted with rocks.

The condition of Congressman Richard P. Bland is slightly better. By a decision of the court of appeals, handed down at Albany, Henry W. Steinway, of the firm of Steinway & Sons, piano manufacturers of New York city, wins his case against his relatives, from whom he has been demanding an accounting of the business for the past six years.

GENERAL GOMEZ' IDEAS

Expressed In a Farewell Address to People of Land He Loves.

Enjoins His Countrymen to Maintenance of Peace.

Military Occupation of Cuba by Their Allies Was Not Looked For.

Havana, June 7.—General Maximo Gomez, former commander-in-chief of the Cuban army, issued his farewell manifesto yesterday. In substance it says: "The commission I have been intrusted with is nearly concluded. I have attempted to find a solution of questions concerning the army which I commanded during the bloodiest war known in America. I am now leaving respectfully, to attend to necessary private business."

"A parting word to the people for whom I have sacrificed 30 years of my life and to my friends in the army just disbanded, which action should have been taken instantly, after the removal of the bloody weight of Spain's merciless regime. We armed ourselves, and therefore, now we no longer want soldiers, but men for the maintenance of peace and order, which are the basis of Cuba's future welfare."

"It is necessary to understand that the nation in this epoch, most difficult and unequalled in history, should avail itself of this opportunity to show its possessions virtues, in spite of the vices caused by colonial government and the harshness of warlike life."

"We wanted and depended upon foreign intervention to terminate the war. This occurred at the most terrible moment of our contest, and resulted in Spain's defeat. But none of us thought this extraordinary event would be followed by a military occupation of the country by our allies, who treat us as a people incapable of acting for ourselves, and who have reduced us to obedience to submission and to a tutelage imposed by force of circumstances. This cannot be our fate after years of struggle, and we should aid by every pacific method in finishing the work of organizing, which the Americans accepted in the protocol, and which is as disagreeable for them as for ourselves. This aid will prove useless without concord among the islanders. Therefore it is necessary to forget past disagreements, to completely unite all elements and to organize a political party, which is imperative for the future of the country."

"It is always said that countries have the government which they merit, and Cuba will have that which her heroism entitles her to. Today she can only have one party in Cuba, with one object, that of obtaining the aspiration of years."

"We must devote ourselves to pacific labors, gain the respect of the world and show that though our war was honorable our peace must be more so. We must make useless by our behavior the presence of a strange power in the island, and assist the Americans to complete the honorable mission they have been compelled to assume by force of circumstances. This work was not sought by these rich northerners, owners of a continent. I think doubts and suspicions are unjust. We must form immediately a committee or club to be a nucleus of a government. This will serve Cuban interests perfectly and act as an aid to the intervenors."

"I, as one of the first Cubans, although one of our last old soldiers, and not far from the grave, without passion or ambitions, call on you with the sincerity of a father to urge a cessation of the superfluous discussions and the creation of parties of all kinds, which disturb the country and tend to cause anarchy. In this country there should not be one man who we consider a stranger. Today we no longer have Autonomists or Conservatives, but only Cubans."

"My mission having ended, I will absent myself temporarily, to embrace my family, but I will return shortly to Cuba, which I love as much as my own land."

"My last words for my soldiers are that, as always, where my tent is, the Cubans have a friend."

The manifesto is the principal topic of conversation among Americans and Cubans of all shades of politics. The Americans, for the most part, consider it an affecting address, expressing the real views of the old patriot, and also his sincere intention to retire from public life. His Cuban admirers say the address will rank among the most famous in history. His opponents insist that he has no intention to retire for more than a few weeks, and that his real object is to gain public sympathy.

Many residents of Havana, who are neither friendly nor unfriendly to Gomez, believe that if he lives he will soon wish to resume his connection with the island, and they also believe that Cuban sentiment in the main would favor his being largely invested in the future Cuban republic, even if not as the president.

Army Officer's End.

Manila, June 7.—Lieutenant Fred W. Pearce of the Sixth United States artillery, committed suicide here this morning. He came from Iloilo a week ago on leave, but lingered here beyond the limit, and failed to reply to repeated telegrams from his commander. Yesterday he was put under arrest on his commander's order. This morning another officer called to see him, when he suddenly pulled a revolver from under his pillow and shot himself through the head.

Dreyfus Hears the News.

Fort de France, Martinique, June 7.—When the dispatch boat Geland, bearing the superintendent of the prison and the commander of marine artillery, who were designated by the French government to notify Dreyfus of the revision of his trial, arrived from Cayenne at Devil's Island, Dreyfus was waiting on the shore. Although endeavoring to maintain his self-possession he received the official intelligence with a countenance radiant with joy.

DOES COFFEE AGREE WITH YOU?

If not, drink Grain-O—made from pure grains. A lady writes: "The first time I made Grain-O I did not like it but after using it for one week nothing would induce me to go back to coffee. It nourishes and feeds the system. The children can drink it freely with great benefit. It is the strengthening substance of pure grains. Get a package today from your grocer, follow the directions in making it and you will have a delicious and healthful table beverage for old and young. 15c. and 25c."

"BOSTON VEGETABLE VAPOR."

It is claimed that, while it has the required properties of ether, chloroform, nitrous oxide gas, it lacks the disagreeable and dangerous qualities of these drugs. It is certainly a boon to suffering humanity to be relieved of the nausea too often following the administering of sedatives of the old school.—Boston Transcript.

HOUGH STILL MISSING.

Probably Got a Good Start by Leaving Dover Saturday Evening.

National Bank Affairs Not Yet Straightened Out.

Losses of the Two Banks Considered Likely to Reach at Least $40,000.

Dover, N. H., June 8.—O. F. Brown, agent of the Salmon Falls mills, at Salmon Falls, informed United States Deputy Marshal Nute yesterday that he was a passenger on the early morning
train out of Dover last Saturday,
and during the trip he passed through all of the cars, and is positive that Treasurer Hough was not aboard the train. He is well acquainted with the missing bank official, and is positive that he did not go to Boston Sunday morning.

Mrs. Daniel Hall of this city was absent from her home during last Saturday and arrived here from the east early in the evening. She informed the authorities yesterday that as she alighted from the train Mr. Hough stood near the steps as though he was about to board the train when the passage was made clear by those who were going to stop in this city. The train was bound for Boston.

United States Marshal Nute called on Ralph Hough yesterday with an idea of gaining some information as to the whereabouts of his son. Mr. Hough informed the marshal that he possessed no knowledge that would be of assistance to the officers, as he did not know where Harry had gone.

Bank Commissioner Cummings turned over the affairs of the Savings bank to Assignee Mason, and the investigation of the affairs of the institution will be continued by him.

Contrary to be general understanding about the city Cashier Haley has made known the fact that the directors of the National bank secured the services of Mr. Hough as assistant cashier and paid him $600 per year for his services. Mr.
Haley made this statement owing to the report that he employed Mr. Hough as an assistant and was responsible for his salary and actions connected with the bank.

It is now believed that the losses to the Cochecho Savings bank and the National bank, by reason of Hough's speculations, will reach fully $40,000, if not a greater amount. The chief loss falls on the National bank.

The one thing which public opinion condemns is the action of the Savings bank trustees in inducing Mrs. Harry Hough to draw all she had in the Strafford Savings bank and pay the Cochecho bank $3500. The Savings bank people claimed that the treasurer was $3500 short, and for this they had a bond of $20,000 issued by a surety company. They were amply protected, but the trustees knew that Hough's wife had promised $4000 to the National bank.

William F. Mason, assignee of the Savings bank, simply got in ahead of the Cochecho National bank men and induced Mrs. Hough to pay the Savings bank instead of the other institution. There was no obligation on her part to give up her money, and the officials simply say they took it because she contributed it voluntarily without compulsion.

For some reason the Hough family was anxious to square accounts with the Savings bank rather than the National bank.
The purpose seems to have been to prevent any prosecution, if possible, by the Savings bank.

Believers in Christian Science.

Boston, June 8.—The Christian Science gathering in this city, beginning with the communion services last Sunday,
ended with the usual weekly testimonial
meeting last night. Numerous testimonials of personal experiences in the application of the principle of Christian Science made it an interesting occasion.
Forty-one persons spoke of remarkable results attained. In concluding, Judge Hanna, who presided, asked that those in the audience who knew of a certainty that they had been healed through Christian Science, to rise. Practically everyone in the audience arose, and a similar response was made each time
when he asked an expression of their belief in "Almighty God as the only saving power in their lives," "Belief in Jesus Christ absolutely and unqualifiedly" and "In the power and efficacy of prayer to heal the sick as well as to destroy sin."

Came From New Hampshire.

Boston, June 8.—Two more victims of smallpox have been discovered in Boston. They are boys, 4 and 11 years old, who came from Strafford, N. H., two weeks ago. The boys became sick a week ago at their new home in South Boston, and they were taken to the hospital on Gallop's Island yesterday. The other occupants of the house have been vaccinated and the rooms disinfected.
The boys were sick a week before a physician was called, and the consequences
may be grave both to the family and the community.

Despondency and Suicide.

Southington, Conn., June 8.—John Craig, aged 31, died suddenly at his home yesterday under suspicious circumstances, and an investigation by the medical examiner showed the man had committed suicide by taking Paris green. Craig was despondent on account of his wife's death several months ago.

Views of Silveia.
Berlin, June 8.—The Madrid correspondent of The Lokal Anzeiger reports an interview with Premier Silveia, who assured him there was no doubt the cortes would ratify the sale of the Caroline, Ladrona and Pelow Islands to Germany.

FRANCISCO SILVEIA.
many. Spain originally asked 40,000,000
pesetas for the transfer. Senor Silveia referred to the commercial treaty between Germany and Spain, which the cortes will be asked to ratify as a "blessing for both countries."

Modification Not Modified.

Washington, June 8.—The report that the president would soon modify the recent civil service order has evidently grown out of a certain confusion that arose in regard to assistant postmasters.
It seems that these officers did not appear from the recent order to be in the list of those excepted from examination,
and as it had never been the intention of the president to have them subject to examination the statement was officially made that the recent order would be amended to the extent of making the administration's position clear. There will be no general modification of the order further than an occasional slight change such as temporary exigencies
may require. It is the current gossip that John R. Proctor, president of the civil service commission, will soon retire from the commission.

Consumption Can Be Cured.

Columbus, O., June 8.—At the meeting of the American Medical society yesterday a sensational report was presented on the cure of consumption by Fran-cisque Crotte, the eminent and widely known chemist of Paris. Mr. Crotte has cured more than 1000 apparently hopeless consumption cases, and in support of his statement he has offered to treat and cure gratis 500 consumptives from the different states in the Union. The treatment is very scientific and consists of inhalations of formal de hyde vapor, transported directly through the tissues
by the aid of light tension static electricity.

Colorado on the Rampage.

Austin, June 8.—As a result of the terrible water spout and exceedingly heavy rains on the upper watersheds the Colorado river is raging out of its banks. Reports from Marble Falls and Llano, 30 miles above, show a 25-foot rise there,
doing great damage to property all along the river. The cotton mill at Marble Falls was wrecked. The waterworks the river bridge and other property was damaged. Debris is pouring down the river by the carload. The water is pouring over the great 1200-foot dam spanning the river here in a solid sheet of mud
and debris 12 feet deep.

Run Down at Last.

Norwich, N. Y., June 8.—Susie Graham, indicted as an accomplice to the murder
of John M. Pepper, near Susquehanna, Pa., in October, 1897, was arrested here
yesterday and taken to Susquehanna.
The woman induced Bert Ogden and James Agan to rob Pepper. In the robbery Pepper was hit with an instrument
and died from the effects.

AUGUSTIN DALY DEAD.

Close of Career In Which Many Ups
and Downs Were Experienced.

Suddenly Expires at Paris From Heart Failure.

Among Foremost of Theatrical Magnates, Adapters and Playwrights.

New York, June 8.—The news of Augustin Daly's death reached New York yesterday in a cablegram from Ada Rehan, which read: "Mr. Daly died today at 2 o'clock. Heart failure. Break the news to his brother and to Mrs. Duff."
Born in Plymouth, N. C., July 20, 1838, his father the captain of a coasting trader, Augustin Daly became fatherless when he was too young to appreciate his loss. It was intended to educate him for the priesthood. He studied hard at school and frequently in later life, even in the height of his successes, exhibited with much pride the certificate of his good conduct and scholarship, which he brought with him to New York as a recommendation to a Catholic clergyman.

But even in his boyhood he developed theatrical tastes. His first attempt at composition, in fact, was a military drama, and he had it acted by his school-fellows and playmates.

Coming north to New York, he undertook to give a play, aided by his brother, Judge Daly. This first New York attempt was a flat failure. Augustin Daly became then a theatrical critic,
progressing finally from the old Sunday
Courier to The Express.

Having criticised Miss Bateman, he made the acquaintance of Papa Bateman, whom he strongly recommended
the adaptation of Moseenthal's "Deborah." A translation of the play was made by a genius named Methua. Mr.
Daly adapted it. "Leah, the Forsaken"
was produced in Boston with success,
and, after being revised, corrected and partially rewritten, was brought out at Niblo's garden, and made Bateman's
fortune and his daughter's reputation.
There were subsequent lawsuits, and the gold mine which the Batemans found in
"Leah" brought nothing but vexation, disappointment and loss to Mr. Daly.

When John Brougham had failed to carry on the Boudoir theatre in West Twenty-fourth street to the satisfaction of James Fisk, the autocrat of Erie-selected Mr. Daly as the manager upon whom he relied to rival Wallack's establishment. With a favorable lease and plenty of pluck and capital, Mr. Daly fought the Wallackian system vigorously and successfully.

This theater was destroyed by fire in 1873, and three weeks later he opened another theater, formerly the Globe,
under the former name. Early in August, 1879, he established Daly's theater,
and several years ago he opened in London a thoroughly equipped house under the same name. For several seasons he managed the Grand Opera House in New York.

In recent years the combination of players with which his name has been identified—Daly's company of comedians
—has achieved an international reputation under the leadership of Miss Ada Rehan. Mr. Daly devoted all his time to his theatrical enterprises. He was an enthusiastic and a hard worker, always noted for the elevation of his dramatic purposes and the completeness of his scenic presentations. He was a well-informed student of the dramatic literature of many nations.

Among the first of his successes to attract attention was "Under the Gas-light," which is still popular. "Pique"
was another of his works that for many nights drew big houses in New York.
"The Big Bonanza" was yet another, and among his adaptations were "The Passing Regiment," "Love in Harness," "A Night Off," "Needles and Pins," "The Last Word" and almost numberless other pieces.

Every year Mr. Daly gave at least one magnificent Shakespearian production, and no American manager ever devoted so much attention to the classic drama,
being content with small gains and cheerfully bearing losses so long as the high standard was maintained.

He had a comprehensive library of stage literature and collected numerous old prints of famous stage people. He wrote a book on Peg Woffington and one also on Nell Gwynne, of whose career
he had made quite a study.

Mr. Daly married a daughter of the late John C. Duff.

"Doped" For Execution.

Princeton, Mo., June 8.—Peter Kindred, who shot and killed Andrew A.
Alley and dangerously wounded his cousin, Joseph A. Alley, at Mercer Feb.
5, 1898, was hanged here yesterday.
Kindred was carried to the scaffold and
held in position while being pinioned.
Kindred had, it is said, been under the influence of morphine for several hours,
and slept soundly an hour before the execution. Joseph Alley and the wife of the murdered man witnessed the hanging.

Beer Men's Testimony.

Chicago, June 8.—At yesterday's session of the senatorial pure food investigation committee two brewers denied the assertions made before the committee that salicylic acid was used in beer.
It was alleged, however, that the acid appeared in imported beers. Domestic beers, whether inferior or not, they declared, is subjected during the process of pasteurization to a temperature of 140 to 150 degrees Fahrenheit, destroying every possible germ.

CHURCH WEDDING.

And Brilliant Reception at New House.

The Kincaide-Pettengill Nuptials.

The Happy Couple Envied by Many Friends.

As one of the bridal party at the Kincaide-Pettengill nuptials last evening remarked that the rain was more needed than a man needs a wife, and as the happy couple and guests were indifferent to the rain, the pleasure was not marred by the storm, and Quincy not only got its needed rain, but one of its most prosperous merchants now has a charming wife.

The wedding took place in the historic old First church and Rev. Ellery Channing Butler, the pastor, was the officiating clergyman. There was a large assemblage of friends, who admired the elaborate and beautiful decorations of the pulpit and church with palms and daisies, and the sweet music of the organ under the skillful hands of Mr. James F. Harlow. The guests were seated by the following ushers: Mr. Harry S. Dary of Taunton, Mr. Alexander P. Graham of Haverhill, Mr. Henry W. Gore, Jr., of Braintree, Mr. T. Percy Harrison of Braintree, Mr. William S. Osborne of Wellesley and Mr. Henry L. Patten.

The familiar strains of Lohengrin's march was the signal for the entrance of the bridal party. Following the ushers came two little flower boys in white, Master Junie Dunbar of West Roxbury and Master Alphonse Ward of Somerville. Next came the maid of honor, Miss Martha Christine Kincaide a sister of the groom.

Miss Grace White Pettengill, a pronounced brunette, made a very pretty bride in a white crepe over white silk train; she was escorted by her father, Mr. Charles F. Pettengill and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The groom, Capt. Henry L. Kincaide and his best man, Capt. Herbert A. Clark of Attleboro, met the bridal party at the altar. The bride was given away by her father, and the ring service was used. The responses both of the bride and groom were clear and audible. The soldierly bearing of the groom and the attractiveness of the bride were comments of friends as they left the altar.

The reception was held at the future residence of the happy couple. It is an attractive new house delightfully situated, but on this rainy night it was the richness and good taste displayed in the interior finish and furnishings which were admired and envied. Palms and cut flowers were used for decoration.

Mr. and Mrs. Kincaide received in a small reception room to the left of the entrance, and were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Pettengill, Mrs. Sarah Kincaide, Miss Kincaide and Capt. Clark. The whole house was open to inspection. The presents were displayed in the billiard hall on the third floor and were rich and numerous, including a great variety of cut glass, pretty dinner and tea sets, a silver service from Rural lodge of Masons, beautiful fancy work, paintings and many other works of art.

Lees, strawberries, cake, etc., were served by a caterer in the dining room, and frappe in the hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Kincaide left that night for Boston and will take a wedding trip north.

Box 171 Again.

The alarm from Box 171 at 5.30 Wednesday afternoon was for a slight fire on the roof of the Old Colony Shoe Company factory on Union street. The fire which started from sparks from the stack was confined to a few shingles on the roof and $5 will cover the loss. Some delay was again experienced in getting to the fire on account of Elm street being impassable, the sewer trench having completely blocked the street. The locality in the vicinity of Whichever's shop is considered by fire department people as an extremely dangerous one and as it is necessary to dig up the street for the sewer trench some means should be left so that the department can get through if necessary. At Wednesday night's fire the apparatus was obliged to go down Canal street thence by Washington and Baxter streets to the box which is a roundabout way and in case of a large fire would handicap the department in coping with it. Yet responses are so prompt that it is difficult for a fire to get a start.

ACCIDENT AT DEPOT.

Mr. T. Henry Wason Nearly Lost His Life.

Mr. T. Henry Wason of Goffe street met with a serious, if not fatal accident, early last evening, just south of the Quincy depot. Mr. Wason who is sub-master of the Brimmer school, Boston, reached Quincy on the train at 5.49. His custom for years has been to walk down the track to near the residence of Mr. Wilson Marsh, and then go through a private way to his home on the hill near by.

Wednesday evening he walked down the track as usual until he reached the head of the train. He then crossed over to the west side of the outward over and was walking down near the side of the rails when the train upon which he arrived home started up.

Just what struck him, he was unable to say, but people walking along the east side of the tracks say that the engine passed him all right and it must have been the car step that struck him. Whatever it was, it struck him on the left arm below the elbow and in the side. He was thrown into the gutter and as soon as the train had passed parties went to his assistance. The train did not stop, as evidently the engineer and train hands knew nothing of the accident.

Mr. Wason was assisted to his feet and was able to walk with assistance to the depot. His left arm hung loosely at his side and he complained of a pain in his back.

When the depot was reached all the carriages had departed and it was some time before a physician could be found. Doctors Hallowell and Jones finally arrived, and immediately ordered his removal to the City Hospital. There it was found that his left arm was broken and crushed and that it would be necessary to amputate it. It was also thought that he might be injured internally but to what extent could not be determined.

His arm was amputated above the elbow at 8 o'clock and he remained under the influence of the anesthetic all night, until early this morning.

He was considered to be in an extremely dangerous condition this morning, and grave doubts were had of his recovery.

Mrs. Wason who was at Hanover, N. H., where their son Harry will graduate this month from Dartmouth, has been notified and they will probably arrive home today.

Mr. Wason's two youngest sons, who attend school in Quincy, were at home at the time of the affair, and were almost heartbroken over the accident.

The injured man is among Quincy's most respected citizens. He stands high in educational circles, has been for years a prominent member of Bethany Congregational church, and has been a worker in the Young Men's Christian Association almost from its organization, serving on the board of directors, as president, and in other capacities. He is a man of exemplary character, and many friends hope for his speedy recovery.

LATER.

At two o'clock a marked improvement was noted in the condition of Mr. Wason and hopes are now entertained of his recovery. His pulse is getting back to the normal and the indications are favorable.

Wollaston vs. Lexington.

The ladies did not save the day for the Wollaston Golf club on Wednesday in the double match with the Lexington club, but perhaps it was because of the handicaps. A team of five women from each club were matched, and also teams of six men from each club. The men's team from Wollaston was very successful as five of the six won their match and Mr. Porter was downed by only one hole, so that the score was 23 to 1 in favor of Wollaston. None of the Wollaston ladies won, but Miss Adams did the course in 107 while her opponent took 112. The Lexington women won 10 to 0. The summary:

Mr. Wason was the second president of the Association, and has been a director since its organization.

People who cross the North River can hardly fail to observe that many Atlantic liners go out so well laden that the decks are fairly close to the water line, while most of the incoming steamers carry such small cargoes that they tower above the other craft in the river. Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

Dark 'neath the Southern sky, the clouds of disunion lay,

Shading the brightness of Freedom's glorious day.

And mad with passion; rejecting the right; Forgetting the struggle in liberty's fight

Where their fathers had fought against tyranny's yoke,

The words of wisdom that Washington spoke,— Their sons had dishonored their sacred trust,

And the flag of their country had trailed in the dust.

Like the sound of a trumpet came the clarion call

From the loyal chief of the old Bay State. Rally! for your country, liberty and law,

Rally! for the defense of the capital, 'ere 'tis too late! Rally! sons of the Pilgrims and Puritans,

To defend the Union against traitor's hands! Rally! for anxious hearts are waiting to know

If the old flag still waves o'er Fortress Monroe!

From shop, store and farm, as their fathers had done,

Came their sons—brave "Minute-men of '61." From Lexington and Concord, with earnest will,

And beneath the shadows of Bunker Hill; From the historic ground where the Pilgrims sleep;

And Essex's seagirt shores where the storm waves leap.

Forward they moved, both over sea and land, To defend their birthright 'gainst treason's hand.

Just as the waning clouds betokened the dawn, And the sunlight appeared on that April morn,

Casting its golden sheen over the waters blue, The low line of the fortress appeared in view,

And we anxiously waited for the hour to come, For the expected boom of the sunrise gun.

It came over the water, deep and low

TAKEN BY SURPRISE.

How the Quincy Company Responded to Call in 1861.

At the breaking out of the war in 1861 one of the first companies to respond to the call of the President was Co. H of the 4th Regiment, the Quincy company. The bell on the Stone church was rung calling the people together, most of whom were taken completely by surprise, as it was expected that some peaceful settlement would be effected. No one even dreamed of war.

At this time means of communication between towns was extremely limited, there being but few telegraph lines, so Col. A. B. Packard of this city, who commanded the regiment was obliged to despatch men on horseback to eight different towns from Dorchester to Plymouth and Taunton to notify the several companies that their country needed their services to protect its very life. In the remarkably short time of two hours the Quincy company was in line, ready to take the cars for Boston, where they were joined in the course of the day by the balance of the regiment.

The next day, an hour ahead of the 6th Regiment, they embarked for Fortress Monroe which was believed to be still in the hands of loyal men. Although communication was cut off it was doubtful indeed as an army was gathering near Hampton for the purpose of taking the works, which had only a small guard, most of whom were southern men, as indeed three-quarters of the regular army and navy were at that time.

Shortly after arriving at the fort, the regiment were sent to Newport News on the James river to fortify that place from which later with other bodies of troops they advanced into the 'enemy's' country as far as Big Bethel. It was there that Francis L. Southern was killed. This has been proven to have been the first pitched battle of the war. The mob attack of the 6th regiment at Baltimore was not by the Confederate Army.

The following extracts from the address of General Stephenson at Hingham on Memorial day is particularly fitting for Quincy.

"There are veterans here present who rallied at the first call of Gov. Andrew at the commencement of the war; who had the honor to march with the first regiment that left Massachusetts for the South, and who belonged to the first body of volunteers that were mustered into the service of the United States—the advance of more than 2,700,000, who followed, before the war ended.

A few weeks ago I received an invitation to attend the reunion of the "Minute-men of '61," and it brought back to memory the exciting scenes of those early days. I recalled the excitement of the march through the streets of this dear old town, and the kind greetings we received in Boston. I remembered the eventful voyage to Fortress Monroe, where we were to land if the fort was still held by the friends of the Union, and that beautiful April morning when we arrived near our destination and waited for the sunrise and the unfurling of the "stars and stripes." I remembered the joy and thankfulness with which we were received by the noble commander of the post, who, in later days, never failed to express his gratitude for the timely arrival of the Massachusetts boys, which ensured the safety to the Union of the grand old fortress, the most important on the Atlantic coast. These recollections came crowding upon my mind and heart and impelled me to write a few lines, which I will repeat and then weary you no longer:

OUR FLAG IS STILL WAVING O'ER FORTRESS MONROE.

Dark 'neath the Southern sky, the clouds of disunion lay,

Shading the brightness of Freedom's glorious day.

And mad with passion; rejecting the right; Forgetting the struggle in liberty's fight

Where their fathers had fought against tyranny's yoke,

The words of wisdom that Washington spoke,— Their sons had dishonored their sacred trust,

And the flag of their country had trailed in the dust.

Like the sound of a trumpet came the clarion call

From the loyal chief of the old Bay State. Rally! for your country, liberty and law,

Rally! for the defense of the capital, 'ere 'tis too late! Rally! sons of the Pilgrims and Puritans,

To defend the Union against traitor's hands! Rally! for anxious hearts are waiting to know

If the old flag still waves o'er Fortress Monroe!

From shop, store and farm, as their fathers had done,

Came their sons—brave "Minute-men of '61." From Lexington and Concord, with earnest will,

And beneath the shadows of Bunker Hill; From the historic ground where the Pilgrims sleep;

And Essex's seagirt shores where the storm waves leap.

Forward they moved, both over sea and land, To defend their birthright 'gainst treason's hand.

Just as the waning clouds betokened the dawn, And the sunlight appeared on that April morn,

Casting its golden sheen over the waters blue, The low line of the fortress appeared in view,

And we anxiously waited for the hour to come, For the expected boom of the sunrise gun.

It came over the water, deep and low

And our flag rose in beauty o'er Fortress Monroe.

Swiftly our vessel glided on to the pier, And soon from the fort a soldier appeared. With a troubled, startled mien he called to know, "What troops are these! do you come as friends or foes?"

"To defend the old flag we have come from the North,

From the home of the Pilgrims; the Massachusetts Pilgrims."

"Thank God! Thank God!" was his earnest reply,

"The threats of secession we now can defy!"

Then came the years of desolation and strife, The terrible struggle for the Nation's life;

The blood-red fields and the countless graves Of patriots who died, their country to save;

The dashing charge over hills and plain; The groans of the wounded, the sickness and pain;

"Till peace spread her white wings over the scenes of woe;

And our flag was still waving o'er Fortress Monroe.

Many years have passed since those fateful days;

The veterans walk feebly, their locks have grown gray,

And thousands of heroes have gone before, Have crossed the river to the Golden Shore;

But their deeds are remembered, their men's'ries kept green

In the land of freedom they fought to redeem, While liberty her priceless gifts bestow,

And our flag shall ever wave o'er Fortress Monroe.

HOUGHS NECK.

An Early Season and Prospects Bright.

The outlook for a good season at Houghs Neck is unusually good this year. But few new cottages have been built during the winter but there has been a good demand for those already built. Last year there were a number of cottages that were vacant all the year, due in a great measure to the backwardness of the season. This year the season has started in early and the hot weather has made people anxious to get near the salt water as early as possible. For this reason many families have already arrived, although the greater part of the summer residents will not begin to arrive until after schools close.

For attraction at this resort will not lack this year, for aside from the annual illumination there will be the cup races of the Quincy Yacht club, and their ladies' day, and the various store keepers intend to make the best of these events.

Mr. A. T. Reed and sister of Boston are at their cottage on Great hill.

Mrs. J. B. Emery will occupy the Loretto annex this year.

A first class fruit store is to be opened near the Quincy Yacht club house.

Arthur Dunham is doing the carpenter work on the addition to A. A. Meyer's cottage.

The French cottage is occupied by Rev. E. C. Whiting of Tewksbury.

Mrs. Arthur Dunham, who has been ill, is convalescent.

E. N. Thayer and family of Holbrook are at their cottage on Great hill.

M. T. Dunham has moved into his cottage on the shore front.

Mr. Washburn of Ashmont is at the Woodbine cottage.

The new cottage of Charles Brant on Great hill is completed.

William Agnew and family have arrived at the Idlewild.

Mrs. Turner and family are at their cottage on Bay View avenue.

The Bass cottage has been leased to Mr. Goldie of Boston, who has taken possession.

Herbert Robbins and family of Ashmont are at their cottage on Great hill.

Ira M. Whittemore and family of Roxbury have arrived at their cottage for the season.

Bogus Certificates Circulated.

Havana, June 8.—Colonel Randall paid 193 Cuban soldiers at Jaruco and rejected 44 others. This makes 1435 paid by Colonel Randall so far. It was discovered that four Cubans were selling fraudulent certificates of services in the Cuban army, charging $4 each for them. This so enraged several soldiers who had legitimate discharges that they badly beat the sellers of the bogus certificates.

Three of the four men escaped on a train bound for Havana, but the fourth was arrested.

Cut Off In Early Life.

Philadelphia, June 8.—Victor McLaughlin, publisher and editor of the Philadelphia Times, died at his home here this morning. Mr. McLaughlin was 34 years of age, and succeeded to the ownership of The Times upon the death of his father, Frank McLaughlin, about 18 months ago. Mr. McLaughlin had been suffering for several months from pulmonary and stomach troubles. He leaves a wife and two children.

Michigan Falls In Line.

Detroit, June 8.—The Michigan congressional delegation, which is solidly Republican, will cast its 12 votes for Representative Henderson of Iowa, for speaker of the next house. A caucus of the delegation was held yesterday. A telegram was sent to Congressman Henderson, saying: "Michigan gives you, with enthusiasm and pleasure, her united delegation."

An Amicable Adjustment.

Lawrence, Mass., June 8.—At a conference held last night between the local union of the horseshoers and the shop owners of Andover, the latter subscribed to the nine-hour agreement with no reduction in wages. The new schedule goes into effect at once.

THE BANK LOSES.

The Note of Mrs. T. A. Whicher Is Decided Void.

A decision of importance to banking and commercial interests, says the Herald, was rendered by the full bench of the supreme court, Wednesday, in the case of the National Granite Bank of Quincy vs. Mrs. Isabella S. Whicher of Quincy, holding that it is the law that a promissory note made by a wife, payable to the order of her husband is void. The court sustains an exception taken by the defendant at the trial in the superior court based upon that theory, thereby setting aside a verdict for the plaintiff upon the three notes in suit, which amounted to more than $15,000.

The notes were signed by the defendant, payable to the order of her husband, T. A. Whicher, and by him, together with other persons, indorsed. They were discounted by the bank. The court holds that the notes having been "made by the wife, payable to the order of her husband, no action" can be maintained against her upon them, and that the trial judge should have given an instruction to the jury to that effect as requested by the defendant. The court says that such a note is void at common law, which has not been changed by the statutes relating to married women.

J. C. Coombs, W. H. Leonard and C. H. Hanson for plaintiff; S. H. Tyng and J. P. Prince for defendant.

DUE TO CHAMBERLAIN.

Alaskan Boundary Dispute Said to Have Been Partially Adjusted.

Negotiations Have Been Resumed at London.

Much Will Be Left, However, to Settle by Future Conferences.

Washington, June 8.—London advices state that the negotiations with reference to the Alaskan question are in the most promising condition. The lines of a prospective settlement and for carrying on the discussion in the high commission have been formally submitted by Joseph Chamberlain, who, throughout, has had most potent influence with the Canadian side. Every arrangement in the negotiations at London between Mr. Choate, Lord Salisbury and Sir Julian Pauncefote has gone through him, and the prospective settlements, in a great degree, may be considered a triumph for Mr. Chamberlain's tact and perseverance.

JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN.

It is known that the arrangement of a modus vivendi to govern the relations of the United States and Canada on the Alaskan boundary is receiving a great deal of attention. The basis for the temporary delimitation of the boundary in the neighborhood of the passes leading into the Klondike from the Linn canal will, if the present effort succeed, be on White pass on the east, and on Chilkoot pass in the middle, at the points where the Canadian customs houses were established about 18 months ago. On the Dalton trail the point has not yet been selected, and as the pressure toward the sea on this westernmost trail by the Canadians has been more severe than at any other point very naturally great difficulty is experienced in reconciling even temporarily, the conflicting claims to jurisdiction. While Pyramid harbor is not insisted upon at this juncture by the Canadians as part of the temporary arrangement, they desire to get as near to tide water as possible, and their claim in this quarter includes the important Indian village of Klukwan, a town that has long been under the protection of the United States.

It is said, however, that too much assurance should not be taken that a complete accord is certain. The officials agree with the London view that the outlook is rather brighter because negotiations are on again, but they qualify this by saying that the agreement is not yet concluded, and that when concluded it will still leave much to be settled by future negotiations. In view of the fact that the protocol rectifying the proceedings of the joint high commission on Feb. 18 last in Washington had been made public in the Canadian legislature, while an abstract of its contents has also been published in London as well as in this country, the state department has deemed it proper to give out for publication the entire protocol.

This particular protocol is regarded by the department as of great importance, for it marked the failure of the commission under peculiar conditions. The record shows that the joint commission met at 10 o'clock that morning; that the British side proposed arbitration, and that the Americans accepted the proposition in general, using it as a basis for a treaty, as offered by the British. However, it is shown that when the Americans offered an amendment the British side promptly refused to accept it, and without affording further opportunity for the erection of an arbitration treaty stopped the negotiations and referred the matter to their own government, notwithstanding the urging of the Americans that the commission at least conclude their negotiations upon the remaining subjects.

These facts were the basis of the American contention that the Canadians had not afforded a real opportunity for arbitration and were responsible for the disruption of the joint commission. The points of the British arbitration proposal and also of the proposition put forward by the Americans as an amendment have already been indicated in the cable dispatches, and the following portions are given as those upon which importance is laid by the Americans:

In putting forward their proposal the British side said: "The commissioners of the United States announced that they accepted the proposals made as the basis of adjustment, but desired an amendment in relation to the arbitral tribunal and a modification of rule C to make it conform to the present local conditions in Alaska."

The British objections to the American counter proposal have also been published and the record on that point reads: "Holding these views, the British commissioners are of the opinion that no useful end would be served by further pressing at the present time the negotiations, and must refer the matter to their government."

Killed by a Detective. Claxton, June 8.—Will Monroe who was wanted in Claxton county for the murder of a merchant named Griffith, was killed by Detective Hodges while retreating yesterday.

MAGEE'S FINE WORK

Caused a Break in the Series of Successes of the Beaneaters.

Boston, June 8.—After six straight victories the Boston Beaneaters, the South Boston pitcher, who has done such good work for the Kentuckians the past two seasons, was a most important factor in meeting out defeat to the champions, and to his headwork, speed and control his team owe the game.

The dark day and the speed of Magee and Nichols caused much difficulty for John Gaffney behind the plate on balls and strikes, and the Boston players protested when the game was called in the first half of the ninth, just as they were taking the field. The crowd in the bleachers, finding the rain disagreeable, began to climb into the stand, and while this unusual condition of things was going on, Captain Clarke asked Gaffney to call the game, which he did, although it was not raining hard.

Boston had a stern chase after the visitors throughout the contest.

Clarence Won't Mix In It.

Kingston, Jam., June 8.—Mail advices from the Mosquito coast say the Indians there have rebelled against the government of Nicaragua, are taking the warpath and are sending a delegation to invite Prince Clarence to head the rising, which, it is added, will probably receive financial support from the foreign residents of the Mosquito coast. Prince Clarence is not at Kingston, but he recently declared he would never break faith with the British government, preferring his retirement here to active life as king of the Mosquito coast.

Court's Definition of "Laborers."

Milwaukee, June 8.—The United States court of appeals has interpreted the alien laws as to apply solely to common laborers, exempting clerks and all kinds of skilled artisans. The entire court concurred in the decision, which holds it was the intent of congress solely to shut out the importation of common laborers under contract to work in mines, in lumbering camps and on railroads. The decision is in the case of George H. Gay of Indianapolis, who brought a clerk from Scotland under contract.

Quarter of a Million Loss.

Augusta, Ga., June 8.—The largest fire in Augusta's history in many years burned over the same district that was swept several years ago. Several buildings that escaped at that time are now smoking ruins. The fire started in the drug store of Davenport & Philzly. A negro was mixing a pot of turpentine. Fire got in the pot and the flames spread so rapidly that in a short while many trunks were burned out. The total loss is in the neighborhood of $250,000.

Because of Fear of Pestilence.

Manila, June 8.—A thousand refugees attempting to come to Manila are being turned back by the authorities, who are fearful of the city being over-populated. A pestilence and famine. Many of the refugees told of being forced to give up their supplies to the insurgent army. They are afraid to return to the enemy's lines on account of the possible attacks.

May Be Yet Solved.

London, June 8.—Arthur J. Balfour, in the course of a speech at a political banquet last evening, said that the failure of the Bloemfontein conference was a source of deep regret to the government. It was England's duty, he said, not to allow her rights to be trampled upon, but he did not believe that the controversies were incapable of solution.

New Orleans, June 8.—From advices received from Bluefields via the steamer Sunniva, which sailed from that port June 1, Nicaragua and Costa Rica are on the brink of war.

BOTH CONFIDENT OF WINNING.

What Fitzsimmons and Jeffries Have to Say of the Contest Tomorrow Night.

New York, June 8.—With the contest for the heavyweight championship only a few hours off, both Fitzsimmons and Jeffries did some light work yesterday, but both have practically stopped training, their respective managers being satisfied with the men's conditions. At the Bath beach quarters Fitzsimmons took things easy during the forenoon, throwing the medicine ball and a short aggressive session with the punching bag. In the afternoon Bob sparred six rounds with Kenney, Everhardt and Hickey. The glove work was more playful than earnest, and it was just sufficient to keep the champion's muscles in thorough suppleness. At the Loch Arbor training quarters near Asbury Park, N. J., Jeffries also had a sort of holiday from laborious work. He arose early and took a long walk along the sandy beach. Jeffries enjoyed his usual mid-day meal and then put in a lot of mild work with the training squad.

Fitzsimmons says: "Today I began to ease up on my work. No amount of training could make me any better than I am now, so all there is to do is to keep as I am. People might think that because I am sure of winning the fight I might not have trained faithfully. They are fooled if they think so. I know my business too well to ever neglect training. I have fought all kinds of men, the best in the business, and done all of them, and never yet had to do all I could do. So Jeffries might be better than anybody I ever met, and yet I'd win. Of course, I know he is a big, strong young fellow, but it's my business to beat big, strong fellows, and he's the next customer, that's all."

This is what Jeffries has to say: "I certainly believe I will beat Fitzsimmons on Friday night. Never for a second since I saw him win the championship at Carson City have I had the least doubt as to the outcome should it ever be my fortune to meet him. He has never shown me that he is the cleverest thing alive. It is true he has the reputation of being possessed of some tricks known to no one else on earth, but I can't say I ever saw him do anything so wonderful. He is shifty, hits hard and knows how to take advantage of opportunities, but there are others. As he is the champion he must be the best heavyweight alive, still I believe I will be the champion on Saturday."

When the attention of the secretary of the navy was called to the very small amount of money thus far contributed for a home for Admiral Dewey, he said that he thought it indicated no lack of appreciation of the admiral, but rather an inclination to await some expression of opinion from him as to whether such a gift would be agreeable to him or not.

called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee but is free from all its injurious properties. Grain-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder, and children, as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about 1-4 as much as coffee. 15 and 25c.

READY FOR THE FRAY.

Battle Between Fitzsimmons and Jeffries Promises to Be a Hot One.

Each Expresses Confidence in Ability to Win.

Brady and Julian Do Not Anticipate Interference
by Minions of the Law.

New York, June 9.—With the possible exception of police interference or an unlooked for accident to either one of the principals, the bout between Fitzsimmons and Jeffries will take place as scheduled in the arena of the Coney Island Sporting Club tonight.
The statements emanating from police headquarters to the effect that Chief of Police Devery intends to stop the bout
in case hard blows are exchanged or a knock down occurs, while taken seriously
by the large number of sporting men, are not treated with any amount of apprehension by those most interested and outsiders who have a keen knowledge of the insight of affairs. The pugilists themselves claim that they are too much engrossed in their preparations for the event to take any stock in the reports of intended interference, and Managers Brady and Julian seem to be confident that the contest will be permitted to take a decision without any untoward incident so far as the legal authorities are concerned.

Fitzsimmons is still a prime favorite
in the betting, but there is plenty of Jeffries money in sight, and while no large wagers have as yet been recorded, there is no doubt that, with growing confidence in the ability of the promoters to pull off the mill successfully, the betting
will assume large proportions.
Everything was practically at a standstill yesterday at the training quarters of both pugilists. Both men did very light work. Jeffries punched the bag for a few minutes, and after a brief bit of practice with the medicine bag slipped
the rope a couple of hundred times.

George Siler of Chicago, who is to referee the contest, was one of the most noted visitors at the cottage by the sea
last night. Siler said his visit was simply social one, but in conversation with Jeffries and Trainer Delany he said that Fitzsimmons had agreed to a clean break means a great deal to Fitzsimmons, and showed that Bob is afraid of Jeffries' driving machinery. Some of the experts of the Loch Arbor cottage claim that Bob will endeavor to make it a long drawn out battle.

It is understood that a conference will take place between Brady, Julian, and two principals and Referee Siler some time this afternoon, at which the rules governing the contest will be discussed.
All of the members of the Jeffries
party, including the big fellow himself,
seem confident of the California's victory, and none of them looks for the battle to last over 10 rounds.

Fitzsimmons took a short walk during the forenoon, but took no further exercise. Late in the afternoon he drove to the Coney Island clubhouse with some friends. As soon as Fitzsimmons reached his dressing room he and Kenney stripped and donned their fighting togs.
They entered the ring and sparred three fast rounds, only exchanging light taps.
The work of both men was closely watched by a number of experts, the most prominent of whom was Kid Mc-Coy, who has posted a $1000 forfeit in the hands of George Siler to bind a match with Fitzsimmons.

The carpenters and other workmen in the building stopped work while the big fellows pummeled each other, and when Martin Julian, who held the watch, called time at the end of the third round the champion was generously applauded. He is in perfect condition and showed a wonderful lot of speed. His footwork was remarkably clever, and on the whole his performance clearly demonstrated that he was never in better shape for a bout
in his entire ring career as he is at present. After the men had retired to their dressing room, McCoy declared that Fitzsimmons was a wonder, but the "kid" would not say positively what his impression was as to the outcome of the mill tonight.

Must Remain Where They Are.
Boston, June 9.—Judge Hardy of the superior court yesterday issued a perpetual injunction against removing the 5000 bodies that are in the old St. John's Catholic cemetery at Clinton to the new one in Lancaster. This finally ends one of the most hotly contested legal battles
this state has known for several years.

New York Wants Conventions.
New York, June 9.—A committee of the board of trade and transportation held a meeting at the board rooms yesterday to discuss plans whereby the two great political conventions can be secured for this city. Nothing concerning the meeting was given out, as it was said the committee's plans are not as yet fully decided upon.

Pennsylvania Miners' Strike.
Dubois, Pa., June 9.—The miners at all the mines in this region, except those at Adrian and Dubois, are out on strike. A meeting of the miners was held here last night, which was about to end in a big row when a terrific rain and wind storm
came up and broke up the meeting.
Fully 10,000 miners are now idle in the region.

NEITHER OF BANKS WILL OPEN.
Hough Had No Consideration For Others When Hard Pushed For Money.

Dover, N. H., June 9.—Several important points have been brought forth in the case of the defalcation of Harry Hough. The first is that the Cochecho
Savings bank, as well as the Cochecho National bank, will never again open its doors for business. The second is that Harry Hough adopted some very harsh methods of raising money when hard pushed, robbing his own customers as well
as widows and orphans, and perhaps ruining estates. The third is that the officials here are well satisfied that Hough has adopted the sea as the best route of escape from his pursuers, and is now trying at some southern port, if he has not already engaged passage at Baltimore, to board a vessel bound for some South American city. The fourth is that Harrison Haley, the cashier of the National bank, was compelled to mortgage his home and property for $5000 to cover
some unsecured notes which he had put in the bank.

Discouraging to Farmers.
Worcester, Mass., June 9.—The Spy
this morning prints a report of the effects of the protracted drought in Worcester county which shows an unprecedented condition of affairs for the months of April, May and June. There is less than a half hay crop in most towns in the county, pastures have been burned dry
and the native strawberry crop has been practically ruined. The loss to Worcester county farmers will be hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Gave Himself Up.
Keene, N. H., Lewis Castor, Jr., who shot and killed his wife at her home about 10 days ago, and who has been in hiding ever since, is now under guard in the county jail. The search for Castor came to an abrupt end last night
when his brother, Joseph Castor, and
Rev. Mr. Wheeler, pastor of St. James Episcopal church, appeared at Sheriff
Tuttle's house with the alleged mur-derer in their charge. Castor was so exhausted that he could not talk, and after being searched, he was taken to the jail and locked up. Neither Joseph Castor nor Mr. Wheeler would say where they found the prisoner, but it is evident that the latter, finding escape from the woods, without detection, impossible, surrendered to his brother.

Proposes Tax on Show Tickets.
Boston, June 9.—Ernest C. Marshall, commissioner of public institutions and acting registrar, has made a report to Mayor Quincy, in which he recommends that box office and gate receipts of places of amusement be taxed for the support of the poor of the city. Mr.
Marshall gives figures as follows: "Boston has invested $5,000,000 in structures for dependent classes, with an annual charge on the city of $1,386,427. Besides this sum, $12,000 is expended for the outdoor poor of the city." He suggests a tax of 10 cents on every ticket sold for $1, or 2 1/2 cents for every one sold for 25 cents, for admission to places of amusement of every nature in the city, to provide a system of old age pensions for the worthy poor.

Cochecho Strike Settled.
Dover, N. H., June 9.—The strike at the Cochecho mills was settled last night
after a hard struggle which began Monday. The contention between Agent Fish and the weavers was over the discharge of three loom fixers about a month ago, and upon the agent's refusal to reinstate them the weavers went out. Yesterday the three loom fixers resigned from the local union, and the members of the union voted 170
to 11 to call the strike off and return to work.

On His Deathbed.
St. Louis, June 9.—A dispatch from Lebanon says: Congressman Bland is dying steadily worse. He is unconscious, and his death may be looked for
at any moment.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.
Sun rises—4:07; sets, 7:20.
Moon sets—9:16 p. m.
High water—12:15 a. m.; 12:45 p. m.
Thunderstorms and rain have occurred in the lower Ohio valley and from

Insurgents Continue to Flee Before Advance of Americans.

Generals Pilar and Luna Are
In Way of Peace.

Good Work of Subsistence Corps in Supplying Our Troops With Food.

Washington, June 9.—The situation in the Philippines is described by General
Otis in the following telegram:

Result movements Morong province
was to drive insurgents into mountains, capturing Antipolo and other towns in that section, with point of land projecting into bay. They retreated and scattered before our advance, leaving 25 dead on field; our loss four killed and few wounded, mostly slight.

City of Morong on only land en route around bay, garrisoned; all other troops withdrawn. Inhabitants of provinces profess friendship, ask protection; large numbers wish to enter Manila; refuse,
as city population increasing too rapidly.
Leading natives throughout island,
including active insurgent leaders, seek permission to send families to Manila;
considered only place of personal security.

The conclusions drawn by the war department officials concerning the condition in the Philippines, given in the dispatch of General Otis, are that the insurgents are little more than marauding bands, which will continually decrease when the men find there is life
and liberty under American government. These bands are regarded as something like the bands of Indians 25 and 30 years ago, and the people who are coming into the American lines asking for protection are considered like those who sought protection in the forts
during the early stages of American development in the west. Nothing is yet said as to the intention of General Otis
to continue active hostilities, but this is a matter that will be left wholly in the hands of General Otis, and he will no doubt fight or rest as the circumstances determine.

Officials here are in doubt as to whether Aguinaldo, in declaring his dictatorship, is animated by a desire to rid himself of his refractory generals, Pilar and Luna, own whether he aims to consolidate in his own hands the power to make terms of peace.
It is known from the recent reports of President Schurman of the American Philippine commission that these two generals owe only faint allegiance to Aguinaldo, and the attitude towards the peace negotiations has made these negotiations ineffectual, the civilian members on the Filipino side of the joint commission being completely overawed
and intimidated by the military element controlled by these generals. It is believed here that if Aguinaldo can bend
these men to his will and assume supreme control, he will at once make for peace, being able to secure better terms
for himself than he would otherwise.

Among the reports which accompanied the report of General Otis regarding operations about Manila, are those relating to the subsistence of the army.
It appears from these reports that the subsistence corps was prompt in every way
in supplying the troops with food. Under date of March 20, Major Robert H.
Fitzhugh, chief commissary of the second division, says: "On the evening of Feb. 5, after having been in the field for an advance all along the division line,
the troops were given their supper
promptly at the regular hour, and during all of the subsequent movements
while the troops have been constantly confronting the enemy, either in the trenches, the continuous supply of rations has been maintained without a break, and at all times a reserve
of at least two days of travel ration has been kept on hand."

There is also a report from Captain M.
G. Krayenbuhl, in charge of the commissary subsistence sales depot at Manila, who reported that the rations are perfectly satisfactory.
A report from Captain S. B. Booles, commissary of the First Brigade, Second division, dated at Caloocan, March 18, says: "Since Feb. 4, 1899, the troops comprising the brigade have been rationed with the greatest dispatch, and at no time has any organization been forced to wait for, much less miss a meal. On the occasion of every advance, the rations were not only delivered to the men on the firing line, but their meals were prepared and ready for them at meal hours. I have established at this point a sales depot,
where all the luxuries kept by the department may be purchased by officers and men."

Bought at a Bargain.
San Francisco, June 9.—The Bunker
Hill and Mayflower mines were sold here
at auction yesterday, the former being $30,500. The mines were part of the assets of a Philadelphia national bank. The bank had advanced $300,000 on the property, and on the failure of the bank, several years ago, certain capitalists offered the bank $200,000 for the property, but the offer was declined.
The receiver ordered the mines sold, and yesterday C. R. Downs of this state and Mr. Cheney of Philadelphia became the owners.

Alleged Injuries by X-Ray.
Burlington, Vt., June 9.—Professor Allison W. Sloumb of the University of Vermont was sued yesterday by E. E.
Miller of Newport, a student at the university, for $10,000 alleged damages.
The plaintiff bases his action on injuries said to have been sustained by him at the hands of Professor Sloumb in the winter of 1897, when the latter endeavored to take an X-ray photograph of a broken limb.

Good Afternoon.

West Quincy is displeased because the widening of Copeland street has again been put off, but it will get some benefit in a business way if Hancock street and Quarry street are paved.

Newcomb square is large enough for a band concert, and people will not be told to "keep off the grass." Quincy Neck is taking a new lease of life, and it is fitting that the anniversary of the date upon which the start took place,
should be annually celebrated.

Ward One people should remonstrate
by petition against the erection of a small wooden school building, while Wards Three, Four and Five, have been favored with brick. In fact all the school buildings erected by the city have been of brick, and we should not go back to the days of the town.

To forbid spitting in railway cars
and public halls and buildings is a good thing from a sanitary point, but when a man cannot exorcise indoors
he should have the privilege of clearing his throat out doors. It is getting it down pretty fine when a man cannot spit upon a sidewalk, but the gutter
should be selected when possible.

Milton, the wealthy town which was not willing to assist the Metropolitan district in getting an adequate supply of water, claiming it had an abundant supply, now finds itself very short and has been obliged to stop watering its streets except where river water can be used. The town should be soaked now when it applies for water.

That $4,000 received from the sale of the Third hill playground should, not be allowed to lie idle in the city treasury. Councilman Hill's suggestion to expend a portion of it for the improvement of our present playgrounds
is a good one, or it might be expended for a small park in Ward One as near City Square as possible. If any ward needs a playground it is Ward One,
the business centre and most thickly settled part of the city. Wollaston has Merrymount park and is satisfied with it for their playground, except those who play golf and they have spacious grounds of their own.

Drift of Opinion.

Greenfield bicyclists are ready to make oath that life is sweet. The town is constructing a 5-mile bicycle path,
to be paid for from the money raised by the bicycle tax.—Milford Journal.

Druggists have had a brisk demand for camphor and brimstone, recently, and when the young man's pockets contain the one and his best girl is carrying the other, it takes lots of violet and crab apple blossoms to give fragrance to the parlor after a Sunday evening session.—Lynn Item.

Our sympathies go out to Col.
Parker in the loss of his esteemed and talented wife. His foes, we hear, are again active and seeking his overthrow. But we can hardly conceive how a man who had done so much to teach liberalizing and elevating the teaching of the country can be thrown down from his deservedly high estate.
—Popular Educator.

The Boston police commissioners, after letting the screen law be broken by hotels and saloons for years,
are suddenly enforcing it with the greatest vigor. Wonder if police leaders who do these funny things
in a while realize how thoroughly amusing they are to the people who sit back and watch these occasional little flurries and then see the old conditions
gradually but surely resumed?—Brockton Enterprise.

Possibly a press censorship is needed in Santiago. But before Cuba has a satisfactory government that sort of thing will have to be outgrown or given up. According to the standard of the day it is not a model condition of affairs in which any individual has the power of deciding what other men shall or shall not say. Most of us are inclined to think that on the whole the censorship of the press is a rather dangerous expedient in a country which makes the slightest pretense at being free.—New Bedford Standard.

Newspapers, when considered from an advertising standpoint, have everything in their favor. They reach both the masses and the classes and they reach them with a frequency that commends itself as a shining virtue to the man who has something to sell.
Moreover, a favorite newspaper can be not supplanted in the hearts of its constituents by any other sort of publication, which insures it a permanency of circulation that can not be duplicated.
—Profitable Advertising.

The policy of the Spanish government, or rather of the queen regent, on whom the statesmen of Spain have thrown the responsibility in no chivalrous spirit, is wise. The last remnant of a vast colonial empire is given up because it cannot be held with any hope of advantage, and the surrender leaves Spain in far better shape to concentrate all the energies
of her people upon home interests.
Pathetic as is this last incident in the melancholy experience of failure it clears the way for something simpler
and less imposing, but far more promising.—New York Times.

The difficulty thus far, in our civil service system, is its failure to devise any method of judging the manliness, character, integrity, and general ability of the candidates. It is impossible so to digest the testimonials which he brings us to show that he stands at one hundred for honor, truth, gentleness, purity, and success. Yet the servants whom the country needs should be unstained in each of these characteristics. And it is poor consolation, when a clerk runs away with the money entrusted to him,
to know that he would be certainly right in the spelling of the checks to which he had forged a signature.—
Edward Everett Hale in the Christian Register.

We are so thin-skinned that we appropriate or misappropriate too much. Sometimes I think we reach out and hug these things to us,
when we have to stretch the imagination a little to reach them. We ought to go into court and practice law. I think still more, we ought to begin to find out that all criticisms are not fatal. It is as true as when the earth was made that he who goes on doing his duty as he sees it, faithfully accomplishing his tasks from day to day, not allowing himself to be tormented by idle or foolish rumors,
will get all that can be had out of this little life of ours.—Aaron Gove.

The June Pathfinder comes to us with a gilded title cover, indicating that it is "Fifty years old this month." To have guided travelers on their way for half a century is an honor to be proud of, and at the end of that period to still be able to perform the task is a reasonable cause for self gratulation. Like Cleopatra,
"Age cannot wither her, nor custom stale her infinite variety," and may the Pathfinder go on for many more half-centuries, guiding the generations of the future as she has led those of the past.

HEARTY WELCOME

Given Corp. McGowan of West Quincy.

Reception and Banquet
with Speeches.

Followed by Dancing Until 2
This Morning.

West Quincy bubbled over with patriotism Thursday night at the reception and banquet, at St. Mary's hall, to Corp. John A. McGowan, of Co. I, 19th Infantry, who has recently returned home from a year's service in the United States Volunteers, tendered by St. Mary's C. T. A., of which association he is a member. St. Marys hall never looked more attractive than upon this occasion, both the upper and lower halls being decorated with a profusion of flags and bunting, which was feetstomped about the walls and ceiling.
A number of handsome potted plants
also added to the effectiveness.

The reception was held in the upper hall at the head of which stood Corp.
McGowan with Mr. William H.
Teasdale, Mr. William T. Shea and Mr.
James A. White who composed the reception committee. The reception was entirely informal and lasted nearly an hour, during which time the corporal was presented and shook hands with all present. This over, a line was formed, and headed by Chairman Teasdale and Corporal McGowan,
the reception committee, the invited guests, Rev. J. P. Cuffe, Rev. A. F.
Roche, Mr. Christopher A. Fay and Mr. Edward Mulready and the members of the association with their ladies, a march was taken to the lower hall where plates had been laid for 200. A. E. Nash catered for the banquet and the menu was a pleasing one.

At the conclusion of the feast
Chairman Teasdale rapped for order, and in a few words spoke of the association and of the guests of the evening, as well as of Private John
A. Boyd, deceased.

Rev. J. P. Cuffe and Rev. A. F.
Roche followed and spoke of the patriotism to the flag, and of the duty
young men owed to the country.
Corporal McGowan followed and spoke interestingly of his experiences and life in the army from the beginning to the end. His descriptions of the places he had visited and of the life of a volunteer were very vivid, and were listened to with marked attention. He closed by saying that after all there was no place like home.

Mr. Christopher A. Fay of Boston and Mr. Edward Mulready of Rockland spoke of the temperance work of the association.
The last speaker was Miss Mary Fal-vey, recently elected vice-president of this diocese, who spoke for the ladies.
The banquet closed by all rising and uniting in singing America.

Rev. Fr. Scully, president of the Massachusetts C. T. A., was expected, but he sent a telegram saying that he was unable to be present on account of illness.
An adjournment was then made to the upper hall where dancing was enjoyed until 2 o'clock in the morning.
During a brief lull in the dancing
Miss Mary A. White sang "Home
Sweet Home" and the "Star Spangled Banner" with Miss Nellie Hart as accompanist. There was also a fine violin solo by George E. Moore of New York.

Q. Y. C. Smoker.

Capt. Joshua Slocum addressed an audience which completely packed the Quincy Yacht club's house on Thursday evening. The meeting was the club's first smoker of the season. Previous to the talk the captain was informally introduced to many of the members. Commodore Rice presided and introduced the captain. He sketched in a highly interesting manner his voyage of 46,000 miles around the world, single handed, in the little 40-foot sloop Spray. He sailed from Boston on April 24, 1895, and was absent in various parts of the world for over three years.

MR. WASON DEAD.

The Shock of Accident Was Too Much.

Mr. T. Henry Wason, who was seriously injured on the railroad at the Quincy depot Wednesday evening
passed away the first of the afternoon.
This morning the report was favorable, but it was realized that the case would continue critical at least until tomorrow.
Mrs. Wason and her son Henry arrived from Hanover, N. H., Thursday evening. She was almost prostrated with grief over the accident. It was not until evening that she was informed that his arm had been amputated.

GIFTED MAN DEAD.

Son of Gridley Bryant, the Noted
Quincy Inventor.

Mr. Gridley James Fox Bryant, the accomplished son of the noted Quincy mechanic and inventor, died Thursday morning at the Home for Aged Men on West Springfield street, at the age of 83 years.

The Herald says Mr. Bryant was a well known architect, having designed and supervised the building of the post office, Home for Aged Men, City Hall, Charles street jail, state prison, the first State House extension and various public buildings throughout the country.

He was born in Boston in 1816, a year that was the coldest on record, in which there was frost every month of the year. Although he was born the night of Aug. 29, it goes down in history as unprecedented cold for the season, which may account for the fact which Mr. Bryant always averred that he never was thoroughly warm in his life.

His father, Gridley Bryant, was also one of the most remarkable men of his generation. He was an ardent mechanic and inventor, and was for years president of the Granite Railway Company.
He built the first railroad in America in 1831, a four-mile track from the Quincy quarries to the Neponset river.
It was made to transport stone for the Bunker Hill monument, the granite being conveyed by boat from the Neponset wharf across the harbor.

The elder Bryant was also the inventor of the two-wheel and four-wheel
truck which has been used on cars since. He also invented and built the first turntable in this country. On the first trucks built after the manner of the railroad trucks he hauled the columns from the Quincy quarries for the old court house on Court street in Boston. This hauling was done with 65 yoke of oxen. He built in 1824 the original Merchants' Bank building.

Young Gridley Bryant was educated in the public schools nominally, but actually in the library of his father, and the office of Alexander Harris, a notable government engineer and architect. When young Bryant reached his majority he opened an office for the architect's profession at Court and Washington streets, on the site of the present Sears building.

Mr. Bryant was married about 1840 to Miss Louisa Bryant Braid, who died in 1883. They had no children.

He lived a temperate, quiet life,
never having used tobacco, and rarely an alcoholic stimulant. He possessed cultured tastes, a strong individuality
and was an enthusiast in his business.
He wore a sweeping mustache and was surprisingly active and alert. He was short and stout and had a Napoleonic carriage and form. He had lived a long and useful life, and was accounted a wealthy man.

The man who was complaining of the cold last winter, and was so earnest in his wish for the return of warm weather, finds it hard to keep silent at the present time in the presence of those who can recall his earlier plaint. It is a relief to him to have intervals alone, when he can give utterance to the thoughts that clamor for expression.—Brockton

The shots by which Lexington

The Rev. Carleton P. Mills, rector of St. Chrysostom's parish, conducted the simple funeral services over the remains of Mr. Alfred Luard, which were held from his late home on Brook street, Wollaston, on Wednesday.
There was a wealth of floral offerings.
The burial will be at London, Ontario,
his former home.

It has been decided to make Thursday afternoon of the "Festival of Holidays" especially attractive to the children. Little Mabel Patten, a pupil of Mrs. Lilla Viles Wyman of Boston, will dance for their amusement at 4.15.
This dainty little fairy danced in the Boston Music hall May day to the great delight of young and old.

was therefore discharged.

Tuesday.

The continued case of Frank Robinson for larceny of a watch was called, and he was fined $15.

ABOUT RETAILING SHIRTS.

SOME good, but misguided women, who own good husbands, try to lessen
the worries of those same husbands by doing some of the personal purchasing. In a great many instances it is a great help, for it is due to the good taste displayed by wives that many husbands are becomingly clothed.
But once in a while the insatiable bargain fever strikes deep into the souls of some of these same wives. They run over the Sunday newspapers and cut out some of the whole page "ads" and the following week they rush in town to buy some alleged bargains in shirts at less than the cost of the Button Holes.
These shirts are retailed for from 9c to 25c, and sometimes they have to be retailed again in order that a man may wear them as long as he wants to.

It does make a woman wish she could use a few of those emphatic words that her husband uses to express his feelings when she has to sit down and sew four or five inches of cloth around the bottom of one of those shirts. Not so much for ornament as for use. Our shirts are cut full and long and wide, and after we retail 'em you won't have to retail 'em again.

Our 50c shirts are made with attached and detached collar and cuffs, and some of them have two collars and two cuffs.

Then we have the Cheviots and Madras and Silk Fronts from 75c to $1.00.

Our Shirts are Honest Shirts.

OUR OCCUPATIONS.

How the People of Quincy Are Classified by the Census of 1895.

The Census bureau of Massachusetts has regarded it of value to classify the people of each city and town of the state as to occupation, and Part I Volume IV of the census of 1895 just issued has these figures of interest
relative to the city of Quincy.

The first column gives the percentages for the State in each of the classified occupations. The next column shows the number of males in Quincy
in the occupation, and the total number of males heading the column it is easy to obtain the percentage for comparison. And so with the females in column No. 3. The native born males and females are classified in the next columns, and in the last two the foreign born of the city.

Chief Wadlin says:

"The population, as regards Occupation, resolves itself into six classes:
first, the children who are too young
to be in school and who are 'at home'; second, these children of young persons, (or even adults) who may be at school;—which act of getting an education is considered an 'occupation'; for census purposes; third, the great productive class engaged in the various occupations; fourth, these young persons and adults, not under or beyond the working age, who, for some reason, have no occupation; fifth, those adults who have retired from business,
which means for their own support,
after a life of activity; sixth, those who have worked all their lives
but are now unable to support themselves, and being non-productive are dependent to a more or less degree
upon their children or relatives."

The following special instructions are given in regard to the manner of enumeration of housekeepers, house wives, those engaged in housework and domestic servants.

Use the term "housewives" only for females who are heads of families, or wives, or women keeping house by themselves, who have no gainful occupation, and who receive no stated

salary or wage for their services.

Use the term of "housekeepers" only for those persons engaged in domestic service who receive wages or salary for work performed.

Under persons engaged in housework include daughters, sisters, or other relatives or friends who assist in the domestic work of the family without a stated salary or wage for their services, and who have no remunerative employment.

As regards domestic servants, where
a family employs but one servant
whose duties are of a general nature, say,—General servant. Where possible give name indicating particular service
and place where service is performed,
as—Cook—Family; Chambermaid—
Hotel; table Girl—Family; etc.

The government occupation includes:
persons engaged in the service of the national, state, city or town governments, and persons in the service of the United States army and navy.

Professional—Persons connected with religion, law, medicine, literature,
art, music, amusements, education,
and science.

Domestic Service—Persons engaged in hotel, boarding and lodging service,
housewives, persons engaged in housework (without remuneration), housekeepers and domestic servants.

otherwise classified who render personal service, as barbers, bootblacks,
carpet cleaners, clerks and copyists
(for professional, people etc.) companions, janitors, matrons, nurses,
stewards, typists, waiters, valets, washer-
women, waiters, watchmen, etc.

Trade—Merchants and dealers, salesmen and saleswomen, accountants,

John Adams' Looking Glass.

John Adams, first Vice-President of the United States, bought, while holding that office, a looking glass for $40,
for his own use, and it was a question
with the Senate for some time whether Adams would not be required to meet
the expense out of his private purse, says a Washington correspondent in the New York Times. But the Senate paid the bill, and only recently it bought for another Vice-President an inkstand for $1,000 and made no bones for it. Adams' looking glass was bought in Philadelphia, and when the capital was transferred to this city
it was brought here. It is now kept in the room of the Senate committee on the District of Columbia, having escaped ruin when the British burned
the Capitol, in 1814, and in its old-fashioned large gilt frame it is regarded with great interest. After its arrival here it was kept in the Vice-President's room. Ideas of modern decorators prevailed to drive it into the closet of the Vice President, where it could not offend the fastidious, but increasing shabbiness and neglect led to its banishment from the society of later Vice-Presidents, and it was sent to the obscurity of a storeroom in the basement. With this history to guide him, and with the help of Senate employees, Charles Moore, clerk of the committee on District of Columbia,
who has a nice historical taste, rescued
it from degradation and had it restored to its pristine elegance. Then scorning the errors of the men who had condemned this historic bit of furniture, he hung it conspicuously in the committee room, which is regarded as one of the most elegantly furnished apartments in the Capitol. The district committee can show no title to it,
but its right to hold on to John Adams' looking glass will not be questioned except by some reverend Vice-President who insists that it shall be restored to the place in which it really belongs. Senator McMillan whom Secretary Alger would like to succeed, is chairman of the District of Columbia committee

The hot dry weather this month has lowered the reservoir, that supplies
Milton with water, twelve feet, and it has been necessary to take off the

have been very dusty at East Milton.
At Milton centre the carts have been filled from the river by the pumps at

The final game between the Union

Much interest was centered in the good game resulted which was won by the Union club of East Milton, the score being 10 to 8.

THE BULLFROGS.

If you live out in the suburbs,
You will always know when spring
Has assumed control of weather
By the wail of the bullfrog sing.
There is something weirdly mournful
In the music from the bog.
The low drumming and shrill whistling
Of the versatile young frog.

If the nightingale's wail spirit
Haunts the bullfrog, as they say,
There's no wonder that the froggie
Pipes a sorrow laden lay.
But to one that's been sick,
Or is feeling rather glum,
He will wish the whole swamp chorus
Had at once been stricken dumb!

There are frogs that are quite harmless,
Such as railroad frogs and those Whose hind legs we see before us,
Fried and crispy, minus toes,
But you often hear, or think so,
And it makes your cold blood creep,
When the legs are served, still twitching.
A most lamentable "peep!"

When you're coming from the clubroom
Or the dance quite late at night,
Those amphibious young croakers
In a jolly take delight.
And along the lonely stretches,
Ere you reach the well known gate,
They will make you see gaunt specters—
Or will try at any rate.

There's the cricket's chirp of autumn
And the loquacious monologue,
There's the "whooping" of the owl
In the forest's solitude,
There's the hum of the mosquito
And the whistle of the quail,
But suburbanites hear ofttest
The green bullfrog's wail.

FUNSTON'S SUCCESSOR.

Man to Whom the Fighting Brigadier Turned Over His Regiment.

Although he succeeds a little man, it is a big vacancy which Wilder S. Metcalf, who has been appointed colonel of the Twentieth Kansas in place of "Fighting Fred" Funston, has been asked to fill. The little five foot Kansas fighter has been made a brigadier general, and Colonel Metcalf is now at the head of the famous regiment which has won so much honor during the Philippine campaign.

Colonel Metcalf has long served as a member of the Kansas national guard.
When he settled in Lawrence in 1887,
he at once identified himself with the militia. He rose from his post of lieut-

COLONEL WILDER S. METCALF.

tenant in the Lawrence campaign to that of colonel of the First regiment, which he was filling when given his commission as major of the Twentieth volunteers.

Colonel Metcalf has a wide reputation among regular army men as one of the most expert tacticians outside the United States army. He has given close and constant attention to military matters and has done this, too, in spite of the pressure of a large private business
in the real estate line.

Colonel Metcalf was born at Milo,
Me., and was educated in Oberlin college, Ohio, from which he was graduated in 1878. While living in Ohio he entered the national guard and rose to the rank of captain. He is a graduate of the law school of the University of Kansas and is a fine type of the American citizen.

MAUDE ADAMS' MOTHER.

She Was Herself an Actress and Is Still a Young Looking Woman.

Mrs. Annie Adams, mother of Maude Adams, the actress who has made such a success of her first appearance in a Shakespearean role and has been given couplets of lavish praise by the New York critics for her new interpretation of Juliet, was an actress herself and retired not so very long ago. She still looks like a young woman and only left
the stage that she might devote herself to the interests of her daughter, who has a very bright career ahead of her.

Mrs. Adams has a very comfortable home at Ronkonkoma, N. Y., which is an out of the way little village on Long Island. On the evening of Maude Adams' recent Shakespearean debut Mrs. Adams had planned to remain away from the theater, but she could not stay away at such a crisis.

She tells this story of Miss Adams'
first experience in a theater:

"Maude made her first appearance on the stage at the age of 1. I was then

MRS. ANNIE ADAMS.

playing in a theater in Salt Lake City.
Following the piece in which I appeared was a farce called 'The Lost Child.' In the first scene of this farce a 6-weeks-old infant made his appearance. In the next scene the child was to be brought in on a big platter.

"Between the first and second scenes
the regular baby was taken ill. The manager was desperate. He tore all over the stage trying in vain to think of a scheme by which he could do away with the second appearance. Just then my maid appeared at the theater with Maude, then a baby about a year old.

"Take Maude," I said.

"The manager snatched little Maude
from the nurse's arms, and a minute
later she had made her first appearance
on the stage—on the platter."

"There was a perfect howl from the audience, who appreciated the fact that the infant heroine of the play had grown about a year within the space of about 15 minutes. And so Maude's first appearance was really a great laughing success."

ENGLAND IS INCENSED.

Bitterly Disappointed at Kruger's Denial of Public Opinion.

Chamberlain States Situation to the Commons.

Moral Check Imposed by Peace Conference Hold War Dogs in Check.

London, June 9.—The Transvaal trouble has reached a crisis. The differences between England and President Kruger have reached such a dangerously acute stage that many would not be surprised if war were to result. The failure of the conference at Bloemfontein between President Kruger and Sir Alfred Milner is the most annoying incident that England has experienced for years.

The idea has prevailed to a large extent that Kruger would not dare to defy British public opinion any longer, and that he would be ready to grant the concessions to the outlanders which Mr. Chamberlain has been asking for. This hope has been so rudely shattered that the disappointment which followed it is something extremely bitter.

Good judges say that only for one obstacle war would inevitably be declared at once against the Transvaal. That one obstacle is the peace conference, for naturally the British ministers feel a little ashamed of forcing a quarrel on Kruger at the very moment when British representatives are so busy formulating plans of peace and mediation at the peace conference.

But notwithstanding all this public opinion is so incensed against Kruger that the ministers may be compelled to go to extreme measures.

Mr. Chamberlain, in his speech in the house of commons yesterday, announced that his reply to the petition of the outlanders, which had been held back pending the result of the conference at Bloemfontein, would now be presented to the Transvaal.

This reply is semi-officially described as explicit, but "conciliatory," but it is believed to be the nature of a practical ultimatum. The resources of diplomacy are regarded as exhausted with the failure of the conference. Nothing is left, Mr. Chamberlain replying to various questions on the subject, confirmed the reports of the failure of the Bloemfontein conference and also admitted the accuracy of the statements made in the dispatch from Maties Fontein, explaining that the British high commissioner informed President Kruger that Great Britain would not consent to the intervention of a foreign power in Anglo-Transvaal disputes.

With reference to the Jameson raid, Mr. Chamberlain added, "the commissioner informed the president that the British Chartered South Africa company, while protesting against the unreasonable amount of the claim, would consent to submit to arbitration the question of the amount of damages to be paid."

The London papers are full of threats and hints about abuse of Kruger. They advise "bringing Kruger to his senses" "asserting the sovereign rights of the British empire," insisting on our lawful authority being recognized, and other such measures, under penalty of visiting the most severe penalties on President Kruger.

The Daily Mail says it learns that it was President Kruger himself who suggested the conference, and it claims to have reliable authority for declaring that Sir Alfred Milner, the British high commissioner, has his back to the wall, and is supported to the utmost by the cabinet. Commenting on the agreement stipulating equal rights for all white inhabitants, says: "We now demand that all Englishmen resident in the Transvaal shall be treated with justice, and President Kruger may rest assured that the whole country will support the government in any measures required to make this demand effective."

The Times says: Let Mr. Kruger grant the outlanders full citizenship, and the whole question is ended. At present he only offers a note of hand for a ridiculous sum, payable many years hence. In return for our immediate abandonment of all the legal rights we now possess for enforcing the payment of debts long overdue.

The Daily News says: The responsibility resting on the British government is very grave. It is necessary to obtain a settlement, not the hopes of obtaining it by a friendly conference at the present has disappeared.

The Morning Post says: There is no way of securing the Transvaal's acceptance of the British terms except by the employment of the method that is always used to bridge over an absolute difference of opinion between two governments on a point which either considers vital.

Investigation Asked For.
Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 9.—Commissioner of Pensions Evans was the subject for much criticism at the session of the state senate at the session of the Pennsylvania G. A. R. yesterday. Resolutions severely criticizing the commissioner for his recent action in the matter of pensions were offered, but at the suggestion of the conservative element they were withdrawn and a resolution was substituted referring the matter to the national encampment with the request that an investigation be made.

CONTEST OF TWELVE INNINGS.

Champions Finally Took the Game From the Louisville Aggregation.

Boston, June 9.—It took the Boston champions 12 innings to beat the Louisville aggregation, and even then the margin was close, the score being 7 to 5. Boston tallied twice in the first half of the final round, while the visitors were shut out by Wagner at third.

The score was tied twice, the Colonels giving a splendid exhibition of up-hill hustling, as did the home team. It was the first extra inning game of the local season, but the plays came so rapidly that shortly after 6 the entire 12 innings had been played. The game was a fitting climax to the champions' long run of success on the eve of going away for a brief trip.

Boston, June 9.—The Transvaal trouble has reached a crisis. The differences between England and President Kruger have reached such a dangerously acute stage that many would not be surprised if war were to result. The failure of the conference at Bloemfontein between President Kruger and Sir Alfred Milner is the most annoying incident that England has experienced for years.

The idea has prevailed to a large extent that Kruger would not dare to defy British public opinion any longer, and that he would be ready to grant the concessions to the outlanders which Mr. Chamberlain has been asking for. This hope has been so rudely shattered that the disappointment which followed it is something extremely bitter.

Good judges say that only for one obstacle war would inevitably be declared at once against the Transvaal. That one obstacle is the peace conference, for naturally the British ministers feel a little ashamed of forcing a quarrel on Kruger at the very moment when British representatives are so busy formulating plans of peace and mediation at the peace conference.

But notwithstanding all this public opinion is so incensed against Kruger that the ministers may be compelled to go to extreme measures.

Mr. Chamberlain, in his speech in the house of commons yesterday, announced that his reply to the petition of the outlanders, which had been held back pending the result of the conference at Bloemfontein, would now be presented to the Transvaal.

This reply is semi-officially described as explicit, but "conciliatory," but it is believed to be the nature of a practical ultimatum. The resources of diplomacy are regarded as exhausted with the failure of the conference. Nothing is left, Mr. Chamberlain replying to various questions on the subject, confirmed the reports of the failure of the Bloemfontein conference and also admitted the accuracy of the statements made in the dispatch from Maties Fontein, explaining that the British high commissioner informed President Kruger that Great Britain would not consent to the intervention of a foreign power in Anglo-Transvaal disputes.

With reference to the Jameson raid, Mr. Chamberlain added, "the commissioner informed the president that the British Chartered South Africa company, while protesting against the unreasonable amount of the claim, would consent to submit to arbitration the question of the amount of damages to be paid."

The London papers are full of threats and hints about abuse of Kruger. They advise "bringing Kruger to his senses" "asserting the sovereign rights of the British empire," insisting on our lawful authority being recognized, and other such measures, under penalty of visiting the most severe penalties on President Kruger.

The Daily Mail says it learns that it was President Kruger himself who suggested the conference, and it claims to have reliable authority for declaring that Sir Alfred Milner, the British high commissioner, has his back to the wall, and is supported to the utmost by the cabinet. Commenting on the agreement stipulating equal rights for all white inhabitants, says: "We now demand that all Englishmen resident in the Transvaal shall be treated with justice, and President Kruger may rest assured that the whole country will support the government in any measures required to make this demand effective."

The Times says: Let Mr. Kruger grant the outlanders full citizenship, and the whole question is ended. At present he only offers a note of hand for a ridiculous sum, payable many years hence. In return for our immediate abandonment of all the legal rights we now possess for enforcing the payment of debts long overdue.

The Daily News says: The responsibility resting on the British government is very grave. It is necessary to obtain a settlement, not the hopes of obtaining it by a friendly conference at the present has disappeared.

The Morning Post says: There is no way of securing the Transvaal's acceptance of the British terms except by the employment of the method that is always used to bridge over an absolute difference of opinion between two governments on a point which either considers vital.

Investigation Asked For.
Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 9.—Commissioner of Pensions Evans was the subject for much criticism at the session of the state senate at the session of the Pennsylvania G. A. R. yesterday. Resolutions severely criticizing the commissioner for his recent action in the matter of pensions were offered, but at the suggestion of the conservative element they were withdrawn and a resolution was substituted referring the matter to the national encampment with the request that an investigation be made.

Abolition of Pensions.
Middleboro, Ky., June 9.—Abe Lee, a member of the Lee faction of the Lee Taylor feud, which raged in Harlan county 10 years ago, was killed last night from ambush.

A TEMPORARY DELIMITATION.

Alaskan Boundary Problem Has Reached a Point of Settlement at Last.

London, June 9.—The Marquis of Salisbury and the United States ambassador have reached an agreement regarding Dalton's trail, on the Chilcot pass, which has been such an obstacle to the settlement of a modus vivendi.

Assuming that the agreement is on the exact lines of the instructions, the points will fix the provisional boundary line between Alaska and Canada at three points near the head of the Lynn canal. These will be sufficient, it is expected, to prevent any further conflicts. These points are as follows:

On the White pass, at the old Canadian custom house in the pass; on the Chilcot pass, likewise at the Canadian custom house, which has existed for the past 18 months; on the Dalton trail, just above the Indian village of Kluckwan.

The first two points were easily fixed. The hitch of moment has been over the location of divisional points on the Dalton trail. The point named is at the head of canoe navigation and 15 miles above tide water, which the Canadians sought so strenuously to reach. The modus provides only for a temporary delimitation, but there is good reason to believe that the lines it will establish in the end will be accepted by both parties as the best possible solution of the vexed boundary issue.

Held In $10,000 Bonds.

New York, June 9.—George and Adeline Barrow, who are accused of kidnapping Marion Clark, were brought to New York yesterday and were taken to police headquarters. Bella Anderson, or Carrie Jones, was also taken to police headquarters soon after the arrival of the Barrows. The Barrows and Carrie Jones were arrested before Judge Furman. Justice Furman ordered a plea of not guilty to be entered in each case, with leave to withdraw and demur. Justice Furman fixed the bail in each case at $10,000. Former Assistant District Attorney Davis was assigned as counsel for Carrie Jones. The prisoners were taken to the Tombs.

Defender's Short Cruise.

Newport, R. I., June 9.—The Defender went out for a short cruise yesterday morning, passing by Block island under a whole sail southwest wind. She went as far as Prudence under easy working canvas. She returned late in the afternoon under mainsail and head sail, and anchored back of the torpedo station for the night.

GRAIN-O BRINGS RELIEF

to the coffee drinker. Coffee drinking is a habit that is universally indulged in and almost as universally injurious. Have you tried Grain-O? It is almost like coffee but the effects are just the opposite. Coffee upsets the stomach, ruins the digestion, affects the heart and disturbs the whole nervous system. Grain-O tones up the stomach, aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. There is nothing but nourishment in Grain-O. It can't be otherwise. 15 and 25c. per package.

The play was in four acts called "A Memorial Year," and was written by Miss Sarah Jordan for an exercise, in order to teach the pupils inflection and greater naturalness of tone. It was so successful as a school exercise that, at the request of some of the friends of the pupils, it was decided to repeat it before an invited audience. The little hall in the school building was crowded to overflowing. When it is remembered that all of them are deaf,

IS DECLARED INSANE.

Verdict of Not Guilty Will Be Rendered in the Palmer Case.

Millionaire Will Be Ordered to an Asylum.

An Unexpected Ending of Trial at Providence For Wife Murder.

Providence, June 10.—The Palmer murder case is apparently at an end, and Amos D. Palmer will probably be remanded to an insane asylum. The end of the trial was in the nature of a surprise. After a long conference yesterday, the agreement was reached that Palmer was insane. This means, it is understood, that the jury will be instructed to return a verdict against Palmer of "not guilty, by reason of insanity."

William H. Gale was the first witness yesterday. He knew defendant in the latter's early life, and said he was kept at home and had a nurse during his early years. He was constantly under the care of either nurse, mother or some other person until he was about 12 years old. Palmer, as a young boy, was weak and puny, and the witness saw Dr. Wilcox's carriage at Palmer's house two or three times a week, so often, in fact, that it was noticeable until Palmer was about 12 or 13 years old. When young Palmer went out on the street he seemed to be under greater care than a boy of his age usually was. He was not allowed to run, and his attendant kept closer to him than it was customary for a person to keep to a boy. Palmer's laugh was described by this witness, who said that all his life he had a foolish laugh.

Frank Payton knew the defendant from his childhood, and saw him frequently. Palmer was not as talkative as children generally are, and the witness was of the opinion that Palmer's mental condition has always been weak.

George L. Vose testified that he had seen Palmer frequently when he was a boy and since. Palmer seemed a simple-minded boy and was always in the core of his mother. Of late years witness had had many conversations with Palmer and noticed he was peculiar. This peculiarity consisted in his failure to keep up a connected conversation.

J. B. Roberts, a barber, said he worked as a hair dresser for the defendant for 14 years once a week or every 10 days. About two months after witness had been going to defendant's house defendant complained of feeling ill, and soon his eyes began sticking out and his face grew purple. This occurred while witness was cutting defendant's hair, and the mother of defendant was called and she requested the witness to go away. On a number of other occasions while witness was cutting Palmer's hair, he would drop his jaw and stare, then struggle and cry: "Oh, oh!" and grow rigid.

There was an unexpected happening when the court recessed after recess in the afternoon. Judge Wilbur announced to the jury that they would be permitted to walk about the city in charge of court officers and should report today.

Weavers Want Increase.

Lawrence, Mass., June 10.—The weaving department of Stevens' mills, in North Andover, is shut down, owing to a difference of opinion regarding the wage schedule between the owners and operatives. It is stated that the weavers employed in fancy fabrics asked for more pay. The price per cut was accordingly advanced to $3.40, but the employees requested 10 cents additional. The request being refused the operatives declined to continue work and the room was closed. The suspension of operations in the weaving department caused the closing of the dressing room. All other portions of the concern are running as usual.

A Mysterious Case.

Boston, June 10.—Mrs. Ada Mazzeo was found dead in her home last evening, and the cause of her death is puzzling the police. Persons living downstairs heard a shot about 6:30 p. m., and upon investigation found smoke issuing from the woman's room. Forcing the door they found her lying on the bed, a revolver by her side, and her clothing on fire. The fire was extinguished, but she had been more or less burned. No signs of a bullet wound were found upon her, and the bed showed no traces of blood. When her husband returned home he told an apparently straight story, but he was locked up to await further developments.

Able to Be About.

Attleboro, Mass., June 10.—Mrs. Georgiana Fontneau, who was shot by her husband nearly a fortnight ago, has so far recovered as to be able to ride out. Two bullets of the three fired into her head will not be removed, as they give no pain and have not affected Mrs. Fontneau's mental condition. Surgeons say that the presence of the leaden missiles may not further injure Mrs. Fontneau, yet she may suffer greatly from them at any time. Mrs. Fontneau has received $2000 beneficiary insurance on her husband's death.

The Cape Cod Fires.

North Eastham, Mass., June 10.—The forest fires in this section of the cape continue, and fully 500 men are constantly at work to prevent any further spread of the flames. In some localities the conditions are very serious. When a train passes along the railroad the track is immediately patrolled by section men and citizens to put out any fires which may have started from sparks. Only a heavy rain will extinguish the numerous fires along the cape. The financial loss is very heavy.

Drive Coming Slowly.

Gardiner, Me., June 10.—The season's lumber drive by the Kennebec Log company will amount to 100,000,000 feet. The main drive has arrived in Hallowell. Seven million of the season's cut is hung up at Deer river. Owing to the lack of rain this spring, the drive has been very slow in coming. The rear drive will not be along until late in September. The supply which has just arrived will be sufficient to keep all the mills along the river in operation throughout the summer.

Not Believed to Be Suicide.

Ware, Mass., June 10.—Frank P. Smith, coachman for J. H. G. Gilbert, was found in the barn yesterday with a bullet hole in his head. He died two hours later. He was local agent for the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and had made arrangements to go and shoot a glaucous horse. It is generally believed that when he went for his revolver the weapon was accidentally discharged. There is no suspicion that he committed suicide. He leaves a widow and four children.

Suicide by Asphyxiation.

Montpelier, Vt., June 10.—Sarah House, aged 38, single, a domestic, committed suicide yesterday by inhaling gas. A month ago she purchased a lot in Green Mount cemetery and had it graded and endowed. Six weeks ago she bought a light blue organdie in Boston for a shroud. She left a letter saying that she came into the world unwelcomed, and had been a charge upon it, and requested that she be buried in the cemetery where she had purchased a lot, and that her grave be unmarked.

Double Drowning Accident.

Kineo, Me., June 10.—John C. Holmes of Bangor, for years head bookkeeper for John Ross, a lumberman, and Nelson Beatty were drowned at the head of Moosehead lake yesterday. The canoe in which the men were paddling was capsized. When those who saw the accident reached the canoe the body of Holmes was found beneath it. Beatty's body has not been found.

Big Gap Filled.

Norwood, Mass., June 10.—The Norfolk Southern street railroad began running cars over its lines yesterday, although the track laying is not fully completed. The line fills up one gap in the ultimate through trolley from Boston to New York. As it is, the line is practically complete from Boston to Providence.

TWELVE GAMES IN SUCCESSION.

The Brooklyn Evidently Intend to Keep at the Head of the List.

New York, June 10.—The Brooklyn again outplayed the Reds, making it four straight from Cincinnati and 12 games in succession up to date. The Superbas bunched their hits off Phillips, while the Reds found Dunn hard to solve. Dahlgren's fielding and Farrell's back stop work were good. Steinfeldt did the best playing for Cincinnati.

Shea Gives Himself Up.

Salamanca, N. Y., June 10.—Timothy Shea of Haverhill, Mass., arrived here yesterday and gave himself up to the authorities to answer to the charge of manslaughter in having caused the death of his wife last September by pushing her from a porch during a quarrel and breaking her neck. Mrs. Shea was a widow nearly 80 years old when she appeared here. She employed Shea to work on her farm and later he married her. After her death Shea disappeared.

Duchess Loves Another.

Berlin, June 10.—A dispatch from Karlsruhe says that the breaking off of the engagement between Prince Maximilian of Baden and Grand Duchess Helene, daughter of Grand Duke Vladimir, is due to the request of the grand duchess, who is believed to have an affection for the brother of Emperor Nicholas, the Grand Duke Michael, now in his 21st year. It is hoped in court circles that the matter can be arranged.

Crew Probably Drowned.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 10.—The three-masted schooner George A. Howes of Philadelphia was found wrecked last night. The crew is believed to have been drowned. The life saving crew from Barnegat station, as soon as the storm abated, went out to the vessel, which had turned bottom upwards. The schooner was light, and was bound from New York to Newberne, N. C.

PRISON DOOR OPENED.

Colonel Picquart Is Temporarily Released From Custody.

Was the First to Suspect Guilt of Esterhazy.

Superior Officers Offended Thereby, and Tried to Get Rid of Him.

Paris, June 10.—Edmond Cesc, mayor of Ville d'Avray, who is a brother-in-law of Colonel Picquart, who was provisionally released from prison yesterday afternoon, sent a letter to M. Lebre, minister of justice before Picquart was released, in which he expressed the hope that a tribunal would soon try the colonel.

The Figaro publishes an interview with Lieutenant Colonel Picquart this morning. In reply to the remark that it was due to him that Dreyfus was returning to France, he said: "That is true," and he dilated upon the emotions of Dreyfus on receiving the news of his release, adding: "But for the miracle of the petit bleu it is impossible to say what would have happened."

Picquart expressed himself as convinced that the commander of the Staff would treat Dreyfus with all possible humanity. Figaro says he appeared fatigued and was somewhat bowed, and his mustache has grown whiter, but he still preserves his proverbial good humor.

Colonel Picquart's release, it is understood, was due to the fact that the German foreign office recently informed the French government that Col Schwarzkoppen wrote the petit bleu, and that therefore it was impossible that Picquart should have forged it.

It was when he was the head of the intelligence bureau of the war department, in the spring of 1896, that Colonel Picquart became convinced that Major Esterhazy was the author of the so-called bordereau, which had been imputed to Dreyfus. His discovery did not please his compromised superiors in the war office, who endeavored to get rid of him by sending him on a dangerous mission in Tunis. Subsequently, he was brought before a court-martial on the charge of having communicated to his counsel, M. Leblois, the contents of a petit bleu addressed to Esterhazy by the German military attaché, and the outcome of the trial was that he was turned out of the army. His enemies then sought to have him punished as a common malefactor for the same offense, and with this in view, commenced criminal proceedings against him in the correctional court.

While he was in a civil prison, awaiting trial on this charge, Colonel Picquart applied to the minister of justice in the Brisson cabinet, requesting permission to give certain information at his disposal. Being relieved of the obligation of official secrecy, he declared in a letter, which has since been laid publicly before the court of cassation, that four documents had been secretly communicated to the Dreyfus court-martial; that he had, subsequently, informed his counsel that not one of them incriminated Dreyfus. He added that no one could have supposed they did, but for the misleading comments of Colonel du Paty de Clam. Among these documents was the paper of which Colonel Henry confessed himself the forger. In concluding his letter, Picquart requested the minister of justice to obtain confirmation of his declaration by reference to General Mercier, General de Boisdeffre, General Gonse, Colonel du Paty de Clam and others.

By this letter Colonel Picquart gave fresh offense to the general staff, and when he was about to be tried in a civil court on the charge of communicating to his counsel official documents, he was snatched away to a military prison, there to be tried for the alleged forgery of the petit bleu before a court-martial, which might sit with closed doors and inflict a long term of imprisonment. The date fixed for the new court-martial was fixed for Dec. 12, and for some time the war office insisted upon holding it, although the court of cassation had not finished its investigation of the Dreyfus affair, which necessarily comprised the case of Picquart. Ultimately the general staff submitted to the order of the court of cassation postponing the court-martial, and thereupon Picquart petitioned the supreme civil tribunal to decide whether he should be tried on the forgery charge in the correctional court or before a court-martial. This is the petition which was decided in his favor on March 3. No steps have been taken in his case since that date until yesterday.

The charge of having forged the petit bleu was not brought forward at Picquart's first court-martial. It was first mooted in the Esterhazy court-martial, the friends of Esterhazy being unable to protect him in any other way. It is alleged that the petit bleu has been tampered with in the war office since Picquart left it; that the name of Esterhazy, to whom it was addressed, has been scraped out and again written in, but in a different hand. That sort of fraud might have availed before a court-martial organized to convict, but it will be exposed, no doubt, in a trial before a civil tribunal. There is reason, indeed, to believe that the general staff would never have started the theory that the petit bleu was forged unless they had taken for granted that they could prevent an examination of the charge in a civil court.

COMFORT AND BEAUTY.

Simple in Plan, Yet Embraces Every Modern Requirement.

[Copyright, 1899, by George Pailiser, 32 Park place, New York.]

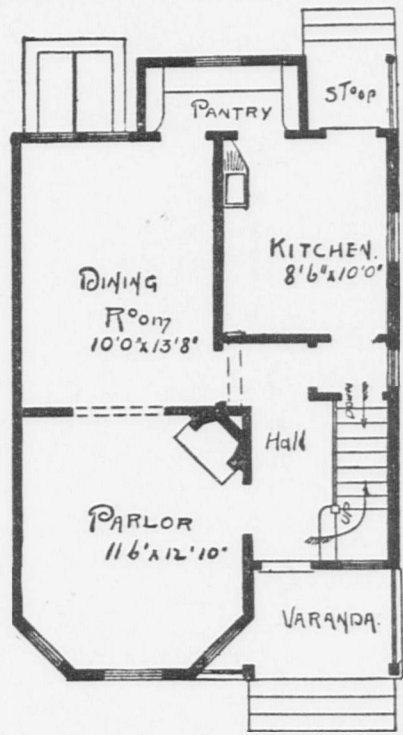

As the days roll by the trusts roll up. We are constantly reading of the forming of new ones. In fact, we hear of little else for the moment. They have hold of the whole country. Nearly everything we wear or eat is controlled by a trust. Prices go up or down, as the trusts elect. They may be lowered to such an extent that competitors are forced to retire from business, and they may be sent up to exceed by far the old figures. And who are the sufferers? Why, the people, of course, who are obliged to buy at exorbitant rates or go without absolute necessities.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW.

How long is this outrage going to last? How long will the public tolerate it? Will the laws ever be construed in the interest of the people? For myself, I believe the end will come sooner or later. The people will rise in a body, and the trusts will be swept away like leaves in a storm. And the people will have then reached the point of realizing what is best for them and what is especially against them. It will thus only remain for laws to be framed so that no trust shall again be allowed to exist.

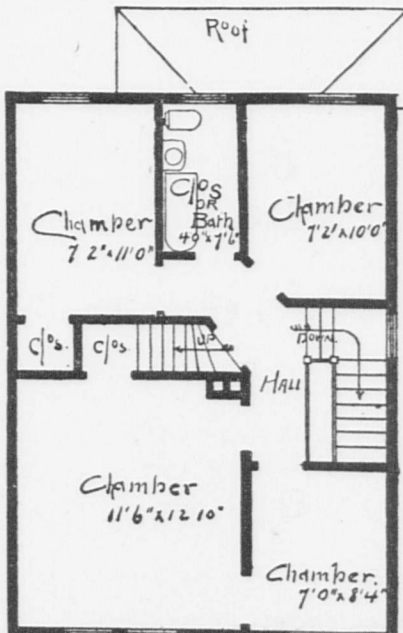

It is every day becoming more difficult for the masses to build houses. Materials seem to be on the rise; but, strange to say, wages are on the decline. And, by the way, this is just what will bring the hoped for crisis more quickly than anything else.

Let every workman be a sort of trust unto himself, and remember it is to be a battle of ballots. Let him think and act in everything he does for his best interests, and the future will work out its own salvation. Every small home that is built will help to bring about better conditions and improve the status of the family which is to occupy it. Therefore let every man build what he can honestly pay for.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

keeping carefully within his means, and he will be able to cope with whatever comes along.

Such homes as this design shows are what are wanted by sensible people and could be built by hundreds on suburban sites and sold like griddlecakes. They are as simple as flour, as much needed as clothing, would sell at a handsome profit over cost and would be of great use to a large scale. The real comforts and pleasures of home are never found in a rented place. Ownership must be absolute, when all other troubles vanish. This house is simple in plan and arrangement and will, I hope, furnish food for thought for many earnest readers who are looking for light on the all important home subject.

Expression of Rooms.

Every room and house should be the expression of the needs and tastes of the owners. Other homes or rooms should not be copied literally. Ideas and suggestions may be obtained from such sources, but they must be embodied into a general plan only so far as they are consistent with the individual's special needs and tastes. Strive to give good effects in the arrangement of articles, but comfort of the other members of the household should not be sacrificed to attain any artistic end.—New Voice.

For Nail Holes and Cracks.

When filling the chinks, gins and sawdust make the accepted mixture for filling up nail holes and chinks in floors that are to be painted. This should be used several days before the painting is to be done, so that the glue may have time to set.—New Voice.

wise? Robert puts up a good argument, but his words only serve to plant the seeds of sneering indifference in the minds of irresponsible noodles who waste time figuring out the mystery of the universe when they would be better occupied in shoveling coal.—Waltham

The most conflicting reports are being published regarding the wheat crop. One day it is said that it is so backward that it will not ripen and the next that it is feared it will ripen too early, and so on. All these reports are put forward merely to influence the stock market, and no one need fear that there will be any lack of good wheat flour in the stores of our grocers.—

Mr. Clark of New York city, whose baby Marion has been kidnapped and restored, is turning an honest but questionable penny. On Saturday morning the family took the child to a biograph photographer, and on Saturday evening the baby and her mother were among the moving pictures on the screen of a museum.
The public which has taken deep interest in the tragedy, now pay for the comedy of the thing. Perhaps the public will not be so deeply concerned
when the next baby is stolen.—Lewiston

Cunniff of the Cape Breton copper

Quarry railroad company have returned from an inspection of the company's copper properties in Cape Breton. The result of their investigations was very satisfactory and will have an important bearing upon the pending financial reorganization of the company. The officials made a thorough inspection of the Coxheath property, where Col.

what they saw. There are now about

VALUES IN 1875.

Property Has Increased Rapidly.

Quotations from Last Valuation Book.

Estates at Random in all Parts of the Town.

The order for the printing of a "Valuation Book" for 1899 directs attention to the last valuation book issued by the town in 1875. That work contained a list of the taxable polls and estates, including estates of non-residents, and also the names of resident and non-resident owners of bank shares, and the valuation of property exempt from taxation, and the table of aggregates. A comparison of the aggregates with 1898 will be of interest, and certainly shows remarkable increase in value of property:

	1898.	1875.
Total number of Polls,	6,126	2,369
Total tax on Polls,	$12,692.00	$1,738.00
Total value of Personal Estate,	$2,294,475.00	$1,736,475.00
Total value of Real Estate,	$10,812,925.00	$6,577,550.00
Total Tax for State, County, City and Town purposes, including Highway Tax,	$114,463.37 1-2	$392,821.20
Total Valuation,	$12,310,025.00	$7,314,025.00
Dwelling houses,	4,176 1-2	1,615 1-2
Houses,	1,294	703
Cows,	518	518
Acres of Land Taxed in the Town,	8,736 5-24

Everything seems to have increased about three-fold in 23 years by the above comparison, — the valuation, polls, houses and total tax, and the population is now 25,000 in comparison with 9,150 by the census of 1875.

It will not be necessary in the publication this year to include the polls,
as those are now printed annually, but the increase in number of property holders will make a book somewhat larger than in 1875. If a book is issued it will be saved for many years, several copies of the 1875 book being now in existence.

From this 1875 book, the following valuations of well-known estates in all parts of the town are taken. As changes have been made in the size of the estates, no comparisons can be made here, but persons acquainted with the estates can make their own comparisons:

Henry H. Faxon, Mariposa block, now the
Y. M. C. A. building, $5,500; store on lot, $700; one-seventh acre land, $1,500.

John Brierley, house, Hancock corner
Granite, $3,500; stable, $500; store, $3,000;
Holden's store, $1,000; three-quarters acre of land, $6,000.

T. H. Plumer, house, Hancock, $3,000; store,

His Name Honored.

Mr. A. W. Greene, the principal of the Gridley Bryant school, has enjoyed the acquaintance of Gridley J. F.
Bryant for some time, and when the information of his death was received yesterday there were read in the upper grades of the school the newspaper accounts of his death with the sketches of his work. The readings were supplemented by remarks of the teacher concerning the lives of both father and son, Gridley and Gridley J. F. Mr.
Greene gathered during his visits to the son, interesting information as to the father, and the portrait of Gridley Bryant recently placed in the school building was endorsed as correct by the son. It is teachers like Mr.
Greene, who take an interest in local historic affairs as well as educational matters, that are appreciated in Quincy, and it was a matter of some surprise to parents last night that their sons and daughters were so well informed as to Gridley Bryant and his son.

How true are the words of the Chatterer of the Herald, who said:
"The death of Mr. Gridley J. F.
Bryant, the architect of so many public buildings in Boston and elsewhere,
at the home which he designed a number of years ago, has a pathetic association his old-time friends cannot but appreciate. If any man deserved fortune through strenuous and devoted labor in his profession, Mr. Bryant was
he. He was unrelaxing in devotion to the trusts imposed on him, and always carried out the old-fashioned notion that personal obligation was involved in one's duty to the government or
the individual who employed him.
Through all the vicissitudes of the latter part of his life he retained the courage, the high sense of honor which had been his inspiration from the beginning of his career, and when the death of his beautiful wife broke him down, and he was left solitary and alone to battle with old age and misfortune he bore it with real heroism.
That kept him young and never quite deserted him. Two days before he died a faithful attendant was trying to give him some nourishment. What's the use of feeding a dead man?" said Uncle Gridley, and then he spoke no more."

Loss Generally Mourned.

The death of Mr. T. Henry Wason at the Quincy Hospital yesterday, as a result of the accident of Wednesday evening at the depot, came almost as great a shock as the news of the accident, as people had obtained the impression that he would recover. All devotedly wished he would, and regret very much the untimely end. He was a man of high character, and very generally respected; a valued citizen,
a beloved husband and a man who thought everything of his family. Although born in Haverhill, he has been a resident of Quincy so long that he was clearly a Quincy citizen.

Never prominent in town or city government, but active in religious work both of the church and the Y.

As a master in the Boston schools
he was very successful, especially as a disciplinarian. Besides a widow and three sons, he leaves two brothers; William, who lives in Lawrence; and Washington, who lives in Atkinson,

Private funeral services will be held

Monday afternoon and at 3 P. M. public services will be held at Bethany

Box 19, the new box on Canal street

The manner in which the John Han-

ABOUT RETAILING

SHIRTS.

SOME good, but misguided women, who own good husbands, try to lessen the worries of those same husbands by doing some of the personal purchasing. In a great many instances it is a great help, for it is due to the good taste displayed by wives that many husbands are becomingly clothed. But once in a while the insatiable bargain fever strikes deep into the souls of some of these same wives. They run over the Sunday newspapers and cut out some of the whole page "ads" and the following week they rush in town to buy some alleged bargains in shirts at less than the cost of the Button Holes. These shirts are retailed for from 9c to 29c, and sometimes they have to be retailed again in order that a man may wear them as long as he wants to.

It does make a woman wish she could use a few of those emphatic words that her husband uses to express his feelings when she has to sit down and sew four or five inches of cloth around the bottom of one of those shirts. Not so much for ornament as for use. Our shirts are cut full and long and wide, and after we retail 'em you won't have to retail 'em again.

Our 50c shirts are made with attached and detached collar and cuffs, and some of them have two collars and two cuffs.

Then we have the Cheviots and Madras and Silk Fronts from 75c to $1.00.

Our Shirts are Honest Shirts.

ELECTRICAL SWITCH.

Quincy Gentlemen Have a Valuable Patent.

The Boston Electric Switch Co., which is a successor to the Stedman Automatic Street Railway Switch Co., has completed a working model of its electrical switch which does all its inventor could wish, and cannot fail to be a great time saver upon railways on which it is used. Every street railway uses hundreds of switches and every street railway manager knows that much valuable time is constantly being lost by the stopping of the car to throw the switch. With the installation of the electrical switch it becomes unnecessary to stop the car, as it operated by the motorman on the car, who by the simple movement of the foot throws the switch tongue to either side desired.

The modus operandi is simple in the extreme. Beneath the switch in a pit are two sets of magnetic coils wound so as to be water tight. Between these two coils is an armature which is fastened to the bottom of the switch tongue. This switch is also so constructed as to be self cleaning and therefore is in no danger of being clogged with dirt. At any desired distance from the switch upon a block of granite are two strips of brass which are technically known as contact points. These two contact points are connected with the two electro magnets beneath the tongue by a wire. On the platform of the car are two levers which are connected with the controller. Upon approaching a switch it is only necessary for the motorman to press these levers which sends a current of electricity through the contact strips to the electrical coil, which immediately transforms the core of the coil into a permanent magnet, this attracts the armature and the tongue is moved to the desired side. So simple is its operation, and so inexpensive is its installation, that it requires but a trial to convince any railway of the necessity of its general introduction and use.

The company which owns and controls this switch, although known as the Boston Electric Switch Co. is in reality a Quincy company, its head office being in this city. Its officers are: President Robert T. Johnson; Clerk, Franklin Jacobs; Treasurer, A. F. Macleod; directors, the above with W. F. Stedman and Benjamin J. Weeks.

The company is now ready to build and install a working switch to demonstrate its practicability, and has therefore decided to place some of its stock upon the market. The par value of the shares is one dollar, but for a limited period it can be bought upon better terms. Any information in relation to the purchase of stock or the prospectus of the company may be had by applying to any of the above officers.

ARRESTED FOR DEBT.

Judgment Debtor Fails to Comply with Dubuque Law.

The first order for arrest in Quincy under the Dubuque law was issued by Judge Humphrey in the District court this morning. Charles H. Backus of Wollaston recently brought a suit against Peter H. Connell for a bill contracted by him for necessities. The court found for the plaintiff and ordered Connell to pay $5 to the plaintiff's attorney, W. W. Jenness, Esq., and $5 thereafter every two weeks until the bill which amounted to $60.81 was paid.

The defendant failed to comply with the order of the court and this morning the court adjudged him in contempt and sentenced him to twelve days' imprisonment in the county jail. The papers were placed in the hands of Constable Farnald and the chances are that Mr. Connell will pass the next twelve days in jail.

The workings of this law have been watched by lawyers and business men in general and the imprisonment of the debtor may be a good lesson to others who fail to pay their bills which are contracted for necessities.

Adams School Field Day.

Mr. J. M. Nowland, principal of the Adams school, gave the boys their annual afternoon at field sports yesterday. Oppose Woman Suffrage.

Editors of the Ledger:

The small meeting of interested ladies,—interested despite the heat—which occurred in the Unitarian chapel on Tuesday afternoon, is worthy of note because, of its novel character. Most people have heard of Woman Suffrage meetings—many have perhaps attended them, but a meeting of women opposed to Woman Suffrage seems a distinctly latter day development.

After making allusion to the rapid growth, since its inception some three or four years ago, of the Massachusetts Association opposed to the extension of suffrage to women under whose auspices the meeting was held—(its membership including women of all sorts and conditions, wage earners, teachers, professional women; women of well known names engaged in public service in connection with public school systems, prisons, libraries or other educational or philanthropic institutions, standing conspicuously for public spirit and effort for the advancement of their sex: besides the still larger numbers of those whose strength, mental and physical is necessarily largely absorbed by household and family cares) the chairman stated certain reasons for the existence of such an organization—the first being the desire to guard against the forcing of regular political duties upon Massachusetts women without the consent of the majority, by the passage of a law through the efforts of the advocates of suffrage for women at the State House and elsewhere. Under our democratic form of government, thinking people are beginning sadly to realize it is quite possible that a law of almost any kind, can be run through our legislature if rushed by a really persistent and enthusiastic minority—the majority of the community (even those the law will most nearly affect), being too busy to realize what is going on, or incapable, because unprepared, of resistance. Organized effort for the spreading of any opinion was, the speakers believed legitimate,—also women with time and ability for politics should be free to work politically (the ballot being in no sense necessary for this) but when it was a question of forcing a bylaw over 500,000 silent or unwilling Massachusetts women into regular political duties because a small number of other Massachusetts women wish to assume these duties, surely defensive measures—namely anti-suffrage organization, were obviously just and necessary.

A second reason given for organizing in opposition to Woman Suffrage was "to give courage to those opposed, yet lacking the courage of their convictions." Few people not examining the situation could realize how many overtimid, over-courteous, (yet at heart convinced) anti-suffragists there were—never speaking of their real opinions because fearful of hurting the feelings of some suffragist friend, relation or acquaintance, or to be considered unprogressive, or an enemy to the advancement of their sex—fearing often even to mention the words Woman Suffrage as getting them into some complication—while among professional women and those holding public offices, teachers, journalists, etc., there seemed to exist "a sort of terrorizing influence, a fear of incurring the hostility of the suffragists and thus losing their position or injuring their professional careers." This unnatural state of affairs, unworthy of Massachusetts women, could be no more acceptable to fair-minded suffragists, than to anti-suffragists. The suffrage question involved considerations of great moment, it should be discussed "everywhere and anywhere among decent people naturally—without ill-feeling or attempt at undue influence or suppression of individual opinion." Should organized anti-suffrage opinion lead to nothing more than the natural and free expression on both sides, it would be doing a public service and preparing the way or right, with whichever side it may be, to prevail.

The chief features of the meeting were a very able paper written by a well known Boston woman, eminent alike for her private virtues and public services; and an informal address by another Boston woman, college-bred and respected for her proved intellectual ability and active participations in good work and progressive movements of various kinds. Both paper and address set forth present conditions—industrial, social, educational and political—with reasons for opposing the extension of suffrage to women as for the ultimate good of women and of everybody else—which, had they heard them, would undoubtedly have been a revelation to those who believe all opponents of Woman Suffrage to be as a matter of course, crude and superficial thinkers; having no part in practical affairs and out of touch with modern life and thought; or too sick and luxurious to care for the advancement of their struggling and oppressed sex, anything indeed, but their own comfort.

The meeting closed with the announcement of the existence of a Quincy Anti-Suffrage organization—and general and animated discussion. It is to be hoped that the committee of Quincy ladies which has quietly been formed—not for aggressive action, but to give definite expression to Anti-Woman's Suffrage opinion in Quincy, will receive the support merited by their courage and the justice of their cause.

WHEN ONE IS YOUNG.

When one is young, what matters care?
For youth has mirth and joy to spare.
The future is a blazing fire
That lights the pathway of desire,
And doing's but a name for dare.

What smiling masks the grim fates wear,
How amiable and debonaire!
The best seems easy to acquire
When one is young.

Youth is a multimillionaire
Who fattens on the best of fare,
Whom all delights and naught can tire,
Who treats the world as his empire;
But old age sets its fatal snare
When one is young.

Uncle Caleb's Will.

"You mean that you can't put yourself out to give your mother's brother a night's lodging!" said Caleb Cheverel bitterly.

The March wind, bearing dust, grit and bits of flying paper on its restless wings, came whistling around the corner, lifted the old man's faded comforter's ends and turned his blue nose a shade bluer still, while Mrs. Larkins, his eldest niece, stood in her doorway, filling up the aperture with her ample person in such a way as to suggest the familiar legend, "No admittance."

"I'm very sorry," said Mrs. Larkins stiffly, "but we have but one spare room, and that is at present occupied. Of course I should be glad to do all I could for you, but—"

"I understand, I understand," said Uncle Cheverel, turning coldly away. "I'll go to my niece Jenny. I wish you a very good evening."

Mrs. Larkins closed the door with a sigh of very evident relief.

"I dare say Jenny will take care of him," she said philosophically. "Jenny has a smaller family than I have. But I don't see why he came up to London, instead of staying peaceably down in Tortoise Hollow, where he belongs."

Mrs. Jenny Eldertop, Mr. Cheverel's youngest niece, had a smaller family than her sister Rebecca; but, then, she had a smaller income as well. She had just finished a vigorous day's cleaning when Uncle Caleb was announced.

"Oh, drat the man!" said Mrs. Eldertop, wringing her parbed fingers out of a basin of steaming soapsuds. "What sends him here of all the times in the world?"

And she went down stairs ungraciously enough to the street door, where her husband was welcoming the old stranger.

"Come in, Uncle Cheverel, come in," said honest Will Eldertop. "We're all upside down here—we mostly are, now that the spring cleaning is going on. But there's room for you if you don't mind the children and their noise, and a little smell of whitewash in the spare room."

Mrs. Eldertop's welcome was by no means so cordial. She looked to use a common expression, "vinegar and darning needles" at the visitor, while in her inmost soul she calculated the probability of the cold boiled ham and turnips holding out for one more at supper.

"Come, Benny, don't scowl so," said Mr. Eldertop, when Uncle Caleb had gone up stairs to wash his hands and face. "Ain't he your uncle?"

"A good for nothing old vagabond," said Mrs. Eldertop acidly, "without a halfpenny laid up ahead."

"For all that he's your guest," said her husband, "and you're bound to be civil to him. And here's his overcoat now with a big zigzag rent in it. Just mend it while you're waiting for the kettle to boil."

"I won't!" said Mrs. Eldertop. "All right," retorted her lord and master. "Then I'll take it next door to Alexia Allen to mend."

Now, Miss Allen, the tailor, who lived in the adjoining house, was pretty and buxom to look upon, and Mrs. Eldertop had nursed comfortably a jealousy of her for the last four years.

"You'll do no such thing!" said Jenny tartly. "Hand it here!"

And she threaded a needle with black silk and thrust her finger into a thimble very much as a determined crusader of old might have donned sword and shield for some encounter with the Moslem.

"What's that?" said Mr. Eldertop, for a folded paper fell from the pocket of the garment as his wife turned it upside down.

"Some tawdery or other," answered Mrs. Jenny brusquely.

"I fancy you're mistaken," said Mr. Eldertop. "It's the rough draft of a will."

"But he's got nothing to leave," retorted Mrs. Eldertop.

"I'm not so certain of that," retorted Will. "Just look here, Jenny! I give and bequeath to my two beloved nieces, in equally divided parts, the sum of £10,000, at present invested in consols, and—"

"Go on!" said Mrs. Eldertop breathlessly. "Read the rest."

"There is no rest," said her husband. "That's the end of the paper. It's only a rough draft, I tell you. And now what's your opinion of Uncle Cheverel's fortunes?"

"He's been a miser all along," said Mrs. Eldertop, her face growing radiant, "making up poor months and traveling around the country with all this money in the funds, a regular old character—just like those one reads about in novels! Put it back, Will; put it back. We've no business to be prying into Uncle Caleb's secrets. But what a blessing it is he came here instead of stopping at Rebecca Larkins'!"

And when Uncle Cheverel came down stairs he was surprised at the sweet smiles with which his niece Jenny welcomed him.

"Been mending my coat, eh?" said Uncle Cheverel. "Thank'ee kindly, Jenny. I caught it on a nail yesterday, and I was calculating to sew it up my-

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

Blue and white dotted batiste gown from Harper's Bazar.

Among the most beautiful of summer fabrics is batiste, which this year emulates silk in its variety of pretty color combinations. A very pretty treatment of this material is shown in a blue and white gown, a pattern of which accompanies the current number of the Bazar where the design originally appeared. The outer bodice is in three parts; a plain French back, shield front, and the left side front, over which the shield laps. The gown may be made upon a blue lawn or taffeta foundation. The patterns for yoke and high collar are part of the present costume. The front of the batiste waist is slightly gathered at the shoulders, the fulness being drawn in at the waist on each side of the centre front, and the fastening is concealed between the gathers at the shoulders and waistline. The sleeves are tight-fitting, with flaring cuffs and epaulettes.

The foundation skirt is of a tight sheath variety, and is perforated to indicate the position of the ruffles. The pleum has a slight fulness in the centre of the back, which may be distributed in gathers or brought into inward-turning pleats. The garment is absolutely plain over the hips but flared at the bottom, as do the two ruffles over which it is draped. The pleum and ruffles come well forward at the sides, and a panel front is fitted over them. A line of perforations on foundation lining will indicate the termination of the drapery and ruffles at the side, and the position for placing the front panel. If desired, the opening of the skirt, may be placed at the left side of the panel, but in the original model it occurs at the back. This design will be found an effective one for foulards, crepes, India silks, cashmeres, or any soft and at the same time pliant material. In the batiste model the panel and collar are outlined with white Renaissance lace, but any preferred trimming—such as gathered ribbon, passementerie, or ruchings of the same material—will make effective trimming.

To make this costume 13 yards of batiste 32 inches wide will be required, also 3 yards of lawn for the foundation skirt and waist. Where silk is desired for the foundation skirt, 7 yards 22 inches wide will be sufficient.

self when I could borrow a needle and thread."

"I'm glad to be of use, Uncle Caleb," beamed Mrs. Eldertop. "Johnny, put on your cap and run to the grocer's for a smoked mackerel for your uncle's breakfast. I hope you found your room comfortable, Uncle Caleb?"

Before she slept that night Mrs. Eldertop put on her bonnet and shawl and ran around to the Larkins mansion to impart her wonderful tidings to Sister Rebecca.

"You don't say so!" cried out the astonished matron.

"Gospel truth!" said Mrs. Eldertop. "I saw it with my own eyes."

"He must come here," said Mrs. Larkins resolutely.

"Not if I know it," said Mrs. Eldertop. "He's my guest, and my guest he shall remain."

"But if I'm to share equally with you," said Mrs. Larkins, "I ought to show him some attention, the dear, generous-hearted old man!"

"Let he should alter his will," shrewdly remarked Sister Jenny. "You always were a worldly creature Becky!"

"No more than yourself!" said Mrs. Larkins, bristling up. "But it's my family I am thinking of, Jenny. I'll tell you what—I'll come around and see him tomorrow."

"But don't you breathe a syllable about the will," said Mrs. Eldertop, in a mysterious whisper.

"Oh, not for worlds!" said Mrs. Larkins fervently.

During the next week Uncle Cheverel was overwhelmed with civilities. On Thursday a new suit of clothes arrived, with Mrs. Larkins' best love and compliments. On Friday Mrs. Larkins came with an open barouche to take dear Uncle Caleb for a drive in the park. And on Saturday Mrs. Eldertop burst into tears and declared she should be never happy again if her mother's only brother didn't pledge himself then and there to make his future home with herself and Will.

Uncle Caleb looked a little puzzled. "Well," said he, "if you really make a point of it—but I was intending to meet Cousin John at Gravesend."

"Dear uncle, promise me to stay here always," cried Mrs. Eldertop.

"Just as you say, Niece Jenny," assented the old man complacently.

Mrs. Eldertop felt that she had carried her point.

But when Mr. and Mrs. Larkins came on Sunday afternoon, to press a similar petition, Uncle Caleb opened his eyes.

"My importance seems to have 'gone up' in the market," he observed quaintly. "I never was in such demand among my relatives before. But I can't be in two places at once, that's plain."

And he decided to remain with Mrs. Eldertop, greatly to the indignation of the Larkins family, who did not hesitate to hint boldly at unfair advantages and undue impartiality.

But just as Mrs. Larkins was rising to depart, with her handkerchief to her eyes, little Johnny Eldertop came clamoring for a piece of paper to cut a kite tail from.

"Go along," said Mrs. Eldertop impatiently.

"We've no paper here. Go to America!"

"Hold on, little chap—hold on!" said Uncle Caleb, fumbling in his overcoat pocket—he had been just about starting for a walk when the Larkins party arrived—"here's a bit as is of no use to nobody."

And he produced the "rough draft" and bestowed it on Johnny.

"One side's written on," said he, "and t'other ain't. It was lying on the floor in Mr. Watkins' law office when I stepped in to see if Joseph Hall was employed there as porter still. An old chum of mine Hall was in Tortoise Hollow. I can't bear to see even a bit of paper wasted, so I axed the clerk if it was of any use. He said no—it was only a draft of Dr. Falcon's will. Dr. Falcon made a new will every six months, he said, so I jest picked it up and put it in my pocket. Everything comes in use once in seven years, they say, and this is just right for little Johnny's kite tail."

Mrs. Larkins looked at Mrs. Eldertop. Mr. Eldertop stared into the spectated eyes of Mr. Larkins.

Uncle Caleb chuckled benevolently as little Johnny skipped away with the piece of paper which had been freighted with such a wealth of anticipation.

The Larkins took leave without any unnecessary formula of adieu, and Mrs. Eldertop took occasion to tell Uncle Caleb that perhaps he had better prosecute his original design of the Gravesend visit.

"Because we're expecting company tomorrow," said she, "and our best room will be wanted for a while. And," she added, within herself, "I will take good care that it shan't be empty again, just at present."

So Uncle Caleb Cheverel went to Gravesend, where Cousin John was as poor and warm hearted as himself, and he was never invited to return to London again.

Five years later Uncle Caleb departed this life and left behind him £20,000 in consols—willed to John Clark. To his "dear nieces," Jane Eldertop and Rebecca Larkins, he left £5 each to pay for the trouble he put them to when he visited them. To say that there was joy in the nieces' households when the will was read would be to say what is false, for, if the old man could have guessed at all the unkind things that would be uttered regarding him, I doubt if he would have left them even £5 each.—Glasgow Scottish Nights.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning June 11.—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle. Topic.—A perfect child.—Luke ii, 40-52. (Children's day.)

But one perfect child ever lived—the Lord Jesus Christ. Joseph's childhood, so far as it is recorded, seems to have been very near to perfection, and yet in him the evidences of human weaknesses were clearly seen.

Little is known of the real childhood of Christ. The record of His birth and infancy is quite complete, and then silence reigns. In human biographies the incidents of childhood are eagerly seized upon and magnified, but God's ways are not man's ways. We might suppose that where God has been silent man would also assume a similar attitude, but this has not been the case. The apocryphal gospels tell wonderful stories of the child Jesus. Nothing more is needed to prove their spurious character. Jesus was probably reared in childhood as every other Jewish child, taught the law at home and in the schools of the synagogue and learned in the arts of His father's trade.

One incident alone breaks the silence of Christ's childhood. At 12 years of age for the first time He attended the Feast of the Passover. What memories must have clustered round this first visit to the great feast! Here also for the first time He gave evidences of His consciousness of His mission in the world—to do His Father's business. "Wist ye not," He said to His mother, "that I must be about My Father's business?" This is the first utterance of Christ to show that there was dawning on His consciousness, even in His childhood days, His mission and duty in the world.

The one thing emphasized about Christ here is His growth. "The child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, and the grace of God was upon Him." "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man." He grew physically, mentally and spiritually. This is the work of a perfect childhood, growth, development, and in Christ is set forth the ideal growth, in body, mind and spirit. How careful parents and teachers should be that there is this threefold growth in childhood, in proper proportion! All depends upon the proper growth of a child. No element of his nature should be neglected, and none cultivated at the expense of the other, and specially should we be guarded against the development of body and mind at the expense of the soul. Many teachers and parents carefully develop body and mind, but leave soul development to after years. No more serious mistake could ever be made. In our Endeavor societies, in the Sunday school, in the home, let us aim at the ideal—a child properly and proportionately developed in body, mind and soul.

Bible Readings.—Ex. xx, 12; Lev. xix, 3, 32; Deut. v, 16; xxx, 1-3; Prov. i, 7-15; vi, 20-23; xv, 1-5; xxii, 6; xxiii, 20-26; Eccl. xii, 1; Luke. xviii, 15-17; Eph. vi, 1-3; Col. iii, 20; II Tim. i, 3-5.

Power of Good.

Try, above all, "the expulsive power of good affections." Empty by filling—empty of what is mean and impure by filling with what is noble and lovely. When the argonauts sailed past the treacherous rocks of the Sirens they sailed in perfect safety because Orpheus was one of them, and the song of Orpheus was sweeter, more delightful, more full of noble witchery, than the Sirens' vile, voluptuous strains. Let your souls be filled with music of Him whom the early Christians delighted to represent as Orpheus charming the wild beasts of bad passions by his harp. Your souls are a picture gallery. Let their walls be hung with all things sweet and perfect—the thought of God, the image of Christ, the lives of God's saints, the aspirations of good and great men, the memories of golden deeds.—Canon Farrar.

Pain, Failure and Shame.

There are certain great angels which meet us in the way of life. Pain is one, failure is another, shame is another. Pain looks us full in the eyes, and we must wrestle with him before he blesses us. Failure brings in his stern hand the peace of renunciation. Shame bears to us the sense of sin which is the knowledge of God. His hidden face shines with the mercy of heaven, and well for us if we may look into it.—Margaret O'Leary.

God Stays the Waves.

In sailing o'er life's troubled sea, Along the way rough storms may be: The waves may dash, the winds may blow Upon thy bark while here below, Yet a hush'd voice comes soft and low, "The waters shall not o'er thee flow."

When troubles come and dark the way, When anxious care fills all the day, When, sad and worn, you long for rest, Lean close, dear heart, on Jesus' breast, Yet a hush'd voice comes soft and low, "The waters shall not o'er thee flow."

Oh, fearful heart, the storm will cease! Some day you'll reach that port of peace Where all the tears are wiped away, Where not a cloud obscures the day; Sweet comes the voice, "You now can see God staid the waves from over thee." —John L. Newkirk.

CLASS PROPHECY.

Read at Thayer Academy on Founder's Day.

Many favorable comments on the prophecy delivered by Miss Ernestine
M. Litchfield of Wollaston at Thayer Academy on Founder's day have been heard, and we take pleasure in presents the poem in full:

A Persian monarch, old and sage,
With foresight far beyond his age,
Once thought his sons should prove their worth
Lay not alone in kingly birth.
To follow out the king's commands
They journeyed far through distant lands
Where one secured a glass so clear
It brought most distant objects near.
And that same stone to us reveals,
Thro' means of science, future scenes.
'Tis thus we can anticipate
And now foretell decrees of fate.

Rare plants make gay a banquet hall,
A mystic scroll is on the wall
With "nineteen hundred" plainly seen Above "T. A." in garlands green.
While at each plate, on menu fine,
Is wrought in many a quaint design
By turn of brush and stroke of pen,
"Alumni nineteen hundred tea
Reveals in each familiar face
Some subtle charm, some added grace."

From group to group the greetings flow,
And heart meets heart in answering glow.
Ha ha! old boy! are you all right?
Think you McDowell comes tonight?
Why he is far away from home,
Relief corps heads, in frigid zone.
But then you know his head of hair
Will keep him warm as a polar bear
His grit is sure to bring him fame
And all the world will praise his name.

And Edith Barker comes no more
For she has sought a distant shore
To try to give a Christian grace
To yet another heathen race,
And Philipinos great and small,
Respond unto her earnest call.
Now Edith Jackson's with us still,
In life's rough spots she shows her skill,
Is always on the topmost wave,
And keeps the place that beauty gave.

And side by side are faces seen
That once made strong our foot-ball team.
'Twas hoped that one a church might fill,
But he's the same old sixpence still.
So Burnham, yes, and Brigham too,
A string business life pursue.
While Mansfield still reports the news
And Tinkham runs collecting dues.
But Richardson, with violin,
Shuts out the world's conflicting din.

There Hollis comes. The added cares
Of riper years he nobly bears.
As father of the town he scans
With careful eye all new made plans.
With earnest thought and zealous care
He makes his native place more fair.
And Jordan likewise serves his town,
And frowns all fraud and stealing down.
He seems the same as when he wore
Those brightly plaided socks of yore.

And so they come to greet again
The friends, once boys, who now are men.
And each to each tells his success,
How fortune does his efforts bless.
One talks about this world of strife
And gives the motto of his life.
Can it be Greek which strikes the ear?
Is it "xa u Ba v w" that we hear?
Although I barely catch the sound,
Full well I know is Flye around.

And hearts are glad to see him out
So strong and well and fairly stout
For when at school he would recite
His voice would fill and rouse one might Think he'd one foot in the grave-a
And the other all but-a.
And Barnes is there, the very same
Who so despised us when he came,
But he could find no better crowd
And of us now he feels quite proud.

And here stands one, whose name is seen
In city street and village green,
On every quaint old rock and tree,
And everywhere a fence may be.
Will you before your eyes recall
The long white coat once worn by Hall?
The talent which those pictures drew
Could surely ne'er be hid from view
And now it earns his daily bread
By posters through the country spread.

And here comes one with word of cheer
Who meets with us from year to year,
And tho' she once was Helen White,
She has another name tonight.
And by her side, in converse low,
Is Miss Rymarczick, and we know
That she as teacher in a band
Of merry children takes her stand.
And day by day she makes them strong
To think, and know the right from wrong.

Sedate and grave, a lawyer now,
Orcutt appears and makes his bow.
His office sign so neat and trim,
In narrow border round the rim
Displays an endless row of "A's."
Cut from reports of former days,
And all those crosses in between,
On his reports are also seen.
His rank, plain "A" could not express,
A "plus" must show his great success.

And now has passed the social hour
In cheerful chat, and next the power
Of "chief" is tried, to drive dull care
And give to friendship its full share
Of intercourse, and just as each
With outstretched arm prepares to reach
His chair and take his chosen seat,
Ready by turns to laugh, or eat,
The entrance door, flung open wide,
Admits another to their side.

It is a woman, fresh and fair,
With such a wealth of golden hair,
Calm and serene she greets them now,
Depose seems seated on her brow.
There is no need to call her name,
At school 'Twas always just the same,
Regrets fell softly from her tongue,
It was a song she oft had sung,
"I had no thought it was so far,
You see I chanced to miss my car."

And who is she who reads in rhyme
Of what has passed in the long time Since last we met? O she so cool
Is "Howie dear." You know at school
The talent showed, and many a note

To "Dowie dear" she often wrote,
And now her name is often seen
Below short verse in magazine,
While both, in life, act well their part
Along the line of Froebel's art.

Mabel sends greetings to our band
In note of microscopic hand.
It speaks of friends so old and true,
Which she will never lose from view.
And then it speaks of those whose lives
Have later friends and double ties.
She longs to come, but louder calls
The alumni held in Cambridge halls.
A woman's wit might sure have guessed
The reason which is half confessed.

Now comes the toast and each reply
Recalls the jokes of days gone by.
With words to the occasion fit
A story brief or flash of wit
Each takes his turn. We hear of him
Who shovelled snow to earn a pin
And still with joy do they repeat
The story of the wondrous feat
Of her who ran down to the sea
In a fishing boat, how could it be?

Then comes "crushed mush," why should we laugh?
"Divine hair-oil" and that's not half
For "Winged Victory" draws a shout
As it is known beyond a doubt
That if the head did motion show
'Twas in the days of long ago.
Slouch has appear on chapel wall
Brain fever seems to cap it all
And sandwiches are thick and fast
Between the jokes to Mansfield passed.

Now ends the eve and from the chair
We hear proposed "Our women fair."
And Tucker stands to praise their worth,
Declares that nowhere else on earth,
Are women found more sweet and fair
Than among those who went to Thayer.
And when subsides the noise of hands,
To give the next, the chairman stands,
The only one which can compare,
To match the last, "the men of Thayer."

Who makes response? It cannot be—
And yet, perhaps it may be she.
Though not a curl can there be seen,
We think her name ends up with "Time."
"Our men," as brothers who can gaze,
For they like wine improve with age.
"Our men," as lovers are divine
And every art and grace combine
"Our men," as husbands none excel,
If they have faults we never tell.
And so through life, whatever their lot,
God bless 'em, they're the best we've got.

WHERE THEY GOT THEM.

Filipinos Make Use of Discarded Springfield Rifle Shells.

Again the much — "Amego-Filipino," who has grown wealthy on American dollars, the industrious "Cheno," who loves a dollar more than he does his God or birthright, have proved their treachery. This time it is found in a far different form and one from which they cannot crawl or make an honorable sneak.

It has been known for days that the ammunition belts of the dead insurgents contained refilled Springfield shells, but until recently it was not verified whence they came. The other morning Captain Otis of Company A, First Washington, was detailed to proceed from Paco to Pandacan and search all native huts for arms and ammunition, as it was known that all houses from the back of the convent to the canal and in the vicinity of the Norwegian consul's residence harbored from one to ten insurgents. Company A started on their mission, but, although very much handicapped, brought back enough proof to convince all unbelievers that the natives and "Chenos" were going along the former battle lines and collecting the discharged Springfield shells, which they were delivering to the insurgent leaders, and at a very profitable price, to have them sent to Malolos, where they were reloaded and used against our forces. The Remington shell, from being braced and lying in a solution, fails to withstand the action of being refilled; hence the Springfield shell is much in demand. Again, the scarcity of ammunition on their side, with no means of supply, causes them to become frantic and bid a high price for any kind of an empty shell that they can get. Captain Otis returned to his headquarters about 11:30 the other morning after making a thorough search of that district, but with enough of the empty shells which he found in native huts packed in boxes and sold to the insurgents.

From reliable native sources it has been learned that the powder factory at Malolos has been running night and day, but that the article they turn out is of a very inferior quality and has not the force of our genuine black powder. That the Mauser ammunition is almost a scarcity and will soon be a curio among the insurgent forces is beyond a doubt, but the activity demonstrated by the natives and their friends in collecting empty discharged shells shows that they still have lingering hopes of a long campaign. — Manila American.

A True Measure.
Giving according to ability is the true measure of liberality, and such persons are in condition to devise liberal things for the reason they are recognized as leaders in all benevolent movements, and these movements depend for their continuance upon liberally disposed people. A person may be willing and liberal, but brusque and distasteful; his gifts annoy more than comfort. — Philadelphia Methodist.

Whither Are We Going?
The proof of a path is its end. He is wise who looks to the conclusion of the road he is following. Many a flowered path leads to a precipice. The broad way, to the shortsighted eye, at times seems fairer than the way that is straight and narrow. But the end tests. To what end are we going? — William T. Ellis.

HINK DINK A WITNESS.

Alderman Kenna's Unique Talk
on Gambling in Chicago.

OPINION OF HIS OWN TESTIMONY.

Famous Politician Says "Dey Never Touched Me" and "Dat He Kin Take Care of Himself"—"He May Not Always Be So Handy Wid de Talky-talk, but Dere Are Times, Dere Are Times."

The New York Sun's correspondent at Chicago is responsible for the following story about Alderman "Hinky Dink" Kenna's testimony before the Baxter investigation committee in that city:

"Hinky Dink" Kenna, alderman from "de Foist ward," was a witness before the Baxter investigation committee the other day, and the first question put to him was:

"Do you know anything about gambling in Chicago?"

"Sure," replied "Hinky."

"Where, if any place, is gambling conducted?"

"In de Union League club," said the alderman, with a smile of triumph, while a crowd of his hearers and constituents laughed and applauded.

"Hinky" was the star attraction of the investigation and had gone into the presence of the committee with a grim determination to "make Baxter and his push look liket'irty cents." He was ex-

MICHAEL KENNA, "HINKY DINK."

quiescently attired in a light spring suit, pink shirt and blue tie and wore a diamond so big that the members of the committee were dazzled. He had his answer to the question as to his knowledge of gambling all prepared beforehand, and after his sally at Chicago's swellest club he was "it" with the admiring crowd of the unwashed which had assembled to see the fun.

"What form of gambling is carried on at the Union League?"

"Well, y'see, I ain't much on gambling myself, dough I'm a putty lib'ral sort of a feller and can't see no harm in it. If people wants to gamble, let 'em go on and gamble is my sentiments. Why, dere's gambling every night in de best families of Chicago. See?"

Nobody could doubt "Hinky's" word. Since May 1 he has been living on Michigan boulevard, and he has had the opportunity of meeting many representatives of the "best families" as they drove up and down the boulevard.

"Is poker played at the Union League?" he was asked.

"Well, sa-a-y, it ain't muggins, nor it ain't 66. Dose guys plays de old army game. I've heard all about 'em. Dem rich geezers plays 'em close to deir waistbands too. Some of 'em are so scared when a player shies a couple of someones into de center dat dey lose deir voices. A Union League club man'll throw down t'ree fat kings if an under guy tilts him a couple of bones. He's got to have a tight hand before he loosens up on de coin. It oughten to be called a game of chance. Nobody takes chances dere."

"Hinky" admitted a personal acquaintance with a number of persons mentioned by Senator Baxter. They were gambling house keepers, but the alderman declared that he did not know of any gambling in places conducted by professionals. He denied being connected in any way with the gambling den at 311 Clark street, of which he is the reputed proprietor.

"Were you never there?" he was asked.

"Naw, never in me life."

"Do you know a man named Dexter?" (Reputed to be "Hinky's" manager.)

"Yes."

"Did you ever give Dexter money to run a game with?"

"Never. I tell you I never was in de place—by ladder or fire escape."

Kenna denied all knowledge of gambling in any of the dozen or more places concerning which the committee inquired.

"How about pool selling and policy games?"

"I don't know nothing about such things."

"Do you know if any slot machines are running?"

"Naw, I don't know."

"Is your saloon kept upon after midnight?"

"Yes, both of em."

"Ever any complaints of either of 'em?"

"Nope."

"You think there is ground for running all night saloons?"

"Cert, 'pecially in de downtown districts, where people work all night and need places where dey can get something to brace 'em up."

"Then you would make a distinction as to saloons running all night? Do you think that places like The Owl and The Social should be permitted to run after midnight?"

"Well, me and de Owl" (whose proprietor, Sol Van Praag, is "Hinky's" bitterest political enemy) "don't get along very well, and I won't say as to dat."

"How much did it cost you to secure your last election as alderman?"

"About six t'ousand ducats."

"Your salary in the council is $1,500 a year. How could you afford to spend so much for the sake of being elected?"

"Oh, well, de pleasure and excitement made up for it."

"How much are you worth?"

"Oh, quite a bunch. I won't go hungry for awhile."

The inquisitors could get no more definite reply as to "Hinky's" wealth. He declared that he did not know that the city game was conducted in the old Chicago Times building, owned by the estate of the elder Carter H. Harrison, the agent of which is the mayor's brother-in-law. He said he believed that the city civil service law was strictly adhered to and that all contracts were awarded to the highest bidder. "Hinky" left the witness stand in a blaze of glory and was the cynosure of admiring glances on all sides.

"Dey never touched me," he remarked to a friend as they adjourned for a high ball. "I may be a farmer, but it takes smoother geeses dan dose Rubes to 'row de hot air into me. Me, de easy mark! Oh, I guess not! When dem suckers led out for me solar plexus, I was ready wit' de right kind of a hot come back every time. Alderman Michael Kenna, de gazzaboy dat never turn down a friend, kin take care of himself. He may not always be so handy wid de talky-talk, but dere are times, dere are times."

A NAVIGABLE BALLOON.

Professor Hite's Remarkable Airship Being Built at Burlington, N. J.

An airship, the invention of Professor Charles Hite, who was with the Peary arctic expedition, is being built at the villa of Professor William D. T. Travis, near Burlington, N. J. The work is being done under the supervision of Professor Charles King, the aeronaut, who has made nearly 400 ascensions. The airship is protected by patents, and a company, of which Professor Hite is the head, has been organized for its manufacture. The balloon is a navigable balloon. The balloon will be cigar shaped, with car attachment, and will be driven by two powerful engines of diminutive size.

In the Hite invention the powerful fans will drive the balloon either up or down or to the right or left in any current of air and make the length of the trip optional with the voyagers. The engines which will operate the fans are marvels in themselves. They are 20 inches long, 16 inches wide and 6 inches high and comparatively light. The motive power is carbon-dioxide, which is made of chimney soot. One engine alone is sufficiently powerful to operate the machinery of a rolling mill. The engines are at Trenton, where it is likely the test will be made early in June. A small model of the airship was given a successful test in Philadelphia.—Special to New York World.

ELKS' UNIQUE COSTUME.

Cincinnatians to Startle Their Brethren at St. Louis.

Cincinnati Elks, who will soon go to the annual convention and conclave at St. Louis 200 strong, feel confident that they will capture the prize offered for the most unique costume. The aggregation from Cincinnati will be clothed in a somewhat gorgeous make up, which will be fully as novel and attractive as it is "lond."

It will be a golf uniform, composed of cross plaid knickerbocker stockings, white canvas shoes, white shirts and belts, bright red coats or jackets, with caps to match the trousers material. Each Cincinnati Elk thus attired will carry a golf stick for a cane. The costumes will be kept in suit cases until an hour before the big parade, when they will be "sprung."

There is a suspicion that a prize for the largest representation will also come to Cincinnati, as there is still a scramble among the members of the Cincinnati lodge to join the ranks of the local contingent to the St. Louis meeting.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Disposition of Our Dead Soldiers.

Three hundred metallic caskets have arrived at Manila on the Morgan City, to be used for conveying back to the United States for burial the bodies of deceased soldiers. Experienced undertakers have been brought out to do the work. Most of the dead have been buried in Paco cemetery, a high and dry tract near the city, and all graves have been carefully marked. Many have been placed in niches in the wall. There are about a half hundred graves at Cavite, near the military hospital, which are in low, wet ground, but the hardwood coffins are no doubt still in good condition. With the exception of those who have died of smallpox, there will be no special difficulty in sending home the bodies of all who have died or been killed. The bodies will be delivered to the relatives wherever desired, and all those not so delivered will be buried in a national cemetery, possibly in California. —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

In the Time of the Rose.

Now that the crimson rose is queen once more—
There stirs within my heart the keen desire
To see the morning touch with golden fire
The slender minarets by the Pharpar shore;
To amid the byways that I trod of yore
Amid the chattering merchants come from Tyre,
Beyrout and Bagdad, and to hear the choir
Of passionate bulbuls at the night's dim door.
Thus both the rose impel me, being kin,
To bloom as I plucked in gardens Damascus—
In bygone days when all the earth seemed fair;
And through the dreams that I am tangled in Gilds one with her bewitching orient glen.
The rose of love red woven in her hair!

A Plea for Expressmen.

Editors of the Ledger:

I want to say in your paper a few words for the hardest worked class of people it has ever been my privilege to meet. I am not an expressman nor an expressman's wife but I have often seen their teams on the street at eleven and sometimes nearly twelve o'clock at night. I have had parcels delivered at my house at that hour, therefore I know of what I write. If the express agents of this town would consider what it is for a man to be on duty for seventeen or eighteen hours every day in the week, they would ease up on their employes, and lighten their burden by a few hours. They will perhaps say that their men do not like their hours they can leave. A man who has a family cannot leave his work and risk letting his children starve but must keep on his exhausting toil until he falls by the way. If express agents would only remember the golden rule, of doing unto others as you would have them do by you, conditions would be better. G. T. S.

Pawnee Bill Coming.

To our amusement loving people we make the announcement that Pawnee Bill's Historical Wild West show is coming to Quincy on June 21st.

The Charleston Sun says, the combined shows of Pawnee Bill, which exhibited here yesterday, is first-class in every respect; as a lifelike portrayal of savage modes, it has no equal requiring 100 genuine Indians, brave cow boys, noted scouts trappers and Pawnee Bill's humanely educated mustangs. The performances of the trained animals were excellent, and equal to any ever exhibited in this city. May Lillie's shooting is wonderful, and the riding and driving of 35 wild mustangs are all grand features. The wild buffaloes and long-horned Texas steers, the grand Mexican Hippodrome races, by seniors and seniors, are most wonderful and exciting. Taking it all in all it is one of the best shows that ever visited our city.

Castle Square Theatre.

For next week the attraction at the Castle Square theatre will be Charles Hoyt's comedy "A Midnight Bell," which has always been a success wherever it has been played in this country. Fowler; Squire Olcott, J. L. Seely; Martin Tripp, Eugene Canfield; Nora Fairford, Maudie Odell; Dot Bradbury, Mary Sanders; Miss Lizzie Groat, Fanny Addison Pitt; Annie Grey, Marian A. NEW DEVICES FOR FIRES

Innovations Introduced by Mr. Wight at Washington.

NOISELESS ALARMS AND BICYCLES.

The Wheels Expected to Be Useful in Putting Out Fires at the Start and in Saving Life—Megaphones on Trial Too—Telephones and Electric Lights For Firemen.

District Commissioner Wight has charge of the police and fire departments of Washington. They are his special hobbies, and since he has been in control he has introduced a number of innovations. The most spectacular of these is the mounting of firemen on bicycles.

Commissioner Wight found that several companies were frequently called out to attend to insignificant fires, and in every case where an alarm was sounded all the firemen on duty in the engine houses were disturbed by the changing of the gong. It was formerly the rule that when an alarm was sounded the horses were hooked up to the engines and trucks and the firemen routed out, so that every engine in the city was ready to respond to the alarm. At the conclusion of the striking of the alarm those engines which were not required were unhocked and the firemen returned to their beds. Mr. Wight saw the uselessness of having all the firemen in the city turned out of their beds when only a small number of them were required to attend a fire, so he introduced the system of the noiseless alarm. At each engine house a watchman is on duty all day and all night at a desk where the fire alarms are announced on an indicator. If he sees an alarm to which his company must respond, he turns a switch and the next call comes on a large gong. While there is thus a delay of a few moments, so far it has caused no damage, and the firemen have secured undisturbed repose.

Noting the success of the bicycle police, Commissioner Wight decided to mount some firemen on bicycles. A fireman was selected at each engine house and mounted on a bicycle. Whenever his company is called out, he precedes it to the fire. A man mounted on a bicycle can make much better time over the asphalted streets than a pair of horses drawing a heavy engine loaded with two or three men. In many cases, such as that of the Windsor hotel fire in New York, when lamps are overturned or draperies catch fire, the presence of an experienced man with the necessary appliances would prevent disastrous fires by extinguishing the flames at an early stage. It is estimated that the firemen on bicycles should be able to reach a fire on an average three minutes before their company. In cases where four or five companies respond to an alarm this system will bring that number of men to the scene before the companies can reach it, and by a little quick work they may often be able to accomplish a great deal before the engines arrive and get to work. Each bicycle fireman will carry a small tank of chemical fire extinguisher on his back, and he may also carry a light pick.

The latest innovation went into service the other day. It is the use of a megaphone, which will be wielded by Assistant Fire Chief Belt. Mr. Wight noticed that on many occasions where tall buildings were burning or where the confusion was great it was almost impossible for the firemen to understand the orders of the chiefs, and each was therefore compelled to act almost entirely on his own responsibility. On one occasion, owing to this very cause, several firemen were killed by the falling of a floor when the chief was attempting to warn them of their danger and failed because they did not hear him. The megaphone is 15 inches in length, and with it there should be no difficulty in making orders heard. It is expected that each of the firemen will be equipped with a megaphone and probably each of the bicycle firemen.

Since Commissioner Wight inaugurated this series of reforms he has received a great many more or less sensible suggestions. It is suggested that each of the bicycle firemen, in addition to his fire extinguisher and pick, shall carry a miniature scaling ladder. By this means four or five bicycle firemen would form a small fire department armed with picks, ladders and fire extinguishers and answering all the purposes of engines, chemical engines, reels and trucks. Another suggestion is that each of these bicycle firemen shall carry a folding ladder of light but very strong steel links. This would be of service at hotel fires and others where the burning buildings contain a number of people. The bicycle fireman, arriving on the scene early, could nimbly climb to the top of the building, fasten his steel folding chain ladder to a projection, lower it within easy reach of the windows, and thus rescue women and children who otherwise might have no means of escape.

In view of the danger of the firemen losing their way in the dense smoke and thus imperiling their lives, it has been suggested by one ingenious citizen that each fireman should be equipped with a small signal service telephone. This inventor suggests that on the backs of the firemen shall be mounted a small reel of wire which can be attached to a receiver at the ground, and as the fireman dashes into the building the wire will gradually unwind. The fireman could have a receiver and transmitter through which he could communicate with the chief on the ground. Thus if there were any danger of a wall or floor falling the fireman could be notified by the chief, and he could also report to the chief his discoveries as to the location of the fire and its progress without leaving the building for that purpose. If he found himself in danger of being overcome by smoke or should be injured, he could communicate with his chief and describe his position so that his rescue could be effected more easily. When the fireman left the building, the wire could be wound again on the coil by means of a powerful spring.

A great difficulty has always been the securing of a light for use in rooms filled with smoke. It has been suggested that each fireman should carry in the pocket of his rubber coat a small storage battery and a lantern containing a 16 candle incandescent bulb, which, it is believed, would be much more efficient than the ordinary fireman's lantern.—New York Sun.

—Mount Wachusett, which will become state property as soon as the necessary formalities can be completed, will make a beautiful and picturesque addition to the numerous reservations already held by the state. Under the provisions of the act providing for its acquisition the commission is authorized to purchase 10,000 acres of land, which will include the whole mountain and its approaches. Mt. Wachusett is located not far from the geographical centre of the state, and it commands a birdseye view of the greater portion of the Commonwealth, for while the summit is not far above the surrounding country, the altitude of the region is great. On a clear day vessels may be plainly seen in Boston harbor.—Milford Gazette.

—That American sailors are the best in the world is the opinion of the naval attaché of the German Embassy at Washington, who is an expert. This is not news to Americans, but it is an unusual acknowledgment from a foreigner.—Pawtucket Gazette.

ENGINEER LOST HIS TEETH.

It Took an Hour to Find Them, and the Train Was Held.

Charles Burt of Portsmouth, O., is the oldest engineer in the service on the Portsmouth division or branch of the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern railroad. He has had continuous service for 40 years, having fired the first engine that turned a wheel on the Scioto and Hocking road, the original name of the "branch." Consequently Charley comes near having things his own way.

Several days ago when his engine, attached to the mixed train, was rocking along at the rate of 35 miles an hour, he leaned out of the window of the cab to sneeze. The force of the sneeze threw his false teeth out alongside the right of way. As soon as possible the engine was stopped and then backed up to the scene of the sneeze, where the train crew and passengers turned out to hunt for the missing teeth.

The search required over an hour before being successful, and all trains on the division were held out for that length of time. But Charley needed his teeth in his business, and that was a sufficient excuse.—Special to Cleveland Plain Dealer.

New Salute For Kansas Heroes.

A meeting was held in Governor Stanley's office at Topeka, Kan., the other day to suggest an appropriate sign of recognition for the members of the Twentieth Kansas when they return from Manila. As soon as the regiment arrives Governor Stanley will ask the boys to make the uplifting of the right arm, with the two first fingers open, as their sign of recognition.

"Every schoolboy in the land who has attended a country school in the summer months will know what this means," said the governor. "It simply means 'Let's go swimming.' The Twentieth Kansas has proved to the world that it can swim." It was the Kansas regiment which crossed the river and drove the rebels from Calumpit.—Exchange.

Four Killed and Thirty Wounded, While Enemy's Loss Is Four Hundred.

Washington, June 12.—The war department yesterday received a report from Major General Otis of the military movement Saturday to the south of Manila, for the purpose of clearing out the rebels in that section. It shows that the movement was a great success
and that the enemy's loss was heavy.
General Otis' cablegram is as follows:
"Terrible heat yesterday did not permit troops to reach positions at hours designated; enabled a majority of insurgents to escape in scattered organizations south and westward, which they effected during the night. Movement great success, however; enemy disorganized and routed, suffering heavy loss; troops resting today at Las Pinas
and Paranaque. Navy did excellent execution along shore of bay, but many insurgents detachments retire in that direction, protected by presence of women and children, whom they drive along with them. Our loss four killed and some 30 wounded. Report of casualties later. Conservative estimate of enemy's loss about 400."

Detailed despatches from Manila say that the Filipino occupation of the province of Cavite has been broken and, as the result of the present movement, the Americans now control the important coast towns of Paranaque and Las Pinas,
while a long line of insurgent trenches,
facing our south line, has been cleared.
The insurgents have again proved their facility as dodgers, between 3000 and 4000 warriors, who seemed destined to be captured, having disappeared, the majority sliding away under cover of the night, after fighting the Americans all day. Some others came to meet our troops, with protestations of friendship.
The Thirtieth infantry lost one man killed and six wounded; the Ninth infantry one man killed and four wounded;
the Fourteenth infantry three wounded,
and the First Colorado volunteer regiment 11 wounded.

Saturday's work was the hardest our army has seen. The battlefield stretched out across the entire isthmus from Laguna de Bay to the harbor. While the troops were advancing the army gun-boat Napidan, in the river near Taguig,
killed several Filipinos.

The United States monitor Monadnock, and the gunboat Helena shelled Para-naque and Las Pinas all day with the full power of their batteries.

The rebel sharpshooters kept in hiding
until the American lines had passed and then endeavored to pot stragglers from the trees. Thanks to their poor marksmanship, this was without result.

The whole country proved to be a succession of small hills, with boggy ground between the high, thick grass, and bushes in the hollows, which greatly
added to the difficulty of the advance,
but gave shelter that saved many from the enemy's bullets. Our men threw away their blankets, coats and even haversacks, stripping to the waist and trusting to luck for food. Water could not be obtained and there was much discomfort after the canyons were emptied.

At the outset the Colorados, the Ninth infantry and the Twenty-first infantry
forced the line of insurgent trenches,
wheeled to the left and drove the enemy
toward the lake. During the maneuver the Filipinos, in concealed trenches on the right, opened an enfilading fire, but
the brigade, partly owing to high grass,
had few hit.

The Ninth infantry crept around to the right, flanking the trenches, driving out
the Filipinos and killing many of them.
The Colorado regiment advanced to the lake. Two companies encountered trenches on top of a knoll, where the Filipinos stood waist high above a trench, pouring a volley upon the advancing Americans. The Colorados charged and drove them out, Lieutenant Colonel Moses being wounded in the arm
as he jumped into the trench.

In the meantime General Wheaton's column advanced one and a half miles toward Paranaque, where the Americans found a strong trench on a ridge, out of which they drove the Filipinos by hard fighting.

The enemy tried to flank the dismounted troops of the Fourth cavalry, accompanying Major General Lawton, and, at the same time, they made their only advance, throwing a skirmish line to flank

the Fourteenth infantry. But they were easily repulsed, the American artillery
coming to the crest of the hill and shelling them.

About 3 o'clock in the afternoon General Wheaton's brigade, headed by General Lawton, circled to the south of Las Pinas, encountering a large force of Filipinos in the shelter of the trees.
General Lawton had a narrow escape.
In the first volley of the enemy the horses
of three of his staff officers were shot
from under them. The Colorado regiment bore the brunt of this attack and dispersed the Filipinos.

Hardly had they finished off that lot
when a large force appeared in the rear,
which the Ninth infantry and a part of the Colorado regiment drove away. By this time nearly the whole division was around Las Pinas. The Americans camped for the night south of the town
and in the midst of a heavy rain.

At 6 o'clock Sunday morning General Wheaton advanced upon Las Pinas with a troop of cavalry, the Twenty-first infantry, the Colorado regiment, part of the Ninth infantry and two mountain guns, crossing two streams and entering the town without firing a shot. He then advanced upon Paranaque.

The women and children, and, for that matter, many men, remained in the town. No houses were destroyed, though many were torn by the shells from the warships. Everywhere the Americans found white flags flying.

So far as can yet be ascertained the Filipino loss is about 50 killed, about 350 wounded and 20 taken prisoners.

The whole country is now worked with trenches and the enemy scurried from shelter to shelter. Long trains of commissary wagons are carrying provisions to the United States troops along the road which only Saturday was the stronghold of the enemy, and the natives, who yesterday were probably carrying arms, are today doffing their hats and greeting the Americans with effusive
greetings of welcome.

The Colorado regiment returned to barracks in Manila last night. As the ragged and dusty men marched past the Luneta, the fashionable gathering place
for Manila, they were heartily cheered.

A DAY OF UNEASINESS.

But Sunday Passed in Paris Without Serious Demonstrations.

Fifteen Thousand Men as Peace Preservers.

President Practically Drove Through Double
Hedge of Steel to Race Course.

Paris, June 12.—Yesterday was an anxious day for M. Loubet and M.
Dupuy; but, except for a few frothy demonstrations outside of one or two newspaper offices during the evening, everything passed off satisfactorily and at 1 a. m. the boulevards, which were very animated before midnight, began to empty and Paris was going to bed with an easy mind.

The anti-Dreyfusite papers vainly try to magnify into a fearful and frightful anarchist riots. The Solr, by such headlines as "A grand Prix of anarchists and peace agents" and "A very expensive president," seeks to make out that the whole demonstration is in favor of M.
Loubet was "manufactured by the police
with the assistance of the anarchists."
It declares that "the country is paying dearly for a president who reads an essay of 35,000 soldiers and policemen
whenever he leaves the Elysee."

There is no doubt that the fear of disorders kept many society people away from Longchamp. This is shown by the receipts in the "mutuels," which were 1,330,000 francs below those of last year's grand prix.

When President Loubet drove to Longchamp yesterday to attend the grand prix, he was the hero of a great popular demonstration, expressing its self in one form or another along the whole route from the Elysee palace to the race course. He remained only a quarter of an hour, just long enough to witness the race, and, having congratulated the owner and winner, returned to the Elysee, where he arrived at 4 o'clock
without special incident.

The revisionists and socialist organs summoned their readers to assemble along the thoroughfares to be traversed
by the president and his party; and from the hour of noon thousands of demonstrators set out from the working class quarters in big organized bands, all bearing a small, artificial red flower in the buttonhole, and marched across Paris, taking up positions along the Avenue des Champs-Elysees and the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne. They gave
M. Loubet a tremendous ovation, confusing their cries almost entirely to "Vive Loubet" and "Vive la Republique."

The president did not hear a discordant cry, although there were one or two suffles before and after he passed between the police and an occasional hot-headed anti-Dreyfusard.

Although the visit passed off quietly,
the government was prepared for every eventuality, the whole district between the Elysee and Longchamp literally teeming with troops and police. A policeman was stationed every dozen yards along the whole route, and there were squadrons of dragoons armed with lances
and mounted republican guards at all important points while, through the green foliage of the Bois, on each side of the avenue, could be seen heavy masses of red and blue, denoting the presence of detachments of soldiers, awaiting orders.

Longchamp resembled a military camp. Battalions of infantry, squadrons of dragoons and republican guards
were distributed all around the course.
It is estimated that there were 15,000 soldiers and police under arms.

M. Loubet practically drove through a double hedge of steel. A line of infantry even stood around the race course between the public and the course, on which no one was allowed to walk between the races, while several republican guards patrolled the course itself.

The president left the Elysee at 2 o'clock in an open landau, with Premier Dupuy beside him, and General Bailloud, chief of the presidential household, and Major Bon, lieutenant colonel of horse artillery, attached to the person of the president. Mme. Loubet followed in a second landau, after which rode the presidential suite in other carriages.
The famous outrider, Montjard, preceded M. Loubet, whose landau was drawn by four horses, with a couple of postillions, and escorted by a picked body of cuirassiers. All were men of fine physique and formed a splendid cavalcade.

The two leading cuirassiers rode with revolvers in hand, with fingers on the trigger, and carefully watched each side of the road; while, beside the carriage,
ran a number of policemen, rendering it absolutely impossible for anybody to approach.

On arriving at the race course the president drove through the paddock to the presidential box. Municipal guards and police lined the path across the paddock. Drums beat and trumpets blared when M. Loubet appeared in the front of the box and a scene of intense enthusiasm followed, lasting several minutes,
with an uproar of shouts of "Vive Lou-bet" and "Vive la Republique," which settled finally into a monotonous chant.

The president sat bowing and smiling,
with Mme. Loubet at his side, in a cream lace dress. A portion of the crowd in the paddock stood up on their chairs and sticks at the smartly attired people in the jockey club stand adjoining the president's box, but the club men, beyond returning disdainful glances, made no retort.

M. Loubet and his party were so completely surrounded by guards and police that it would have been impossible for anyone to get within 10 yards of the steps of the box.

ABOUT RETAILING SHIRTS.

SOME good, but misguided women, who own good husbands, try to lessen
the worries of those same husbands by doing some of the personal purchasing. In a great many instances it is a great help, for it is due to the good taste displayed by wives that many husbands are becoming clothed.
But once in a while the insatiable bargain fever strikes deep into the souls of some of these same wives. They run over the Sunday newspapers and cut out some of the whole page "ads" and the following week they rush in town to buy some alleged bargains in Shirts at less than the cost of the Button Holes.
These Shirts are retailed for from 9c to 20c, and sometimes they have to be retailed again in order that a man may wear them as long as he wants to.

It does make a woman wish she could use a few of those emphatic words
that her husband uses to express his feelings when she has to sit down and sew
four or five inches of cloth around the bottom of one of those shirts. Not so much for ornament as for use. Our Shirts are cut full and long and wide, and after we retail 'em you won't have to retail 'em again.

Our 50c Shirts are made with attached and detached collar and cuffs, and
some of them have two collars and two cuffs.

Then we have the Cheviots and Madras and Silk Fronts from 75c to $1.00.

Our Shirts are Honest Shirts.

In the Ledger of June 2 in a communication relating to the Houghs Neck electric it was inadvertently stated that the car due to leave the Neck at 4:20 passed a "down" car at the turnout and had ample opportunity to miss the Boston train. Supt. Weeks states that there was no down car at that time and no Boston train could be missed as there was none due to leave until 5:12, therefore we make with pleasure this correction. Mr.
 Weeks says that he has had very little complaint from the Houghs Neck people and that the new turnout will afford them ample time to catch the Boston trains.

Drift of Opinion.
 New York city hunger and thirst for the two great national conventions next year. It'll never trap
 Bryan into any such arrangement,— Milford Journal.

Admiral Sampson's idea is that the navy should be doubled and that the army should be kept just as it is.
 It is worth while to hear from him
 on this subject, but it is worth while to hear from men of the army and from men of neither army nor navy also.
 —New Bedford Standard.

Immigration is on the increase and there is the expectation that this year 250,000 people from Europe will come to the United States. Immigration always decreases under a Democratic administration and increases under a Republican control.
 Immigration is a sure index of the nation's prosperity.—Beverly Times.

Why should the country be prosperous if it cannot spend more money traveling? The money that well-to-do people scatter in Europe is in the main well spent. If they do not come back with new ideas and a broader horizon they are so stupid that it makes little difference what they spend their money for.—Chicago Daily News.

There is room in our opinion,
 to inquire whether the stimulus of society
 is not too early and too systematically brought to bear on the infants who through the educational nursery—
 whether it is well for children of three or four to be brought every day under the eye of, and more or less into competition with, a large number of companions of their own age. We doubt much whether it tends to simplicity of character, and we cannot but regard it as distinctly unfavorable to the development of individuality. The rule of fashion begins at once to operate with great intensity, and the child loses the power of conceiving life except in the head.—Popular Science Monthly.

Prescott Homestead.

The old Prescott house at Groton
 which was recently bequeathed to Miss Floretta Vining was built in 1792 or 93, by Oliver Prescott, Jr., a nephew of the Col. Prescott who commanded at Bunker Hill. From the possession of Prescotts it passed to the ownership of the Jacobs family, and it was a certain Elizabeth Jacobs, born in 1841, whose sampler, worked in silk
 when she was a little maid of 12
 years, hangs upon one of the paneled walls, who a few months ago, having done with this world's goods, bequeathed the house, with all its internal belongings and its external of hillside and meadow and woodland and stream, to her fortunate kinswoman, Miss Vining.

AN EX-SELECTMAN.

Death of George H. Locke, the Veteran Tax Collector.

Mr. George H. Locke, who is well known among the older residents of Quincy, and who was for many years prominently identified in the public affairs of the town, died at his residence on Washington street Sunday night, at the advanced age of 83 years.
 His death was due to a general breaking up of the system.

Mr. Locke was born in New Hampshire and came to Quincy when a young man locating at West Quincy.
 He was one of the early settlers of that district, West Quincy not having over a dozen houses, and a very uninviting place.

His first business was that as a general store which he opened in the building at the junction of Copeland
 and Crescent streets, in what was more recently known as the Farnum block.
 He later removed his store to the junction of Water and Granite streets
 in the building now occupied by Frank Brewer. Since retiring from the grocery business he has followed no regular business. He has been in poor health for some years and has been gradually failing.

Mr. Locke is perhaps best known as the veteran tax collector. His first service in this office was in 1862. He was again elected in 1868 and served in '69, '70, '71, '72, '73, and from 1877 until 1886, in all sixteen years.

His first public office was as a fire
 ward, to which he was elected in 1844, and served for eight years. He was a member of the board of selectmen and assessors in the years 1870 and 1871
 and the oldest ex-selectman of Quincy
 at the time of his death.

He was a town constable for eight years, having first been elected in 1876.
 He was also a member of the School Committee during the years 1853, 1856
 and 1857.

He was one of the incorporators of the Hall cemetery at West Quincy, and a member of the original lodge of Odd Fellows in Quincy. He leaves two daughters.

I. O. O. F. Memorial Day.

The respect of Odd Fellows for its dead was strikingly illustrated Sunday evening, when members of the great order and the Rebekahs crowded Christ church. The lodge encampment and canton members met at I. O. O.
 F. hall at 6 P. M., and there were in line members of Mt. Wollaston, John Hancock and other lodges; Manet and other encampments, and Canton Shawmut and other cantons. Marching at 6:45 to the Thomas Crane public library they were joined by members of Crescent lodge and Wompatuck encampment of Weymouth.

About 150 strong they marched via Washington street, City Square and Hancock street to Christ church. Large delegations from George L. Gill
 Rebekah lodge, of Quincy, Carrie E.
 Ruggles lodge of Wollaston, Steadfast lodge of Weymouth, and Amarna lodge of Braintree, were assembled at the church.

It was the regular evening service
 at the church, but there was a special address by the rector, Rev. Walter Russell Breed. Preceding the sermon
 Miss Grace L. Mitchell of East Weymouth, the deputy of George L. Gill Rebekah lodge read the necrology, the only death during the year, having been Sister Rebecca A. Burke. It was a touching and worthy tribute to a faithful member.

Rev. Mr. Breed was pleased to welcome the Odd Fellows to the church,
 and wished he might have them annually in a body. He spoke mainly to the living, that they might be prepared for death. Do we take account of our lives and how well we are fitted for the hereafter. Man has a social relation, and the preacher spoke of the relations to God, to neighbor and to self.

A Gala Day for the Editors.

Ex-President A. E. Winship of the Journal of Education, Boston, has invited the Suburban Press Association

 Boston on Tuesday, June 13. Mrs.
 Winship has invited the Association to take coffee and sandwiches with her at noon at their residence in Somerville.
 The route of the drive will be over the boulevards in Malden, in Medford,
 by the Mystic Lake and through Somerville and Cambridge to the does a good thing for himself but will do a good thing for all these places as they will come more into prominence

 through the newspapers. Every town same thing. Register.

PERHAPS SO, BUT

Courts May Have Something to Say on Boynton's Latest.

Now Moody Boynton has the cheek
 to tell Quincy people that there will be no stations on his railroad in this city and that only through trains will be run. In an interview in the Globe in reply to the question "Have you found your system popular?" he said:

"Yes; we have held 40 public meetings and hearings and except in Quincy and Braintree, it has been unanimous in favor of our location.
 There were four votes against us in Braintree at the legal citizens' meeting and a hundred times that number in our favor. The location in Quincy has been accepted for our through expresses that will not stop until they reach Brockton, Taunton and Fall River. Should the people of Quincy desire quick, elevated, dustless transit
 in five minutes from the heart of Boston, it is probable that we shall give it to them as authorized in our charter.
 In that case a somewhat longer route will be laid out to accommodate the citizens of Quincy and Weymouth, or we can place a shuttle train from Milton, through Quincy and Weymouth to the sea, under our charter."

"The route in the map through Quincy was selected in connection with the city engineer, and is desired by many large owners of real estate, and seems likely to be adopted."

"What is likely to be the effect upon real estate in the vicinity of your locations?"
 "An enormous advance is certain.
 When cities as far as Brockton can be reached in from 10 to 20 minutes from the stock exchange, Boston, who can measure the benefits when extended to Providence, Fall River and New Bedford, for which charters have now been secured? Thus 600,000 people will have quicker access to Boston than some portions of West Roxbury."

"What will be the cost of building
 the 48 miles shown upon this map?"
 "About $2,500,000."

"Will there be any grade crossings?"
 "Certainly not. The location is almost exclusively upon private lands,
 after leaving Boston and Quincy.
 There is not a mile of the route over streets, which we will cross about 14
 feet above, the same as the Manhattan elevated, if such height is satisfactory to the railroad commissioners, whose approval is required for the right and strength, but not for location."

When work is commenced on construction it will be time for Quincy to bestir itself and secure its rights as to accommodations. Certainly the Boynton road has not the authority to construct a line through the city without stations, and it would not be profitable to build a railroad without stations. Is it a bluff?

The Cape Ann Challenger.

Thelma is the name selected for the Cape Ann challenger for the Quincy cup launched on Friday from the yard
 of Lawrence Jensen at Gloucester.
 The Globe says, Fred Pigeon, one of Gloucester's most enthusiastic yachtsmen, acted as master of ceremonies.
 Good luck to the yacht was the general expression while the craft slid gracefully into the water.

A crew of nine was quickly mustered the sails raised and a spin down the harbor taken. Capt. John Strum, who will probably be at the helm during the Quincy races, was at the tiller.
 She shot down the harbor like an arrow, and the crowds that watched her performance were outspoken in her praises and all were unanimous that she was the fastest piece of wood that ever represented Gloucester.

All hands were more than pleased with the showing, and are satisfied with the boat in every particular. She will be put through the process of tuning up, and it is the intention to take her to Boston tomorrow.

The Thelma as she has been christened, is a very jaunty boat, excellently built. She is 38 feet over all, 21 feet waterline, and 9 1-2 feet beam.
 She will draw about nine inches, and will carry a wooden centerboard with a nine-foot drop.

While she is of light construction,
 strength has been by no means neglected, and the finest materials have been used in her building. Her cross sections and braces are of the finest spruce, her frame is of oak, and she is planked with 3-8-inch Canada pine. Her wood finishings are of mahogany, and the metal work is of Tobin bronze.

A handsome solid spar of Oregon
 pine has been stepped and the sails include about 950 yards of canvas.
 Everything about the fittings is of the latest design.

Those familiar with the other new ones building for the Quincy series of races say that she is the least freakish
 of the lot, and is as promising, judged from appearances as any.

Drift of Opinion.

John H. Reagan, the only surviving member of the Confederate cabinet, says it is better for the south to be in the Union than to be out of it, adding another to the long list of similar testimonies from similar sources.—New Bedford Standard.

Will Science become as crowded, professionally, as the Law, Medicine and Gospel? There are 107 new "engineers," of various and sundry sorts launched on the world from "Teck." They have all got to have a living.—Lowell Courier.

If you will only have bare floors and rugs in your house there need never be a regular housecleaning period. The house will be cleaned from week to week, and carpet cleaning as an exceptional function will not be known.—New York Times.

It is suggested that our government refit the Reina Mercedes with new armor and good guns and present her to the queen regent of Spain. We have paid Spain fairly well already for the privilege of whipping her, and before we make her any presents let her give us back the Maine and our heroic dead sailors.—Burlington News.

Wellesley college is trying to lift a debt of $100,000. It is perfectly wonderful with what heavenly ease these classical institutions do roll up enormous debts. They ought to set a better example to their students in the direction of decent thrift and economy. "As the twig is bent the tree's inclined." Oh, has this good old axiom also been sent to the rear by our modern system of education?—Milford Journal.

Modern life has one wonderful phase unknown to former days. The universality of the telegraph and the newspapers enable us to be in truth citizens of the world. We are not satisfied now at night or morning unless we can read, hot from the press, the news of the current day from Manila, Hong Kong, the peace congress, Dreyfus matters, affairs in Spain, at Washington, Paul Kruger's latest ideas, Cuba's progress, and the scores of other matters, domestic and foreign. Such an age must make broader men.—Framingham News.

Connell Locked Up.

Officer McKay went to Watertown on Monday and arrested Patrick H. Connell of Wollaston, who was ordered committed to the county jail for twelve days, by Judge Humphrey last Saturday, for failing to comply with the order of the court in a civil case brought under the Dubuque law.

Connell was employed in the government arsenal, and claimed that as he was in the employ of the government and on United States ground and the court could not reach him. Inspector McKay went to the commander of the arsenal and stated his business and an officer was detailed to accompany Officer McKay to the machine shop where Connell was employed. He made a strong protest against being placed under arrest, but it was useless, and he unwillingly accompanied the officer to Dedham where he was locked up.

Worthy Tribute to Mr. T.

Henry Wason.

Every Good Cause Has

Met a Loss.

Flowers and Large Attendance

Testify to Appreciation.

Funeral services over the remains of Mr. T. Henry Wason, who died from injuries received on the railroad last week, were held Monday. There were prayers at his late residence on Goffe street at 2 o'clock, and public services an hour later at the Bethany Congregational church which were very largely attended.

Many of the sub-masters of the Boston schools were present among whom were Mr. Q. A. Dickerman, master of the Brimmer school; Mr. F. F. Courtney of the Quincy; Mr. Gustavus Guild of the Brimmer; Mr. E. Bentley Young of the Prince school; Mr. J. O. Norris of the High school; Chelsea; Mr. Edward Southworth of the Mather school; Mr. A. Lincoln of the Mather school; Mr. H. N. Andrews of the Chapman school; Mr. William L. Bates of the George Putnam school; Mr. J. Q. Litchfield of the Agassiz school; Mr. Orlando W. Dimmock of the Willis school and Mr. T. A. Mead of the East Boston school; Mr. Richard W. Walsh, truant officer of the Brimmer school; the teachers of that school and several of Mr. Wason's pupils. There were also present Miss Carrie E. Small of the Woodward Institute, Mr. Herbert W. Lull, superintendent of the Quincy schools and several of the masters of the Quincy schools.

The funeral cortege reached the church at 3 o'clock and the casket was borne down the centre aisle by the bearers, who were Messrs. P. A. Dickerman, F. F. Courtney, E. Bentley Young, Gustavus Guild, J. O. Norris and Edward Southworth, representing the Boston schools, and Mr. H. Walter Gray and Mr. Richard D. Chase representing the Bethany church.

They were preceded by Rev. Edwin N. Hardy, Rev. Edward Norton and Rev. G. H. Wadsworth, while following the casket were the mourners, teachers and pupils of the Brimmer school, and the directors of the Quincy Y. M. C. A.

As the procession proceeded slowly down the aisle, Rev. Mr. Hardy chanted "I am the Resurrection and the Life," and the organ gave forth the plaintive notes of the "Dead March in Saul."

The casket containing the remains was deposited directly in front of the altar, and surrounding it was a wealth of beautiful flowers which meekly told of the esteem in which he who lies silently before them was held by their donors. At the left of the altar was a large portrait of Mr. Wason surrounded by a wreath of flowers.

The exercises were of a very touching nature and opened with a fervent prayer by Rev. Mr. Hardy, to which the quartette of the sub-masters club, composed of Mr. A. A. Lincoln, Mr. H. N. Andrews, Mr. J. Q. Litchfield and Mr. William L. Bates responded with Beethoven's "Heavenly Father."

Rev. Mr. Hardy then briefly spoke in eulogy of Mr. Wason. He spoke of him as a leader of every good cause. We live in deeds not words. He lives most who thinks most, feels the noblest acts the best. He has been a living object lesson of true greatness. Quincy will be very, very lonesome without him. We will be lonesome in the Bethany church. We shall miss him at the communion table where he has been for a quarter century. They will miss him at the Y. M. C. A. We shall feel lonely as we unite against the drink curse. Every good cause in Quincy has met a loss in him. His influence shall abide with us, for though dead, he yet speaketh. We ought to be thankful that such a life has lived among us.

Mr. J. O. Norris a personal friend for forty years spoke feelingly of his long and pleasant acquaintance with Mr. Wason. He spoke of him as he knew him, of his first meeting at the academy where he had come as a farmer's boy to begin a course of study. It was a week after entering that he first met Mr. Wason. He was struck by his appearance and he looked up to him with admiration. He was a ready speaker, sound in argument and had an abundant flow of language. He told of their visits and how well he had come to know him, and he could remember nothing but good. He was calm, helpful and pure in speech and thought. Never seeking to avoid any responsibilities. Mr. Norris also briefly referred to Mr. Wason's home life and the regard he had for his mother. He never heard him speak in a harsh way of any person. He admired in Mr. Wason that steadfastness of purpose, that firmness to do right and he could see the powerful influence he silently exerted. He never valued himself at his true worth. He was not ashamed of his trade and he will live in the hearts of those who love him and will always be a blessing to all who ever knew him.

The quartette then rendered, "Still, Still With Thee."

Rev. G. H. Wadsworth of Rutland, Vt., spoke of the strange coincidence that he should be on his way to see Mr. Wason on the day of the accident, and that he should have come on the train following that upon which Mr. Wason came. He was glad of the privilege to sympathize and to shed a tear with those that the keen edge of the sword had so sorely wounded. Glad to speak a few words as to his worth. Rev. Mr. Wadsworth then spoke of his sixteen years friendship with Mr. Wason, who he first met in the Bible school at this church. He was worthy of the highest tribute. He was a Christian man. His sympathy was not only American but international. With him it was a man's a man for all that. He taught him to look not upon one side of a subject but upon four sides. He also spoke of the help and inspiration that Mr. Wason had been to him.

Mr. Edward Southworth spoke of Mr. Wason as one of his most intimate friends. One of whom he had known as a teacher, and with whom he had passed several vacations. He had always found him a true and tried friend. One who always gave you a hearty greeting and made you feel at home. One of the first to cross the threshold in sickness. He was earnest and conscientious, always seeking the best interest. He was one who could bring out the best. Mr. Southworth also spoke of Mr. Wason's life and characteristics. He taught us how to put value into our living, hope into our death.

Rev. Edward Norton said the whole community had said during the past few days he was a good man. He had stood beside him for more than a score of years and could testify to his worth. He knew few so loyal, so ready to give beyond his strength. He knew him as a Christian man, and he thanked God that his goodness would remain. There are lives that will be better by the love of this brother. When a life like this ends have we not something more than speculation of the future. He had seen few so faithful to the many, and being dead he yet speaketh.

The quartette then sang "Father in Thy Mysterious Presence."

An opportunity was then given those who wished to take a last long look at the face of him who in life they had known so well and then the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Hardy.

The burial was at Mt. Wollaston and was private.

Among the floral tributes were: Wreath of roses, ferns, chrysanthemums and Easter lilies from the brothers and nephews of the deceased; bouquet of ferns, ivy and stephanotis, from the Marsh family; a bunch of Easter lilies from Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Chase; bouquet of pinks and ferns from the Bible school of the Bethany Congregational church; cross of roses from the sub-masters club; wreath of roses and lilies from Mrs. Sarah Donovan and sons; bunch of peonies from Mr. and Mrs. Cudihy; pillow of lilies and white roses marked "Our beloved teacher" from the pupils of the Brimmer school; pillow of pinks from Mrs. F. H. Cudihy; and a circle and triangle of pinks and roses from the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A.

Enjoyable Bicycle Run.

Twenty-three wheelmen of Wollaston, captained by Mr. J. C. Hall and paced by Mr. George Stebbins made a run to lake Nippinick, Raynham, Sunday.

Leaving Wollaston at 6:30 A. M., they passed through the pleasant towns and cities of Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook, Randolph, Brockton and Bridgewater, arriving at the lake a distance of 26 miles at 9 o'clock.

The time consumed on the road is good evidence that the trip was taken for healthful recreation, rather than to "scorch" and try to see who could ride out of their boots first.

Many of the party enjoyed rowing on the lake while "some others" who by no means can be considered "old men" found pleasure in other pastimes that called for less physical exertion.

A delicious and generous clam dinner was served in a neat manner, after which the party enjoyed a lay off in the beautiful grove adjoining. The roads were good and no accidents happened save a puncture to one of the tandems. There were four tandems and fifteen singles.

The following named participated: J. C. Hall, George Stebbins, C. J. MacDonald, Lester MacDonald, E. A. Mansfield, Leonard Addison, Pete Flood, Levi Elia, J. Hall, Jr., Charlie Hall, A. W. Lindholm, Harry MacNeil, Freeman Douglas, Eddie Riley, Mr. Fuller, Wallace Todd, Bert Thomas, Leslie Smith, Dave Howe, Mr. Poole, Clyde Saunders, William Seaman, Frank Finnigan.

At Milton, Monday afternoon, the barn on the estate of Michael Gibbons on Thatcher street was totally destroyed and the house badly scorched. Loss $1200.

GREAT TRAVELLERS.
Monmouth California Ex-
cursionists.

Have Their Annual Reunion at Quincy.

Enjoy Our History, Our Industry,
Seashore and Shore Dinner.

Newspaper editors are becoming known as great travellers, and it may well be applied to the Massachusetts fraternity. Thirty years ago they began in a small way and took an outing of a day or two in their own State, then annually extended the time and visited all points of interest in New England, in the Middle States, to Washington, Canada and the Provinces, and of late several have enjoyed the pleasures of the National Editorial Association, and auxiliary trips to California, Yellowstone Park, Mexico, Florida and elsewhere. One of the most enjoyable of these annual outings
was the trip of 1892 to California, when Mr. George W. Prescott of this city was one of the car load of New England excursionists. So pleasant were the associations of that trip that annual reunions have since been held.

On Monday therefore the "Monmouth California Tourists," as they style themselves, were the guests of their president of 1893, Mr. Prescott, and Quincy was observed by critical eyes, and they will tell their readers
of their impressions.

They entered the quaint old First church, beneath whose porch rest the remains of President John Adams and President John Quincy Adams and their wives, and read with interest
the mural monuments. They admired
the Thomas Crane Public Library, exterior and interior, and were later entertained at the residence of Mr.
Prescott on Spear street.

About noon a special electric car was boarded, which was at their service all the afternoon. The editors were first taken to the birthplace of President John Adams and then the birthplace of President John Quincy Adams. The old houses and the relics preserved by the Daughters of the Revolution and the Quincy Historical society were examined with interest.

Speeding on to West Quincy a trip
was much enjoyed over the Quincy quarry railroad to the plant of the Lyons Granite Co. It is to be regretted that more Quincy people have not had the pleasure of taking this trip over the mountain. The bracing air, grand panoramic view and model granite plant, are all worth enjoying, and it was a great treat which Supt. Anderson gave the editors.

The electric car ride and scenery
en route to Squantum were enjoyed,
and the Squantum Inn and its location
were pronounced all right. Editors do not have a good dinner and they have had many excellent ones, but at the same time there have been many exceptions to this rule. To the credit of Joseph Lee, the proprietor of the Inn, be it said, that the dinner which he served was declared by some to have been the best they ever ate. The service was excellent and the menu follows:

Steamed Clams Clam Chowder
Bisque of Clams Fish Chowder
Broiled Bluefish Haddock a la Roubidou
Fried Clams au Gratin Lobster Newberg
Cucumbers Lettuce String Beans
Mashed Potatoes Sliced Tomatoes
Saratoga Chips
Ice Cream Sherbet
Assorted Cake Crumb Pudding
Tea Coffee Crackers and Cheese

President Prescott presided at the post prandial exercises which were brief. Letters of regret were read from the few absent ones, and officers elected for the ensuing year. H. B.
Hale of Hartford, Conn., is the new president, J. S. Smith of Rockland vice president, and Miss Barrows of Jamaica Plain secretary-treasurer.

A vote of thanks was passed to all those who extended favors during the day, including Mr. Wilson Dew-hurst, the sexton of First church; Miss Bumpus, librarian of the library;
Supt. Weeks of the street railway;
Mrs. Titus, regent of the Daughters of the Revolution; Mr. W. G. Spear, librarian of the Quincy Historical society; Station Agent Roubidou at West Quincy; Supt. Anderson of the Quarry Railroad; and Mr. Joseph Lee of the Squantum Inn.

A vote of thanks to President Prescott and family was supplemented by three cheers and a tiger when the party separated at the Atlantic depot.
Come again.

In the party were:

Not All Compliments.
To the Quincy Ledger:
In your news items of the 12th inst.
you called attention to the compliments heaped upon Commissioner Cavanaugh from all sides, for the efficient work he is doing on the streets.

Permit me to inform you and your readers that the residents of Arlington and many other streets in Ward 5, are not heaping a large amount of praise
on your supposed efficient official.

Our street was in fine condition before the sewer was put through. Since then it has been in a wretched condition. All last winter it was not safe to drive out of my driveway into the street with a light sleigh, and since the snow left us, one would take about as much comfort driving through a stone quarry or over a mountain, as to drive through our street.

I called the attention of one of our Councilmen to the matter and he said
he had been trying for weeks to have something done and at last they had promised to attend to it next week. It is now more than six weeks and nothing done. I have had many of the stones removed from in front of my place at my own expense. Turn your worthy Commissioners' attention this way, please.

Chandler W. Smith,
17 Arlington street.

Strike at Hurricane Island.
A dispatch from Rockland on Monday to the Herald says, W. S. White, manager of Booth Bros. and the Hurricane Isle Granite Company, returned
this afternoon from Hurricane island,
where all work has been suspended by the 75 union granite cutters because of orders from the national union.
Some 40 cutters at Walldoboro quarries
have also suspended.

The union ordered the men to quit, claiming that J. P. Carlin & Co. are interested in the work, which is for government buildings at Annapolis,
and that the firm is elsewhere employing non-union men. Mr. White says that Mr. Carlin has no connection with the work, save that he was appointed by the government as the general contractor of the Annapolis buildings. There is a prospect that the work will be indefinitely suspended.

main until the 15th.

Mr. William Clark and family have returned to their summer residence on Washington street, at Porter.
Children's day was observed in the Porter M. E. church Sunday afternoon.
The church was very prettily decorated with potted plants and cut flowers.
On Wednesday evening, June 7, the residence of Mr. George Shaw was the scene of a pretty home wedding. The parties were Mr. Irwin B. H. Hawes and Miss Emma E. Shaw. The ceremony took place in the presence of the immediate family of the bride and groom. Rev. William Kirkby of the Porter M. E. church officiated. Congratulations were followed by refreshments, after which the couple left for their future home. The room was very prettily decorated with flowers.

—Once an individual or a community has acquired a habit it is a difficult matter for either to break
away from it, a fact which explains,
perhaps, why Fall River has again taken her soiled linen to Boston. It may be that in this particular instance
there was more excuse for the appeal to outside authorities than is usually the case, because the subject in hand
could not be very well settled at home,
but at the same time there appears to be very little consideration shown by certain of our inhabitants for the good name of the city.—Fall River Herald.

The leading railroads centering in
New York almost entirely use Chilton Paint. Chemists acknowledge its superiority and the practical painter appreciates that theory and practice in this case do not disagree.

These great corporations want the most durable article because they cannot afford to often stop their cars for the purposes of repainting.

Some railroads go even so far as to specify when having cars built that Chilton Paint, and only Chilton Paint, shall be used upon them, and bridge
engineers often specify that bridges
shall be painted only with Chilton Paint.
If these great corporations, who make a study of economical methods and materials, use Chilton Paint, can you afford not to profit by their experience?

FLOATING IN HARBOR.
Disembodied Portions of a Man's Body Give Evidence of Murder.

Butchery Was Neatly and Skillfully Performed.

But Little to Give a Clue to Identification of the Unfortunate.

New York, June 12.—Two other portions of the disembodied body of a man,
which was found floating near the Crescent Athletic club, were recovered
from the waters of the bay yesterday,
and these seem to indicate that a deliberately planned murder has been done
with even more cruelty and cunning than the butchery of William Goldensuppe. These two parts were the upper portion of the chest and the right arm.
The chest portion was still attached to the arm, and also the neck and lower portion of the head. The upper portion of the head was missing, just above the eyes, and the severing of the bones of the skull was so neatly and skillfully done that the police of Brooklyn and the coroner's office, who had previously held to the theory of mutilation by an ocean liner, are beginning to believe that it was deliberate butchery.

A coroner's physician Hartung made an examination of the parts discovered yesterday. They fitted so exactly with the portion of the corpse found Saturday that Dr. Hartung stated that all three belonged to the same body. On the breast and left arm there was nothing to give a clue to identification; a faint outline of his face and the color of the man's moustache were the strongest clues. The teeth were strong and even,
but on the right side of the upper jaw
two were missing.

The right arm also fitted to the disembodied portion found yesterday. On the inside of the forearm were tattooed
a crucifix, above which was a wreath of stars. On the right hand, between the thumb and forefinger, there was tattooed
an anchor with the flukes pointing to the bases of the thumb and forefinger.

From the general appearance of the man, when the parts were assembled,
he appeared to be about 35 years of age, 180 pounds in weight, a strong face and dark, brown, or black hair. He was strongly built, like an athlete. Photographs will be taken of the parts and sent broadcast.

The upper portion of the head and both legs below the knees are still missing.

A Peculiar Case.
Philadelphia, June 12.—After lying in a cataplectic state for 100 hours, Viola
M. Brown, aged 20 years, died yesterday in the German hospital. Her case had mystified some of the best medical minds in the city. Last Friday week she attempted to commit suicide by inhaling illuminating gas at her boarding house.
She was removed to the hospital and remained unconscious, save for a brief interval, until her death. That gas could produce that effect, the majority of physicians said, was impossible, and
the theory of cataplexy was advanced.
The posture of the patient, however,
showed an absence of the rigidity of that nervous disease. During her conscious intervals she denied taking any poisonous drug. An autopsy will be held.

Hoping for Clemency.
New York, June 12.—Belle Anderson's lawyer sent word to District Attorney Gardiner yesterday that she would plead guilty to the charge of kidnapping little Marion Clarke and become a state's witness. The district attorney sent for the girl, and in the presence of her lawyer, a deputy sheriff and assistant District Attorney Lebarrier, she made a full confession. It is said to have been practically the same as that made by her when she was arrested in New Jersey.
Through this confession the lawyer
hopes to obtain clemency for the woman.
He said she is weak minded and easily influenced, and is dying with consumption.

Six Thousand Out.
New York, June 12.—The striking children's jacket and knee pants makers
now number 6000. At a conference held between the contractors and the strikers at the headquarters of the children's jacket makers last night the contractors promised that they would not reopen their shops until the wholesale manufacturers had signed the agreement to advance wages to the union scale.

Confessed His Guilt.
Bellevue Falls, Vt., June 12.—Henry Gould of this place, aged 17, was taken to St. Johnsbury yesterday to answer charges of robbing the mails. Gould assisted his father in carrying mails to and from trains. It is charged that he took a letter containing $5 and another containing $24.77 in checks. Gould has confessed and returned the checks.

Lynching in Prospect.
Auburn, Ind., June 12.—Jacob Helms
of Garrett, confined in the county jail,
may be lynched. The prisoner is a widower with three children, and the crime of which he is accused is the assault upon two daughters of James Helms, aged 9 and 11 years, respectively.
Helms was arrested last night.

who died of pneumonia on May 22, while under the care of Kinter, were held by

DEATH IN ITS WAKE.

Wisconsin and Minnesota Visited by Severe Storm In Years.

Belief That Heavy Loss of Life Has Resulted.

Rivers Over Banks, Towns Flooded and General Devastation Everywhere.

Minneapolis, June 13.—One of the most terrific tornadoes ever witnessed passed through portions of Minnesota and Wisconsin yesterday. It seemed to follow the lake, but about two miles south of Hudson it veered to the east and left the lake and crossed the country. The storm passed on to the northeast, destroying everything in its wake, and was followed by rain in torrents and terrible lightning.

From neighboring cities and along the lines of railroads came news of rivers overflowing their banks, towns under water, dangerous washouts, great loss of life, bridges carried away and general devastation.

The storm developed into a veritable tornado in some sections, unroofing houses, overthrowing steeples and causing large loss of life. It has been difficult to verify the stories of death owing to the wires being down. It is said that the towns of Hastings and Hudson and New Richmond, Wis., have been swept by a fearful wind, working dreadful havoc on all sides. The reports from these places have been of a conflicting character.

The telegraph operators at Burkhart station, which is near New Richmond, report that that section of Wisconsin had been at the mercy of a tornado that developed unexpectedly and leveled everything in its path; great trees were uprooted, cattle killed and the loss of life in New Richmond alone was reported as being 250. This latter statement cannot be verified, as the wires are either down or working badly. It is known that there has been large loss of life, but that the figures will reach the appalling number of 250 seems too frightful to be believed. There has been great loss financially entailed upon the farmers and small retail dealers and small property owners. It may amount into the millions.

The storm passed over this city and Minneapolis without doing much damage other than flooding cellars and in this way ruining valuable goods stored in them. It split just beyond the twin cities, the dangerous part going north. The other portion bore to the southeast.

At Lacrosse, Wis., it was reported as the worst rainstorm in 17 years. All railway communication except on the C., B. and N. from South Dubuque and the Southern Minnesota division of the Milwaukee line has been cut off. Fifty families in North Lacrosse were compelled to desert their homes in boats. Much live stock was drowned. Nearly every bridge in the Lacrosse river valley is gone. There will be no mail trains on the Milwaukee, Chicago and Northwestern or Burlington roads to this city today.

At Winona, Minn., dams and bridges were swept away, including a stone arch bridge built to protect South Winona. The entire south side of the town is under water, and many families have been forced out on rafts. A large stone bridge over Gilmore creek was carried away. Every street in the city was flooded above the curbing and many families were driven out. The Mississippi has risen a foot and a half since Sunday and all wires are down. It is reported that the Chicago, Minnesota and St. Paul steel bridge at Minnesota City has gone down and great damage done at Fountain City.

Sixteen hours of rain at Black River Falls, Wis., caused much damage. On the Milwaukee railroad all passenger trains were transferred over the Omaha road on account of washouts. At Galesville a 20 hours' rain damaged crops and carried away bridges. Washouts on railroads are also reported. The water is so high in many places that people are moving to higher ground.

Two Wrongdoers Sentenced. —Boston, June 13.—In the superior criminal court yesterday Philip Carroll, an old soldier, homeless, without relatives or friends, was found guilty of assault and of breaking and entering. He was sent to the state prison for not more than 20 years nor less than 15 years. George A. Steele, a forger, came up to be sentenced for the third time. He was sent to the state prison for five to seven years. He was released last March after serving a sentence.

Triple Tragedy in Tennessee. —Dresden, Tenn., June 13.—In a shooting near here yesterday, Henry Fowler, a well-to-do farmer, was instantly killed; John Fowler, his brother, was fatally wounded, and a man named Reaman was dangerously hurt. The tragedy grew out of the circulation of scandalous reports in the neighborhood.

Mother and Son Drowned. —Albany, June 13.—The bodies of Mrs. John Quinn and her son, John, were found in the Hoosick river back of their home in Eagle Bridge yesterday. It is supposed the boy, who was about 15 years old, and was subject to fits, fell into the water, and that his mother, in trying to save him, was also drowned.

Weather Conditions and Forecast. Sun rises—4:07; sets, 7:22. Moon sets—11:01 p. m. High water—3 a. m.; 3:45 p. m.

Thunderstorms and rain have occurred in the middle and south Atlantic and Gulf states, upper lake regions, Missouri valley and north Pacific states. It has grown generally warmer from the Mississippi valley to the Atlantic coast. Fair and warmer weather may be expected in New England, with light southerly winds.

WEATHER AND CROPS.

Many Localities Are Still Suffering From Lack of Copious Rains.

Boston, June 13.—The United States department of agriculture, New England section, issues the following climate and crop bulletin for the week ending June 12:

The weather has been generally partly cloudy to cloudy, with an average amount of sunshine. Intense heat prevailed during the first part of the week, the daily mean temperature ranging from 10 to 20 degrees above the normal, with maxima of 90 to 95 degrees. The latter half of the week was considerably cooler. The weekly mean temperature for the district at large was 66 degrees, 2 degrees above the mean of the previous week.

The precipitation consisted mainly of local showers and rain on the 7th, insufficient in quantity to relieve the drought. In southern and northwestern Connecticut, western and central Massachusetts, little or no rain fell. The total fall in Rhode Island was very small. In other sections from .25 inch to .75 inch was recorded. The drought may be broken this week, as heavy rains have fallen south and west.

Our correspondents are practically unanimous in the opinion that the general situation has not improved. If anything, notwithstanding that showers occurred in numerous localities, which, under ordinary conditions, would have been sufficient for all needs. As it was, the ground greedily received all the rain that came, and would have readily absorbed a much more copious supply. If anything, the drought has increased, and crops on soil quickly affected by dry weather have ceased growing, and in many cases have gone backward. On the other hand, crops on moist soils have, in certain instances, made satisfactory growth, especially wheat. Many farmers are considering the advisability of cutting grass immediately, and, in fact, in some of the southern sections haying has already begun. In other sections corn is being extensively planted to replace grass. Streams continue low and falling. Cows are being milked, and stock is being fed at the barn. The outlook is assuredly of a discouraging character, and a serious crop shortage seems inevitable.

They Had No Fear.

Northfield, Vt., June 13.—Two of the men who led the party who tarred Putnam's school on Saturday night, in an interview last night, said that they were not at all ashamed of their work, although they regretted that Mrs. Redpath had been placed in a false light. They said that Broughal, while boarding at the Redpath's last winter, had told them that Redpath and she were his out of the house. In retaliation Broughal made defamatory remarks about Mrs. Redpath and spread stories abroad which made the neighbors mad. On Saturday a number of men of the village heard that Broughal was in town and they hunted him up and gave him a chase, pouring a little tar down his back and rubbing it into his hair. Broughal begged hard for mercy, especially as one of the party had a rope in his hand, and retracted his statements against Mrs. Redpath and promised to leave this part of the state. The men say that they did not feather Broughal because no feathers were handy, and they did not use him half as bad as they intended. It is not likely that any legal action will follow the episode.

Trespassers in Trouble.

Marlboro, Mass., June 13.—Dennis F. Kelley of this city, with three companions, were fishing at Howe's pond in West Sudbury yesterday. Kelley and William Shine were on one side of the pond while the two other men were on the opposite side. Constable Ellens came upon them suddenly and Kelley and Shine started to run, but the latter was captured and handcuffed. Kelley claims that Constable Ellens fired five shots, two taking effect. Kelley walked to this city and placed himself in the hands of a surgeon, who was unable to remove the bullets. Constable Ellens says the men were trespassing on the property of Mr. Howe, and that they were told by the owner of the property to leave the premises, but they refused. Kelley claims he had not been warned to leave the property.

Crops Almost Ruined.

North Eastham, Mass., June 13.—The severest drought known for years on Cape Cod is now prevailing, no rain of any account having fallen for 83 days. Farmers predict that the hay crop will fall short by more than one-half of previous years, and should it rain now in abundance it could not revive the stunted growth. Owing to the scarcity of moisture, farmers are obliged to replant field crops, and all gardens are backward and being replanted. Such of the hundreds of acres of asparagus has been harvested is weak and uneven, and much is not marketable at all. The devastating forest fires in this section are direct results of the drought.

Christian Scientists Not Recognized.

Manchester, N. H., June 13.—The fact that the Manchester board of health does not recognize the authority of Christian Scientists to fill out death certificates as attending physicians was demonstrated yesterday. A death return was brought in yesterday by an undertaker for the body of Ruth C. Marsh, who died Sunday. The return was signed by Mrs. M. F. Berry, Christian Scientist, who stated cerebro spinal meningitis to be the cause of death. The board refused to recognize her as authority in the matter, and the case was turned over to Coroner Lord. He and Dr. Flanders made an examination of the child's body and reported that Mrs. Berry's statement of the cause of death was correct.

Wages Advanced.

Boston, June 13.—The wages of all employees of 155 cigar manufacturers in this city and vicinity were yesterday advanced from 50 cents to $2 per thousand. The advance is the result of a revised bill of prices drawn up by the union, backed by the International union. In other changes beneficial to the men.

He'd In $500 For Murder.

Bridgeport, Conn., June 13.—Peter Graham, the 15-year-old boy charged with the murder of Louis Stehman, a Hebrew peddler, May 31, was held on the charge of manslaughter for the September term of the superior court by Judge Carroll of the city court, and he fixed the bonds at $500.

Can't Recover Damages.

Halifax, June 13.—The owners of the Halifax schooner Ida have received the decision of the British foreign office, transmitted through Ottawa, that the claim of John Tanner, mate of the Ida, against the Spanish government for $10,000 damages for wrongful arrest and imprisonment at San Juan, P. R., in 1897, is not well founded and cannot be entered by a force of Spanish soldiers in connection with the death of a cooler after he had been tried and acquitted of blame for the man's death. He was kept in prison for some days, despite the protests of the British consul.

Dewey Visits Mitchell.

Singapore, June 13.—Admiral Dewey landed yesterday from the cruiser Olympia to pay a visit to Governor Mitchell of the Straits settlement at the government house. He was received with military honors. On his return to the Olympia he was visited by the governor. Admiral Dewey says he feels sure his health will be quite restored ere he reaches the United States.

Won by the Dominion.

Montreal, June 13.—Last year's Seawanhaka cup winner, the Dominion, ran away from the White Bear Yacht club's challenger, the Yankee, yesterday, in the first of the series of races on Lake St. Louis. The wind blew lightly from the southeast at the start, and freshened up as the race progressed, and then dwindled to almost nothing before the race was ended.

Paris May Be Saved.

Falmouth, Eng., June 13.—The salvage experts who again visited the American liner Paris yesterday profess renewed hope of saving the vessel. The increased depth of water in the entire hold serves to steady her, so that the seas do not affect her as much as it was feared they would. Under the most favorable conditions the Paris may yet be floated.

Plumbers' Demands Granted.

Rochester, June 13.—The strike of the journeymen plumbers, which has been in progress in this city for the past two weeks, has been settled, and the men returned to work yesterday. The cause of the disagreement was the wish of the journeymen to work eight hours a day and receive pay for nine hours' work. Their wishes have been granted by the master plumbers, the new arrangement to go into effect Sept. 1.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

STORM KING

Swept Clear a Portion of New Richmond.

Hundred or More Known to Have Been Killed.

Nebraska Town Is Wiped Out by a Cyclone.

Public School and One Dwelling All That Remains.

Belief That Fatalities Will Run Up to a Hundred or More.

New Richmond, Wis., June 14.—There are well up to 150 dead in and about New Richmond. Of these only about 90 in New Richmond will be recognized for the reason that the fire has charred their bodies.

Indescribably sad are the scenes of desolation wrought by the tornado that has practically swept out of existence this prosperous little city. Out of 600 houses and store buildings comprising the town, fully 300 were wrecked by the storm or destroyed by fire. Almost every family has one or more members among the dead, injured or missing, and little groups are seen everywhere searching for loved ones who may be buried in the piles of debris on every hand.

With frantic energy the search was conducted all day yesterday, and up to 9 o'clock last night 54 bodies had been found, although the number of dead certainly will reach 100 or more. These have, for the most part, been taken to the Catholic and Congregational churches, which, although in the very edge of the storm's path, escaped its fury.

In these temporary morgues the sights are such as to touch the hardest heart, as the grief-stricken living recognize in bodies, horribly mangled and often dismembered, the remains of missing dear ones.

The wounded find temporary asylums in the uninjured dwellings on either side of the path of devastation, where doctors and nurses from nearby cities and towns are doing heroic work without sleep or rest. As many as possible of the injured, whose chances for recovery are considered good, are being sent to the hospitals at St. Paul and Minneapolis, where they will have better care.

The business portion of the city covered a space of four squares each way and was built solidly of brick and stone. This entire space was swept clear, foundation walls and in some places masses of debris alone marking where the business places formerly stood. Trees that had lined the streets of the neighboring residence district were broken clear off or twisted and uprooted.

The tornado came up the river from Hudson, where the damage was comparatively slight. Following the general course of the river and the branch of the Omaha road, the storm gained in intensity as it progressed and was at its worst when it struck the business center of New Richmond.

The desolate view of the New Richmond of today is one not soon to be forgotten. Along the broken fragments of their homes the people wander helplessly, striving somewhat aimlessly and hopelessly to gather together what had been left to them. On the east and west limits of the city many houses were still standing with little or no damage, and to these homes the occupants welcomed their less fortunate neighbors and friends.

The property loss cannot be estimated at this time and may never be accurately known. It was almost total, for the insurance agents report that no tornado insurance was carried in the town and only a small number of places where fire joined in the destruction of property with the business men be at all reimbursed for their losses.

SWIFT OUT OF EXISTENCE.

But Two Buildings Left in Herman—Large Number of Fatalities.

Omaha, June 14.—A tornado struck the town of Herman last evening and wiped the place out of existence. Herman is a place of about 300 inhabitants. In the extreme northern part of Washington county, on the line of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha railway.

thving" and beautiful little town is one of destruction. Wrecked buildings and broken furniture are strewn all around, while dead bodies lie in many places, the corpses badly disfigured and some of them hardly recognizable.

The relief train from Blair arrived about an hour after the storm, and the work of picking up the wounded was begun. In the course of an hour the train pulled out for Blair with 95 injured on board. They were taken to Blair, as there is absolutely no place left at Herman at which treatment can be administered.

All the citizens of Blair have thrown open their houses to the wounded and the unfortunates are being cared for by competent surgeons. Many of the injured will die, but some of them received but slight injuries. It is impossible, owing to the confusion, to ascertain the number of dead, but 12 are known to have been killed, and the list will run very much higher.

Superintendent Jaynes of the Omaha road was at Tekamah when he heard of the disaster, and left at once for Herman on a hand car, taking two physicians along with him to assist in succoring the injured.

Statement Unfounded.

The Hague, June 14.—In view of the statement published in the United States that Frederick Holla of the American delegation to the peace conference had cabled to the state department at Washington that Germany was opposed to arbitration in principle, a press correspondent called yesterday on Mr. Holla, who declared that there was absolutely no foundation for such a statement. He said that, as a matter of fact, he had not sent the state department a message of any kind since his arrival here, and that the cable message forwarded by the delegation had not contained the least justification for the statement published.

Dreyfus' Goodbye to Prison.

London, June 14.—The correspondent of The Daily Telegraph at Cayenne, French Guiana, says: Last Friday, when Dreyfus was embarking, he cast a long and tearful look upon the prison and said: "Excuse my natural emotion. I have long been accustomed to that little piece of land, and I have very much loved its good and affable population."

Gold Democrats Summoned.

Cincinnati, June 14.—It is said that Henry Watterson has telegraphed leading gold Democrats who remained with the party to meet in New York June 14-17 for conference. It is added that the meeting will be of importance.

Killed Wife and Himself.

San Francisco, June 14.—Gustav Frey, a gambler, last night shot and killed his wife, who had separated from him. Frey then shot himself, dying instantly.

Shot Two Officers.

Providence, June 14.—Sergeant Leroy T. Deane and Officer J. McDonald were shot last evening at 178 Globe street by Charles Dubois, a coal shoveler, who lives there. He had been beating his wife, and when the officers went to the house he drew a revolver and shot Deane through the ear and in the right side, inflicting slight wounds, and shot a bullet through the coat of McDonald. He was arrested.

Sold at a Profit of $70,000.

Gardiner, Me., June 14.—Lawrence Bros. of South Gardiner have sold to Boston men the township of Crocker for $110,000. The township contains 20,000 acres, and is considered one of the best spruce tracts in Maine. Lawrence Bros. purchased this tract of land three years ago for $40,000, and therefore have made a profit of $70,000.

Relations Not Pleasant.

Cambridge, Mass., June 14.—Andrew O'Dea, who came from the University of Wisconsin to Harvard as a rowing coach, resigned his position yesterday. He says that his stay at Harvard has not been as pleasant as it might have been; that he had very little to do with the development of the crew, and he thought it best to leave Harvard before the crew met Yale. He is not very sanguine on the ability of the Harvard crew. He thinks it will have to improve wonderfully to win at New London. He says the crew is a fine one, but it has not been handled rightly.

Types in Convention.

North Adams, Mass., June 14.—The annual convention of the New England Typographical union opened here yesterday. President Gamble presided. It was voted to use all efforts toward the establishment of the allied printing trades council. There was a long discussion on the employment of apprentices in newspaper offices. It was decided to use all efforts to abate the danger arising from the indiscriminate employment of boys who would not be able to learn the business, but would be kept around a shop for a certain time and then discharged.

SUFFERING FOR RAIN.

Crops In Many Sections of New England Are Fast Drying Up.

Yield of Hay Will Be Much Below the Average.

Heavy Fall of Rain Will Hardly Repair Damage Already Done by Drouth.

Waterville, Me., June 14.—The caterpillar has made havoc among the apple, cherry and pear trees in this section, the drouth of the past few weeks has caused the shrivelling of the strawberry formation so that this crop is practically a failure, and the lack of rain also is affecting the grass crop, which at present estimates will not be more than 20 percent of the '98 yield. Oats and wheat also are suffering for water. At present the only vegetable that seems likely to realize the hopes of the farmers is the onion.

Crops Drying Up.

Portland, Me., June 14.—There has not been a heavy rain in the southwestern part of this state since spring. There have been one or two brief showers, and once during May there were three days of drizzle. The hayfields are brown and crops are drying up. Unless there is speedy relief there will be practically nothing raised in this section. As it is the hay is already practically ruined.

Around Lewiston.

Lewiston, Me., June 14.—The drouth in this section is very severe. But little rain has fallen for the last two or three weeks. The farmers report grass as looking very poor and unless rain comes before long there will be a light yield. Other crops are somewhat backward owing to the same cause.

Farmers Discouraged.

Manchester, N. H., June 14.—Farmers in this section of the country are greatly discouraged over the poor prospects of good crops. It has been estimated that the yield of hay this summer will be but half the usual quantity. In the past six weeks not enough rain has fallen to be measured.

Half a Crop of Hay.

Millbury, Vt., June 14.—The drouth throughout nearly all western Vermont has become so general and severe as to cause much alarm over the prospect for crops. Through a considerable portion of the Champlain valley the hay crop is in very poor condition, and it is too late for rain to cause much of an improvement. It looks as if there would not be more than half a crop. Corn is the only crop doing anything, and even that is very backward.

Dryest on Record.

New Bedford, Mass., June 14.—The country around New Bedford was never so dry as it is at present and farmers all through this section of the country are complaining of the threatened destruction of their crops. The hay crop is entirely spoiled, and no amount of rain will do it any good, although a steady soaking would ensure a second crop. The local strawberry crop is almost worthless. One large grower of berries offers to sell for $50 a patch which last year netted him $500. Brooks are dried up and wells are very low. Truck gardeners have been hauling water for their crops for weeks.

Strawberries Injured.

Lowell, Mass., June 14.—The protracted drouth in and around Lowell has materially affected crops, particularly strawberries. Farm products in general are reported to be slow in developing, and both quantity and quality will be reduced. Farmers in the nearby towns are harvesting their hay crop, which is much shorter than usual and of poor quality.

Heavy Rain Needed.

Lawrence, Mass., June 14.—Nothing but immediate and long continued rain will save the hay crop, on which the most of the farmers hereabouts depend almost solely for a livelihood. The long period of drouth is assuming a serious aspect in this section.

Rhode Island Crops Suffer.

Providence, June 14.—This section of the country is experiencing a most remarkable dry spell for this season of the year, the measured rainfall for the past month having amounted to but half an inch. One of the effects has been to cut short the strawberry season at a time when it would naturally be at its height and had run only about half the usual length. The hay crop in Rhode Island will be very short. The produce dealers report a short and backward crop in peas, cabbages, potatoes, etc., and what is being received is of rather inferior quality.

Grass Crop Ruined.

Norwich, Conn., June 14.—The drouth in eastern Connecticut is severe. The grass crop is ruined and green peas, strawberries and garden crops are nearly destroyed. These crops will be very small. The earth is as dry as powder to a depth of several inches. There has been but one shower in five weeks, and that was only sufficient to lay the dust for a few hours. The loss must amount to several hundred thousand dollars in this section of the country.

Infants Thrown Overboard.

New London, Conn., June 14.—The body of a male infant has been found floating off Eastern Point and the medical examiner is of the opinion that the child was strangled to death. The body of a female infant has also been found in the water at Winthrop's cove. The police are investigating, but thus far no clues have been discovered.

ABOUT RETAILING SHIRTS.

SOME good, but misguided women, who own good husbands, try to lessen the worries of those same husbands by doing some of the personal purchasing. In a great many instances it is a great help, for it is due to the good taste displayed by wives that many husbands are becomingly clothed. But once in a while the insatiable bargain fever strikes deep into the souls of some of these same wives. They run over the Sunday newspapers and cut out some of the whole page "ads" and the following week they rush in town to buy some alleged bargains in Shirts at less than the cost of the Button Holes. These Shirts are retailed for from 9c to 20c, and sometimes they have to be retailed again in order that a man may wear them as long as he wants to.

It does make a woman wish she could use a few of those emphatic words that her husband uses to express his feelings when she has to sit down and sew four or five inches of cloth around the bottom of one of those shirts. Not so much for ornament as for use. Our Shirts are cut full and long and wide, and after we retail 'em you won't have to retail 'em again.

Our 50c Shirts are made with attached and detached collar and cuffs, and some of them have two collars and two cuffs.

Then we have the Cheviots and Madras and Silk Fronts from 75c to $1.00.

Our Shirts are Honest Shirts.

Good Afternoon.

Although Quincy has been a city but ten years the number of living ex-Selectmen of the town incorporated in 1792 is surprisingly small. We believe there are only ten: Charles N. Ditson, who served in 1871; William A. Hodges and John Q. A. Field who were first elected in 1872; John Chamberlin in 1877; William N. Eaton in 1878; Charles H. Porter in 1879; George H. Field, Christopher A. Spear and Elias A. Perkins who served in 1882 and Walter H. Ripley who was the last man elected to the office in 1887. Mr. Ditson, who is among the youngest in years promises to be the oldest Selectman for years. All the above gentlemen except Mr. Ditson held the office several years and have been honored by other positions since. 'All are well known citizens who continue to reside with us.

Drift of Opinion.

The best way for a spinster to improve her lot is to build a house on it and put some good man in the house.—Pawtucket Tribune.

A Pennsylvania justice has fined a millionaire a hundred dollars for catching trout with a landing net. Capitalists have to be careful how they land their fish sometimes.—Cleveland Leader.

This is no time to make a meal of cucumber salad and cream pie, ice-cream and lemonade. If you don't believe this, a practical test will be likely to make you a penitent.—Milford Journal.

Manufacturers of bathing suits report that they have sold more goods already this year than they sold in 1897 and 1898 together. Obviously prosperity is right in the swim this time.—Portland Chronicle.

Unless common sense is absolutely lacking in the Cuban soldier he will not indefinitely hesitate to sell an old gun for double its worth and become a peaceable citizen instead of an idler and a bandit.—Providence Journal.

The bicyclists don't want to carry lamps while riding at night in the parks. All right. Let them ride without lamps, but let the pedestrians carry a gun. If the law will just keep its hands off, the people will soon find a way to make the scorchers behave themselves.—Malden Mail.

Those who are in the habit of admiring the "genius" that built up the Standard Oil trust will be greatly shocked to read in this morning's news how closely that "genius" is to the "genius" of the gentleman who wields the black-jack or obtains money under false pretences," pointedly remarks Friday's New York World. That's calling a spade a spade.—Lynn Item.

Isn't it almost time for Massachusetts newspapers to leave off pitying New Hampshire? We didn't ask it, and inquiry will show that we don't need it. We sometimes have a pretty frank way of speaking of our own faults, but we manage to correct them ourselves without outside aid. We are not degenerating as a people, otherwise Massachusetts would feel the effect in the dependence she puts upon our people to run her business.—Concord Monitor.

The latest version of Speaker Reed's retirement seems to have been disposed of decisively. It was a pretty plan to retain him as a member of the house and let him spend most of his time with his New York law firm. Thomas B. Reed is a strong man, but even his legislative prestige would suffer under such an arrangement as that. He will give up not only the speakership, but also his seat in congress.—Worcester Spy.

Married Men's Run.

The third annual married men's bicycle run is a matter of history now and its record may be found in the book of the secretary. North Scituate was chosen for their destination on this run as on the two previous occasions, not because there are no other pretty places to spend an outing, but the majority of them believe that a sandy beach with its head and shoulders resting on a green lawn for a pillow, and its feet as it were winding in and out among huge ledges and boulders and beyond into the great Atlantic, and affording a grand view of the ocean, is a good place to select for just such an event as this.

Arriving at the beach after a pleasant ride along the Cohasset shore, various pastimes were indulged in until the dinner bell was heard ringing out from the Mitchell house. Then the thirty odd hungry men partook of a substantial shore dinner. In the parlor, after the inner man had been made satisfied, songs and recitations were given by a number of the party to the entertainment of those present.

The weather was all that could be desired, and the absence of any kind of an accident made the occasion one of rare pleasure. Mr. Seymour is to be congratulated upon his selection of the hotel where dinner was served.

The following named gentlemen constituted the party: H. C. Seymour, W. J. Coombs, H. E. Nelson, J. G. Cahill, Fred Bent, Tom Raiche, Sam Delano, John Thomas, I. Hey, Joe Bean, Ellis McTear, George Wardwell, George Ela, Albert Dorian, Al. Taber, Mr. Parrott, A. T. Barstow, Everett Pritchett, Mr. Waterman, Martin Burns, Fred West, G. A. Dickey, E. M. Dunn, Fred Haynes, John McLeod, L. Taylor, Charles Sargent, Frank Merrill, James Craigie, George Turner, A. A. McCosky, John Whitehead, Harry Eastman.

Heroic Act.

Mr. B. T. Dyer of the Granite Shoe store proved himself a hero this morning when he, unthinkingly of danger to himself rushed forward and rescued a little Italian boy from a perilous position. Mr. Dyer was coming to Quincy on an electric car, and as it was passing through North Braintree he observed a runaway team coming toward him. One wheel of the team was broken and being dragged along under the wreck was a young boy. On the seat was evidently the boy's father who had lost his head and dropped the reins. The horse was rushing toward the car and for a minute it looked as though the team would collide with the car which would mean death to the boy.

Mr. Dyer realized the boy's danger and jumping from the car he succeeded in grasping the horse by the head, and turning him one side and stopping the thoroughly frightened animal as the car dashed by. Fortunately Mr. Dyer escaped with a few bruises.

The boy was quite badly bruised, but not seriously injured. A shout of applause went up from those who witnessed the act. Mr. Dyer took the matter philosophically, as though it was an every day occurrence, and boarding the car continued on his way to Quincy. The horse had become frightened by the breaking of the wheel, which threw the boy under his feet.

Majority With Atwood.

The Herald says, The school committee of Boston when they met in session last evening, found on their respective desks a copy of the testimony of Harrison H. Atwood, together with the indictment, record and specifications in commonwealth vs. Peabody, December, 1895-January, 1896. The committee on new buildings again reported the name of Mr. Atwood for architect of the proposed new normal schoolhouse. Mr. Coolidge again presented the minority report, and renominated Stickney & Austin of Lowell as architects, in place of Mr. Atwood.

The two nominations went over for two weeks under the rules, and Mr. Coolidge asked that each member carefully read the printed testimony of Mr. Atwood.

Epworth League Quarterly.

The quarterly meeting of the Pilgrim Union of Epworth Leagues met at West Quincy on Monday. Some of the delegates arrived early and were taken through the quarries by Mr. Westly Fuller. The West Quincy league served a supper from 6 to 7 o'clock following which there was a brief business meeting and addresses by visiting delegates. From 8 to 10 o'clock there was a social gathering in the vestry. The meeting was very largely attended.

KENLEY TESTIFIES.

Relative to the Charges Against Him.

Cross Questioned by Lawyer Jenness.

Arguments Friday Will Wind Up the Case.

Another hearing of the charges against Inspector of Plumbing Kenley was held Tuesday evening and when an adjournment was reached the evidence was all in and one more session for arguments will wind up the affair.

G. B. Bates was the first witness, and he testified that permit 275 was for the J. B. Martin house on Cross street, where he did the work; he commenced it in December, 1896. No. 276 was the Julius Johnson house on Cranch hill, and 277 was the George W. Taylor house on Elm street.

Mr. Bates said that he knew by inquiry when he finished the Martin job, and then said he personally knew. Having answered two ways it was ruled out.

He commenced the Johnson job in January, 1897, and completed it in April. The Taylor job was commenced in December, 1896, and completed in May '97.

In answer to questions by Lawyer McAnarney, it was brought out that the reason Mr. Bates knew when these jobs were done was by consulting his books and inquiry from Mr. Johnson. He had nothing to show the dates when either job was completed. Mr. Bates was also questioned as to his method of bookkeeping.

He further said he had known of jobs where but one inspection was made.

J. J. Kenley, the defendant, was then examined. He testified that he had been a plumber for fifteen years, five of which were as an apprentice with P. H. Gavin. He had been the Inspector of Plumbing for five years. The job at the City Stables was done under orders of Board of Health and Commissioner of Public Works. He did not consider horse stalls as plumbing fixtures. It was a practical plumbing job and he did not consider it a menace to public health. In answer to lawyer Jenness, he said he did not consider that it was his place to notify other plumbers as to what the Board of Health had ordered done. Was no need of a soil pipe for the horse stalls going through the roof. He did not order the pipe from the horse stalls at the Atlantic engine house to go through the roof. The Commissioner of Public Works did that. He sold out his business Jan. 1 to his brother. He did not claim the job at the City Stables was in accordance with the ordinance, but was as ordered by the Board of Health.

Relative to the plumbing at the Craig block, witness said he inspected the drug store work but did not pass it. George Ames was the plumber. Witness ordered him to alter work but he did not and he reported it to the Board of Health. He reported it several times to Mr. Curtis, the chairman. He took the contract for the other work which he was done by his men and he did not inspect it. Did not examine it to see how it was done. Had no personal knowledge of lead pipe being concealed. Wrought iron pipe was used by permission of the Chairman of the Board of Health, and all plumbers were notified in writing that they could use it. Had no talk with Landers about condition of the work.

In answer to Lawyer Jenness, witness could not say how many times he visited the block while the job was in progress. He knew 500 feet of lead pipe was sent up there but did not know where it was used. Did not know lead pipe was concealed. Did not pass Ames work in the building and did not make criminal complaint. Made complaint against Julius Johnson by order of the Board of Health and it was on record.

Relative to the Whiton job, Landers did not take out a permit for work he did. I did not strike a blow until I informed Mr. Whiton about the permit. I found that Landers did the work and his work was not in accordance with the ordinance and I completed it. The work he had done was part of the stack and drain in the cellar and around trap. No fixtures were set except in wash bowl and sink. After I did the work, I learned that Landers had done the first work. Did not know of lead pipe being put under the floor, or of wrought iron pipe being used. My men did the work. Was no objection to placing the trap three and one-half feet away from closet as that was as near as it could be and the ordinance said as near as possible. It was impossible to get a one-inch nail piece into a one-inch and a quarter nut. Did work at the stable under the permit filed. Was no occasion to file a second application. Knew of no plumbing there that was contrary to the ordinance.

In answer to Lawyer Jenness, witness said he did not consider work in the stable plumbing work. He did not know where drain was connected. Did not take out permit for the stable, as it was not necessary. Did not know there was lead pipe under the floor. Did not agree with Mr. Weeden that a permit was not necessary. Mr. Bates told him that Landers was the one who did the work. Gave order to have job done in accordance with the ordinance. Did not always know what his men did.

Relative to the A. W. Parker job, the trap was not at the foot of a vertical soil pipe in the meaning of the ordinance. The stack is the upright pipe from the cellar to the roof. It was impossible to unseal that trap. It was a running trap. Never knew of one being unsealed.

In answer to Lawyer Jenness, witness said it was not what was termed a trap at the foot of a vertical soil pipe. You can not enter a running trap on the run vertically, as connected, it was a running trap.

This concluded the hearing, and an adjournment was taken until Friday evening when the arguments will be made.

IMPORTANT.

Everybody at all Interested in Bicycles or Bicycling should read the following letter.

FITCHBURG, June 6, 1899.

John P. Lovell Arms Co., Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:

Yours of the 5th inst., asking us what we think of your Lovell "Diamond" bicycle, duly received.

We send you copies of some of our advertisements, which we think will tell the story better, perhaps, than we could write it. If you will read our ad headed "Remember our '98 record—over 200 'Lovell Diamonds' without a breakdown,"—we think you will fully understand our high appreciation of your wonderful wheel.

Thus far we have sold six hundred and seventy-eight (678) Lovell "Diamond" bicycles without a single breakdown, which beats anything we could possibly have expected, and we are free to say that all you will have to do is to turn out the wheels and they will sell themselves, especially if you sell them at $35. The only drawback you can have is, if you advance them to $50 (as the story is about that such is the intention), some may buy a cheaper wheel, but at $35 they are within the reach of all, and you will sell all that you can possibly turn out at that price.

Furthermore, we do not believe a bicycle can be built by any manufacturer that will approach the Lovell "Diamond" in strength and running quality, unless they discard old methods and begin to manufacture the Lovell way.

One of our customers, who, by the way, is an old bicycle rider, told us the other day he never knew what a good bicycle was until he rode this year's Lovell "Diamond." Your bicycle runs so easily, and is made so well, especially the parts, that every wheel that goes out must be a great advertisement for you.

If your new line of Lovell sporting goods is up to "Diamond" standard, it will surely meet the success your wheel has so justly earned.

Kindly believe us,

Yours most respectfully,

Wm. H. Runnington

A Grand Bicycle Record.

Exceptions prove the rule, but the rule that has no exceptions needs no proving. Six hundred and seventy-eight bicycles of the same make, and not a single breakdown, is a record of which the manufacturers may well be proud, and with which the agents must be greatly gratified and the purchasers
and riders more than satisfied. Messrs.
Nathan & Remington of Fitchburg, the well-known bicycle dealers and experts, make this report of the Lovell Diamond Bicycle over their own signature and back their statement of facts
by expressing the belief that no bicycle can be built by any manufacturer that will approach the Lovell "Diamond"

in strength and running qualities unless old methods are discarded and machines are built the Lovell way.

Messrs. Nathan & Remington's entire line will be found upon another page
and is well worth the attention of every one who is interested in bicycles, or bicycling. Such a statement from such a source affords the strongest possible confirmation of the John P.
Lovell Arms Co.'s claim that in the manufacture of their wheels, they use
the best materials that money can buy,
and turn out no machine upon the thorough construction and general superiority of which they cannot stake an honorable business reputation of nearly sixty years. This remarkable showing proves the strength and durability of a bicycle made upon honor to bear the test of all kinds of usage by all kinds of riders. The 1899 model of the Lovell Diamond is sold at $35,
and certainly has good claim to be classed as a safe and profitable investment.

Two Days Festival.

The grand two days "Festival of Holidays," for the benefit of the City Hospital, opens at Music hall this afternoon and the indications are that it will be an unqualified success.

The ladies who are to have charge of the tables, were on hand early this morning and were kept busy getting the several booths in readiness.

The tables are arranged on both sides of the hall, and present a very attractive appearance, as they are trimmed with flags, bunting and crepe paper of various colors. The decorations were not all in place at noon, but will be before the opening hour, which is 3 o'clock.

Many useful, ornamental and valuable articles will be offered for sale
from these tables or booths, and there will also be ice cream, cake, candy and cool drinks.

Entertainments will be given hourly each afternoon and evening, that of tonight being by local organizations.

A WHOLE DAY

Fiercest Battle Yet In the Philippines.

Valor Alone Saved Americans From Defeat.

Our Forces Stripped and Rushed the Trenches.

Done at a Cost of Seventy in Killed and Wounded.

Rebels Brought Artillery Into Action and Had Several Small Pieces.

Manila, June 14.—General Lawton unexpectedly stirred up the liveliest engagement of the war south of Las Pinas yesterday morning, upon which occasion American field guns were engaged in the first artillery duel against a native battery concealed in the jungle. Companies F and I of the Twenty-first infantry, were nearly surrounded by a large body of insurgents, but the Americans cut their way. It was an all-day fight, and such stubbornness and tenacity as the rebels showed has not been witnessed since the fighting in the Philippines began.

The American loss is estimated at over 70 in killed and wounded. The dead so far reported number 12, and a few of the wounded are injured so badly that they are likely to die.

In addition to this, there were several prostrations from heat. Fortunately, however, the effects of the fierce heat were not so disastrous, from the fact that during a great part of the day most of the troops were wading through mud and marshes, fording rivers and swimming naked at places where fording was impossible.

The rebels had the advantage of almost impregnable positions, and they knew it. On the same ground they have time and again beaten back the best armies that Spain could send against them. So fearfully were the American forces handicapped that it is safe to say that no other army in the world could have escaped defeat in the fighting yesterday. But the tremendous dash of the western troops carried everything before them. Their bravery seemed akin to recklessness. Their fighting was marked by such a daredevil, never-turn-back, burn-your-bridges spirit that the very sight of them paralyzed the rebels and made them flee in fright from their strongest positions.

Only once did they get into a dangerous position, and then, indeed, it looked for a few minutes as if a fearful disaster could not possibly be averted.

Two companies of the Twenty-first regiment at one time advanced so far from the main body that they found themselves in a sort of ambush, and in a moment a deadly fire was being poured into them from three sides. But the desperate nature of the situation only served to bring out the magnificent valor of the troops. General Lawton, who saw their predicament, dashed forward and rallied the men, fighting himself in the front line. His first act on coming up was to seize a rifle from the hand of a man who had just fallen wounded, and he and Major Starr and Lieutenants Donovan and Conolly fought side by side at the head of their men.

Their conduct was an inspiration, and the little command, instead of allowing itself to be surrounded as the insurgents had planned, cut its way out and got back to the main body. There was no thought of even retreating until the ammunition of the men threatened to give out.

The example of Lawton was followed by every other officer, and considering the way in which they exposed themselves, it is surprising that many more officers are not among the killed and wounded.

The rebels brought artillery into action yesterday for the first time since the fighting at Malolos. They had a big smooth bore which at one time threatened to do much damage, and they had several small pieces.

The firing of the rebels was remarkably accurate, when compared with their performance in the past, and altogether they brought the best organized force into action that the troops have met since the fighting began. Their loss cannot well be estimated, but it is thought their dead must number 100 at least.

It was not until a regiment of naked Americans swam the river and rushed the trenches that the Filipinos gave way. The Americans captured several six-inch muzzle-loading cannon and a quantity of ammunition.

The insurgents fell back on Bakoor, where they are now entrenched. This battlefield was formerly the scene of several of the greatest struggles between the Spaniards and Filipinos. The Spaniards were considered impregnable, and have been killed while fighting over the same bridge in former contests for its possession.

In June, 1897, Generals Pio Del Pilar and Trias turned a scale of war on the side of the Filipinos by deserting the Spanish army there on the eve of a decisive battle, carrying the native militia with them, and thereby breaking the chain of defenses around Manila.

Information, believed to be reliable, has reached here of the assassination of General Luna, and his aide-de-camp, Lieutenant Pasco Ramon, June 8, by Aguinaldo's guard, at the headquarters of Aguinaldo.

LONG'S WILD THROW

Gave the Giants Two Runs and They Won From the Bostons.

New York, June 14.—"Cy" Seymour was all right, and the champion Bostons fell victims to the Giants by the score of 6 to 4. For the first time in many moons the field goddess smiled on the home players, for with a wild throw Long gave the New Yorks two runs and the victory in the seventh.

The champions began proceedings as if they were going to do the same old business of winning, hands down, but Seymour came down after a short ascension in the first inning and pitched in his last season's form. "Cy" gave the first batter up his base on balls, but only one other got a pass throughout the entire game.

Three of the Bostons' nine safe hits were made in the first inning. After that they were scattered, with the exception of those in the first inning. The Giants batted timely when they did hit, and took advantage of every error of their opponents. Doyle's batting and base running were excellent. He ran home from second on an infield hit to Tenney, which is a decidedly rare feat against the Bostons.

An Uneventful Session.
Washington, June 14.—"For the first time since the life of the present cabinet began," said one of the members of the cabinet after the meeting adjourned yesterday, "the president asked each member in turn to state the matter to be brought to the attention of the cabinet, and each in turn replied in the negative."

The time of the meeting was largely occupied in reading press dispatches from Manila and the reports of General Otis concerning the fighting to the south of Manila. The reported death of General Luna, together with General Otis' dispatches, are considered very favorable.

Reminded Murdered Man.
New York, June 14.—Policeman McGuire of the Central park police reports that he believes he saw the man, portions of whose body have been found in New York bay, while he was at Coney Island last Friday. McGuire said that he noticed a party of three men and three women in bathing. What attracted his attention particularly was a large, robust, smooth-faced man, on whose arm a crucifix was tattooed. There were men and women in the party, but he could not say for sure. On one hand was an anchor.

Remonstrance From Cape Colony.
London, June 14.—The Cape Town correspondent of The Daily Mail says: The Cape Colony cabinet has addressed a remonstrance to the imperial government arguing that it would be inadvisable to exert immediate pressure upon the Transvaal and expressing a desire that Mr. Kruger be given time to reconsider the position. The cabinet pleads that the Boers in Cape Colony have become intractable if extreme measures were taken.

Many Families Homeless.
St. John's, June 14.—The village of Bay of Islands, a settlement on the western coast of Newfoundland, forming part of what is called the French shore, was destroyed by fire. Sixty-nine houses were burned to the ground and 47 families rendered homeless. The French and British warships in the coast are affording assistance to the destitute people until other steps can be taken to relieve them.

Cabinet Must Be Radical.
Paris, June 14.—The air is full of reports regarding the probable successor of M. Dupuy as premier. M. Poincaré was the favorite yesterday morning, but after three-quarters of an hour spent in conference with the president he declined to accept the task. He is a moderate Republican and evidently doubted his ability to succeed in forming a cabinet, which the papers think must be a radical cabinet.

No Case Against Him.
Paris, June 14.—The chamber of indictments yesterday decided that there is no case against Lieutenant Colonel Picquart, charged with forgery in the Dreyfus case, or against Maître Leblois, his counsel, against whom charges were also made in connection with the case. The judgment of the court thus finally exonerates Picquart, who was released from prison after being nearly a year in confinement.

THE OLD WAY.

Of Treating Dyspepsia and Indigestion by Dieting a Dangerous and Useless One.

We say the old way, but really it is a very common one at the present time and many dyspeptics and physicians as well consider the first step to take in attempting to cure indigestion is to diet, either by selecting certain foods and rejecting others or to greatly diminish the quantity usually taken, in other words the starvation plan is supposed by many to be the first essential.

The almost certain failure of the starvation cure has been proven time and again, but still the moment dyspepsia makes appearance a course of dieting is at once advised.

All this is radically wrong. It is foolish and unscientific to recommend dieting to a man suffering from dyspepsia, because indigestion itself starves every organ, every nerve and every fibre in the body.

What the dyspeptic wants is abundant nutrition, which means plenty of good, wholesome well cooked food, and something to assist the weak stomach to digest it. This is exactly the purpose for which Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are adapted and this is the method by which they cure the worst cases of dyspepsia, in other words the patient eats plenty of wholesome food and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digests it for him. In this way the system is nourished and the overworked stomach rested, because the tablets will digest the food whether the stomach works or not. One of these tablets will digest 3,000 grains of meat or eggs.

Your druggists will tell you that Stuart's Tablets is the purest and safest remedy for stomach troubles and every trial makes, one more friend for this excellent preparation. Sold at 50 cent for full sized package at all drug stores.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 East 14th St., New York.

IMPORTANT.

Everybody at all Interested in Bicycles or Bicycling should read the
following letter.

FITCHBURG, June 6, 1899.

John P. Lovell Arms Co., Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:

Yours of the 5th inst., asking us what we think of your Lovell "Diamond" bicycle, duly received.

We send you copies of some of our advertisements, which we think will tell the story better, perhaps, than we could write it. If you will read our ad headed "Remember our '98 record—over 200 'Lovell Diamonds' without a breakdown,"—we think you will fully understand our high appreciation of your wonderful wheel.

Thus far we have sold six hundred and seventy-eight (678) Lovell "Diamond" bicycles without a single breakdown, which beats anything we could possibly have expected, and we are free to say that all you will have to do is to turn out the wheels and they will sell themselves, especially if you sell them at $35. The only drawback you can have is, if you advance them to $50 (as the story is afloat that such is the intention), some may buy a cheaper wheel, but at $35 they are within the reach of all, and you will sell all that you can possibly turn out at that price.

Furthermore, we do not believe a bicycle can be built by any manufacturer that will approach the Lovell "Diamond" in strength and running quality, unless they discard old methods and begin to manufacture the Lovell way.

One of our customers, who, by the way, is an old bicycle rider, told us the other day he never knew what a good bicycle was until he rode this year's Lovell "Diamond." Your bicycle runs so easily, and is made so well, especially the parts, that every wheel that goes out must be a great advertisement for you.

If your new line of Lovell sporting goods is up to "Diamond" standard, it will surely meet the success your wheel has so justly earned.

Kindly believe us,
Yours most respectfully,

Arthur P. Remington

THE SULU ISLANDS.

Sultan Is Very Anxious to Have Them Developed.

United States May Establish a Protectorate.

Situation in the Philippines Demands Reinforcements For Lawton.

Washington, June 15.—President Schurman of the Philippine commission is expected to gather some valuable information in his proposed visit to the different islands of the archipelago. While not much is known in Washington of his purposes, the understanding is that he desires to inform himself of the conditions elsewhere than in Luzon before returning to the United States.

In the bushwhacking of Aguinaldo and his followers around Manila, which makes American military operations necessary, the fact is generally overlooked that other parts of the archipelago have accepted American authority unreservedly, and that no trouble is anticipated in establishing government there. The fullest information about these islands was furnished several months ago by T. H. Haynes, a British merchant, and the main points of his statement were made public at that time.

These were afterwards supplemented. Mr. Haynes said that the conditions attached to the acquisition of the Sulu islands were different from those relating to the remainder of the Philippines, which had been in the absolute possession of Spain. He thought it was to the interest of the government of the United States to establish a system of government which would be productive of harmony between the inhabitants of the islands and the protectors.

In doing this the prosperity of the natives and the personal welfare of the sultan and the chiefs were all to be considered. Under the shadowy Spanish dominion, the sultan had at various times indicated his desire for a British protectorate, and had outlined what his expectations were. He was anxious to have the rich lands opened up by planters and internal trade increased. He also wanted a stated subsidy for his own maintenance, to be guaranteed by the protecting power.

THE SULTAN OF SULU.

There is nothing in this program which he had outlined under the theory of a British protectorate which cannot be carried out under American sovereignty. The scheme which is indicated was similar to that of the British straits settlements, in which the government was nominally under a native sultan. The inhabitants of the Sulu are said to be industrious, but they are widely scattered, and the native chiefs demand and receive too large a proportion of the fruits of their labor.

The reports from the Philippines, as received officially, are accepted by the war department in the customary "complacent" spirit and are interpreted as "encouraging." The capture of Bacoar assures our troops of an important strategic position, if they can hold it. It is feared, however, that our troops are too badly worn, and not strong enough numerically to retain the captured territory, and may again have to content themselves with the adoption of a "waiting" policy.

Originally the reports from Manila drew most hopeful views of the situation, picturing a speedy quelling of the insurrection, and the extermination of the rebellious forces. The last reports content themselves with messages to the effect that our troops are in no danger. The war department scouts the suggestion that the Philippines might become bold enough to attack the American lines and provoke a battle on open ground. Nothing better than that is desired. It is the very thing the Philippines have avoided. If the Americans could only get at them the war would soon be ended. It is the old story, however, the rebels driven out of one place, reappearing at another. No step yet taken has been of decisive character. There has been no crushing blow.

The sending of reinforcements will be actively prosecuted. Transports from Manila will have to be called to San Francisco to do the work that will be required. There are but two transports available at San Francisco now, the Sheridan and Pennsylvania, as the St. Paul is to be taken out of commission. These are enough to make a start, but not enough to carry out all the plans of the department. The quartermaster general has been instructed to push matters. The transports now at Manila are the Sapor, Hancock, Warren and Morgan City. The Ohio and Newport are en route to San Francisco, but only started today. The Centennial, Grant and Sherman are en route to Manila. The Indiana is at Negros.

Printers Elect Officers.

North Adams, Mass., June 15.—The fifth annual convention of the New England Typographical union ended last evening with a banquet attended by prominent labor men and public officials. The union has changed its name to the "New England Allied Trades union." The former name was not deemed comprehensive enough. The following officers have been elected: President, George H. Coop, Somerville; first vice president, Richard O. Moore, Boston; second vice president, John P. Thur, Manchester, N. H.; third vice president, Fred J. Kenney, South Framingham; secretary-treasurer, P. H. McMahon, North Adams.

Time Limit Has Expired.

Boston, June 15.—The Post says that Henry A. Thomas is no longer postmaster of Boston. The 30 days' leave of absence granted him expired yesterday, and it will not be renewed by the postoffice department at Washington. The failure to extend the time of the postmaster's leave, pending the outcome of the course of treatment which he is now undergoing, and the fact that on May 21 his bondsman took possession of the office and appointed Arthur R. Henderson acting postmaster, is regarded as a certain indication that even if Colonel Thomas were to recover his former vigorous mind he would not be reappointed.

Catering to Cuban Trade.

Lynn, Mass., June 15.—A large increase in the export trade to Cuba is one of the features of this season in shoe manufacturing. There are at least a dozen firms in Lynn that are doing business with Cuba, and report satisfactory results. One Lynn firm has shipped three large cases to a jobbing house in Havana this week, which contained 1008 pairs. A demand for its canvas shoes, Oxford and boots is noted, and the firm in question is preparing a sample order on this class of goods. The Lynn firms doing business in Cuba are using their regular lasts, as the regular shapes are most in demand by the trade.

Four Alarms Rung In.

Boston, June 15.—A four-alarm fire occurred in East Boston yesterday, but as the buildings destroyed were inexpensive wooden structures, the total loss will not exceed $15,000. Four small wooden buildings on Border street were completely burned, five three-story tenement houses on that street were scorched so badly that the occupants were obliged to abandon the premises temporarily, and four dwelling houses on Meridian street were also touched by the fire.

Over-Zealous Officials.

Gloucester, Mass., June 15.—Captain Morris of the schooner Miranda of this port reports that while his vessel was at Port Hawkesbury, C. B., for repairs, he was refused permission by the Canadian authorities to take on board a barrel of beef which the captain of another vessel had offered to let him have, the Miranda being short of food. For the last three nights the vessel was in port she was constantly under surveillance to see that nothing was taken on board.

Won't Marry Divorced People.

Bluehill, Me., June 15.—The Congregational clergymen of Hancock county, in conference here yesterday, adopted a resolution condemning the dissemination of the marriage contract and the deplorable increase of divorces in the state. The adoption of the resolution carries with it the agreement that clergymen of the conference should not solemnize marriages where one has or both of the parties have been divorced.

Won't Suffer Much.

Providence, June 15.—Amos D. Palmer, placed on trial June 7 for the murder of his wife, and who was acquitted on a verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity, June 10, was yesterday committed by Governor Dyer to Butler hospital for treatment. This institution is a private corporation, and in its wards all that wealth can purchase can be secured for the young man.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

Sun rises—4:07; sets, 7:23.

Moon sets—11:47 p. m.; 5:15 p. m.

High water—4:45 a. m.; 5:15 p. m.

A trough of relatively low pressure extends from New Mexico to New England. Thunderstorms and rains have occurred in this trough. The temperature has risen in the north Atlantic states, and has remained nearly stationary elsewhere. Thunderstorms and rain may be expected in New England.

New Aspirant For Championship.

New York, June 15.—Mike Morrissey, the newly arrived Irish heavy-weight pugilist, who is to meet Peter Maher before the Lenox Athletic club next Tuesday night, yesterday deposited $2500 with George Considine of this city to bind a match with Jim Jeffries.

Hartford, June 15.—W. A. Brady, manager for Jeffries, was seen last night in reference to the challenge of Mike Morrissey. Brady said that if Morrissey is in earnest he will be accommodated. Jeffries stated that he thought four rounds would be all that Morrissey would last.

Houses Struck by Lightning.

Augusta, Me., June 15.—A heavy thunder storm that passed over this city yesterday was of terrific violence. Several houses in Augusta and the surrounding towns were struck, but no cases of fire have been reported. Two horses were killed in one barn and two cows in another. The people hailed the rain with delight. Rain began falling at 6 o'clock and continued throughout the evening.

THE FALL OF BACOR.

Infantry Swims Zapote River and Carries the Enemy's Trenches.

No Rebels Found When Americans Entered the City.

Women and Children Flocking Back to Wrecks of Former Homes.

Manila, June 15.—The natives made a stubborn defense of the approaches to Bacoar, but the Americans, by the severest fighting, forced their way to the outskirts of the place. The result was that Bacoar was taken Wednesday without further fighting.

Before dark Tuesday night the Fourteenth Infantry swam the Zapote river, and charged and carried the trenches, a heavy fusillade of artillery preparing the way and covering the crossing. The insurgents broke from the woods before the Fourteenth reached them. Almost at the same time the Ninth and the Twelfth infantry crossed a bar of the sea and came upon the enemy's left flank at a point where a body of marines with maxims landed under protection of the ship's batteries and fired upon the enemy's left rear with a demoralizing effect. The Twenty-first crossed the river by a bridge as soon as it could be mended. Sixty-five dead insurgents were found in the trenches. Several five-inch smooth-bore guns were captured with ammunition marked "U. S. Navy Yard." After crossing the river the troops were withdrawn with the exception of the Ninth and the Twenty-first infantry, these regiments being left with four guns to guard the bridge. As they were being formed into companies, the insurgents commenced to fire volleys from the bamboo jungle, 500 yards away. The regiments formed into line rapidly and coolly, though under fire, and cheering, rushed to the woods, driving the enemy a mile away. The insurgents disputing every foot. The Fourteenth encamped across the river, the men caring for many of the wounded natives. Eight prisoners were captured. The majority of the natives wore red uniforms.

The native governor, General Lawton, reported assassinated. He was friendly to the United States.

The Philippines retreated several miles southward, after Tuesday's engagement, to the strongly fortified town of Imus.

The shelling of the American warships drove the rebels from Bacoar, so the Americans control several more miles of coast.

General Lawton, with his staff and a troop of the Fourth cavalry, started to ascertain the nature of the insurgent position. He rode five miles along the coast to Bacoar without finding the enemy. He found the town full of white flag, but there were no soldiers there. The women and children who had fled to the woods during the bombardment were camping in the ruins of their homes. The shells had almost knocked the town to pieces. The church was wrecked and many buildings were ruined. Even the trees and shrubbery were torn as by a hailstorm.

Several hundred women and children came into the American lines for refuge, and the road from Bacoar was covered with processions of them, on foot and in carts, driving animals and carrying goods on their heads.

The appearance of the battlefield testified to the fierceness of Tuesday's fighting. The trees along the river, between the lines, are almost torn down by bullets.

The American officers estimate that 100 insurgents were killed and that 300 were wounded during the engagement.

The next battle will probably be fought at Imus.

The American troops will soon control the coast to Cavite.

Where a Mistake Was Made.

Chicago, June 15.—According to General Anderson, commanding the department of the lakes, the heavy losses of the American troops in the recent engagements with the Filipinos at Los Pinos and Bacoar, south of Manila, were caused by the artillery which Admiral Dewey presented to Aguinaldo last winter. The batteries in question, General Anderson says, are being operated by Spanish prisoners, who have been released by Aguinaldo with the understanding that they enlist in the insurgent army.

The court of claims has decided to make special claims for bounty of the sailors of Dewey's and Sampson's fleets, and there is every prospect that the men will succeed in getting their money at the present time.

ABOUT RETAILING SHIRTS.

SOME good, but misguided women, who own good husbands, try to lessen the worries of those same husbands by doing some of the personal purchasing. In a great many instances it is a great help, for it is due to the good taste displayed by wives that many husbands are becoming clothed. But once in a while the insatiable bargain fever strikes deep into the souls of some of these same wives. They run over the Sunday newspapers and cut out some of the whole page "ads" and the following week they rush in town to buy some alleged bargains in shirts at less than the cost of the Edwards Holes. These shirts are retailed for from 9c to 25c, and sometimes they have to be retailed again in order that a man may wear them as long as he wants to.

It does make a woman wish she could use a few of those emphatic words that her husband uses to express his feelings when she has to sit down and sew four or five inches of cloth around the bottom of one of those shirts. Not so much for ornament as for use. Our shirts are cut full and long and wide, and after we retail 'em you won't have to retail 'em again.

Our 50c shirts are made with attached and detached collar and cuffs, and some of them have two collars and two cuffs.

Then we have the Cheviots and Madras and Silk Fronts from 75c to $1.00.

Our Shirts are Honest Shirts.

The Electric Switch.

The Boston Electric Switch Company has been incorporated for the purpose of manufacturing, leasing and operating an electric self-cleaning railway switch. That there is room, and we might say necessity for such a switch, will be evident if we consider for a moment past and present switches in use on our street railways.

The tilting table automatic switch of horse railroad times became useless with the advent of electricity as a motive power. This compelled a return to primitive methods and poking at a switch with a stick or the employment of a switch tender. These remain to remind us that progress in this respect has failed utterly to keep pace with the rapid advance made in other directions in the improvement of street railways, that improvement in this respect is certain to come, and is the universal opinion, and it is confidently asserted that the desired improvement is realized in the electric self-cleaning switch, now owned by this company and which they propose to put upon the market as above stated.

The practicability of this switch has been demonstrated by use on the Quincy & Boston street railway during several months, including the winter season, when it was conclusively shown to be self-cleaning and free from danger of freezing when properly cared for. Indeed competent authority declared it the best switch in the market, even if poked with a stick, for it would neither clog nor freeze. At that time the switch was operated automatically by a system of levers, under control of the motorman, and was familiarly known as the Stedman Switch.

The Boston Electric Switch Company have acquired the Stedman patent, and have substituted for the levers an electrical equipment by which the switch is worked effectually and certainly. The required electric current is taken from the approaching car, and is under the easy control of the motorman, who can operate it without removing his hands from the brake or controller, and at such a distance that he can observe the motion, and that the switch is in proper position before the car enters upon it. All this without unnecessary reduction of speed or the necessity of some one leaving the car to remove obstructions that would clog an ordinary switch.

The claims for this switch are that it is self-cleaning, non freezing, rapid and certain in action;

That the car need not be stopped at a switch;

That the motorman's hands are in position on the controller and brake when approaching or passing the switch;

That cars can be equipped for operating the switch at a small expense;

That it promotes rapid transit and reduction of running expense.

A model of this switch may be seen at Johnson Bros., and all interested are invited to examine for themselves, and judge whether the claims are excessive.

Stock is now offered for sale, affording a safe investment with sure returns for its field of operation is limited only by the number of existing street railways.

The continued cases of Alfred Shaw and W. H. Cavanaugh for the larceny of a house at Norfolk Downs was called and again continued for two months.

Heated Debate.

While the girls of grades VII and VIII of the Coddington schools have been taking their sewing lessons of late, the boys have studied civil government, and some of the time is spent in debate. With the merriment at 96 in the school room Wednesday it is not surprising that the debate was heated, but their subject was one which has worked up many older heads during the past three years—"Resolved, that Quincy ought to have a boulevard." It is good practice, and the dignity of the disputants, and their knowledge of parliamentary rule would do credit to the higher grade pupils.

SECRETARY LONG'S BRIEF COMMENT.

Says Recent Modifications Do Not Apply to the Navy Department.

Washington, June 15.—The most significant statement yet made in regard to the president's recent civil service order comes from Secretary Long. A newspaper correspondent, in view of the repeated utterances of Secretary Gage, commending the order so generously, asked Secretary Long to prepare a statement setting forth his view of the matter. Mr. Long complied with this request. Here is his statement:

"The navy department is not much affected by the new civil service order. Only one position, that of private secretary to the assistant secretary of the navy, is excluded from competitive examination for appointment. This is in conformity with the other departments."

"This is all I can say," remarked Secretary Long.

Two Lynchings.

New Orleans, June 15.—Edward Gray, a negro, who was arrested in St. John about a year ago, charged with a series of burglaries, was lynched yesterday after having been released by the authorities because there was no evidence against him. Since his confinement Gray has been very sick, and when released he started to the home of friends in the parish of St. Peter. He made his way as far as Reserve, where his strength gave out. During the night, a mob crossed the river, and taking Gray from where he rested, hanged him to a tree. The lynching is bitterly denounced.

Beaufort, N. C., June 15.—Lewis Patrick, a negro, was taken from the jail here yesterday by a mob, and is believed to have been lynched. Patrick was under arrest charged with having murdered E. B. Weeks at Bogue, June 5, after robbing his store.

Previous Figures Reduced.

Herman, Neb., June 15.—This village was destroyed by a tornado Tuesday evening. Nine people were killed and 18 were seriously injured in the wrecks of their homes. The tornado covered a strip about 25 rods wide. The town was directly in its path and only two or three residences are left standing. The Methodist church and the school building are the only other buildings left. The Methodist church is being used as a hospital and morgue. There was but one tornado insurance policy in the town, and that was for but a trifling amount. The balance is a total loss. The storm came on very slowly, giving most people ample time to reach their cellars. A large number not reported are slightly injured, while of those reported one-half are looked upon as having received fatal injuries.

Possible Identification.

New York, June 15.—The mutilated body found in sections at various points in the upper bay has been almost positively identified as that of Frank Petersen, a Swede sailor, formerly of the schooner Pharoah. A former mate on the Pharoah was E. C. Smith, who lives with his wife at 1973 Second avenue. Mrs. Smith made several trips with her husband and became well acquainted with Petersen. When Mr. and Mrs. Smith saw the picture of the arm tattooed with a crucifix they immediately recalled that Petersen had such a mark on his arm in exactly the same place. They remembered also that there was another mark in India ink on Petersen's hand, near the wrist.

No Startling Testimony.

New York, June 15.—The Mazet investigating committee held but one session yesterday, and that was productive of but little of importance. Committee man Hoffman asked permission of the committee to read a letter from former Police Commissioner Parker, in which the latter demanded that he be allowed to deny the charges made against him by ex-Chief of Police McLaughlin. Hoffman stated that Parker had repeatedly appealed to Mazet for a hearing, but his communications had been ignored. The chairman then decisively ruled that the letter could not be read. The tax department was again under investigation, but nothing of particular weight developed.

Satisfactory Arrangement Reached.

London, June 15.—United States Ambassador Choate has just received from the foreign office a communication on the Alaskan question, which, it is understood, is a satisfactory temporary arrangement of the affair. The officials of the foreign office, while unwilling to discuss the details, assure the press that the Alaskan difficulties are practically smoothed over until the meeting of the high commission in August.

ARE PROUD OF BRYAN.

Pennsylvania Democrats Will Stick to the Nebraskan.

Quay's Appointment to Senate Is Denounced.

Prosecution of Alleged Bribers in Senatorship Contest Is Demanded.

Harrisburg, June 15.—The Democratic state convention met here yesterday for the nomination of candidates for supreme court judges and state treasurer. Two supreme court judges are to be elected in November, one to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Williams and the other to succeed Chief Justice Sterritt, whose term of office expires in January. Under the law no elector is entitled to vote for more than one candidate for any supreme court judgeship, and as there will be two elected, each of the great parties will get one. Governor Stone will probably appoint the Democratic nominee as soon as his nomination is certified to the state department. There are more than a score of candidates for the supreme court judgeship.

Shortly after midnight the convention adjourned until today, without having accomplished the first and most important piece of work cut out for them, namely, the selection of a candidate for supreme judge. The fight appears to have narrowed down to Judge Kennedy of Allegheny and Judge Yerkes of Bucks. The report of the resolutions committee was unanimously adopted. The report follows:

The Democracy of Pennsylvania, in convention assembled, again renewing its pledges of fidelity and devotion to the sacred rights of the people; true to the faith and principles of our party, as declared in the platforms of our several national conventions, and proud of our matchless leader, William J. Bryan, realize that the issues involved in the coming campaign in Pennsylvania are honest government, clean politics and the redemption of our state from Republican misrule and corruption.

We denounce the wholly unnecessary increase of public officials and petty clerkships in the several departments of the state government, and the unjustifiable and unwarranted increase of salaries. The payment of political obligations in this manner out of the state treasury has already created a deficiency of over $3,500,000, crippled the public charities, robbed the public schools and perpetuated wrongs against the people and the state that demand their condemnation.

We believe that the most careful provision should be made for the care of the unfortunate insane of our state, and contend that the cause of the poor and afflicted is of far greater importance to the welfare of the commonwealth than is the creation of new offices and the increase of official salaries. We denounce the indecent haste displayed and the disrespect shown the people by the governor of the state in the appointment to the vacancy in the United States senate of M. S. Quay, who, to prevent a full investigation before a jury of his constituents, pleaded the statute of limitations against the most serious charge of crime. In this appointment, in the unwarranted reduction of the appropriation to public schools and the perpetration of wrongs against the people and the state that demand their condemnation.

We heartily approve of the course pursued by those members of the Democratic party in the house and senate in the last legislative session who contended for the purity and honesty of the conduct of affairs and against corruption and public jobbery, and we commend their devotion to duty and the high standard of reform to which they have committed the Democratic party.

As a political organization we are committed to a thorough reform and promise, if intrusted by the people with the opportunity and power to administer the state treasury after clean and simple business methods for the advantage of the taxpayers of the state, and prompt payment of school and charitable appropriations as well as the moneys due the counties, and not to withhold them in the banks for the enrichment of politicians.

We are committed to the thorough purging of the list of employees in the state departments and the elimination of all unnecessary employees and a reduction of expenses. We favor a revision of state tax laws to the end that corporate property may pay its due share.

We favor such legislation as will enable people of municipalities to derive a just benefit from franchises. We favor a revision of the ballot law and denounce Governor Stone's veto of the proposed constitutional amendment requiring personal registration of voters in the cities.

We demand the immediate prosecution of those found guilty of bribery in the contest for United States senate. We are opposed to all combination of capital calculated to produce monopoly or restraint in the manner of free, fair and honest elections and to prevent the use of public money legislation or patronage for private profit, calls upon all good citizens to lay aside all other questions and unite with it in an effort to save the state.

We hereby express our earnest admiration for and devotion to our present representative on the national committee, James M. Guffey.

We glory and rejoice in the patriotic devotion to the cause of our country in the late war with Spain and of the brave and noble men who imperiled their lives and shed their blood in order that a conflict waged for humanity's sake might be brought to a speedy and triumphant close.

PLAYED GREAT BALL.

Beaneaters Beat the Giants After a Rather Lively Tussle.

New York, June 15.—Even if they didn't beat the Beaneaters, the local team had the satisfaction of giving the players from Boston a hard tussle at the Polo grounds.

The Beaneaters began well, with two runs in the opening inning. Stahl and Tenney scored. In the third the New Yorks rallied and evened matters. Van Halten sent a long one to Duffy, but the left fielder was not quick enough. Tierman and Wilson crossing the plate ahead of the sphere. Duffy redeemed himself in the sixth, however, by scoring on Lowe's hit centre.

O'Brien brought the 1000 fans to their feet in the seventh by knocking the ball into the left field bleachers in beautiful style. It was a home run, and Gleason preceded O'Brien over the plate. As Tenney had made it five for the Beaneaters in the first half of the seventh, the New Yorks made a great effort to get on even terms again. But the Beaneaters played great ball and held down the locals to the end.

Philadelphia, June 15.—The Evening Telegraph, through the medium of which Lewis C. Haupt on the canal commission was given general publicity, and which the professor denied giving, publishes the following: "Notwithstanding the professor's repudiation, the interview is authentic and correct in every particular."

It is possible that some of our customers who painted their houses ten years ago may be thinking now that it is time to brush up their property, and this advertisement is to remind them that the Chilton Paint is made today as it has always been made, of pure Linseed Oil and Turpentine. It is measured by the United States standard gallon, and it is just what it purports to be, the best article of paint that can possibly be manufactured.

Most of the dealers who handled it years ago continue its sale. They find that it is an article of merit and it brings them business in other lines. Other paints may be bought cheaper, but the Chilton in the end is the cheapest paint of all. It cannot look streaked, because the tints are ground into the liquid paint. If you buy a gallon you get a gallon and not part of one. Tested by weight, measure, coverage and properties and durability, it stands at the head and is standard.

HAD NO RESPONSIBILITY.

O'Dea Was Hired as Coach, but Was Really Merely an Instructor.

Cambridge, Mass., June 15.—The talk of Harvard college is the exit of Andrew O'Dea from Harvard rowing matters. To say that it was unexpected would hardly be the truth, as it has long been evident to those who have visited the Harvard boathouse that the state of armed neutrality would not last very long. There are any number of matters that have brought about the breach. Student opinion inclines to the view that O'Dea was never given a chance to really show what was in him. On the part of the Harvard rowing authorities they can say with all fairness that they have lived up to the letter of their contract, but in truth they have violated its spirit from very nearly the commencement of the season.

To go back, Mr. O'Dea was tempted out of the west by a larger salary as coach. When he reached Cambridge a contract was drawn up. In it it appeared that O'Dea was to be a coach of the Harvard crew, but it was early impressed upon him that Storror was to be the head coach. At first this was intended as a mere formality, and it was the full intention of the authorities that O'Dea should be the real working coach. Training started, and soon a general feeling grew up that O'Dea was not the star that was expected, and from that time on the management commenced to live up to the letter of their contract, and little by little O'Dea was shoved from his position as a possible working coach of the varsity crew into one of a mere instructor in rowing. His failure to turn out a winning freshman crew settled the matter, and he never even went out in the 'varsity launch to coach. The 'varsity men were instructed by him in matters of detail, but he had absolutely no say in the development of the Harvard stroke, nor was he consulted.

Says It Is Correct.

Philadelphia, June 15.—The Evening Telegraph, through the medium of which Lewis C. Haupt on the canal commission was given general publicity, and which the professor denied giving, publishes the following: "Notwithstanding the professor's repudiation, the interview is authentic and correct in every particular."

It is possible that some of our customers who painted their houses ten years ago may be thinking now that it is time to brush up their property, and this advertisement is to remind them that the Chilton Paint is made today as it has always been made, of pure Linseed Oil and Turpentine. It is measured by the United States standard gallon, and it is just what it purports to be, the best article of paint that can possibly be manufactured.

Most of the dealers who handled it years ago continue its sale. They find that it is an article of merit and it brings them business in other lines. Other paints may be bought cheaper, but the Chilton in the end is the cheapest paint of all. It cannot look streaked, because the tints are ground into the liquid paint. If you buy a gallon you get a gallon and not part of one. Tested by weight, measure, coverage and properties and durability, it stands at the head and is standard.

THE OLD WAY.

Of Treating Dyspepsia and Indigestion by Dieting a Dangerous and Useless One.

"We say the old way, but really it is a very common one at the present time and many dyspeptics and physicians as well consider the first step to be taken in attempting to cure indigestion is to diet, either by selecting certain foods and rejecting others or to greatly diminish the quantity usually taken." In other words the starvation plan is supposed by many to be the first essential.

"The almost certain failure of the starvation cure has been proven time and again, but still the moment dyspepsia makes appearance a course of dieting is at once advised.

All this is radically wrong. It is foolish and unscientific to recommend dieting to a man suffering from dyspepsia, because indigestion itself starves every organ, every nerve and every fibre in the body.

What the dyspeptic wants is abundant nutrition, which means plenty of good, wholesome well cooked food, and something to assist the weak stomach to digest it. This is exactly the purpose for which Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are adapted and this is the method by which they cure the worst cases of dyspepsia, in other words the patient eats plenty of wholesome food and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digests it for him. In this way the system is nourished and the overworked stomach rested, because the tablets will digest the food whether the stomach works or not. One of these tablets will digest 3,000 grains of meat or eggs.

Your druggists will tell you that Stuart's Tablets is the purest and safest remedy for stomach troubles and every trial makes, one more friend for this excellent preparation. Sold at 50 cent for full sized package at all drug stores.

CANCER CURED BY ABSORPTION NO KNIFE.

BLOOD EVIDENCE

Then come to our offices and investigate the hundreds of other marvelous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed. Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack being more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day, realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with just the results promised I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EREN FISH, 232 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES when all others fail.

We want you to call and examine references of people you know—people we all know, who would not vouch for ABSORPTION had they not been cured. Ask for references marked H.

A FAMOUS TRIBUNAL.

Venezuelan Arbitrators Hold First Formal Meeting at Paris.

Sixty Thousand Miles of Territory In Dispute.

Precedent Will Be Applicable to Other Controversies Likely to Arise.

Paris, June 16.—The Venezuelan arbitrators, counsel and others were received yesterday by the minister of foreign affairs, M. Delcasse, in the apartments in which the tribunal will sit. These are the rooms used at the meeting of the Spanish-American peace conference and during the Behring sea arbitration. Altogether there were 40 persons connected with the tribunal present at the first formal meeting.

This tribunal is the outcome of President Cleveland's famous Venezuelan message of Dec. 17, 1895. Great Britain had refused to submit to arbitration the dispute as to the boundary between British Guiana and Venezuela. President Cleveland advised interference in behalf of the South American republic, and insisted that Great Britain should submit to the arbitration urged by Venezuela. On the refusal of Great Britain, the United States determined to find out for itself by thorough investigation the true boundary line. This was regarded at the time as equivalent to a notice that this country would resist any claims by Great Britain beyond the line fixed by the American commission. The appointment of Justice Brewer of the supreme court, R. H. Alvey, F. G. Coudert, Daniel C. Gilman and Andrew D. White as United States commissioners, to determine the boundary met with instant and popular approval. The commission entered upon its work and collected a great mass of information, but Great Britain finally consented to arbitration and agreed to a plan submitted by Secretary Olney.

A treaty was arranged between Venezuela and Great Britain, in which it was agreed to accept as final the decision of a tribunal of arbitration as to the disputed territory. That tribunal was made up of Sir Charles Russell, lord chief justice of England, and Justice Collins, on the part of Great Britain; Chief Justice Fuller and Justice Brewer of the United States supreme court, on the part of Venezuela, and President Martens of the university of St. Petersburg. It was to meet in Paris May 25, but was postponed till yesterday. Venezuela has no direct representation upon the tribunal of arbitration. Her interests are entirely in the hands of the American members of the tribunal and of the American counsel, ex-President Harrison, General Benjamin Tracy, S. Malley-Provost and James Russell Solley.

This arrangement as to the membership of the tribunal and as to counsel is one of the most significant features of this arbitration scheme. The United States, in accordance with the principle enunciated in President Cleveland's message, is to fight the battles of the weaker republics of the western hemisphere.

The territory in dispute contains about 60,000 square miles. Venezuela claims that the Essequibo river is the eastern boundary. Great Britain assumes that under the treaty of 1648, Spain granted to the Netherlands all the territory then held by the Dutch in Guiana, and that the Dutch, under the treaty of 1814, transferred this territory to the English. Great Britain claims that the Dutch settlement extended westward to the mouth of the Orinoco river, and on this claim three boundary lines have been marked out. The extreme claim is based on the principle that all the country watered by the tributaries of the Essequibo river should be included in the district transferred by the Dutch to the English.

General Harrison has given his entire time for 15 months to the preparation of this case. Twenty-three volumes of printed testimony and arguments will be submitted to the tribunal. The proceedings will be regarded with great interest in Europe, because more than in any previous arbitration case they partake of the nature of a lawsuit between nations. The tribunal is to pass upon treaties, to interpret unrecorded historical events, to give judgment on questions of equity and technical points of international law, to determine boundaries, and to apply to the settlement of controversies principles of law defined by the most distinguished lawyers of the age.

The purpose of the award, however, will be of comparatively little moment compared with the vital importance to the Latin-American commonwealths of the principle established by the United States that no European nation will be permitted, upon any pretext, to acquire American territory by force. The precedent created by us in the case of the controversy between Venezuela and Great Britain will be recognized as applicable to another boundary dispute which already exists, as well as to some similar controversies that are likely to arise in the near future. France has, for some time, evinced the purpose of extending her colony of Cayenne, or French Guiana, southward, at the expense of Brazil, and some of her more advanced expansionists have even put forward a claim to the whole block of territory intervening between what has been hitherto treated as the southern border of Cayenne and the mouth of the Amazon. To lose exclusive control of that great waterway would be as grievous a blow to Brazil as would have been the loss of a like exclusive control of the Orinoco to Venezuela. Since the inauguration, however, of a Republican regime at Rio de Janeiro, the French colonial authorities in Cayenne have occupied successive strips of the disputed region, and only recently a sharp encounter took place between French and Brazilian soldiers.

Had we permitted England to acquire, as she undoubtedly designed to do, a footing at the mouth of the Orinoco, we should have been stopped from objecting to a like encroachment on the part of France with regard to the Amazon, and thus two of the three great rivers of South America would have practically passed under the sway of European powers. It is certain, moreover, that England, having once demonstrated the possibility of expanding her colony of Guiana westward at the cost of Venezuela, would have proceeded to extend it southward at the expense of Brazil, until she, like France, should have gained a footing on the Amazon. It is also to be borne in mind that Dutch Guiana may, at any time, be transferred by purchase or conquest to the German empire, which, following the examples set by England and France, might set up a claim to a hinterland covering the whole tract between the Amazon and what is now supposed to be the southern border of the Dutch possessions. It was, in fine, the first move in a game likely to culminate within half a century in a partition of South America among the European powers, which we effectively blocked when we forbade Great Britain to use her power for the purpose of dismembering an American commonwealth under the specious pretext of a rectification of frontiers.

There has been in American history no more far-reaching act than the announcement after the receipt of the dispatch in which Lord Salisbury refused to submit the question of British Guiana's boundary to arbitration. The announcement was that the United States would help Venezuela to defend what, upon careful examination, we should find to be her territorial rights. Beyond a doubt this declaration saved Latin America from the fate of Africa. Had we acquiesced in the attitude assumed by Lord Salisbury, South America would have been partitioned, and, like North America in the last century, would have become a field for the prosecution of European rivalries and for the satisfaction of the earth hunger of the old world. It was peace and freedom that we assured forever to Latin America when we upheld the Monroe doctrine.

Allegations Not Sustained.

Hartford, June 16.—The committee on the judiciary of the Connecticut general assembly yesterday presented its report to the legislature giving its findings as a result of the investigation into the affairs of the office of Insurance Commissioner Betts. It was alleged that the commissioner wrongfully consented to a settlement of a suit brought by his department against the Aetna Life Insurance company of Hartford, involving several millions of dollars; that he was a party to undue influence to bring about this settlement; and that he was involved in questionable negotiations. The report vindicates Betts. The legislature accepted the report unanimously.

Statesmanship Appreciated.

Washington, June 16.—The French ambassador, M. Cambon, is about to receive from Harvard university the degree of LL. D., in recognition of the distinguished public services he performed in the negotiations which restored peace between the United States and Spain. Harvard has conferred this degree on President Cleveland, Secretary Bayard and other noted public men, but this is probably the only instance in which the ambassador of a foreign power has received such an honor from a leading American university.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

A dispatch from Manzanillo, Cuba, says that during a severe storm, lightning struck several tents in the American camp there, and 15 calvarymen were rendered unconscious. Fortunately no one was killed.

In the Spanish chamber of deputies General Polavieja announced that the Spanish commission at Manila had gone to confer with Aguinaldo regarding the Spanish prisoners in the hands of the Philippines.

The quartermaster's department has re-chartered the Zealandia and Valencia, transports now at San Francisco, to be used to carry troops to the Philippines. These transports belong to the Pacific coast fleet, but it was thought they would no longer be required, and were put out of commission. The Boston Merchants' club has forwarded to Admiral Dewey an invitation to a dinner to be given by that organization after the admiral's arrival in this country. Secretary Long has expressed his confidence in the admiral's acceptance of the courtesy and his own intention to be present at the banquet.

The Vermont division, Sons of Veterans, elected the following officers: Commander, L. E. Morse, Cambridge; senior vice commander, H. S. Richardson, Wells River; junior vice commander, G. W. Cole, Bradford; chairman of division council, W. W. Lapoint, Barre; delegates-at-large to the national encampment, E. E. Perry, Barre; N. F. Kelly, Bradford; G. D. Van Sternberg, Burlington.

The navy department has received the 1700 bronze medals authorized by congress for the officers and men who participated in the battle of Manila bay. The bureau of navigation will distribute the medals.

Admiral Watson has arrived at Hong Kong, and has taken command of the Asiatic squadron, relieving Captain Barker of the Oregon, who has been in charge since Admiral Dewey sailed from Manila. Captain Barker will return to the United States on a mail steamer.

Rear Admiral Pierce Crosby, retired, one of the last of Farragut's Civil war, died at Washington of diabetes, aged 76 years.

The Maine division, Sons of Veterans, elected these officers: Commander, E. H. Smith, Westbrook; senior vice commander, E. N. Courson, Brunswick; junior vice, G. U. Hamilton, Bucksport; division council, C. E. Lighton, Skowhegan; A. L. Orne, Rockland; W. A. Spofford, New Sharon; delegate at large, A. G. Thomas, Portland; alternate, G. W. Gray, Gardiner.

Eleven workmen were burned to death in a fire which destroyed a dwelling house near Rybinsk, northern Russia. Both chambers of the Transvaal volksraad have adjourned to enable the members to consult their constituents on the franchise proposals of President Kruger.

Several cars on the Cleveland street railway lines were attacked by mobs of strikers with stones and bricks. Three non-union men on the cars were badly injured, and were taken to hospitals. Mobs also tried to obstruct the tracks.

SEVERE ELECTRIC STORM

Causes Heavy Damage In Worcester County and Other Places.

Worcester, Mass., June 16.—One of the worst electric storms for a long time played havoc in Worcester county yesterday. The storm was general in the north, central and western portions of the county. Rain fell in torrents and many washouts were reported. Traffic on the various suburban roads was impeded by gravel several inches thick being floated on to the tracks. Lightning struck in several places at Spencer, five in Holden, and other towns heard from were the Brookfields and Leicester. Considerable livestock perished, and several barns were burned. The damage to highways by water and to property will climb high into the thousands.

Ipswich, Mass., June 16.—During a heavy storm last night lightning struck the steeple on the South Congregational church and soon the entire building was in flames. The firemen saved the main structure. Lightning also struck Caldwell's block and did some damage. The play of electricity was so general that many people were prostrated, but no serious cases have been reported.

Brattleboro, Vt., June 16.—The long drought throughout this section was broken by several heavy showers yesterday. During the first storm lightning struck the Universalist church at Vernon and it was destroyed. It was built over 50 years ago at an expense of $6000.

Agricultural Papers Amalgamated.

Springfield, Mass., June 16.—Probably the largest transaction in agricultural journalism ever made in this country took place in this city yesterday, when George S. Graves sold his interests in the Phelps Publishing company of this city and Chicago, and the Orange Judd company of New York, Chicago and this city to Herbert Myrick and associates. The two companies are publishers of the Springfield Homestead, a local semi-weekly; The Farm and Home, a national semi-monthly; The American Agriculturist, a weekly; The Orange Judd Farmer, weekly, and The New England Homestead, the three latter having nearly 200,000 subscribers. The companies also publish agricultural books. But little change is made in the personnel or management of the two companies.

Lyman Mills Close.

Holyoke, Mass., June 16.—The entire Lyman mill plant, including all the mills operated by the company in this city, was closed last night, primarily as the result of the strike which began Tuesday. The closing of the plant throws 1500 men out of employment, all on account of the striking of some 30 doffers, 50 ring spinners and 18 spoolers. At a meeting of the strikers last night National Organizer Mills addressed them and urged them to return to work. The strikers, however, are for the most part boys, and evidently do not realize the gravity of the situation. They are divided among themselves, some asking for 10, others 15 and others a 20 percent increase.

Murder in First Degree.

Alfred, Me., June 16.—Frank P. Parks of Kittery was found guilty of murder in the first degree in killing Mrs. Mary Tarlton of that town in the supreme court Thursday, but sentence was withheld pending decisions of points of law raised. The trial began June 12. The murder was coldblooded, and the only apparent motive was robbery. It was admitted by the defense that Parks was intoxicated at or about the time of the murder. Objection by counsel is based on the judge's charge to the jury. Should the verdict stand, the extreme penalty would be life imprisonment, as Maine has no capital punishment law.

Flight of Jailbirds.

Manchester, N. H., June 16.—Arthur Thomas, William Godbout, Louis Jacques and Joe Bouchamp, four young fellows committed to the county jail in this city for larceny and breaking and entering, gained their freedom yesterday. They made the break from the north corridor, through a window leading to the yard, which is surrounded by a fence 12 feet high. It is supposed that the work of saving the bars must have been in progress for several weeks, inasmuch as the bars had become rusty on the ends.

Cars Left the Rails.

Providence, June 16.—A second boat train from New York via Stonington was partially wrecked two miles north of Westerly last night. The wreck was due to the dropping of a brake beam, which caught in a platform and derailed an express car. This one dragged six others with it. The engine, the last express car and the passenger coaches clung to the rails. No one was injured.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

Sun rises—4:07; sets, 7:23.
Moon sets—Morn.
High water—5:30 a. m.; 6 p. m.

The storm central Wednesday night in the upper lake region has moved to the middle St. Lawrence valley, increasing in intensity, and has caused thunderstorms and rain from the Mississippi valley to the Atlantic coast. An area of high pressure has developed over Minnesota, and northwesterly winds from this has caused a fall in temperature from the middle Mississippi valley to the middle and north Atlantic coast. Thunder storms and rain, followed by fair, may be expected in New England, but no grow cooler, except stationary temperature on the immediate coast.

CRUSHING OF KRUGER

Ardently Advocated by British Liberal and Radical Newspapers.

Strong Influence Exerted In
the Business World.

President of Transvaal Republic Is Placed Between Two Fires.

London, June 16.—Signs of excitement over the Transvaal situation are multiplying rapidly, and there seems to be a unity of feeling that the issue should be forced without unnecessary delay.

Even the conservative newspapers insist that unless the reforms demanded
by the British foreign office are inaugurated by President Kruger, intervention
must be resorted to at once.

The Liberal and Radical organs are fairly shrieking for war, and are magnifying every incident in the situation
thus far. They are carrying the largest and most flaming headlines since the Fashoda incident, and declare that British prestige in South Africa must be maintained whatever the cost.

The Cecil Rhodes Chartered company has resolved that war is unavoidable unless Kruger grants the British demands,
and its members are flooding the English newspapers with communications
embodying their opinions.

The large number of prepaid cable messages being received by jobbers in South African stocks indicates the extent to which the situation has exerted
an influence in the business world.

The galleries and lobbies of the house of commons swarm with those who are urging immediate intervention, and they are doing everything in their power to stiffen the cabinet and urge it to make a firm stand.

There is no doubt of the existence of the outlanders' grievances, but President Kruger's position is a peculiar one, placing him, as it were, between two fires. If he grants the franchises demanded by the British the outlanders, who largely outnumber the Boers, will, by their votes, transfer the control of the Transvaal to the English, while if he refuses, forcible intervention will ultimately bring about the same result.

It is therefore believed that he will do nothing further except to prepare to accept the appeal to arms.

The Yankee Defeated.

Montreal, June 16.—The fourth and last race for the Koss cup, between the yachts Dominion and Yankee, resulted in a win for the Canadian boat by 2 minutes and 22 seconds, thus retaining the cup. The race was sailed over a triangular course, and this, it was expected, would make the result problematical, the two free runs being expected to neutralize the Dominion's admitted superiority in windward work. Yesterday's race was sailed in a fluky wind
that blew from east most of the day,
but in the last round veered around to the southeast.

Turkish Encroachment.

Belgrade, June 16.—A number of Albanian bands, assisted by 2000 Turkish regular troops, are reported to have attacked a number of Serbian villages in the Javorin district. During the fighting a large number of men were killed and wounded on both sides. The Turks, it is stated, being in superior force, overpowered the frontier guards and now blockade three villages. A force of Serbian regular troops has been dispatched to the scene with orders to expel the invaders.

About the Shamrock.

London, June 16.—The Times says this morning: The hull of the Shamrock is made of a new alloy of extreme lightness and strength. Nothing could be smoother than the under water surface
it makes. The following are her dimensions. Length over all, 125 feet;
length on low water line, 89 feet; beam, 12 feet; length from bowsprit end to mainboom end, 130 feet. Her draught is 19 feet 2 inches, and the height from deck level to topmast is 128 feet.

Famine in East Africa.

London, June 16.—Advices received here from East Africa show famine is prevailing in the German possessions
owing to the drought, which also prevails alarmingly in the British protectorate. Hundreds of women are dying of starvation and the resident whites are wholly unable to cope with the distress.

Broke Away From Gallows.

Springfield, Mo., June 16.—Carroll M.
Rice, wife murderer, was hanged at Alton yesterday. Before the black cap was adjusted and while his legs were being pinioned, Rice broke away and attempted to escape. He was captured and quickly hanged. He made an address to the 5000 persons present.

To Take Part in Celebration.

Boston, June 16.—The vessels of the North Atlantic squadron, Rear Admiral Sampson commanding, are due here late this afternoon, on high tide. Tomorrow, at 9 a. m., the marines and tailors will be landed at the navy yard
for the early parade on Charlestown's Bunker Hill day. Sunday Monday and Tuesday the vessels will be open to visitors at certain hours, Monday afternoon being reserved for the poor children of Boston. On Wednesday the fleet will leave the harbor. The cruiser New York and the three battleships coming here carry nearly 2000 men.

Egloff's Feet.

New York, June 16.—August Egloff finished his task of riding 10 consecutive centuries at 2 o'clock Thursday morning.
Egloff's time for the 1000 miles was 108
hours and 29 minutes. For 4½ days Egloff had only 6½ hours' sleep. He broke all of the century records in this country from 200 to 600 miles, and also made new figures from 700 to 1000 miles.
Egloff did not take solid food on his ride,
but confined himself almost exclusively to strawberry icecream. When he finally dismounted from his wheel he was in very good condition.

CONGRESSMAN BLAND DEAD.

"Silver Dick" Passes Away After Long Sickness at His Lebanon Home.
Lebanon, Mo., June 16.—Richard P.
Bland died yesterday after a sleep of 32 hours. Mr. Bland returned home when congress adjourned in March and soon suffered a relapse from an attack of grip.

RICHARD P. BLAND.

Richard Parks Bland was born in Ohio county, Ky., Aug. 19, 1835. His father was Stoughton E. Bland, a native Kentuckian; his mother was Miss Nell,
a daughter of Richard P. Hall of Kentucky. Most of the Bland family sprung from Colonel Theodor Bland, who was on Washington's staff in the revolutionary war.

At the age of 18 the subject of this sketch attended the Hartford (Ky.) Academy and took a teacher's course for one year. He taught several terms in Kentucky and Missouri, and in 1855 went to California. He remained in California, Nevada and Colorado 10 years, teaching school and studying law, and practicing law and fighting Indians,
and serving one term as treasurer of Carson county, Utah, now the state of Colorado. In 1860 he was admitted to the bar of the United States district court in Utah territory.

Returning to Missouri in 1865, he resumed the practice of law at Rolla,
three years later moving to Lebanon.
In 1873 he married Miss Virginia E.
Mitchell, daughter of General E. Y.
Mitchell of Rolla. Ten children were born to them, of whom four are deceased.

In the same year of his marriage Mr.
Bland became a member of Congress from the eighth district of Missouri, and for nearly a generation thereafter he was a remarkable figure in the political history of the country. From his first entrance to Congress he was the pronounced champion, and in the House of Representatives, the head and front of the free silver party.

Mr. Bland was a prominent candidate for the Democratic nomination in 1896,
when Bryan was hardily regarded as among the possibilities. He had gained this pre-eminence by his unswerving championship of silver for more than 20 years in and out of congress. Because of his partiality for the white metal he was nicknamed "Silver Dick" by his political friends and foes.

CHAMPIONS WERE AWAY AHEAD

When Main Put an End to the Game With the Maid From Quaker City.

Boston, June 16.—Boston won an easy victory from the Phillies at the South End grounds in an almost featureless game. The Phillies acted slow, and at no stage of the proceedings gave signs of being out for the pennant. The home team, on the other hand, were full of life, despite the dark and threatening weather, which finally culminated in a shower. This downpour shut off the ceremonies while the Phillies were in the last half of the sixth inning. The champions had a safe lead of 6 to 1 and were just beginning to solve the slow underhand delivery of Jack Fiefield, the Franklin Falls boy.

THE CAVITE BATTLE.

Filipinos Lost Over Thirteen Hundred Men in the Engagement.

Americans' Arrival Welcomed
by Inhabitants.

Arguments Used by General Luna to Keep Up Spirits of His Followers.

Washington, June 16.—General Otis has cabled the following under date of June 15:

"Adjutant General, Washington.—Success of Lawton's troops in Cavite province greater than reported yesterday.
Enemy numbering over 4000, lost in killed, wounded and captured more than one-third, remainder were scattered;
retreated south to Imus, their arsenal.
Of five pieces of artillery three were captured. Navy aided greatly on the shore of the bay, landing forces occasionally.
Inhabitants in that country rejoice at deliverance and welcome with enthusiastic demonstrations the arrival of our troops."

General Otis is organizing three regiments in the Philippines, composed of officers and men of the state volunteers who desire to remain in the service. If the full complement cannot be made up from those discharged volunteers in the Philippines, the regiments will be organized and officered in skeleton form from recruits can be sent from the United States to fill them. These three proposed regiments, with three regiments of regulars to sail from San Francisco on the 22nd and 24th and those under orders for Manila, will give General Otis 33,000
fighting men.

Yesterday's press dispatches say that Captain Cable of General Wheaton's
staff, with three companies of the 1st Twenty-first regiment, reconnoitered yesterday in the direction of Imus. The rebels, who were apparently expecting an attack, retired, leaving behind them 20 Spanish prisoners, who joined the Americans.

The rebels have probably gone to the mountains along the lake. According to native stories, the rebels carried 100 dead and 200 wounded through Bacoor after the recent battle. The natives are now flocking into Bacoor, and it is probable
there are many soldiers in plain clothing
among them.

The whole section is practically without food, and General Otis has ordered the distribution of rice and beef to the inhabitants.

Many people still refuse to credit the stories of the assassination of General Luna by the guard at Aguinaldo's headquarters, though the charges against the effect are most circumstantial and from good sources. But rumors of assassinations and disasters from the rebel camp are so frequently printed in the local papers that they have come to be regarded with indifference. The latest is that the governor of Cebu has been killed by natives because of his friendship to Americans.

A prominent commercial man, with exceptional means of learning of the Philippines' movements, claims to know General Luna is still alive, adding that if he is dead and the dispatch occurred a month ago people would have experienced a col-
apse of the revolution to follow.

The failure of the Filipinos to follow up the peace negotiations strengthens the impression that their overtures were merely to gain time and in order to lure
the Americans to show their hands.
The independence of a revolutionary organ, a copy of which has just been obtained, prints an interview with General Luna showing the arguments he used to keep up the spirits of his followers. He represents the Philippine cause as prospering, "because the Americans have gained only a hundredth part of Luna by their fighting," and says the women and children tilling the fields within the American lines give the proceeds of their work to support the Filipino army. He is said to have further remarked: "More Americans will be killed by ambushes,
surprises and disease than bullets.
The war, but we cannot accept peace
at any price but independence. The Americans suffered for their own independence, and in their hearts they appreciate why we resist them."

For an Indefinite Period.

Washington, June 16.—First Assistant Postmaster General Heath yesterday
granted an indefinite extension of the leave of absence of Postmaster Thomas of Boston, and telegraphic notification
of the action was given the Boston postal authorities. No limit of time was fixed,
for the reason that there is a possibility that the postmaster's health may yet be restored sufficiently to permit resumption of his duties. Mr. Thomas remains nominally the postmaster and Mr. Henderson acting postmaster. This arrangement is with the sanction of the bondsmen and will continue probably for several months, if Mr. Thomas' con-

The $6,385,000 three per cent. bonds of the State of Massachusetts sold at a slight premium Thursday, but not on quite as good a basis as expected. It is evident that the State is getting into debt too fast, for the bond houses state
that there is at present an over-supply
of Massachusetts bonds on the market which accounts at least in part, for the low price received.

Drift of Opinion.

Free speech is the corner-stone of American liberty, and the American officers in Cuba should remember that they are there to show the Cubans the difference between Spanish and American methods of government.—Brockton Times.

The Socialist-Labor party of Ohio denounces the municipal ownership movement as an attack on the liberties of the people. This tends to the confusion of the people concerning what socialism actually means.—

These are the days when many

their minds firmly fixed on vacations

Now that Nicaragua and Costa

The latest thing in France
among the fencers is a foil that pricks slightly. What criminal carelessness.
Someone might get scratched, and it should be the duty of every self-respecting Frenchman to forbid the use of such foils. If the use of a foil with ever so small a point became general,
what would become of that national institution, the duel?—Lewiston Journal.

Mayor Quincy announces definitely that he will not run again for the dictatorship of Boston. It'll pay George Fred Williams to keep his shown on to guess which way Josiah is likely to jump, no matter which direction he may be looking.—Milford Journal.

People find public school education is a good investment and take an increasing interest in the opportunities
it affords their children. The humble laborer and his wife, who may have to take in washing to clothe the family properly, will save money so that the next generation may be equipped to occupy a better station in life. Many of the high school pupils come from families who would not have thought
a few years ago that they could afford to educate their children so well. Then they availed themselves of the children's earnings, but now they give them the opportunity to earn more later on for themselves. So long as this thirst for education continues people will not allow a niggardly policy toward the public schools—Worcester Gazette.

No one can read the story of the recent bank trouble at Dover and not conclude that it arises solely from the inefficiency and incompetence of the directors of that institution. In this instance the laches seem to have been greater than usual. The usual plea of ignorance is not entered, but one of knowledge of guilt accompanied by an easy going faith that the defaulting employee would come out all right in the stock market or that his relatives would make good his default rather than have him disgraced.—Concord Monitor.

California is like the rest of the union. C. C. Donovan, of Santa Rosa, California, who was recently visiting in Washington, said: "The most popular man in California is President McKinley. I voted for Bryan in '96, but next year I hope to cast a vote
for the present occupant of the White House. I have lots of Democratic friends who are as anxious to reverse their votes as I am. We think Mc-Kinley has conducted himself through all the trying war as a statesman and patriot, and the coast is pretty near solid for him."—Attleboro Sun.

The Manet Investigation Committee is doing some splendid work in exposing the iniquitous operation of taxation in New York, if nothing else.
At Tuesday's session it was brought out that of the $17,000,000 of personal property which the Standard Oil Company had sworn to possess an assessment was made on only $800,000. That is undoubtedly only a drop in the bucket of inequalities that are practised in that department, and illustrates why taxes bear so hard on the middle and lower classes. Isn't there public honor and integrity enough left in Greater New York to right such glaring wrongs?—Lynn Item.

The call for 5,000 recruits for our army in the Philippines affords to a young man of an adventurous turn an opportunity to see the world as the representative of a great power. The recruiting offices in Boston and throughout the country are besieged with applicants, and Uncle Sam will experience very little difficulty in getting all the men he needs. The cavalry and artillery arms are the places sought just now more than the infantry and there is more enthusiasm shown at the stations than during the war in Cuba. Otis wants men enough to garrison the places he captures and the government will see to it that the requirements of the Philippine district are fully and promptly met.— Lynn Item.

Two tremendous facts combine to immensurably increase the white man's burden. While it may be true enough that the theological dogmas of Christianity have, to a great degree, lost their hold on the minds of men, it is equally true that the glorious ideals of the Founder are continually tightening their grasp in the heart-strings of the race. From generation to generation, self-effacement is more and more universally the note of civilized society.
The sense of responsibility for the physical well being, of subject millions is well calculated to intensify the crushing sense of responsibility for the spiritual welfare, no less than for the physical well being, of subject millions is well calculated to intensify the crushing sense of responsibility which goes with sovereign power. It is, in truth, the case of the soldier upon whose courage and endurance the safety of the garrison depends, and the strain of the vigil grows greater with the lengthening shadows.—New

AN EXPLOSION.

Sets Fire to Music Hall
Block.

Started in Basement of Bicycle Store.

Hospital Festival was Being Held in the Hall.

It was about 8.30 o'clock Thursday evening when two men who were at work in the basement of John H.
Gillis bicycle store in Music hall block were startled by a loud explosion in the adjoining basement, which was immediately followed by a rush of hot air and flames through the open door connecting the two rooms. They rushed for a pail of water, but seeing that it would do but little good a rush was made for the fire alarm box near by, and an alarm turned in from Box 23.

The knowledge that this box is located in a dangerous locality put everybody on the jump and in a remarkably short time the central station apparatus was on the scene. Hose 2 of Wollaston and Hose 4 of Quincy Point were also soon on hand. By this time there was a strong odor of burning rubber and a dense black smoke was pouring out of the basement window
and penetrating the entire building.

Those attending the festival in the hall were admonished to keep cool as there was no danger. They, however, quickly left the hall and the windows
were opened wide to let the smoke out.

Meanwhile the fire department had located the fire and were pouring water into the basement from the front and rear. No fire came above the basement and no water was used on the street floors. What fire there was soon gave way to the powerful streams of water,
although the smoke from burning rubber was so strong that it was some minutes before one could enter the store.

The basement where the explosion and fire occurred is directly beneath the store of the Quincy Clothing Co. In this basement there were ten of twenty new and second hand wheels and a hundred pairs of rubber tires and these were all ruined while new wheels in other parts of the store were blistered
by the heat. In this same basement was the gas meter and the brazing apparatus. Just what caused the explosion, however, is as yet a mystery.

Mr. Gillis says that his gasoline tank was empty and does not believe it could have been that.

His loss he estimates at $500 upon which he has no insurance, having failed to renew his policy which ran out a few days ago.

The stock in the Quincy Clothing
Co. store is badly damaged by smoke,
but to what extent is not known, as the proprietor did not care to thoroughly examine his stock or take an estimate until the insurance people had been out.

The Boston Bargain store was also filled with smoke. In the basement of this store was a large stock of goods
in cases, which are more or less damaged by smoke and water, while the goods on the street floor are penetrated with smoke.

Word was sent to Mr. Brasee who came up and opened the doors and windows which were left open all night, an officer being stationed on guard at the door. Mr. Brasee, when seen this morning, said that he had an unusual large stock of goods on hand,
and roughly estimates his loss at $3,000
which is fully covered by insurance.

In Music hall the walls of the corridors were blackened by smoke and will have to be whitened and painted.
The walls in the stores will also have to be whitened and the loss to the building is estimated at $600.

The fire department handled the fire
in good shape and confined it to the room where it started. It was fortunate that it was not later in the evening when the fire took place or the damage would have been much heavier.

Because of the early interruption in the Festival of Holidays by the fire in the store below, the fair will be continued on the holiday. Doors will therefore be open Saturday afternoon and evening and attractions will be offered.
Many choice articles are yet unsold,
and there are tons of confectionery.
Drop around and help a good cause.

The Malden Hospital is well endowed. Hon. E. S. Converse has given $100,000 in the past six months to the Malden Hospital. The money was in sums of $25,000 and very few people in the city knew of the gifts. The amounts thus given will be credited to the Converse fund of the hospital, of which Mr. Converse has previously given $50,000. Only the interest of the fund is to be used by the trustees for the running of the hospital, leaving the principal intact. This makes a total of $150,000 Mr. Converse has given the Malden hospital in addition to the site, valued at $20,000.

ABOUT RETAILING SHIRTS.

SOME good, but misguided women, who own good husbands, try to lessen
the worries of those same husbands by doing some of the personal purchasing. In a great many instances it is a great help, for it is due to the good taste displayed by wives that many husbands are becoming clothed.
But once in a while the insatiable bargain fever strikes deep into the souls of some of these same wives. They run over the Sunday newspapers and cut out some of the whole page "ads" and the following week they rush in town to buy some alleged bargains in shirts at less than the cost of the Button Holes.
These shirts are retailed for from 9c to 25c, and sometimes they have to be retailed in order that a man may wear them as long as he wants to.

It does make a woman wish she could use a few of those emphatic words
that her Husband uses to express his feelings when she has to sit down and sew
four or five inches of cloth around the bottom of one of those shirts. Not so much for ornament as for use. Our Shirts are cut full and long and wide, and after we retail 'em you won't have to retail 'em again.

Our 50c Shirts are made with attached and detached collar and cuffs, and
some of them have two collars and two cuffs.

Then we have the Cheviots and Madras and Silk Fronts from 75c to $1.00.

Our Shirts are Honest Shirts.

MILTON.

A very interesting Sunday School concert was held at the Congregational church last Sunday evening. The church was very prettily decorated with cut flowers and potted plants for the occasion, and the exercises were largely attended. Near the close of the programme the pastor, Rev. Mr. Munnix concluded his address to the school by saying that Saturday a boat would sail from yonder wharf and that Miss Bessie Robertson would tell them who would sail in it. This young lady then informed the school that their superintendent Mr. Frank Kemp and his daughter Miss Fannie Kemp, would sail for a visit to Scotland and that it was the wish of all that they would have a very pleasant voyage, that the trip would be very beneficial to them and that they would return in good health. She then in behalf of the Sunday School presented Mr. Kemp with a basket of roses among which there was concealed a purse of money. Mr. Kemp was completely surprised and visibly effected at this unlooked for testimonial of their good wishes and it was with considerable emotion that he thanked them one and all for their generous gift.

As has been stated before, Mr. Kemp and his daughter sail Saturday for Aberdeen, Scotland, his birthplace whose shores he left twenty-six years ago. They will be absent two months. Mr. George Barry of West Quincy and Miss Josie Gallagher were united in marriage at the Catholic church, Wednesday morning. A reception followed at the home of the bride.

The dry weather and the heavy teams have about ruined the new boulevard between East Milton and Mattapan which is cut up in bad shape.

The watering of the residential streets was resumed this week. At the meeting of the Thursday evening club last week the members indulged in a debate taking for its subject the old stand by "Is Marriage a Failure?" Christopher Graham, Joseph Pierce and George Gardner spoke in the affirmative and John Graham, Arthur M. Gardner and Andrew T. Landstrom in the negative. The debate will be continued next week. Mr. Andrew Smith enlivened the occasion with sentimental songs and refreshment were served.

A lawn party will be held by the Ladies' Sewing circle of the Congregational church next Monday evening adjoining the grounds of Mrs. Drake and Mrs. Carlton on Granite Avenue. Refreshment and various attractions are on the programme.

Mr. Henry E. Sheldon is out in a handsome pneumatic tired buggy.

The Wollaston A. A., and the Milton A. A., will play a game of ball on the park Saturday morning at 9.30. The line of the Boston, Milton and Brockton street railway between the Lower Mills and Randolph is about completed and will probably be opened early next week. The line between East Milton and Mattapan is well along and it is expected will be ready operation by July 4.

The morning service at the Mission of Our Saviour church has been discontinued until fall. The evening service will be held as usual.

A. A. Brackett has built six houses this spring upon his estate and he has the good fortune to sell or rent them as fast as completed.

One Third for Aldrich.

The School Committee of Newton gave a hearing Thursday evening as the result of a petition signed by Mr. J. Richard Carter and other members of the committee chosen some weeks ago at a meeting held in the interest of Supt. George I. Aldrich of the Newton schools. The Herald says, while the petition requested a conference, the board voted only to allow the committee a hearing.

Mr. J. R. Carter of the committee said that what the committee had to say was entirely informal. In regard to the petition, bearing some 1700 signatures, presented the school board at its last meeting, asking for the deferment of final action relative to Supt. Aldrich, the committee did not feel that it had received the weighty consideration due names which were signed to it, and which represented nearly one-third of the voters at the last city election. We think that the voice of nearly one-third of the voters of the city in favor of Mr. Aldrich should have some weight. We have gone into the matter merely as citizens having an interest in the public schools. Mr. Carter concluded by suggesting that the board elect Mr. Aldrich for the rest of the year so as to have the matter go over until the fall when the community would have the chance to show its sentiments.

The Plant Line has just issued a large colored map of the Provinces, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of a two cent stamp, and for four cents in stamps a complete set of illustrated booklets. Those who are "looking up" where to go this summer will do well to call for them. Address J. A. Flanders, 2900 Washington street, Boston.

SALARY INCREASED.

Postmaster Hammond will Receive $2,600 per Year.

Increase in postal receipts is said to be a sure indication of prosperity in a community, and therefore it is a source of gratification for all Quincy that the salary of Postmaster Hammond will be increased $100 on July 1 to $2,600 per annum. Fifty-three Massachusetts offices share in the increase, while 25 suffer a reduction. The large majority continue at the same salary.

Wollaston is one of the offices which has lost in postal receipts, and the salary of Postmaster Burns will be $2,100 instead of $2,200. The only other offices in the county to lose were Canton, Franklin and East Walpole.

Among the offices to receive increases are: South Braintree, East Weymouth, Weymouth Center, South Weymouth, Cohasset, Randolph, and Medfield.

The offices to drop below Quincy in the readjustment were: Peabody and Canton Junction, while North Adams comes down to meet us. The only offices to get a large salary in excess of the new Quincy salary were: Newton Centre at $3,200, Malden at $2,900, Gloucester at $2,800, Newburyport at $2,700 the increases being $100 each as in Quincy. Of course there are other post offices paying better salaries than Quincy but they did not have an increase in receipts and therefore do not appear in list.

Real Estate Sales.

The Tea Drinking Habit.

The recent death of a man from too much tea drinking has called forth renewed discussion of the tea habit, but thus far the ground gone over is not new, and the conclusions reached have been attained before in these discussions. Tea properly brewed and drunk not with meals, but at a time when the system feels the need of a slight stimulant, is, to the normal individual, beneficial rather than harmful.

The custom of 5 o'clock tea is a rational one, because at that hour in the afternoon the system feels the strain of the day's occupations, and the slight stimulant of the tea is grateful. "In the case of a person who is not in the habit of taking tea regularly," a physician said recently, "I know of no better reviver or temporary tonic than a cup of freshly and well brewed tea. In cold weather it will often tone up the system at a critical moment and ward off a cold. In hot weather a cup of hot tea is particularly beneficial, not only for its reviving effects, but because it induces relieving perspiration."

Iced tea the same physician condemns in strong terms because it is rarely properly made. Most iced tea consists of a strong decoction in which the tannic acid is thoroughly released. This is diluted with melted ice, oversweetened with sugar and then made usually too acid by a strong flavoring of lemon. It might even then be taken in moderation, but it is usually gulped down by the gobletful at luncheons hurriedly eaten in the course of a business day. When it is carefully made in the first place and chilled to the drinkable stage, but not made icy, sweetened reasonably, and with just a suspicion of lemon to bring out its flavor, its most harmful properties are withdrawn. The question whether hot tea should be used with cream or with out has again been raised. The weight of opinion seems to be in favor of the latter plan, but expert opinion to the contrary is not wanting. The milk, it is asserted by those who believe in its use, neutralizes the tannic acid, of which, in any infusion of tea, there must be more or less.—New York Post.

When Baby Outgrew His Curis. There are many mothers whose hearts will echo the feelings of the Chicago mother who felt so bad when the time came to cut off her baby boy's curls. She says:

"His curls were beautiful, so golden and shimmery, and I loved every one that fell about his pretty pink shoulders. But he was growing up and he hated the curls, so do all boys when the other bigger ones tease them and call them girls and babies and little sisters. One morning he came to me, his eyes bright and fiery with indignation and his cheeks aglow. Some playmate had chided him for his girl's hair, and he could endure it no longer. He stood as firm as a rock, with feet wide apart, and commanded me to cut them off. This has happened often of late since he has been strutting about in his cunning little trousers. His grief was real, and I felt sorry for him, as I did for myself. I got out the big shears, and as the first long, beautiful ringlet of spun gold as fine as spider web fell into my hands he gave a little shriek of happiness, while I felt the hot tears rolling down my cheeks.

"When the deed was done, he rushed out of the door and down the street as fast as his precious, fat little legs could carry him, and I saw him plump his fists in his absurd little pockets as he stood—with the dignity of a hero—before his tormentors. The selfishness in my heart at losing my baby made me almost forget his happiness, and as I went back to the curls the tears streamed faster than before. My baby had gone from me when those curls had dropped into my hands. My little boy was there—and a sweet, lovable, manly little fellow he is, with strong small arms that cling close about my neck—but he isn't my baby any more. All my life have I laughed at the foolish mothers who tried to keep their children from growing out of their babyhood and baby ways—but I know now why this is."

Women Who Run Elevators. The elevator, a province over which man seemed to hold undisputed sway, has recently been invaded by woman. In one of the office buildings of the city, says the Chicago Chronicle, a little woman yesterday aroused considerable curiosity among those who had not before seen her at her post. Those who belonged to the building and were accustomed to the sight seemed rather surprised that any one should question her ability.

"I sometimes run it for a week to relieve my husband and give him a holiday," said the woman. "You see, it is monotonous, and, of course, he gets tired of it, so he taught me, and I don't mind. It's easy as fun—no knack at all when you know how. Dangerous? No, not a bit."

At one of the North Side hotels the proprietor hired a girl who had been working in the kitchen to run the elevator. She did the work easily and was more satisfactory than the boys, who frequently went to sleep between calls, but she soon tired of it and left, saying it was too easy. Of course, the elevator was not very large or heavy.

At the Young Women's Christian association on Michigan Avenue, a young lady runs the elevator up and down the seven stories with perfect ease. While waiting for passengers she finds time to study and read, and the hours do not hang on her hands, although she begins her work unusually early. She is under the direction of the engineer, who taught her to manipulate the machine. She succeeded a young girl who while acting as "elevator man" fitted herself for a clerical position, passed the civil service examination and is now doing responsible work in the Public library.

WEARING OUT LOVE.

Forgive you? Oh, of course, dear,
A dozen times a week!
We women were created
Forgiveness but to speak.

You'd die before you'd hurt me Intentionally? * * True.
But it is not, O dearest,
The thing you mean to do—

It's what you do, unthinking,
That makes the quick tear start;
The tear may be forgotten—
But the hurt stays in the heart.

And though I may forgive you
A dozen times a day,
Yet each forgiveness wears, dear,
A little love away.

As the impatient river
Wears out the patient sand
Or as the fickle ocean
Wears out the faithful land.

And one day you'll be grieving
And chiding me no doubt,
Because so much forgiving
Has worn a great love out.

A SHIP

That Rose From the Sea.
A SAILOR'S YARN.

"You landlubbers write harrowing tales of the ships that sink in the sea. But did you ever hear of a sunken ship that came back from Davy Jones' locker?" said one of the veteran sea dogs at the Sailors' Snug Harbor, at Staten Island, near New York, to a visitor. "I saw one come back," he went on in a lower tone.

"I have seen ships go down. I have been in many wrecks and have seen my full share of all the strange sights of the sea, but no other sight ever made my blood run so cold nor my heart sink so low as the sight of a great ship rising to the surface through a thousand fathoms of water, with a crew of dead men between her decks. It happened back in the fifties, when I was able seaman on the Mary Clay, a brig trading to South American ports. We were coming up from Rio, I think it was, with a cargo of hides and coffee, and a long spell of storms and contrary winds drove us far out of our course and off to the east in the Atlantic. Our main and top masts had all gone by the board long before the storm ended.

"When the weather cleared finally and the waves went down, we were on the edge of the Sargasso sea. The green surface of that ocean graveyard was torn and broken by the storm as far as we could see, and great piles and patches of torn seaweed were floating all around us. There came a day of calm and sunshine after two weeks of storm, and all hands were set to work fixing up a jury rig, with which we finally reached port. We had a bit of canvas spread forward and another aft on poles, just enough to give us steering way while we worked. A current and a light wind from the south helped a bit, and we were slowly drawing away from that sea of grewsome green.

"There was a long, heavy under swell, waves seeming to come up from the very bottom as if the storm through which we had passed had stirred the ocean to its uttermost depths. Joe Dill, the first mate, and I were at work by the rail on the starboard side forward at 10 o'clock in the morning. 'What's that?' said Joe as he caught my arm and pointed to a disturbance in the water some 200 yards off our bow.

"I looked at the spot indicated. Beyond a heap of broken weed from the Sargasso that was drifting along beside us there was a big patch of fairly clear water. As I looked huge bubbles appeared on the surface, and then a great mound of green water and greener weed seemed to rise 50 feet above the surface. As this mound of weed and water rolled away to the level of the surrounding sea there broke from the spot where we had seen the bubbles the broken masts of what had been a full rigged ship.

"Dill shouted some warning to the captain, but he did not move out of his tracks. We stood there as if chained to the deck, and saw the hull of a big ship rise out of that sea as slowly and majestically as a giant whale undisturbed might come to the surface to blow. She came up on an even keel and rose until her upper deck was clear of the water and floated there, rolling slowly with the even roll of the sea that had cast her up. We could see that the vessel had foundered in a storm. Her masts were all broken off as if she had been caught unprepared in a sudden squall, and the spars and rigging were twisted and piled upon the deck and hanging over the rail as if the crew had been unable to cut them away.

"We could see that the risen ship had been long under water. Barnacles hung from her rails and the broken timbers above deck were covered with the dark green slimy weed that is found only at a great depth. It was easy enough to guess how she had gone down. Caught in a sudden squall, she had strained her framework and broken a rent somewhere below the water line that sent her to the bottom, probably before the crew had time to man a boat. But how had she come to the surface?

"Officers and crew of the Mary Clay ran to the starboard rail and looked at the derelict that had come up from below with staring eyes and blanched faces. No man of us had ever heard of such a thing before, and we were so close to the wreck that there was no chance that we were mistaken. The ship was not a derelict that had been floating with decks awash. She had not been concealed from our view by floating seaweed. The vessel had risen to the surface in a big patch of clear water and half the crew of the Mary Clay had seen her come up.

For a time we were so startled by what we had seen that no man made a move to do anything. Then the captain

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

EARLY SUMMER OUTING GOWN FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

A very charming gown taken from Harper's Bazar is published in today's issue. It is of light wool cloth, suitable for yachting trips or for drives, and has a plain circular skirt of cloth (the plaid side out), trimmed with curved stitched bands of plain cloth. The skirt is gracefully fitted to the figure, and is closed at the centre of the back under two inward turning pleats. The pattern of the scalloped band accompanies that of the skirt, and the latter is perforated to show the exact position of the band. The little jacket is an exceedingly pretty form of a late walking coat. Its trimming consists of stitched bands of plain cloth, and these border the scallops of the coat and revers. The garment is unlined, and the plaid side of the cloth employed for the collar forms the only variation in the coat which closes under a (side) fly. The sleeve has the scantiest of gathering about the upper arm. There is slight flare at the wrist, but no added cuff.

recovered his nerve and called for volunteers to board the strange craft and see what we could learn about her. At first the men drew back. There was something so uncanny about the stranger that they wanted to get away as fast as possible. Finally a boat crew, led by the first mate, volunteered, and we went over and boarded the sudden and mysteriously arisen derelict. We slipped on the thick green slime that covered the deck as we climbed over the rail, and the pale faces of the men showed that they had no heart in the work we had undertaken to do.

"A hasty glance about the deck showed that everything was gone by the board except the broken spars and torn rigging that hung to the stumps of the masts. The boats were all gone. The wheelhouse was stove in, and the captain's cabin had been crushed by falling spars. With an oar from our boat we scraped among some of the seaweed and slime and found that the hatches had all been battened down. We found the main gangway covered with a dense heap of seaweed, in which there were scores of crabs and strange looking dwellers in the depths of the southern seas. With much labor we cleared away this mass of stuff and reached the head of the ladder leading down from the main deck. Dill, the mate, looked down into the dark water that rose almost to the top of the gangway, and then he sprang back with a cry of horror.

"A sudden roll of the ship on a deep swell churned the water between decks and the bloated body of a dead sailor was thrown up the ladder and so wedged in the passageway that the face stared straight up at us. The flesh was soft and white, as if ready to drop from the bones, and the eyes had already fallen out. The hideous face seemed to mock at us with a ghastly leer.

"With one accord we all started back toward the stern of the vessel, where our boat was tied to the rail. Before we reached the boat there came another heavy swell, the ship lurched to starboard and as she rolled back to an even keel something in her framework below decks broke with a muffled crash. Then a small fountain of black water, capped by yellow bubbles, broke from the open gangway and a great quantity of gas that had been confined below shot high up into the air with a report like escaping steam.

"With this eruption from the depths of the ship there came an odor of decaying flesh so strong and sickening

This is an excellent design for fine linen in which a checked and a plain material might be stylishly combined, or for a mourning gown of Henrietta cloth with applied crape bands. It will also prove a desirable model for early fall cloth gowns in goods of one color. In this case the revers and bands may be of plain silk or of contrasting cloth. Where double-faced material is used, a two-inch hem will be a sufficient finish at the bottom. Where thinner material is selected and a lining is to be used, the latter should be cut exactly like the outer skirt, and a three-inch band of crinoline should be used to stiffen the bottom, which may then be bound with velvet or braid, as individual taste may decide.

Of double-faced wool material 54 inches wide 5 yards will be required to make the costume. Of plain and plaid linen 27 inches wide, 3 1/2 yards of plain and 7 yards of checked or plaid will be found sufficient.

that we felt into our boat, almost overcome. The line was cut and we pushed away as quickly as possible. Most of us were so overcome that we were unable to handle the oars, but, fortunately, another roll on a sunken wave carried the ship away from us and we were clear of the horrible odor. The roar of escaping gas continued for several minutes, and then the broken and battered derelict settled stern first and sank swiftly out of sight.

"The Mary Clay reached home in time and on our next trip to South America we found a possible solution of the remarkable incident of a ship rising from the sea. A British vessel loaded with live stock for Brazil had been lost some months before, probable near the Sargasso sea. If the ship settled on an even keel at the bottom, sand and seaweed might have closed the rent in her hull that caused her to sink. Then, with the hatches battened down above, the decomposition of the bodies of the animals that had formed the cargo would create enough gas between decks in time to cause the vessel to rise to the surface. When we cleared the gangway the gas escaped and the broken vessel went to the bottom a second time."—New York Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

English Money Lenders.

An English clergyman, being pestered with offers from usurers to advance him sums of money, had the curiosity to answer one by asking on what terms he would loan him £250. By return of post there arrived a letter asking particulars of his rent, life insurance and other intimate matters. To this he made no reply. Then followed a note asking him to call in London on a certain day, to which he sent an answer that he did not intend to call, and that the money lender need not trouble himself further in the matter.

But the affair was not at an end. Two days later a registered letter arrived, inclosing £250 in notes and a form to be filled up, promising to pay £300 in three months. The clergyman then put the money, the form and the correspondence in the hands of his solicitor, who, after three weeks' delay, returned the notes to the usurers and got a guinea out of them for his costs.

—A tricky firm in Herndon, Pa., advertised to "Send ten yards of silk on receipt of $1." All who answered the advertisement received ten yards of silk thread.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning June 18.—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Intemperate pleasures.—II Tim. iii, 1-7. (A temperance meeting.)

Love of pleasure and excessive and intemperate indulgence in pleasure are among the greatest enemies of religion today. The age is demanding more and more amusement and entertainment, and surrender to this spirit of the age soon leads to dissipation, and dissipation soon deprives one of all interest in moral and spiritual improvement.

How far Christians can indulge in worldly pleasures is therefore a most vital question. The Scriptural creed is "use the world, but not abuse it." But another question arises, When does the use of the world become the abuse of it? Where can we lay down the line and say, "Thus far is use—beyond is abuse; thus far is temperance—beyond is intemperance?" This question must be answered by every individual for himself. What is temperance for one may be intemperance for another. What is legitimate for one may be abusive by another. No religious society, no church court, can decide this question. It can only be decided by the individual conscience, enlightened by the word of God, but no Christian can decide it without taking into consideration the effect of his decision upon others. Meat consecrated to idols may not harm us, but if meat maketh our brethren to offend, we should eat no meat while the world standeth.

While it is true that each one must decide for himself as to how far he can indulge in pleasure, yet it is also true that certain general principles are found in God's word that apply to all Paul lays down, some of these, in writing to Timothy, suggesting under what circumstances pleasures are intemperate.

1. Pleasures are intemperate when they lead to actual transgression of the law of God. Love of pleasure may lead to the immoralities suggested by Paul—selfishness, covetousness, pride, blasphemy, disobedience to parents, unthankfulness, unholiness, etc. When love of pleasure leads to any of these things, directly forbidden by the moral law of God, then there can be no question but that we are abusing pleasure. Pleasure that leads to sin is intemperate pleasure.

2. Pleasures are intemperate when they usurp in the heart and life affections and duties of greater importance. When our love of pleasure is greater than our love of God, when indulgence in pleasure leads to neglect of religious and other duties of grave importance, then our pleasures are intemperate.

3. Pleasures are intemperate when they lead others to sin. They who to satiate their appetites for pleasure lead others, who are thoughtless, silly and easily led astray into sin, are most intemperately indulging in pleasures, are committing a crime for which God will bring them into an awful judgment. Let us strive to use pleasure, never to abuse it, and let us seek our highest joys and pleasures in our religion. "The pleasures of sense will surfeit and not satisfy, but the pleasures of religion will satisfy and not surfeit."

Bible Readings.—Ps. xvi, 8-11; Eccl. ii, 1-11; Isa. lviii, 13, 14; Rom. xiii, 13-14; I Cor. iii, 16, 17; Gal. v, 19-26; Eph. v, 15-21; I Tim. v, 6; Titus iii, 1-7; Heb. xi, 24-26; Jas. v, 1-7; I Pet. iv, 1-6; II Pet. ii, 9-14; I John ii, 15-17; v, 4, 5.

A Noble Character.

Have you ever seen the good in some one and his ability while he was still obscure and prophesied the high place he would take, and then, when this was realized, and he had risen above you in your own sphere, were you still able to praise him? This is a test of character, and here it was John proved his nobility of character. "Did I not tell you He was greater than I? And is He not great—greater than I thought?" He could wish for Him to increase and grow greater each day, and for himself to decrease. Temptations fall in vain on such noble natures.—Jan MacLaren in Recent Address to Yale Students.

Make Your Standard High.

Men cannot rise higher than their own standard. A dwarfed, shrunken, withered soul cannot imagine a heart that gladly spends and is spent for others. He can only see his own image. "It cannot be so, because if I had been in his place, I would not have put to hazard life, limb, gold. Therefore, he didn't." An opinion on noble conduct dropped into the ear automatically weighs "him."—Richmond Advocate (Methodist).

Contrast.

It is a great deal easier to be up to the occasion in some shining moment of a man's life, when he knows that a supreme hour has come, than it is to keep that high tone when plodding over all the dreary plateaus of uneventful, monotonous travel and dull duties. It is easier to run fast for a minute than to grind along the dusty road for a day.—Alexander MacLaren.

Imperialism and Justice.

Nobody seems to know what imperialism is, but everybody knows what justice is, and what fair play is—that is to say, everybody knows what these things are when people get near enough to one another and know each other well enough to put themselves each in the other's place.—Christian Register.

The Crime of Lynching.

Those who take the law in their own hands and lynch a criminal are guilty of double murder—they have killed both the criminal and the law. They cry out against the crime of another and then repeat it.—Lutheran.

The Greatest Thing.

Love is the greatest thing that God can give us, for Himself is love, and it is the greatest thing we can give to God, for it will give ourselves and carry with it all which is ours.—Jeremy Taylor.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

The American Colony In Porto Rico.

The American colony in Porto Rico is still small, for it has been in existence only a few months, but it is rapidly increasing. Besides army and government officers there are now in San Juan a number of American business men who are obliged to stay there to look after their commercial interests. Some of these have brought their families down, much to the delight of the army women, who have been very lonesome for society of their own kind.

Until recently Mrs. Guy V. Henry, wife of the military governor of the island, was the leader of the social circle at San Juan. She it was who organized the first patriotic league and banded some of the native women into an American sewing society. Mrs. Fred D. Grant, wife of the brigadier general, also did her share in enlivening existence for the members of the colony. Her dances and receptions were the most brilliant affairs that have been given since the Spaniards left.

But both Mrs. Henry and Mrs. Grant have left the island, and now the first American lady in Porto Rico is Mrs. Philip C. Hanna, wife of the United States consul at San Juan. She knows Porto Rico and the Porto Ricans thoroughly, for she went there when her husband was first appointed to his present post at the beginning of the McKinley administration.

It has probably been forgotten by now, for it was but briefly mentioned at the time, but it is a fact that Mrs. Hanna played an important part in the campaign of General Miles in Porto Rico. After the destruction of the Maine and before the declaration of war the Spanish officials treated the American consul and his wife with sincere courtesy. These Americans at least had gained their respect, and the courtly dons saw no reason to change their attitude because of international affairs. But the Porto Ricans acted differently. Eager to gain Spanish favor, they exhibited contempt and disrespect for all things American. A guard of police stationed constantly at the consulate was necessary to prevent mob violence.

During all this period, while Spanish respect remained supreme, the Consul and Mrs. Hanna were defiant to Porto Rican hatred. They appeared as usual on the plaza during the triweekly military concert. They were jeered and shouted at by the crowd, but the big, lanky Iowa, cool and reserved, walked quietly up and down, and the little woman in white kept up a brave front, smiling with perfect sang froid.

It took grit for the consul's wife to remain, for all means of exit from the island were now being cut off. The consul, however, was bound to remain at his post until definite orders came from headquarters, while all around him an angry populace literally gnashed its teeth with rage in the face of his coolness. Finally, on April 12, the order came to leave.

"Here's our walking papers," the consul said to his wife.
"Yes, really?" was all she said, with a little rising inflection of indifference.

During their escape in a British vessel Mrs. Hanna exhibited the same cool courage. She was left behind at St. Thomas when Consul Hanna went with General Miles on his campaign of invasion. She had in the meantime learned the official secret code and found a chance to use it.

Although General Miles was in Porto Rico, he knew nothing about the strength of the opposing Spanish force. But Mrs. Hanna at the cable station in St. Thomas learned all about the situation in San Juan and promptly transmitted these facts to her husband. She cabled that the 20,000 troops which the Spanish were supposed to have near San Juan were largely mythical, and that the greater part of the native Porto Rican volunteers were so badly scared that they were ready to desert at the first shot.

General Miles was glad to get such information, you may be sure, and he complimented Consul Hanna on having such an able and level headed helpmeet.

Of course it was great satisfaction to Mrs. Hanna to re-enter triumphantly San Juan, where she had been hooted as she walked the streets, and see stars and stripes everywhere. She may have forgiven the Porto Ricans—probably she has—but it is doubtful if she will ever forget those unpleasant months she spent in San Juan just before the war. MARY E. LEONARD.

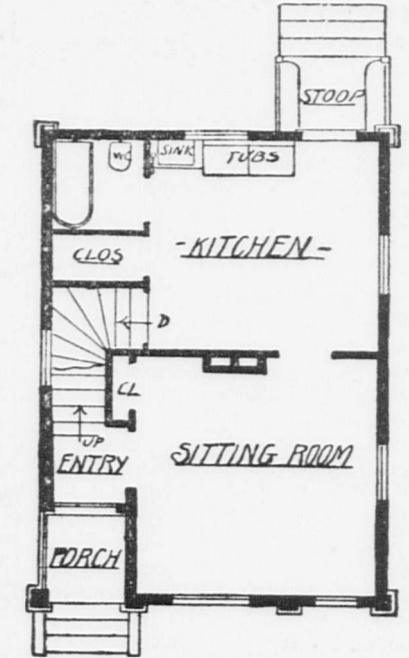

AN ARCHITECTURAL GEM.

Beautiful Little Cottage In Dutch Colonial Style.
[Copyright, 1888, by George Palliser, 32 Park place, New York.]

Capital, well done, grand and in every way beautiful and entertaining! Who would ever have thought such a thing possible? Bless me, in these days of so many large homes, such cozy, comfortable, natty small homes that are a treat indeed! Why, it is just like a little hand-box and as pretty as a picture withal! And, gracious me, just see the room and conveniences in it—front porch, hall and stairs, nice sitting room, beautiful kitchen and bathroom, good closets, pantry, cellar, back porch and four fine bedrooms, and all within a space 16 by 22 feet! This looks like love in a cottage, and it is indeed a fine starting point for any couple

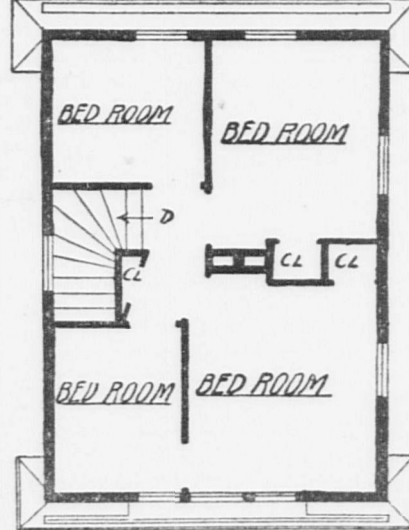

PERSPECTIVE VIEW.
Just going into life and housekeeping in reality. Blessed are they that begin life aright and keep inside their incomes! This is a safe rule to follow, and thousands there be who may profit by it too. Oh, the snares and pitfalls for the unwary, the vain and the selfish, who imagine they must make a show and put on style, even if it takes every cent they can earn, or a little more, as is too often the case, and who will live in big homes for the sake of show, and thus punish themselves in trying to keep up appearances! Oh, you idiots who won't learn by experience, who don't know when you are hurt and who will never learn how to be true and good to yourselves! Just wallow on in your

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.
Ignorance, pile up your anguish and let your false pride condemn you to a life of utter failure and ruin, for no one can help you! Such homes as this are lost on you. This design is not for you, but for those who will learn, who are striving to get out of the bondage of landlordism into the blessedness of a home of their own, and those who succeed will go on blessing the day they started out to own themselves first and their homes next.

Let every man strive to have a home. If he cannot do so, then let his wife try. This is a double safeguard, and I am of opinion that as a just measure, fair in equity, the wife can best own the home, thus preserving it to the family, no matter what happens. This is a common customer who lives in England states. Woman is fast asserting herself. Her sphere is upward and onward, and the higher she reaches the higher man must go to keep her company. Then let her be the landlord of the family by all means, for she knows its wants and will see they are properly supplied.

Dutch colonial is the style externally of this little gem, which is American purely. Simplicity is its mission. May it stir some sluggish brains into activity, push them into sharp and decisive action and bring them to the state where they will benefit by it! It is the most complete little house ever devised. Build one like it, tell your neighbors of it and let it be known that such homes are still possible. To those who will try it is easy. Times are good, money is plentiful, land is to be had cheap, and the rent you pay will always buy a better home than that your landlord furnishes. So just try, and if you fail, try again, and you will be sure to succeed.

Home Comfort.
Comfort in the home should come first and then ornamentation. Make the most of every sunny window, and unglamorous corners should be converted into attractive nooks. Naturally unpleasant rooms can be turned into cheerful places of abode, if proper study is given to their requirements. A few shelves in the right place, a cozy corner, a comfortable couch piled high with soft, downy pillows, pretty but not expensive pictures, a table with books and photographs, may redeem an ugly room and make it a place to linger in.—Exchange.

IMPORTANT.

Everybody at all Interested in Bicycles or Bicycling should read the following letter.

FITCHBURG, June 6, 1899.

John P. Lovell Arms Co., Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:
Yours of the 5th inst., asking us what we think of your Lovell "Diamond" bicycle, duly received.

We send you copies of some of our advertisements, which we think will tell the story better, perhaps, than we could write it. If you will read our ad headed "Remember our '98 record—over 200 'Lovell Diamonds' without a breakdown,"—we think you will fully understand our high appreciation of your wonderful wheel.

Thus far we have sold six hundred and seventy-eight (678) Lovell "Diamond" bicycles without a single breakdown, which beats anything we could possibly have expected, and we are free to say that all you will have to do is to turn out the wheels and they will sell themselves, especially if you sell them at $35. The only drawback you can have is, if you advance them to $50 (as the story is afloat that such is the intention), some may buy a cheaper wheel, but at $35 they are within the reach of all, and you will sell all that you can possibly turn out at that price.

Furthermore, we do not believe a bicycle can be built by any manufacturer that will approach the Lovell "Diamond" in strength and running quality, unless they discard old methods and begin to manufacture the Lovell way.

One of our customers, who, by the way, is an old bicycle rider, told us the other day he never knew what a good bicycle was until he rode this year's Lovell "Diamond." Your bicycle runs so easily, and is made so well, especially the parts, that every wheel that goes out must be a great advertisement for you.

If your new line of Lovell sporting goods is up to "Diamond" standard, it will surely meet the success your wheel has so justly earned.
Kindly believe us,
Yours most respectfully,

John H. Gillis

In the midst of expensive novelties nothing is more pleasing to the eye than simple morning gowns that are worn for early strolls on the beach or under shade trees. Such dresses cost little as to material and with the aid of good patterns, may readily be made at home. Dimity, gingham, or batiste are eminently appropriate and a most attractive yet inexpensive dress worn by a young matron belonging to New York's Four Hundred, is of figured dimity made with five ruffles around the bottom and an overskirt cut in scallops. The last named could easily be dispensed with and two or three ruffles would give a good finish. The waist is slightly full with wrinkled sleeves and yoke of tucked lawn edged by ruffles of the goods.

JOHN A. BOYD CAMP.

Spanish War Veterans Organize with Fifty Members.

An enthusiastic meeting of those who served in the several branches of service in the recent war with Spain was held at Wilson's hall Thursday evening, to form a camp of the Legion of Spanish War Veterans. Grand Commander William P. Kenib of the Grand Camp of Boston was present and after explaining the aims and objects of the organization he instituted a camp which will be known as John A. Boyd Camp, No. 10., being named after John A. Boyd of West Quincy, who served in the 9th Mass. and died while in service. The new camp starts off with a membership of fifty and these officers:

Commander, Maurice A. Colbert.
Vice Senior Commander, Joseph F. Mohan.

Vice Junior Commander, Lewis Jones.

Adjutant, Frank P. Picere.

Paymaster, Thompson B. Crane.

Quartermaster, Harry A. McLaughlin.

Officer of Day, Thomas T. Davidson.

Messrs. Harry J. Matthews, Thomas T. Davidson and John R. McGrath, were appointed a committee to arrange for a hall. Another meeting of the new camp will be held at Wilson's hall next Thursday evening. During the evening the boys refreshed themselves with a box of choice cigars, the gift of Mr. George H. Wilson.

The aims and objects of the order of the Legion of Spanish War Veterans which is incorporated under the public statutes of Massachusetts briefly outlined are as follows: To perpetuate the deeds of the soldier in defense of country; to preserve the records of the campaign of the war; to preserve the places of conflict, and erect suitable memorials; to care for the sick and distressed of our comrades, their widows, orphans and dependents; to assist in the enforcement of Civil Service laws where mandatory preference is given honorably discharged veterans, and to aid and abet legislation for their benefit; to promote the best interests of all enlisted men; to promote the lasting friendships formed in the service, believing that now as we have returned to civil life we should not lose sight of each other after having together shared the labor of the camp as well as the perils of the battlefield.

Castle Square Theatre.

The management of the Castle Square theatre will offer the patrons of this popular play house a notable dramatic novelty the coming week. This will be the play, in four acts, "Just a Day Dream," written by Mr. Paul Armstrong, a New York journalist who has already made successes as a dramatist. The story of the play deals to a certain extent with the detection of a clever forgery and the characters introduced are those of today. An interesting love affair is woven into the scenes of the play and the plot, which is aside from the conventional, is skilfully and cleverly developed. The action of the first two acts passes on the promenade deck of a Pacific mail steamer and the last two acts occur in the residence of an American temporarily residing in Japan. The cast will be as follows: John Powers, William Courleigh; Carroll McKay and Carroll Norton; Charles McKay; John Powers Grant, J. L. Seeley; Edward Lanford, N. H. Fowler; Chena, John J. Geary; Nolan, Philip Drew; Thompson, Robert A. Thorne; Bethel Grant, Lillian Lawrence; Gladys Kearney, Mary Saunders; Mrs. Hardy, Fanny Addison Pitt; Japs, Chinese, Sailors etc. Following this production on Monday, June 26, comes the first performance in Boston of the comedy by Harrison Grey Fiske and Charles Klein, "The District Attorney."

Keith's Theatre.

Among the attractions at Keith's next week is Ching Ling Foo, the noted Chinese magician and illusionist, who has made the hit of the year in New York with his wonderful feats of magic; Caron and Herbert, the clown and the acrobat; the Four Emperors of Music, musicians and comedians; Saxon and Brooks, comedy sketch; Odell Williams, in a one-act comedy; Fisher and Carroll, Irish comedians and vocalists; and H. Percy Meldon and company, in the one-act farce comedy, "A Matrimonial Blizzard." The biograph will have its customary change of motion pictures, including some new and interesting local views.

THE LAND OF ROSES

Southern California Reveals In Blooms Just Now.

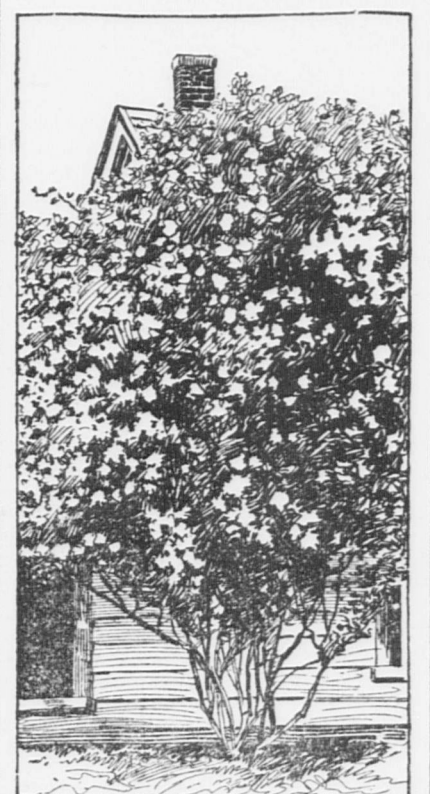

The month of roses will soon be here, and all over the country, even in the northern parts of Maine and Minnesota, the bushes will be blooming in the carefully tended gardens. But in southern California every month is a month of roses. Just now, however, while the people of less fortunate sections are anxiously watching their few dozen buds, the residents of the Pomona valley are moving about through a sea of roses whose fragrant, gorgeous colored waves break clear to the house tops.

It is difficult for people who have never seen the rose trees and bushes of southern California to realize what a wealth of bloom they put forth at this time of the year. The most delicate tea roses, the rarest Marchal Niel and the most royal Marie Van Houtte grow beside the door of the lowliest mountain cabin, while climbing roses of the most exquisite variety clamber with tropical luxuriance up the sides of old barns and even adorn deserted cattle and horse corrals.

In some localities there are literal thickets of La Marque, rainbow, Clare Carnot roses that would each winter season bring hundreds of dollars to their careless owners if the floral crop could be gathered and sold in New York or any eastern city.

On the roads into Los Angeles and about Pomona there are in the aggregate fully a mile of thick hedges of Marchal Niel, Cherokee and Jacqueminot roses. In the season of blossoming the air is in many valleys heavy with the perfume of roses.

The remarkable luxuriance of roses, as well as of all varieties of vegetation, in southern California is accounted for by the fact that rarely is there a touch of frost, and the soil, in itself of ex-

MARECHAL NIEL ROSEBUSH IN POMONA, CAL. extraordinary fertility, has the quality of holding moisture well and giving it up to the plant life when needed.

In some of the rose gardens, particularly through the San Gabriel and Pomona valleys, there are grown over 150 separate and distinct varieties of roses. In the well known Skinner rose garden in Pomona 178 varieties of roses blossom for a month or two every year, while 23 varieties, imported from Japan and islands in the Mediterranean, are in annual bloom 10 months out of 12. Along the streets of the older settled towns, such as Santa Barbara, San Gabriel and Santa Ana, large branches, laden heavily with roses more perfect in form and color than the tens of thousands that have been sold in New York, Philadelphia, Boston and other eastern cities for $4 a dozen, thrust themselves over the fences or cypress hedges.

On scores of streets there are rows of pepper trees, up whose shaggy bark cloth of gold, beauty of Glazenwood and Devoniensis roses have been planted and trained to climb so tightly as to conceal the trunk from sight.

The rapid and immense growth of all rose plants is a matter of astonishment with all newcomers to southern California. There are hundreds of climbing roses that have grown 25 and 30 feet in three years. At the Arlington, in Santa Barbara, there is a climbing rosebush some 20 years old whose almost innumerable branches cover an area of over 2,000 square feet on the long side of the hotel. Its four main trunks, a yard above the roots, are each 5 inches in diameter. At Riverside there is a La Marque rosebush 14 years old that has twisted its huge branches serpentine about the trunk of a mammoth pepper tree and followed each limb of the tree out to the end, so that in the weeks of rose blooming the tree looks like a stupendous bouquet of green flecked with tens of thousands of bits of white roses. The rose tree is an achievement of the florist. It is made by budding a rosebud on the stock of a dogwood bush. The stock becomes the trunk of the rose tree. Any rosebud may be easily grafted or grafted on dogwood, and in regions where there is no freezing weather a plant so budded thrives with very little care. There are a few rose trees in the old Spanish villages of southern California, as Cucamonga, San Fernando and San Bernardino, that have trunks 9 and 10 inches in diameter and 10 feet high.

SUMMED UP.

Lengthy Arguments at the Plumbing Hearing.

Both Lawyers Take Over Half an Hour Each.

Board of Health Take Case Under Advisement.

The famous hearings of the charges against the Inspector of Plumbing which has been held by the Board of Health for some time past were completed Saturday night, when the two lawyers made their arguments.

Before the arguments, however,
Daniel H. Kenley was called, and in substance testified that he had been since 1895 bookkeeper for J. J. Ken-
ley. He made out his bills for inspecting and sent them to City Hall. His custom was that when a job was ready for inspection, to send a boy with written notice to Mr. Landers notifying him that the job was ready for inspection. The bills for inspection I made from applications of the plumbers,
which I sent with the bill as a voucher.

In relation to the double charge in the Chapman case. Two parties did the job and in two different years and I made out two bills. Had I understood the circumstances I should not have made but one bill. He was entitled,
however, to collect twice as Scott did one job and Bates the other. There was no such thing as a full or a half inspection. An inspector is entitled to $3 for each job, but when he only inspected a sink he did not charge but $1.50 although he was entitled to $3.
If any mistake was made on the Chapman house, I did it.

J. J. Kenley corroborated the statement of the last witness.

The arguments were then made. Mr.
McAnarney, counsel for Kenley making the first occupying nearly an hour.

He opened by saying that he was satisfied with the method of conducting the hearing and the fairness shown by the Board. It was the first time in the history of the city of Quincy
where anything that savors of falsifying had been brought to public notice.

We have now arrived at that state
where we are launched before the public that a city official is doing wrong.
We are lead to meet the charge of financial corruption on the part of a city official. Not merely a neglect of duty but of corruption. It is you gentlemen who will say whether or not the city is corrupt. Others than Quincy people are looking to this hearing, and you should pause to see what the result will be. Action should not be taken until after consideration.

Have the petitioners established what they allege to be true? Who are the people who come here in support of these petitions? One tells you he never investigated the charge, and another that he is a sewing machine agent. Out of the whole lot we find but one person interested in the place complained of. Why is it that the owners have not reported these charges? Are you here in the interest of public health or to father a movement to down a public official?

Is there any doubt but these charges
originated in the mind of Gustave Bates and others who are looking to down a man's good name that they may get his office? What public spirited citizen prompted Mr. Jenness in his questions? A man who stands before the whole city as doing all he can to down Mr. Kenley. If there is any stain upon the city of Quincy that man is to blame for it. He should be ashamed to drag down the name of the City of Quincy for his own personal ambition.

Mr. Kenley served his time under one of the best plumbers ever known in Quincy, P. H. Gavin. You are not only asked to fire him out but to state to a man, go you are unworthy to hold public office; you have been corrupt and false to your duty. You are here to do your duty. If you find him guilty, say so, but if not there should be no power to compel you to say so.

The common sense view of the law should be taken. What is the purpose of the law, public health and safety,
and then ask where has he violated
public health and safety. The question is have they shown a condition of things that are a violation as understood by practical plumbers.

Mr. McAnarney then took up the several charges separately.

At the city stables we find that the Board of Health ordered the plumbing done as it was. To whom will the inspector go for his interpretation of the law to Gustave Bates or to the Board of Health.

If the Board of Health say, you do so and so, is he guilty of any violation. Henry S. Weymouth, the sewing machine agent, is the man who says

the Board of Health, Commissioner of Public Works and Inspector did not know what they were doing.

Relative to the Craig job, Mr. Craig says he does not know the cause of the trouble yet he signs in black and white that he does, because he was under an influence that will not stop at dragging a man's name through the mud. Witnesses tell you that his own cess pool comes through a blind drain into the cellar. Kenley men did the job in the house but he was not there but a few times. Landers inspected it.
What evidence is there that Kenley is guilty of neglect of duty? I ask you to rule that as a matter of law Kenley cannot be guilty unless you find he knew that concealed pipe was there.
You can only try him on evidence produced. We have the letter from Chairman Currits and the testimony of Mr. Ford, saying that wrought iron pipe was used with the permission of the Board of Health.

You have no right to assume that there was a fraudulent combine between Landers and Kenley. It is possible that Landers did not do his duty but Kenley can not be held responsible.

The work done in the drug store by George Ames was condemned by Kenley and Mr. Currits told him he had no further power.

At the Whiton house Landers did
the work without a permit, but Kenley did not know it until informed by Mr. Bates. Why did not Bates, if he is so anxious for public health make the complaint then? No, he would not, because he was not after Landers but someone else. The law says where work is done by Kenley it must be inspected by a sub-inspector.
Gardner signs these charges and he stands ready to brand Kenley as guilty, and it is such offsprings as this that Bates uses to get at Kenley.

On the Chapman charges it was by a mistake he got paid twice, yet he had a right to charge for two inspection
and for this you are asked to find him guilty of fraudulent use of money. On the other charges, where it is claimed he collected money for inspection before this inspection was made and the only evidence you get here is what some carpenter has told Bates.

At the Parker house, plumbers whose honesty can not be questioned testified that the trap was not at the foot of a vertical soil pipe. It was nothing but a cellar drain pipe.

In closing Mr. McAnarney said if you find back of this case no strong interest for Kenley's removal, then he should not be removed. It is not the law but the spirit and common sense of the law that is enforced. If you find he as done so he should be retained.

At the conclusion of Lawyer Mc-Anarney's argument, Lawyer Jenness, counsel for the petitioners, read his argument which with two or three omissions is given in full:

These hearings have extended over a long period, and all of the testimony of necessity cannot be remembered by this Board. I will ask you to bear with me if I discuss some of the evidence in detail.

Take it all in all, it is one of the most remarkable hearings I have ever known. It has been informal in its nature, yet every defense known to the criminal law has been introduced by the defendant to justify his conduct, except that of insanity. Ignorance of the acts that were done under his direct superintendence, forced to do illegal acts by his superiors.

trying to prove an alibi, and finally endeavoring to convince this intelligent Board that the English language did not mean what it said.
My astute brother lawyer, regarded as one of the brightest criminal lawyers in Norfolk County, well knows that not one of the many ingenious defenses offered by him would be considered for a moment in any criminal Court.
And a fortiori it should have no weight in a hearing of this kind where the purpose is not to punish the criminal, but to ascertain, after a careful consideration of all the testimony, whether Mr. Kenley is the proper person to hold so important a position as that of inspector of plumbing in our city. I understood that this was the real object in view and a great deal of latitude would be given the petitioners to bring out all the facts bearing upon this issue. Yet there never was a trial of a criminal case where the defendant at the bar was to answer to the crime of murder in which so many technical points were raised and so many objections taken,
and in every single case the Board has ruled against the petitioners and in favor of Mr. Kenley.

The petitioners presented for your consideration are five in number.

The first is in regard to the work done at the city stables. Mr. Kenley admits the allegations set forth in the petition, and said himself that the work was not in accordance with the city ordinances, yet the city official appointed to enforce the very law which he admits he has grossly violated.

What is his special plea in this case?
Dr. Jones of the Board of Health,
Mr. Knowlton, the Commissioner of Public Works, and myself talked it over and came to the conclusion that,
while an individual could not violate the laws of Quincy, the city could do it with impunity, and that while the contract for building the stables provided that three-inch and four-inch soil pipe should be used, and that the plumbing work should be done according to the city ordinances, yet we will use two-inch and four-inch pipe; we will not run the stack through the roof; we will let all the other plumbers figure to do the work according to the ordinances and the contract, and let
Mr. Kenley do it just as he wants to.
If Mr. Kenley had been a man and a faithful city official, do you think he would have taken that plumbing job?
He would have said "No, gentlemen,
you are, without authority, violating the city ordinances, and I will not be a party thereto."

Those ordinances provided that the plumbing of every building (city buildings included) shall be separately and independently connected with the public sewer, where such sewer is provided, and with a proper and sufficient drain connected thereto outside, not inside of the building, and if no sewer is provided, then a proper cess-pool.

Every drain pipe shall be supplied with a running trap at or near the point where it leaves the building,
and soil pipes shall be carried above
the roof, open and undiminished in size.

Are there any traps on the four-inch drains at the city stables? and are they carried above the roof open and undiminished in size? Do you find anything in that ordinance, or elsewhere, authorizing the Board of Health, or the Commissioner of Public Works, or the Inspector of Plumbing, to change those laws? Yet these three talked it over and then wholly ignore them. These are laws to which a penalty is attached for their violation and their violation is a misdemeanor and punishable by a fine not exceeding $50. It is a fundamental principle of jurisprudence that no one can change
or vary a law when once enacted, except the body that had the power to make that law. The city council alone could have authorized those changes.

The entire sewage from those stalls and fixtures, empty directly under the stable. The workmen sleep there, but the life or health of those poor men is of no value. It is a grand spectacle of which the city of Quincy may well be proud. The city can pass laws which the individual must live up to,
or be fined or imprisoned, but when the city has any plumbing to do, it can be done by the inspector, and the very laws that it has enacted, grossly violated. Do you wonder, gentlemen, that on December last, the citizens of Quincy decided that there was grave need of a new Board of Health and a new Commissioner of Public Works?
Yet Mr. Kenley said that he should not be called upon to answer to this charge, because he was told to do it by other city officials. Because I am told to steal, does that justify my stealing?

The law provides that "no person
unless expressly licensed shall carry swill through any of the public streets of this city." Suppose for a moment that some one was arrested for violating this law and when brought up in Court, should say that he saw Dr.
Garey of the Board of Health, and he told him that there was no need of his getting a license. What do you think the Court would say to that plea?
The judge would say that the quicker
Dr. Garey was removed from the Board, the better for the city. Supposing that one of our police officers was complained of for selling liquor, and when brought into Court, he would say that the Chief of Police told him that he might sell liquor in our city. Do you think that that would be a defence?
Yet the defence offered here by Mr.
Kenley is just as consistent as those.

SET BY NEW HAY.

Slight Fire in A. W. Thompson's Barn.

The fire department was called out at 1.45 this afternoon by an alarm from Box 171 for a fire in the small barn in the rear of A. W. Thompson's estate on Elm street. The barn was used only to store hay and a ton or more of new hay had been put in. It was the heating of this that caused the fire.
The flames did not succeed in breaking through the roof and practically the only loss will be the hay which was ruined by smoke.

Death of John Crane.

Mr. John Crane, one of Quincy's oldest citizens died this morning at his residence on Franklin street, after a brief illness at the advanced age of 80 years and 7 months. Mr. Crane has been in remarkably good health for one of his age, although for a few days he has been suffering from a bowel trouble. This, however, did not prevent his being about and no later than Saturday he was on the street. He was taken more seriously ill Sunday
and passed away early this morning.

Mr. Crane was a shoemaker by trade which business he followed for many years. Of late years however, he has followed no business. Although having reached a ripe old age, Mr. Crane possessed a remarkable memory and was an authority on many of the events in Quincy's early history, and was often consulted by those in search of facts and incidents of years ago, and no more pleasant hour could be passed than in conversation with Mr. Crane on these subjects. He was for many years a neighbor of George H. Locke who passed away only a week before.
He leaves a widow, a son and a daughter. His son is Mr. Emery L.
Crane of the leather house of Emery & Crane, Boston, and an ex-chairman of the Quincy school committee.

In Memory of T. H. Wason.

Memorial services in memory of Mr.
T. Henry Wason were held under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association at their hall on Sunday afternoon and were attended by many friends of the deceased, who was the second president of the association and at the time of his death an honorary vice president and director.
Hymns were sung led by Mr. T. H.
Emery and accompanied by Mrs. Hunt,
piano, and Mr. Critchley cornet.
Secretary Hoehn presided and led in the devotional exercises. Prayer was offered by Rev. Robert Westly Peach.
Eulogies limited to two or three minutes were offered by Edward Southworth, A. D. Albee, Rev. Mr. Peach, Deleware King, Robert Allen, James
F. Merrill, Rev. E. N. Hardy and Peter
W. Dakers. Mr. Emery contributed a solo.

After a collection a general invitation to speak was extended and the opportunity was promptly seized by J.
B. Barnes, John Evans, T. B. Emery,
W. H. Mitchell and W. F. Hoehn. All spoke of the christian life of Mr.
Wason and his faithfulness to all duties, and the loss to city, church and
association.

Like a Race Horse.

The Faxon-Keith cup defender came down the river late Saturday afternoon with an old suit of sails on and took a spin down the bay. She went like a race horse. She had a go at the "Kayashik," which is considered a fast boat, and went about three feet to her
one. With the wind over the quarter and sheets well started she came about and filled away in twenty seconds and can easily do seconds better when she is tuned up.

IT WON'T BE GORMAN.

Has No Show For Presidential Nomination, According to Williams.

Will Be Bryan and Chicago Platform In 1900.

If Nebraska Fails In Convention He Will Be Nominated by Others.

Bath, Me., June 19.—George Fred Williams, the Democratic leader of the old Bay State, and William S. McNary came here to hold a conference with Arthur Sewall. Upon their arrival they were driven to the mansion of Mr. Sewall, and it is said to say that during the conference the future prospects of the organization were thoroughly discussed.

While they were at Mr. Sewall's a reporter asked Mr. Williams what he could say in regard to the claim made by some of the friends of Mr. Gorman that he was to be a candidate for the presidential nomination against Bryan, and that the New England contingent, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia and Illinois delegations can be secured for him, and uninstructed delegations from other states who can be influenced and controlled after they get to the convention, so that they are sure of the Massachusetts delegation for Gorman.

"Well," said Mr. Williams, "I don't know as there is much that I can say regarding that thing. So they are talking Gorman, are they? Well, Mr. Gorman cannot have the Massachusetts delegation. He can't have a single man of it, and he stands not a ghost of a show of getting the Democratic nomination."

"Then you do not consider that Mr. Gorman has any chance of getting the nomination," said the writer.

"Not in the least. Why, the keeper of Boston light stands just as good a chance as he does. Suppose that Gorman should get it—for it will never amount to more than supposition—what would he do? Just what he has done before, make mistakes."

"The opposition element in the party is always bringing up someone, and claiming everything in sight and hope. I suppose they think they can carry the convention, but they cannot do it. You can mark my words that if Mr. Bryan and the Chicago platform do not succeed in the convention Mr. Bryan will still be nominated by a party."

"You must mean the Silver wing of the Democratic party," said the reporter.

"There would doubtless be some silver men in it," said Mr. Williams.

"Gorman is more a Republican than a Democrat, anyway. If those people want Gorman let them take him. That will only make it so much easier for us. His friends can claim all of the New England states for him if they wish, but when they get them that is different. I know several that they cannot get. Massachusetts is one of them. Vermont is another and Rhode Island another."

"Do you feel confident that Mr. Bryan will get the nomination at the convention?" asked the writer.

"I think that McKinley will be re-nominated, and I feel more sure that Mr. Bryan will be, for, as I said before, if he and the Chicago platform should be thrown over, which is not in the least likely, he would be nominated upon another ticket."

"Will the Chicago platform be re-adopted as a whole?" he was asked.

"No, the clause regarding intervention in Cuba will be left out, that will be the only change, in my opinion, although some new planks will, of course, be added. There will be a plank against the trusts and monopolies of all kinds, and what is more, the Democrats will be pledged to fight these evils if they put that plank in the platform, and will not simply put it in words and then deceive the people afterwards. If the Democrats are successful at the polls, every officer and man of power in the party will be pledged and expected to keep those pledges."

"What do you expect will be the principal issue in the coming campaign?" was asked.

"What is the principal thing in the decalogue?" asked Mr. Williams.

"Is it not that one which at the time is most conspicuous? The decalogue is simply our law as human beings, our platform is our law as a party, and the several planks will come into prominence at the different times and places where they are the most talked of. For instance, if you have a mill in Bath which was closed by a trust, your people will want to know about trusts and why their mill was closed and how to have it opened again. If young men from Portland are being killed over in the Philippines, the people of Portland will want to know why we are fighting in those islands, what we are to gain by sending their sons over there. All of these and many more questions will come up for discussion, and we shall present them to the people as we see them. To name the principal issue now we cannot."

May Have Been Second Attempt.
Salem, Mass., June 19.—A man, probably Henrik Gangenbion of Newark, N. J., cut his throat in the toilet room of the railroad station Sunday. When taken from the station, and with blood coursing down his clothing, the man waved his hands at the crowd and tried to make a speech. At the hospital an operation was performed, and the wound had been severed. The surgeons found an old wound in the throat, so they think the patient had attempted suicide before. He is apparently insane. He may recover.

Mrs. Blaine's Snug Pile.
Chicago, June 19.—Mrs. Emmons Blaine, daughter-in-law of the late James G. Blaine, and a daughter of the late Cyrus McCormick, who bequeathed her a large part of his immense fortune, has filed the largest individual personal property schedule that Cook county board of assessors has received. The total figure was $1,563,000. This action was taken in complying with the new Illinois revenue law.

STICKS TO HIS OPINION.

Head of the "Dear Army" of France Believes That Dreyfus Is Guilty.

Paris, June 19.—General Mercier, who was minister for war when Captain Dreyfus was condemned, spoke publicly yesterday for the first time since the court of cassation rendered its decision at a meeting of the French Patriotic league, where he was greeted with loud applause.

"Your acclamations," said General Mercier, "are addressed only in a small part to the soldier who did his duty in 1894, and is readily resolved to accomplish it in 1899. They are chiefly addressed to our dear army, of which, at this critical moment, you do me the honor of regarding as the standard-bearer."

He then proceeded to declare his absolute conviction of the guilt of Captain Dreyfus, and his belief that the Rennes court-martial would fearlessly ascertain the truth and do its duty. "As for myself," he declared, "I shall tell everything I know." This, as a prominent advocate of revision remarked, is just what is wanted.

Sunday Drowning Accidents.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., June 19.—Three young men of Cottage City, Augustus W. Leighton, 23 years old; Joseph Bernado, 21 years, and David Evans, 27 years, are supposed to have been drowned in Edgartown bay Saturday afternoon. Their boat was found adrift between Cottage City and Edgartown in a waterlogged condition. Coats were found in her, but nothing was learned of the men. Evans leaves a wife and one child. Bernado and Leighton were unmarried.

Salem, Mass., June 19.—Louis Latourneau, a barber, was drowned yesterday at a place hardly 300 yards off Lee street point. Latourneau had been out with four companions, and as they came in all were singing and rocking the boat. The boat went over, and only by lively work of volunteers were any of the five saved. Doctors resuscitated four, but after two hours' work Latourneau could not be revived. He leaves a widow and four children.

Needham, Mass., June 19.—While William Johnson of Cambridge was going up the Charles river on a fishing trip yesterday with two companions in a boat it capsized and all were thrown into the water. The others were rescued, but John Johnson was drowned. He was about 25 years old.

Lonely Ocean Voyage Begun.

Gloucester, Mass., June 19.—Under escort of the Gloucester Yacht club and a fleet of nearly 100 yachts and amid the cheers of several thousand people gathered along the water front, Howard Blackburn of this city set sail alone at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon in his little sloop-rigger, four-ton boat, the Great Western, on a trip across the Atlantic. The Great Western is stocked with provisions for 90 days, and it is her master's intention to sleep days and do his sailing at night. Gloucester, Eng., is the point where he expects to land first. All the principal European cities will be visited. Blackburn intends to occupy about two years on his trip.

The Caledonia Disaster.

Halifax, June 19.—A dispatch from Gloucester Bay says that a vessel of smoke are pouring from the Caledonia pit, and the fire is burning as fiercely as ever. Men attempted to enter the pit yesterday, but only got down 40 feet, and were compelled to retreat. The body of one of the victims, Martin, is yet undiscovered, and is probably buried forever beneath thousands of tons of debris. The funerals of the victims of the disaster, whose bodies were recovered, took place yesterday.

Andrews Set Sail.

Atlantic City, June 19.—Captain William A. Andrews, known as the lone navigator, left this city yesterday in a little craft named The Doree, which is barely 12 feet in length, to attempt to cross the Atlantic. He headed direct for the Azore islands, where he expects to re-provision his larder. This makes the fifth attempt of the captain to cross the ocean in similar crafts, three of which he claims were successful.

His Tabooed.

Somerville, Mass., June 19.—An innovation marked the service at Prospect Hill Congregational church yesterday, coming in response to a suggestion made by the pastor, Rev. Edward S. Tead, last week, that all the ladies of the congregation should remove their hats upon entering the church. Practically every lady sat with her hat off during the service, and all seemed to be pleased with the idea.

A Youthful Suicide.

Danbury, Conn., June 19.—Andrew M. Woodford, the 15-year-old son of Mrs. Mary Woodford, a widow, had been working for some time for a farmer in Reynoldsville, N. Y., and became infatuated with his employer's daughter. She, however, discouraged his attentions, and Friday he shot himself through the heart. He left a note stating why he ended his life.

Claim to Be Innocent.

Haverhill, Mass., June 19.—George Keene, claiming a residence in Kennebunk, Me., and Charles Legassie, claiming to belong in Dover, N. H., are under arrest, charged with attempted highway robbery of James E. Higgins late Saturday night. Both men deny all participation in the crime.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

Sun rises—4:07; sets, 7:24.
Moon sets—1:17 a. m.
High water—8:15 a. m.; 8:45 p. m.

A ridge of high pressure extends from Texas to Nova Scotia. Storms of intensity are central off the coast and in the middle Missouri valley. Showers have occurred in the south Atlantic states and light showers in the lake regions. Generally fair weather with slowly rising temperature may be expected on the Atlantic coast; increasing cloudiness and warmer in New England, with light southerly winds.

LAW IN THE SOUTH

Declared to Be the White Man's Cloak and Black Man's Enemy.

Aristocrats Play the Part of Alleged Sam Hose.

The Mixing of Races and Lynchings Discussed by Editor Henderson.

Boston, June 19.—In an address in the Park Street church yesterday, Joseph W. Henderson, editor of the New England Torchlight, replied to the recent speech of ex-Governor Northen of Georgia with reference to the recent southern outrages upon colored people.

Said Mr. Henderson: "It is not necessary at this date of American history for me to make any reply to Governor Northen's dramatic defense of human slavery. But had I been an owner of human beings and man-killing dogs as he has been, and since written my name among the followers of Christ, I would have felt more like coming up to the altar of repentance at this stage of reform than to have come to one of the greatest cities in the world with a type-written defense of the most cruel institution of human debauchery ever known to civilized or savage man. Were it not that it was in Georgia that my poor mother was born—that that she tremblingly obeyed the slave master's whip and felt the slave hound's bite, there that she was sold and deported for life from her blood and kin, I would not stoop to dignify Governor Northen's pro-slavery utterances even with a sneer. And at that I let the matter drop."

"Governor Northen argues that if the south has done wrong the north has done wrong, too, therefore the south has done right. What hope can there be for the negro's future liberty in the southland, when Governor Northen says that the south stands abreast of all other nations and will continue its way of governing until a better people, a better government are formed elsewhere?"

"That means that the negro must continue to be robbed of his manhood rights, forced to ride in jim-crow cars, deprived of his right of franchise, or lynched without cause until the southerners shall have concluded that they have found somebody who are better than they."

"Governor Northen says that miscegenation by law will never take place in the south. But miscegenation in the south has already taken place. It has been on the road over 200 years. Not miscegenation by law, but by brute force, which is the very worst form of law. It was the blue vein aristocracy of the south that broke over the fence, defied all law, and the result is we have black negroes and white negroes—some of them as white as Governor Northen."

"Many a southern aristocrat has played the part of the alleged Sam Hose at a black woman's door. But he did it with the perfect understanding that no human hands would chastise him. The brute force of the slave master marked the beginning of this racial intermixture, and it is going on now with increased rapidity. Go south and count the penitentiary horns, children whose mothers are colored and fathers white. That tells the story."

"Aside from force, there is a regular organized society of white men and colored women, for which the colored women are as much to blame as the white men. These particular colored women have long since concluded that they would rather wear diamonds and ride in carriages of their own than to be the wife of a colored man. They are not to blame for this racial amalgamation, for they and the blacks do not associate. They mutually hate and scorn each other. It is the blue-vein aristocracy of the south that is creating havoc with the morals and social affections in negro homes, and mixing the races most alarmingly."

"I have been unable to ascertain what Governor Northen told his northern audience that the negro has the same chance in southern courts that the white man has. Southern law is the white man's cloak and the black man's enemy. It is often used to protect the lawless and to punish the lawful. The lawless are white, and the lawful black. It is the collar that yokes the negro to the stool of humiliation and holds him with a grasp of crucifixion."

"As to lynching I would ask: If lynching is the proper cure for assaults upon women why do not the lynchers simply lynch the assailants and let lynching drop at that? Why have they victimized some 50,000 others against whom there were no charges of assaults?"

Front of House Blown Out.

Cleveland, June 19.—The entire front of the brick house of Abraham Kohn was blown out by an explosion of gasoline yesterday and Kohn, his wife and child are in the hospital. The baby will surely be fatally burned. Mrs. Kohn was cleaning some garments with gasoline and she left the vessel uncovered in the house while she was out in the yard, the door being closed. In some way the gasoline was lighted and the explosion followed.

To Retain Commandership.

Boston, June 19.—The statements published in New York and Boston papers to the effect that Admiral Sampson was ill and would retire from the command of the north Atlantic squadron have been authoritatively denied by an officer of his staff as wholly unfounded. On the contrary, as a matter of fact, Admiral Sampson is now in better health than he has been at any time since or during the war and has no intention of giving up his command.

Fought Over Cards.

Boston, June 19.—Filippo Gaelleno and Francisco Salasera had a stiletto duel in the North End yesterday, and as a result both were carried to a hospital for treatment and later placed under arrest. Their wounds will not prove serious. The men were playing poker and had made the stakes a jackpot. When one called the other, each held four aces, and trouble followed.

GIANTS GOT RATTLED.

Chicago Took Advantage and Scooped the Game in the Ninth.

Chicago, June 19.—The visitors had all the best of it Sunday until the ninth, when the locals won in a grand stand finish. Mortas singled and Lange bunted safely. Then the New Yorks' infield got rattled, leaving second and third uncovered, allowing a double steal. Everett following with a hard hit to left, scoring both. Attendance, 12,000.

Chicago, June 19.—First Baseman Everitt of the Chicago League club resigned his position as captain yesterday, and according to the players themselves the position will remain vacant until conditions are different. Everitt, it is said, resigned because the management offered him only $300 to captain the team, a sum much lower than any other league captain receives.

Plenty of Company.

Boston, June 19.—The crowds that visited the warships yesterday were the largest that have ever walked their decks in these waters, and the harbor was filled with small boats carrying their living freight between the wharves and the vessels. The general public was not admitted on board until 1 o'clock, and from that hour until 5 o'clock the stream of callers was uninterrupted. Divine services were held on board the Massachusetts, the exercises being made more interesting by the presence of a number of young ladies from the New England conservatory of music, who contributed a delightful program of vocal and instrumental music.

Investigation in Order.

Portland, Me., June 19.—The Portland Water company's immense reservoir on Manjoy hill is the cause of apprehension on the part of the residents in the neighborhood. For some days excavation in the side of the hill quite a distance from the reservoir has been going on. Saturday a small stream of water oozed out of the embankment, and it is feared that it comes from a leak in the reservoir. The stream, while somewhat increased in size, has not attained proportions to cause serious alarm, but occupants of houses near by have moved out temporarily. A thorough examination of the reservoir will be made.

On a Bribery Charge.

Chicago, June 19.—Daniel Coughlin, who was tried twice but finally acquitted of the murder of Dr. P. H. Cronin, was arrested Saturday night on a charge of attempted bribery. William Armstrong, a bartender in a saloon owned by Coughlin, was also arrested. It is claimed they tried to bribe a juror in a land damage case against the Illinois Central railroad to render a verdict against the road. Coughlin was released under bonds of $15,000 and Armstrong $5,000. The case in which the alleged bribery was attempted did not go to the jury, but was decided in favor of the railroad by Judge Tuthill.

Victims of Healers.

Hong Kong, June 19.—It has developed that Rev. H. S. Phillips, Mrs. Phillips and Miss Sears, missionaries of the Church Missionary society who, with three native converts, were recently killed by rioters in the province of Ngan-Hwei, had sought protection of the yamen at Kien-Yang. The yamen, not being strong enough to protect them, sent the party under escort to Kien-Ning-Fu, but the missionaries were murdered on the way there. It is reported that the natives destroyed also the church, parsonage and hospital at Kien-Ning-Fu.

In Memory of Heroes of Samoa.

Vancouver, B. C., June 19.—Australian advisers say that the officers of the British and American warships who have been fraternizing during the recent trouble in Samoa have decided to erect a joint monument to the memory of the English speaking slain in the various engagements. It is intended to erect a granite monument with the names of the British engraved on one panel, and the names of the Americans on the other, surmounting the roll of the killed with the British and American flags intertwined.

No Sign of Settlement.

Buffalo, June 19.—Nothing developed yesterday affecting the dock situation. The freight handlers held a largely attended meeting and those present exhibited a determination to stay out until the railways agree to pay them 20 cents an hour for overtime, and they expect the dock workers to stand by them. On good authority it was stated last night that the railway people will absolutely refuse to change the rate of wages they are paying to the men.

No Cabinet Yet.

Paris, June 19.—It is understood that if M. Waldeck-Rousseau fails to form a cabinet the president will again summon M. Poincare, whom he has asked to remain in Paris at his (M. Loubet's) disposition.

ABOUT RETAILING SHIRTS.

SOME good, but misguided women, who own good husbands, try to lessen the worries of those same husbands by doing some of the personal purchasing. In a great many instances it is a great help, for it is due to the good taste displayed by wives that many husbands are becomingly clothed. But once in a while the insatiable bargain fever strikes deep into the souls of some of these same wives. They run over the Sunday newspapers and cut out some of the whole page "ads" and the following week they rush in town to buy some alleged bargains in shirts at less than the cost of the Button Holes. These shirts are retailed for from 9c to 25c, and sometimes they have to be retailed again in order that a man may wear them as long as he wants to.

It does make a woman wish she could use a few of those emphatic words that her husband uses to express his feelings when she has to sit down and sew four or five inches of cloth around the bottom of one of those shirts. Not so much for ornament as for use. Our shirts are cut full and long and wide, and after we retail 'em you won't have to retail 'em again.

Our 50c shirts are made with attached and detached collar and cuffs, and some of them have two collars and two cuffs.

Then we have the Cheviots and Madras and Silk Fronts from 75c to $1.00.

Our Shirts are Honest Shirts.

Drift of Opinion.

As bicycle riders become more numerous it will probably become necessary in time to adopt the European system of licensing them and requiring them to display a number for identification which would curb the recklessness of some of the fast riders who run down a victim and then disappear in the darkness.—Lowell Mail.

A well-known oarsman attacks the management of the Harvard University crew and gives strong reasons for a change of policy in the regatta line at Cambridge. If what he says is true, there is no use to look for a victory in the coming races. If Harvard is to win in coming contests she must be represented by brawn and brain in her boats rather than money and influence. It has been said, and it is generally believed that the latter rather than the former controls the choice of boat crews and so long as that is true it is useless to hope for victories.—Lynn Item.

In many cities the good old custom has been revived of a public gathering outdoors at which the Declaration of Independence is read and a patriotic address made. It is desirable to continue the custom. There is too great a disposition to provide an elaborate and expensive celebration if anything is done. People seem to demand a big show with parades and fireworks when the simple ceremony would be more suitable for the municipal observance leaving the other forms to the individuals to carry out as they choose. There will be noise enough without burning powder at the expense of the city and tawdry hunting has become too common to have much value as a patriotic demonstration. A simple ceremony is the best and it is enough.—Worcester Gazette.

City Council Business.

The length of tonight's meeting of the City Council depends upon how much debate there is upon the several matters known to come before the session and the matters which may come up. A number of applications for minor licenses will be received and the Committee on Licenses will report upon a number of petitions. The Committee on Streets will report upon the petition of the Quincy & Boston street railway for a location for a turnout on Sea street and for a track from City square to its car house. They will also report on a petition of the New England Telephone Co., for a location of poles.

The Committee on Printing will report upon the order to print the Assessors valuations of 1899. The Committee on Ordinance will report on the Plumbing Ordinance, and the Committee on Public Buildings on the public square at the junction of Penn. Liberty and Quincy streets.

Public hearings will be held on the acceptance of the following streets as public ways: Glover avenue, Webster, Madison streets and Avon way.

The Committee on Finance have a large amount of business before them upon which they will probably report. The refunding order is in the calendar and will probably come up for passage.

Charlestown had the biggest attraction on the Seventeenth and drew the crowd. Nantasket was almost deserted.

Street R. R. Improvement.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

In some respects the Quincy & Boston street railway is a model road. Still there are a few little improvements that would be appreciated by the traveling public, viz:

Free transfers within the city limits and to Neponset on each line.

Convenient Lavatories at central station.

Illuminated signs on cars at night, and more explicit signs in the day.

Substitution of grooved girder for T rails.

The time has surely arrived when free transfers should be given, let alone the fact the road would make money by it, as traffic would largely increase. The public have a right to be carried from any place to the farthest point in the city limits and by all lines to Neponset for one fare. Manager Graham, in answer would say, we carry you to East Weymouth for five cents, but we don't all want to go there. Some would like to ride from West Quincy to the High school, the Point, Houghs Neck or Newcomb square for instance.

I think it would not be out of the way to charge additional fare out of town except to Neponset.

Lavatories are conveniences which should be provided at once. On pleasant Sundays thousands of people are brought to City Square, largely by electric. It is hardly fair to expect the steam railroad to provide for these people. Many children are among them. Besides, the depot is not always open, and that seems to be the only place where the police direct them.

Cars in other cities are being fitted with illuminated signs, making it possible to see your car without risking life and limb rushing into the street to hail some you don't want.

It would not be a bad idea to rearrange the day signs, so they would read correctly. Cars should not have the sign "for Quincy" displayed, when the car is moving from Quincy toward Braintree, and quite frequently cars are marked Houghs Neck when they are moving toward East Milton. Still this is not so bad as it is in Worcester where it is quite the thing to take the wrong car and ride a while out of the way.

Substitution of grooved girder for T rail when running is expensive, but saves a great amount of wear to private carriages that are obliged to cross them. It was a great invention.

I do not write this to find fault with the road, as I believe that we cannot do too much for an enterprise that has been instrumental in providing us with the means of getting from place to place so easily and conveniently. But these few little concessions would be appreciated by all, and the road and public would be naturally benefited.

Squantum Championship.

A light wind robbed the first championship race of the Squantum yacht club on the Seventeenth of much of the pleasure. However the Wild Duck and Tomahawk had a close finish and the former won by only five seconds. The Alberta met with an accident to her gib which accounts for her position. The Freckle won a leg in the second class.

The summary:

Better Attendance.

The Festival of Holidays in aid of the City Hospital which was interrupted by the fire Thursday night was continued Saturday afternoon and evening at which time there was a fire sale.

There was dancing for the young people in the afternoon and in the evening the hoop drill was given by the young ladies from Wollaston. The attendance was larger than on the two previous days and the sale was therefore much more successful. The financial result of the festival will not be as large as the ladies in charge wished but will net quite a sum, as money has been contributed. Acknowledgment of money will be made in tomorrow's Ledger.

It is quite premature to indulge in apprehensions that the current new era of national prosperity may be imperiled through this short-sighted attempt to double the value of our mills and factories by pooling them and duplicating their nominal capital. So long as the parties to this movement are conjuring with their own assets the general public have little to fear provided they stand aloof from the game.—New York Journal of Commerce.

HERE AND THERE.

Local Brevities of the City of Presidents.

City Council tonight.

The mercury dropped to 58 Sunday evening.

It was ideal holiday weather on the Seventeenth.

Inspector McKay and Officer George A. McKay assisted Sheriff Collingwood in his liquor raid at Nantasket Saturday.

The City band gave an excellent open air concert in City Square Friday night which was listened to by a large crowd.

The local Sons of Veterans marched at Charlestown on the Seventeenth, and some of the Spanish War veterans were also in line.

The Wollaston A. A. nine won their game at East Milton on the morning of the Seventeenth, with the Milton A. A.; score 9 to 6.

Miss Clara Nelson of Madison street returned Sunday evening from a visit to Canobie Lake, N.H., being the guest of Miss Sadie Edwards.

A largely attended Swede picnic was held at Merrymount park on Saturday Games, music and refreshments made the day pass pleasantly.

Several of the members of the Wollaston golf club entered Class A in the medal play handicap of the Myopia club at Hamilton on the Seventeenth.

All the Quincy letter carriers marched in the letter carrier's division of the civic parade at Charlestown on the Seventeenth, and made a fine appearance in their new suits.

J. W. McNamery, deputy of the Knights of Columbus, received a warm welcome at Foxboro on the Seventeenth, and his staff exemplified the third degree at the institution of the new council.

Miss Helen M. Slade, daughter of ex-Councilman James H. Slade, was elected last week instructor of mathematics at Vassar college. She was also elected a member of the Phi Beta Kappa, a chapter having been formed at Vassar the past year.

G. E. Atherton, Jr., of the Wollaston golf club won the cup at the open tournament of the Myopia golf club at Hamilton on the Seventeenth. He defeated Q. A. Shaw, Jr., in the semi-finals and W. B. Cutting Jr., in the finals.

The street railway commenced its summer schedule on Saturday, of running through cars between Neponset and Nantasket via Quincy, North Weymouth and Hingham. The through cars leave City Square for Nantasket via this route at 10 minutes of and 20 minutes past the hour.

A car load of Odd Fellows went to East Weymouth Sunday afternoon and united with Weymouth Odd Fellows in their annual memorial day service. The necrologies were by Bro. George M. Hoyt and Sister Ada Raymond. The address was by Rev. John W. Day of Hingham, and the clergymen of the town assisted in the service.

John Campbell, of 112 Water street, was riding on Washington street Saturday evening just west of the Quincy Point bridge, when the handle bar of his wheel broke. He was thrown violently to the ground and was unconscious for some minutes. After he came to he remained in a dazed condition for several hours. He was assisted onto a car and taken to Quincy Centre and thence sent home in a carriage.

About 11 o'clock Saturday morning the indicator at the police station showed that something was wrong at the Granite bank and the way that Officer Barry went flying down the street would have done credit to a sprinter. Quite a crowd followed, but found the cause of the rapid movements on the part of the officer. The cause of the trouble was located and fixed.

FINE SCHOOL WORK.

Creditable Exhibition at the Massachusetts Fields School.

The exhibition of work of the scholars of the Massachusetts Fields school, and reception to parents at the above named school on Friday evening, June 16, was largely attended and proved successful in many ways. It not only was the means of showing to the parents the excellent work done by their children, but also brought together representatives of the school board, the superintendent of schools, the teachers, the pupils and their parents, especially the fathers. Had this work been shown during the day many would have been unable to attend.

As it was, however, it must have been very gratifying to all concerned to see so many of the men present and to note the interest they manifested, and in connection with it this may be said, that no better proof of the efficiency of the present system of having the two schools of Wollaston supervised by one principal is needed than the work shown on this occasion, as it was above the average. When it is understood that the principal of the two schools in Ward Five is enabled to devote his entire time to supervision alone, it is simply plain to the most prejudiced mind that the principal of a single school who has the highest grade to teach added to his duties as supervisor is greatly handicapped.

At 8 o'clock the doors were opened and the visitors began to enter. At the head of the stairs was stationed the eighth grade or graduating class of '99, who, as ushers conducted guests to the principal, Mr. Charles E. Finch, Jr., and in turn introduced them to Mrs. Finch, Superintendent and Mrs. Lull, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Page, who received and warmly greeted the two hundred or more who visited the school.

The room occupied by grade one and the entire lower hall was devoted to the exhibit of the various grades. Miss Mary E. Currier teacher of the eighth grade was enthusiastic over the work she had to show, and she had reason to be.

Miss Millie Damon, who teaches the seventh grade took pride in showing the work of her scholars, especially a perspective drawing of the schoolhouse by Master Arthur Newman, and a poem by Hamilton C. Chase, entitled "The Old Temeraire." Miss Lena Pfaffmann who presides over the sixth grade, had many interesting subjects to feel proud of. Her art gallery was very interesting and instructive.

On the table representing the fifth grade, Miss Cassendana Thayer took pride in showing the work of her class. Miss Carrie Hunter had a particularly good map of Massachusetts.

Miss Lillian M. Waterhouse presided over the section occupied by grade four and showed some excellent maps of Quincy including among other things the true location of the different schoolhouses, public buildings, etc.

Miss Annie McCormick was justly proud of the showing that her scholars in the third grade had made, and took pleasure in answering the many questions put to her.

Miss Marion I. Bailey was ever ready to answer questions, and had a good exhibit of the work done under her care in the second grade. A drawing by little Charlie Gardner was much admired.

Miss Annie Bennett, who so ably trains the young mind in the first grade seemed patience itself. She must possess an abundance of that rare quality united with tact to bring out such good results as was shown in her department. Miss Bennett has a very large class, and is assisted by Miss E. Gertrude Ward. Miss Ward, received many visitors during the evening from the fact that she dispensed a very fine combination of water, lemon juice, sugar and fruit.

She reported many repeaters. You could not blame them for repeating. So well pleased were the visitors with their evening's entertainment that it is safe to say that in the future parents' day will be virtually parents' evening.

IMPORTANT.

Everybody at all Interested in Bicycles or

following letter.

FITCHBURG, June 6, 1899.

John P. Lovell Arms Co., Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:

Yours of the 5th inst., asking us what we think of your Lovell "Diamond" bicycle, duly received.

We send you copies of some of our advertisements, which we think will tell the story better, perhaps, than we could write it. If you will read our ad headed "Remember our '98 record—over 200 'Lovell Diamonds' without a breakdown,"—we think you will fully understand our high appreciation of your wonderful wheel.

Thus far we have sold six hundred and seventy-eight (678) Lovell "Diamond" bicycles without a single breakdown, which beats anything we could possibly have expected, and we are free to say that all you will have to do is to turn out the wheels and they will sell themselves, especially if you sell them at $35. The only drawback you can have is, if you advance them to $50 (as the story is afloat that such is the intention), some may buy a cheaper wheel, but at $35 they are within the reach of all, and you will sell all that you can possibly turn out at that price.

Furthermore, we do not believe a bicycle can be built by any manufacturer that will approach the Lovell "Diamond" in strength and running quality, unless they discard old methods and begin to manufacture the Lovell way.

One of our customers, who, by the way, is an old bicycle rider, told us the other day he never knew what a good bicycle was until he rode this year's Lovell "Diamond." Your bicycle runs so easily, and is made so well, especially the parts, that every wheel that goes out must be a great advertisement for you.

If your new line of Lovell sporting goods is up to "Diamond" standard, it will surely meet the success your wheel has so justly earned.

Kindly believe us,

Yours most respectfully,

John H. Gillis

The result of years of scientific research by America's greatest blood specialist, A. Pleasant treatment that relieves immediately, cures permanently all forms of CANCERS, TUMORS and CHRONIC DISEASES. Hundreds of wonderful cures effected in and around Boston. Read the following:

BLOOD EVIDENCE

When come to our offices and investigate the records of other marvelous cures produced by ABSORPTION when all other treatment failed, consult this living patient. "Dr. James M. Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimony, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary relief from different doctors, and each attack became more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor. He was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day, realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was encouraged about my condition, and sought Dr. Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description of my feelings from me, he at once located my tumor, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was added to his directions, with just the results I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I live, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EREN FISH, 102 Harvard St., Dorchester, Mass." Today I am one of the many living witnesses of the painless method that positively CURES all other failures.

THE A. O. H. PICNIC.

An Interesting Series of Sports
—Other Attractions.

The Hibernians of Quincy and vicinity held a largely attended union picnic on the Seventeenth at New Downer Landing. The several divisions met at West Quincy and headed by the City band and marched via Copeland, Water, Franklin, School and Hancock streets to City Square, where cars were taken for the grove. James O'Dowd, County President, was chief marshal, and his aids were the presidents of the several divisions. They turned out over two hundred strong, about half wearing the full regalia of the order. They made an imposing appearance as they marched through the streets.

Upwards of 1000 attended the picnic and it was a day of enjoyment for all. The chief attraction was the list of sports which were watched with interest and resulted as follows:

Base ball. Gridley Bryant school, 4. Adams school, 3.
Three-mile bicycle race. Won by L. A. C. Kelly, Charles Gallagher second.
One-mile run. Won by Thomas Nash of Weymouth, E. H. McClean second.
100-yard dash. Won by H. Scott, William Mulane second.
Putting the shot. Won by John C. Casey, 31 ft. 10-1/2 in.; Edward Kelly second 30 ft. 9 in.
Throwing the hammer. Won by John C. Casey, 102 ft. 2 in.; Jeremiah Dinneen second, 98 ft. 8 in.
Running high jump. Won by W. Mulane S. Talbot second.
Running broad jump. Won by William Curran, William Mulane second.
Hop, step and jump. Won by Henry Scott, William Mulane second.

Baseball game between teams representing East Milton and West Quincy. Won by the latter, 10 to 8.

One-mile bicycle race. Won by L. A. C. Kelly, W. Chute second.

Tug-of-war between a picked team and a team representing Neponset. Won by the latter, which has of late years held the championship of the district.

Dancing vied with the sports as an attraction, especially the prize dances. For the Irish dance music was furnished by bagpipes and fiddlers and prizes were awarded to Mrs. Thomas Lewis and Miss P. Kelly. The fancy dancing prize was won by Mr. Peter McKenna and Miss Harriet Snow. The judges were Messrs. Cornelius Duggan and John Crowley.

Tin Wedding.

An informal reception was given to Mr. and Mrs. Webster S. Hayden of Newton on Saturday evening at the residence of Mrs. Hayden's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. White, 296 Neponset ave., Dorchester. "Web" was taken completely by surprise at seeing so many of his friends, and not until he had looked over the large number of beautiful and useful presents, and noticed that some of the gifts were tin-ware, did it dawn upon his mental vision that it was the tenth anniversary of their marriage. He had unconsciously dropped in to his own tin wedding. About sixty of their friends, including a good delegation from his native city Quincy were present, and all enjoyed themselves until a late hour. Refreshments were served.

BRIDES EXCHANGED LOVERS.

Unusual Bargain Made by Two Ohio Girls.

The little town of Malinta, west of Toledo, has become famous in a day on account of the unheard of proceeding between two brides exchanging lovers just before the wedding ceremony.

Frances and Mary Dipcomb, daughters of a well to do farmer, were the affianced wives of two Fulton county young men, David Rendice and Frank Benson. They had decided to have a double wedding the other evening, and relatives gathered from far and near.

The young men, bearing their licenses, reached the Dipcomb home shortly after noon, when, to their astonishment, Mary, the younger sister, was nowhere to be found. Subsequently her sister found her in her room, weeping and disconsolate. Pressed for an explanation, she confided to her sister that she could not marry Rendice, as she loved Benson better. The elder sister, while amazed, remarked that she thought just as much as she did of the other. Mary shyly hinted at an exchange of lovers. The sisters discussed the subject seriously and called the young men to a conference.

As a result a change was agreed upon, and the young men hastened to the county seat to get their licenses changed. Meanwhile the guests were wondering why the men had left the house. They were amazed when, after the bridegrooms' return and the local minister called upon the two couples to stand up for the ceremony, they observed that a general shift had occurred. The parents of the brides demanded an explanation before the ceremony proceeded, after which they expressed themselves satisfied, and all ended happily.—Special to St. Louis Republic.

TO CORRECT COMPASSES.

Louis Gathmann's Invention Might Have Prevented Paris Disaster.

Louis Gathmann, the inventor, believes the wreck of the Paris was due to irregularities in her compass. He has been making a study of the problem for years, and finds that ship's compasses are often deflected by the magnetic influence of large quantities of metal used in their construction. The irregularities in the needle are caused by the unequal distribution of the metal. Mr. Gathmann asserts that British warships have been carried ten miles off their course in foggy weather by defective compasses.

These irregularities can be overcome by elevating the compass, but the inconvenience of examining it introduces another difficulty. To meet this Mr. Gathmann has invented a vertical tube, somewhat resembling a telescope, with the compass mounted at the top. By a system of reflecting mirrors, a prism and a microscope eye piece, he brings a magnified view of the compass to a point where it can be read by the captain without inconvenience.

Mr. Gathmann's inventions have been lost through disturbances to their needs. In fair weather these irregularities are corrected, but it is in foggy or stormy weather, when the mariner must depend entirely upon his compass that the mischief is done.—Washington Special to Chicago Times-Herald.

"Saxondom." The poem entitled "Saxondom" was written by the Rev. Dr. H. Pereira Mendes and was read by him the other night at the fourth annual dinner of the British Schools and Universities club at the Breeworth House, in New York.

God, let thy blessing come
On us of Saxondom.
Oh, save us all!
Make us for peace unite,
Drawing the sword to fight
Only for God and right.
God, save us all!

Let our united word
By all the world be heard
Speaking for thee.
Death, thou, and sinning hell
Shall spread from sea to sea,
And men shall bend the knee
In fear of thee.

May earth no more release
War's sons of crime and curse!
Oh, make war cease!
Death, thou, and sinning hell
Shall spread from sea to sea,
And men shall bend the knee
In fear of thee.

May mankind's palm of life
Be peace instead of strife,
Filling all earth
Look down from heaven and bless Earth till sweet happiness
Shall have its birth!

Lion lair, eagle land,
Africa and Austral strand—
We free the world unite,
Pledged to our God are we
To lift humanity
For peace and liberty
Our flag unfurled.

Here we for peace unite,
Drawing the sword to fight
Only for God and right.
God, save us all!

Remarkable Freak of Nature.

The Sedalia (Mo.) correspondent of the Kansas City Times was shown a remarkable freak of nature the other day at the farm of Jacob Harmon, four miles from Windsor, in Barton county, Mo. A few days ago a mare belonging to Mr. Harmon gave foal to twin colts, one of which is a well developed and perfect mule, while the other, a horse colt, is the perfect counterpart of his mother in color and general appearance. The mule baby is 3 feet high and the horse colt 3 inches taller, and both are doing nicely.

A Strange Radish.

The first vegetable freak of the season is reported by H. O. Austin of Topeka. It is a radish which tied itself in a knot. The lower part coiled around the body of the radish and then grew through the loop thus formed.—Topeka State Journal.

CARRIED OUT ORDERS.

But Perhaps Obedied Her Mistress a Little Too Literally.

Mrs. Smith, who lives on Calumet avenue, sent a domestic out the other day with a tailor made suit that she wanted cleaned and pressed.

"Now, Bridget," said she, "these cleaners are sometimes very careless if they think one will put up with poor work. You take this over to — Cottage Grove avenue, and be sure to impress it upon the old fellow that I want the work well done."

Bridget came back in the course of half an hour, evidently well pleased with herself.

"Sure, mum," she explained, "O'll warrant your dress is irruined to perfection. Oi tould 'im, sez Oi, the woman ye be goin to worruk for is the divil. She's the particulerest craythez yer iver had and dallas wid, bein that homely she knows her dresses has got to be disthracktingly good lookin. "Too late," murmured a native laconically. "All this district is under the control of the ice trust."

Son (reading ancient literature)—Papa, what does this expression, "Money makes the mare go," mean?

Father—In ancient times "money" was a powerful drug which, when applied to an individual, greatly stimulated him while it soothed his conscience.

It frequently caused him to draw others out of difficulties. The "mare," I understand, was a primitive form of the automobile of today, which was used in the drawing process. The entire expression now would be something like this: "A powerful stimulant presses the automobile and turns on the current."—Cleveland Leader.

One of Sir Henry Irving's first experiences of the theater was with a provincial stock company. WOMAN'S WORLD.

SHE PLANTS THE CROPS WHILE HER BROTHER IS GONE TO THE WAR.

A "Perfect Fit" in Chicago—The Ten Drinking Habit—When Baby Outgrew His Curls—Women Who Run Elevators—How to Rest.

The Philippine war has made not only Kansas heroes, but Kansas heroines too. While Funston and his friends are fighting in the Philippines their wives and sisters and sweethearts are proving their loyalty to love and country in a novel and most remarkable way.

They have taken the place of the men at the plow, on the harrow and on the moving machine. Common as field work is among the peasantry of Europe, it has been almost unknown in America till now.

The singular part of it is that these women are not poor and they are not used to work. They are women whose husbands and brothers own the farms, abandoned for the war.

Mrs. Mary Semple, who is working a 250 acre farm 15 miles south of Wichita, is the mother of Corporal Frank Semple, who swam the Maricao river with Funston when that daring colonel of the Twentieth Kansas regiment won victory and fame by his brilliant act. Semple was wounded in the head at that time, but he wasn't killed. It's hard to kill a Kansan they say at Manila.

His mother is a widow, but she urged her eldest son to join the army and serve his country. His sister Jennie promised to take care of the farm while he was away at the war. And she has kept her promise to the letter. Jennie Semple is the prettiest girl in Kansas, and she is so proud of her big brother that she willingly left school to take his place at the plow this spring.

A year ago she was thinking only of dancing parties and a trip to New York.

"I don't mind it a bit," she says now, "so long as it lets brother Frank fight for his country."

Another of these brave, high hearted heroines at home is Miss Lulu Funston, cousin of Brigadier General Funston, the hero. She is now overseeing his farm in Allen county and actually plowing and planting.

All the while the country has been applauding General Funston's dash and bravery in the far off Philippines she has been quietly at work helping to carry on the work on his farm. She has shirked from even being mentioned. All she wants is to have people overlook her and praise her hero—her cousin.

And these are only a few instances of women's patriotism and devotion which may now be found all over the state of Kansas.

It is heroines' work, and nothing daunts them from a 500 acre unplowed field, which must be tilled, to the hauling of a load of hay.—New York Journal.

A "Perfect Fit" in Chicago. The buds and matrons have discovered a wonderful man here in Chicago. His coats and gowns—ah, how they do fit! Taking up the raw cloth, this man of original ideas holds it against the figure which is to be fitted, precisely after the manner usual with artist designers of his kind. Then the gown is made, fitted and almost finished when the new and original scheme is brought into play.

The customer is wrapped in long, wet towels—technically they are known as "sheets"—and the new tailor made gown is put on. Then over and over the hips and shoulders and around and around the waist and up and down in carefully accentuated lines goes the hot iron. Instead of being pressed on a board, the suit is pressed on the lady herself. Oh, yes, to be sure, the hot vapor arises, and the poor lady often cries out in alarm lest she be parboiled then and there, but what matters these trivial things if one's gown is to fit sublimely and beautifully and to have a style that is actually heart wringing?

The costume is literally molded to the figure inside it. The woman is instructed that she must continue to keep the dress on until the seams are quite dry.

The man who is responsible for this new and startling departure in the way of gown fitting is a Swedish-Englishman. He claims that the Princess of Wales was his inspiration for the initial attempt along this line. When fitting a gown for her one day, the idea occurred to him to try pressing it upon the figure.

"Why not try it?" exclaimed the gracious and kindly princess, of whom the artist designer is never tired of speaking.

The experiment was a great success. After that the gowns and outer garments pressed in this way for English ladies were many. About a year ago the young man who had originated the idea came to Chicago to put it into practice here. In Chicago it was Mrs. Richard Harding Davis, then Miss Cecil Clark, who was the first woman to seize upon the opportunity of outfitting her sister women in this manner. Adjusting a garment to her tall, svelte figure, the tailor requested the privilege of trying his cherished inspiration. Once more it proved a delightful success, and so great has the fad become already in Chicago that there are sometimes as many as 20 women waiting for their turn to be "pressed."—Chicago Times-Herald.

How to Rest. Medical men assert that no period of the year is more full of real danger than the vacation season. During that period the tendency of Americans to rush from one extreme to the other is proverbial, and for two or three months the struggle for pleasure is made as intense as is the struggle for life during the rest of the year.

The nervous wear and tear of traveling, care of baggage, etc., are not sufficiently taken into account.

Dr. Fordyce Barker said that the details of travel make or mar a vacation, for good or evil.

The choice of a place is also of great practical importance. A complete change of environment is most beneficial, such as changing sea air for dry and the reverse. Gaslight, drinking, dancing and late hours must be avoided.

The chief point in a vacation is to take a vacation from yourself—to have a change of natural surroundings and of intellectual life.

A week of this complete newness will be the beginning of a vacation indeed. A month of it will do mind and body more good than all the medicines in the world.

Above all one must adhere strictly to personal habits and the general laws of health. No imprudences are so dangerous as those committed by the carelessness of vacation. The detail of drinking water, for instance, should be looked to carefully; morning and evening exposures should be carefully guarded against; in fact, there must be no such thing as carelessness or indifference.—Housewife.

The Hats Off Habit.

Besides the houseful of untidy heads that the hats off habit at the theater has engendered there is another result of the practice almost as unfortunate. From removing her hat at the theater, a woman wants to remove it at all times. This has nothing to do with the summer practice of going bareheaded; it is a winter tendency, and it manifests itself in various ways and upon various occasions. A woman finds her hat a burden while shopping; in traveling, no matter how short the trip, she has the longing to lay it aside and often does so. At concerts and lectures, where there is no spectacular necessity for removing bonnets, she finds herself instinctively taking out her hairpins. Church and women's club meetings are, in fact, the only places where the tendency has not yet shown itself to a marked degree, and at the former it is already recommended, while at the latter the fact that such a proceeding would strike at the very roots of the club institution must be accounted as the true and only reason for the omission. Women find themselves on the lookout for two attributes in a new hat—lightness and an unnamable attribute requiring no mirror in the putting on and taking off of the article. All of which may be a blessing and may be not; it is, however, logical.—Philadelphia Times.

Girls With Thin Arms. Thin arms should be carefully concealed. They have an impoverished look that robs their owner of some of her dignity. If the arms are unduly long, as they occasionally are, the effect may be neutralized by wearing wide bands of black velvet fastened with pretty buttons or clasps or buckles. This reduces the apparent length of the arms. "Thin arms," says M. Charles Blanc, the great French authority on dress, "denote bad health and an antebellum race." The best remedy is to wash the arms with a fine lather of soap at least twice a day and to dry them thoroughly and rub them vigorously. This treatment brings the pores into action and induces a healthy condition of the skin. Rubbing with a soft chamois leather is excellent for the skin, giving it both smoothness and gloss.—Mrs. Humphry in Ladies' Home Journal.

A Ton of Cakes. Queen Victoria did not limit her birthday party refreshments to one cake with 20 candles. She commanded the royal confectioner to make no less than 20 cakes, each to weigh 100 pounds, and all of them were duly consumed at Windsor by the crowd of grandchildren and great-grandchildren assembled there on her birthday.

A controversy of ten years' standing was settled by the Catholic Knights of America a few days since at Kansas City, when the annual convention voted to admit women to the order. The women, however, will be permitted to carry but $1,000 insurance, or one-half the amount allowed to men.

An English woman has started a new line of remunerative business, the cleaning of bicycles. She has her regular customers, to whose houses she goes at stated intervals for about 12 cents a visit.

The oldest queen of Europe now is the queen of Hanover, who was 81 years old in April. Queen Victoria comes next, being 80, while the ex-Empress Eugenie is 73.

A ruling of the Broad Street Methodist church of Columbus, O., requires women to take off their hats during service.

CITIZENS OF HOLYOKE

Turned Out In Force to Greet the Nation's Chief Executive.

Flocked Into Church to Get a Glimpse of Him.

A Trolley Trip to South Hadley and a General Handshaking.

Holyoke, Mass., June 19.—Sunday seemed rather a long and tiresome day for the president. The president went twice to church, leaving Mrs. McKinley in the hands of her lady friends each occasion. A large crowd congregated about the residence of William Whiting, where the guests are being entertained, and by the time the president and his party were ready for church the streets were filled with people. A large crowd had assembled at the Second Congregational church. Every seat was filled. The congregation rose as the president entered and remained standing until he sat down.

The church service was in no way out of the ordinary, with the exception of a somewhat enlarged choir and additional music. Rev. Dr. Reed delivered a discourse upon the duties of stewardship. He detailed what he considered to be the duty of the individual in the use of wealth, education and religion and spoke of the duty of the nation's work of building up and raising to a higher plane, spiritually and mentally, the people in our far away possessions.

Immediately after the return to the Whiting residence, lunch was served, and at 3 o'clock a palace electric car was taken, and the party, including all the ladies, were taken over the trolley line to South Hadley, to attend the baccalaureate exercises at the chapel of Mt. Holyoke college. This was the first time President McKinley had been to South Hadley, which is the real destination of the trip, and so he made his first bow to the little college fraternity, where he is to share honors with Governor Wolcott, and deliver the degrees to the graduating class, among them being his niece, Miss Grace McKinley.

As the seniors marched into the chapel, just before the arrival of the president, each was clad in cap and gown. They were seated in the front seats in the center, while President McKinley and the gentlemen of his party occupied seats on the side. The ladies, including Mrs. McKinley, were driven to a residence nearby, and there they had a light lunch, and at the close of the exercises rejoined the men in the special car.

Hundreds of young ladies filled the auditorium of the chapel, while the balcony was occupied by several hundred high school girls. Upon the platform the college choir was seated. The decorations were very simple.

After the president had been introduced by Mrs. E. S. Mead, president of the college, he entered the chapel, the congregation remaining standing until he had taken his seat. After an organ prelude, the college choir sang an anthem and Rev. Dr. W. Jacobus of the Hartford theological seminary read from the scriptures. A baritone solo and the anthem "Angels of Light" comprised the musical part of the program, which was followed by prayer. Rev. Dr. Jacobus then delivered his baccalaureate sermon.

At the close of the exercises, the president and guests were driven back to the special car, which was surrounded by an immense number of the college girls and a large number of the townspeople.

The reception which awaited them as they alighted and entered the car was so spontaneous and of such a friendly and cordial nature that, at Mrs. McKinley's request, the car delayed its departure for a few moments, while the president shook the hands of the people.

The journey from South Hadley to Holyoke was quickly made, and after the car reached the Whiting residence and dinner was served, the company gave over the evening to complete rest.

The president today journeyed to Northampton, where he participated in a parade and the ivy exercises at Smith college, and later drove about the city sightseeing. At noon, Bethesda circle, Order of the Eastern Star, of which organization Mrs. McKinley is a member, presented her with a handsome loving cup.

Have by Caterpillars.

St. Johnsbury, Vt., June 19.—It is estimated that the ravages of caterpillars will cost the state hundreds of thousands of dollars if they remain another season, for large numbers of trees are sure to be killed. The more delicate shade and fruit trees, scientists say, will hardly survive beyond the present season, whether a reversion of this year's scourge occurs or not. State Entomologist Perkins has just issued a warning, to the effect that, during the next two weeks, the forest tent caterpillars will build their cocoons, and every one killed now will mean 200 next year, as they will soon change to moths and lay eggs.

Prohibition Removed.

Washington, June 19.—Special Plenipotentiary Kasson has just received an authenticated copy from Belgium of the decree recently enacted by the Belgian government raising the prohibition on the importation into Belgium of American cattle. The decree recites the preceding decrees prohibiting importations of cattle from America and the opinion of the veterinarians, and announces that American meat cattle and swine can now be imported into Belgium under the terms of the decree of 1897, prescribing the places where they may be landed and slaughtered.

More Trouble Looked For.

Cleveland, June 19.—There were no new developments in the strike of the street railway men yesterday, principally for the reason that the company made no attempt to operate cars except on the Euclid avenue line. The cars were run on schedule time. It is expected that an attempt will be made today to resume operations on some of the other lines, and more trouble is looked for.

How Did He Get There?

Sunday afternoon it was discovered that the laundry of Charlie Sing, in the building at the corner of Hancock street and Billings road had been entered. Officer Goodhue entered the laundry and discovered Joseph Silva concealed in the basement. He was placed under arrest and locked up on the charge of breaking and entering. Inspector McKay, who later made an investigation, learned that another Chinaman who had a trunk in the laundry had come out after it, and finding Charlie Sing away had forced an entrance and taken his trunk. No explanation was advanced however as to how Silva came to be found in the basement.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

Agricultural Prospects Figure Largely in Report Sent Out by Bradstreet's.

New York, June 17.—Bradstreet's says: Weather and crop conditions figure to a greater extent than usual this week, not only in the domain of actual distribution, but in their effect upon values of staples, particularly agricultural products, a majority of which are higher. Noteworthy in this respect is wheat, which has advanced on government and other reports pointing, according to some, to 550,000,000 bushels, and by others estimates as low as 500,000,000 bushels. Particularly helpful, however, in advancing prices have been the reports of widespread damage to the Russian crop, less glowing spring wheat reports from the northwest, and tentative estimates of the world's crops, pointing to 250,000,000 to 500,000,000 bushels smaller yield than in 1898.

Hog products have shared the strength of cereals, but cotton remains unchanged, notwithstanding reports of decreased acreage and very firm conditions in the manufactured goods trade.

Advices as to distributive trade are in the main very favorable. Hot weather has stimulated retail business, and orders for fall delivery are reported in larger volume and earlier than for years past.

The iron and steel trade displays unexampled activity as regards summer production and consumption, limited only by the obtaining of supplies. Advances all along the lines are again a feature in this trade. Bessemer and other grades of pig iron, steel billets, steel rails and many makes of finished products, have advanced from 50 cents to $1.50 per ton. Notwithstanding these advances, there is still some export inquiry, and a feature reported has been one on continental account for American coke. Iron ore shipments, although the season is three weeks late, nearly equal those of a year ago. Long abandoned eastern ore mines are being reopened, and there have been shipments of Alabama steel and Texas pig iron to Pittsburgh.

Weather conditions have not been altogether favorable, as may be gathered from complaints of insufficient rainfall coming from the hay, truck and small fruit-growing sections of New England and the eastern middle states and particularly Long Island, but some improvement is notable latterly.

At the east distributive trade is of a full summer volume, though reflecting some effects of the hot spell. Wool is in fair demand at eastern markets, and the finer grades particularly are firmly held. Lightweight clothing is reported well sold up. The lumber trade also is active, stimulated by heavy building demand.

Bank clearings for the week aggregate $1,696,555,473, a decrease of 6.3 percent from last week, but a gain of 24 percent over this week a year ago, of 31 percent over 1897, and just double of those of 1894, and 65 percent heavier than those of 1892.

Business failures number only 150, against 257 in this week a year ago, 226 in 1897, 265 in 1896 and 231 in 1895.

Badly Burned.

Worcester, Mass., June 17.—Mrs. Bridget McPartland and her son, Hugh, were horribly burned yesterday, and their recovery is considered doubtful. Mrs. McPartland was making a raid on bedbugs. She carried a bottle of benzine in one hand and a lighted lamp in the other. The bottle dropped to the floor, and in her attempt to recover it, the lamp fell. An explosion followed, Mrs. McPartland's clothing caught fire, and she threw herself onto the bed in a vain attempt to put out the flames. Her son came to the rescue. Both were soon overcome, and would have both burned to death had not their cries brought them aid.

SUMMED UP.

It is a criminal act to violate the city ordinances, and does this Board think that a confessed criminal is a proper city official?

The second charge is the Craig block, which is a large three-story building containing five stores and four tenements. It is not denied but what there are seventy-five feet of lead vent pipe behind the sheathing and under the floor not exposed to view; it is not denied that about eighty feet of wrought iron pipe is used for vent pipes; it is not denied that the plumbing work in the drug store, done by Mr. Ames and inspected by Mr. Keniley, is in gross violation of the ordinances. That plumbing work, as a whole, is a disgrace to the city, and the man who did it is not entitled to hold a position of trust in any city government.

What is Mr. Keniley's defense? He introduces a letter from Mr. Curtis, a former member of the Board of Health, stating that he allowed, wrought iron pipe to be used.

Where did Mr. Curtis get his authority to make that change? Mr. Curtis had no more authority to modify or change the laws of the city of Quincy than one of the teamsters in the employ of the city, and Mr. Keniley's excuse that Mr. Curtis allowed him to do it is no justification of his acts. Mr. Keniley and Mr. Curtis have not quite cheek enough to say that the Board of Health authorized him to conceal seventy-five feet of lead pipe in the Craig block. But he says he did not know anything about that; his men did that without his knowledge. Does he believe that sensible men are going to believe that story? Does the city of Quincy want a city official who offers such an excuse? who does not know whether his servants or agents are violating the law or not? It is a well known principle of law that the master is liable for every act of his agents done within the scope of their authority. If Mr. Craig had brought suit against Mr. Keniley for breach of his contract, would it have been any defence to have claimed that his agents did the work and he knew nothing about it?

Mr. Keniley could not tell how many times he was there. Mr. Craig testified that he was there frequently looking after the work as it progressed. Mr. Keniley says that he inspected Ames' work, but did not pass it, and made a complaint to the Board and to Ames, but that complaint, he says, was an oral one.

Mr. Ames says that no complaint was made to him. Who are you to believe?

Section 5 provides that "No plumbing work shall be used unless the same has been tested and approved by the Board of Health Inspector. Yet that plumbing work has been in use for two years.

The witnesses have explained to you what the result of the lead pipe behind the sheathing will be. In a short time that plumbing will have to be overhauled at a great expense. It can not be connected with the sewer in its present condition. And who is to blame? One of your faithful and trusted city officials. Another perfect defence offered by Mr. Keniley for this work on the Craig block is that the whole trouble is from a drain five or six feet south of the block, but he has not yet explained how the foul smell comes up through the pipes, so that the sink has to be plugged up and filled with water to keep the bad odor.

The next charge is in regard to the work done at Mrs. Whitten's. Mr. Keniley admits that he took out no permit to do the plumbing work in the stable. He says there was no need of it. Why not? He admits that it was a plumbing job, and that he received $15, for doing the plumbing.

Section 2 provides that every plumber, before doing any work in a building, shall, except in the case of repairs of leaks, file at the office of the Board a notice of the work to be performed, and no such work shall be done in any building without the approval of said Board.

Now, gentlemen, if there was no other charge filed, this ought to be sufficient to satisfy you that Mr. Keniley is an incompetent person, and should no longer be retained in office.

The law says that every plumber before doing any work in any building shall obtain a permit. Is not Mrs. Whitten's stable a building; and was not work done there by a plumber? Where is the permit for that work? The work was performed by Jeremiah J. Keniley, your faithful and efficient inspector.

What does Mr. Keniley say in regard to the work that was performed by him in Mrs. Whitten's house? He tells you that he went down and examined the job, found that the stack was in, and some of the soil pipe in the cellar up, the round traps in, and the wash trays in the sink were set. He examined the work and told Mrs. Whitten what it would cost her to complete the job. He then tells you that after this examination he found, for the first time, that no permit was taken out by Mr. Landers to do this work, and that he notified Mrs. Whitten he could not complete the job for the amount first agreed upon, because no permit had been taken out by Mr. Landers. Personally I cannot understand how it would cost Mr. Keniley any more to complete that job whether the permit was taken out or not. But he tells you that he notified Mrs. Whitten, in order to complete the work in accordance with the city ordinances, it would cost a larger sum, and he went ahead and did the work. He now comes before this Board, after having agreed with Mrs. Whitten to do the work according to the city ordinances, and tells you that he does not know whether it is done in accordance with the ordinances or not; he does not know whether there are any lead pipes used under the floors and concealed from view or not; he does not know whether any wrought iron pipe is used for venting; he does not know whether the air pipe of the two traps, which served the bath-tub and lavatory, passes to the roof open and undiminished in size, or not; he does not know whether the drain pipe he put in the stable has a trap in it, or whether it enters into an old akron pipe.

The work performed by him is in gross violation of the city ordinances. Still he is not responsible, because his workmen did the job. He knew when he commenced that job of work that Mr. Landers would have to inspect his own work, and also that performed by Mr. Keniley. Yet he knew that the law of this Commonwealth strictly forbids any inspector from inspecting the work performed by him. If he had wanted to do his whole duty as a city official, he would have at once notified Mrs. Whitten that, inasmuch as the work had been started by Mr. Landers, it must be completed by him, or by some other plumber.

I think it hardly necessary to refer to the testimony of Mr. Keniley's star witness, Mr. Weeden, inasmuch as Mr. Keniley himself says that his testimony is not correct. But I should think that a man like Mr. Weeden one of the largest dealers in plumbing supplies in Boston, would be ashamed to come before this intelligent Board and give the testimony he did at this hearing. He said that he put that plumbing into that house to sell it; that he did not know anything about our city ordinances when it was put in, and he did not care; that he knew law enough to know that no permit was necessary when plumbing was not to be connected with water or cess-pool, and that the plumbing work done by Mr. Landers was simply an exhibit of plumbing for the purpose of selling the house. Yet with all Mr. Weeden's knowledge of law, he evidently cared no more for the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts than he did for our city ordinances, for Chapter 477 of the Acts of 1893, provides that "No plumbing work shall be done, except in the case of repairs of leaks, without a permit being first issued therefor upon such terms and conditions as the city and town shall provide." And said Chapter that provides that "Any person violating any provision of this Act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be subject to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars for each and every violation thereof."

Mr. McAnarney, however, maintains that work performed by Mr. Keniley in violation of the city ordinances as a plumber, should not be considered by this Board on the question of his competency as an inspector, but I ask you, gentlemen what better proof can you have of the incompetency of a city official when it is shown that he deliberately and wilfully violate the very law that he was appointed to enforce.

The next charge is that of the collection of money wrongfully from the city, and to this charge I have heard no proper or adequate defence.

PLAN FOR COTTAGE HOME.

Neat and Cozy and Within the Means of Everybody.

[Copyright, 1899, by George Palliser, 32 Park place, New York.]

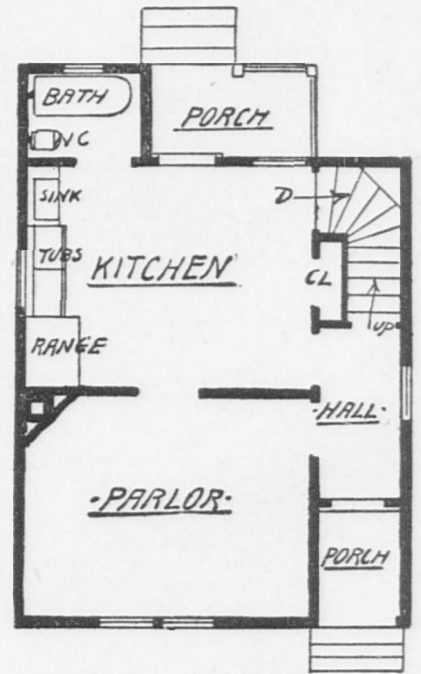

The poor, hardworking man who builds himself a small home is doing far more for the good of his country than the millionaire, who, as a rule, simply hoards his money. Every man who builds a home, no matter if it is of only two rooms and of the most inexpensive kind, is setting an example that will work for good. By the self denial he and his family must practice to accomplish this end he is rendering himself and them a service that will not only better their condition at once, but will lead to higher aspirations and to successes they have scarcely dreamed of.

Every honest man who has the courage of his convictions can own a home. To do so is easy if the start is right. Do not falter or fall by the wayside. First select a locality properly situated for growth and betterment. See that it is not too far from your work, that transportation facilities are what are required for getting to and from business and that the community is a good one, where property is carefully restricted and whatever improvements are made are permanent. Look carefully to the grades of the streets, try to get on a finished street, always select sandy or gravelly soil to build on, and be sure you are not in a swamp. And remember there are swamps not only in low ground, but often on high ground as well. Be sure of your drainage. If no sewer is in the street, you will have a cesspool, which is the worst neighbor you can cultivate on a small plot and fully as dangerous as a powder magazine if not constructed in congenial soil. Thousands of lives are yearly sacrificed to careless drainage. The demon of pestilence is continually stalking around, searching for prey—women, children, the weak and the ailing, whose constant intercourse with bad sanitary conditions makes them easy marks for chills, scarlet fever, diphtheria and like diseases. Look diligently into the health of any neighborhood you are to live in, for health must be the first consideration.

Small homes are excellent investments for all—for town and village, for city and country. Small homes make good citizens, patriotic men and women, and if the fathers and mothers are patriotic the country is safe. Then, when you build, get a satisfactory location. Grow up with it, work for its advancement, fight for it if necessary, but never let it get into a rut. Keep the ball rolling, and you will be helping yourself and your neighbor as well.

The cottage home here illustrated is a winner for the man of small means and is such a plan as would naturally receive first premium in any competition. Study it closely, go over the possibilities of life in it at $8 or $9 a week for an income, with all lost time deducted, and see how you can get down to practical life at this rate and at the same time grow to be a better and more useful man.

Care of Waxed Floors.

Water is the worst thing that can be applied to any waxed surface. A damp cloth may be used. All spatters or drops of any liquid should be wiped up immediately. When spots come, as come they will, rub them hard with a piece of thick felt under the foot or with a flannel moistened in turpentine. Remember to keep the surface well polished. Then dirt cannot stick and substances spilled cannot reach the wood and make spots. With all these precautions the floors which are constantly used will need an entire renovation occasionally. They should then be rubbed all over with steel wool till every spot is scraped out. If the wood has grown dark, it may be whitened by a wash of oxalic acid. Rub perfectly smooth and clean before applying the wax or other encaustic.—American Kitchen Magazine.

Too Much Kicking.

New York, June 17.—The New Yorks forfeited a game to the Brooklyn in the second inning, when the Brooklyn were at the bat, the score at the time being 5 to 1 in favor of Brooklyn. The kicking began in the first inning. The Brooklyn also made one or two protests, but they did not kick as hard as the New Yorks did. The forfeiture places the New York club liable to a $1000 fine, which must be paid to the Brooklyn club. While the work of Umpire Burns was very bad, the action of the New York players was not endorsed by the crowd.

Aldermen in a Wrangle.

Gloucester, Mass., June 17.—The board of aldermen indulged in a warm discussion last night, when, in the course of transacting business, it was incidentally remarked that City Marshal Karcher was not enforcing the liquor law. The board divided evenly on the merits of the question, and, after Alderman Donahue had stated that he could point out 300 saloons in town doing business, a motion to adjourn was defeated. Then four aldermen left the room, and the other four, necessarily, had to adjourn for lack of a quorum.

Storer Presented.

Madrid, June 17.—The newly appointed minister to Spain, Bellamy Storer, was received in formal audience by the queen regent yesterday. There was no speech. Only a few cordial phrases were exchanged. Premier Silveira presented Mr. Storer to her majesty. There were no crowds about the palace. Mr. Storer's reception being unannounced in order to avoid disagreeable incidents. The queen regent was very amiable and complimentary toward Mr. Storer, and inquired cordially concerning the health of President McKinley.

Previous Arrangement For Surrender Under Certain Conditions.

Arraigned at Manchester and Held For Appearance on Charge of Embezzlement.

Portsmouth, N. H., June 20.—Harry Hough, the absconding cashier of the Cocheo National bank of Dover, was quietly placed under arrest at Boston yesterday by United States Marshal Nute.

Hough was arrested at the 1:15 o'clock train from Providence arrived at Boston. He carried a dress-suit case. Mr. Nute was there and greeted him with the words: "Hough, you are my prisoner," and Hough merely said, "all right." He was perfectly self-possessed.

Marshall Nute lost no time in getting his prisoner out of Boston. Hough was driven to the north union station and brought to Portsmouth.

He was at once taken before United States Commissioner Kelley, where he was arraigned, charged with the embezzlement of $10,000 from the Cocheo National bank on June 3, 1899. The prisoner, who was accompanied by John Kivel, of Dover, as counsel, entered a "plea of not guilty" and was ordered to furnish $10,000 bail for his appearance before the federal grand jury.

The prisoner appeared to be very cool and collected, and after his arraignment went to the hotel with the officer, where he ate a hearty supper. He conversed with several of his old acquaintances and seemed to be perfectly at ease.

The return of Hough and the surrendering of himself to the authorities was voluntary. He telegraphed United States Marshal Nute to meet him at the Park square station, Boston, at 1 p. m., and Nute was there on time. So was Hough, and they started for this city. The marshal did not place Hough under arrest until the train passed Seabrook, N. H., although Hough says he considered himself under arrest from the time he met the marshal. Hough won't say where he was when he telegraphed, but admits he wasn't a great ways from Boston.

Hough at Home.
Dover, N. H., June 20.—The evening train from Portsmouth brought as a passenger last night Harry Hough, the former assistant cashier of the Cocheo National bank and treasurer of the Cocheo Savings bank of this city, in the custody of United States Marshal Nute, and accompanied by his counsel, John H. Kivel, and a small army of newspaper men.

Marshall Nute and his prisoner were driven to Hough's home. He will remain in the marshal's custody until bail is secured, but his counsel expresses the opinion that the required bonds can easily be secured.

Sheriff Hayes has in his possession a warrant for the arrest of Hough on the charge of embezzlement from the Cocheo Savings bank, and he will be rearrested immediately upon his release by the United States authorities. The sheriff states that several other warrants, charging larceny, are likely to be served upon Hough in connection with the bank's affairs.

Hough was feeling in excellent spirits and evidently felt greatly relieved at being once more at home. He refused to talk concerning the bank's affairs, except that the shortage was nowhere as large as had been reported.

He talked freely in regard to his movements since the bank's condition became generally known. He said he left Dover on the 6:30 a. m. train on Sunday, June 4, and went to Boston. He said he sat three seats behind O. S. Brown, who had stated that Hough was not on the train. Hough said he was reading a paper, while Mr. Brown was reading a book. On his arrival in Boston he went to the Park square station, where he met Albert Locke, who formerly lived in Dover, and had some conversation with him. He then left for Baltimore, where he remained about a week.

Hough went from Baltimore to Wilmington, Del., where he spent a few days, and then left for New York. He was in the latter city last Saturday, and says he stood on the corner of Broadway and Sixth avenue for an hour talking with a policeman.

He received word Sunday from his counsel to return home, and United States Marshal Nute left here yesterday to meet him upon his arrival in Boston.

When asked if it was ever his intention to leave the country, Hough replied in the negative. He said that he was under a great mental strain when he left Dover, and went away simply to obtain the relief and a much needed rest.

Before leaving Dover he had engaged John H. Kivel as his attorney, and the latter, meantime, had been in communication with United States District Attorney Hamblett of Nashua and United States Marshal Nute in the hope that some arrangements could be made for Hough's return.

FOR THE WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP.
Jeffries and Sharkey Agree to a Contest to Come Off in October.

New York, June 20.—Articles of agreement were signed yesterday insuring a bout between Jeffries and Sharkey for the championship of the world under the following conditions:

The contest shall be 25 rounds for a decision, and shall take place on Oct. 23, 1899. The principals agree to accept the best inducements offered before midnight, Sept. 1, 1899, and, if held in New York state, the contest is to be strictly under the interpretation of the Horton law. The contest shall be governed by the Marquis of Queensberry rules, and the men shall be permitted to fight with one hand free, each protecting himself in the breakaways. They are to part at the command of the referee. Soft bandages are to be allowed, but they must be satisfactory to the referee and the opposing principal.

According to the articles, the gloves shall not weigh less than five ounces, and each principal shall be allowed to furnish his own gloves, which are to be submitted to the referee for his approval at 3 o'clock on the day of the contest and remain in his custody until the men enter the ring.

The official timekeeper of the club must be satisfactory to both principals and each contestant will be allowed one timekeeper. George Siler was agreed upon as referee. The winner is to take the entire purse.

The agreement holds that if either man suffers a defeat between now and the time of the acceptance of the purse the match will be declared off. After the club articles are signed neither man shall engage in any contest except with his sparring partner, or forfeit the amount he has deposited.

On the signing of these articles, each man shall post $2500 with Al Smith, who shall be final stakeholder, said forfeit to stand as a guarantee of good faith and to be paid to the contestant who has lived up to this agreement. The club securing the contest shall post $1000 in all, which is to be forfeited in case of the failure to live up to these and the club's articles. This forfeit of $5000 will be divided between the club and the principal who has lived up to the agreement.

A SHOWER OF MISSILES

Damaged a Cleveland Car and Seriously Injured a Motorman.

City Council Considers the Railway Strike.

Demand For Absolute Recognition of the Union Evidently Abandoned.

Cleveland, June 20.—At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon another serious riot broke out in a new quarter. The company began yesterday the operation of two new lines—those on Scoville and Central avenues. The cars were protected by policemen. Just before 4 o'clock two Scoville avenue cars approached the crossing of the Pennsylvania railroad. There they were met by a mob of more than 2000 men and women.

One of the cars was taken across the railroad safely, but the other was held up by the mob. A perfect shower of bricks and stones fell about the car and crashed against the vestibule at the front end, behind which the motorman was concealed. Women threw bricks and handed them to the men who were in the front of the crowd. The windows of the cars had been lowered and the bricks crashed against the seats and fell upon the floor of the car. The conductor escaped injury, but Motorman McGrew was struck on the head with a brick and rendered unconscious. He was taken to a hospital. The patrolman on the car was also hit with a brick, but was not seriously hurt. A call was made for the police, but when a detachment of officers arrived the mob had dispersed, and no arrests were made.

The demonstration planned last night to influence the action of the city council, with respect to the ordinance prohibiting employment of motormen who have not had 10 days' experience in operating cars in this city, consisted of a parade in the downtown streets with torchlights, drum corps and brass bands. The march was demonstrative, but not disorderly.

At the meeting of the council there was a scene of great disorder. The gallery and lobby of the chamber were packed by a large crowd, and every speaker who was inclined to give the railroad company a fair show was hissed. This continued until Mayor Farley made a speech, in which he declared that he did not propose to submit to intimidation.

The ordinance fixing the requirements for motormen was passed under a suspension of the rules. A resolution was also adopted requesting the corporation counsel to report whether the franchise of the company could not be forfeited if it failed to run cars on all its lines. A special meeting of the council is to be held tomorrow, and in the meantime a committee will seek to bring about a settlement of the strike.

The leader of the strike said last night that about the only question at issue now was whether all the old men would be reinstated if the strike was declared off. The demand for the absolute recognition of the union appears to have been abandoned. President Everett says he cannot agree to take back all the men, for some of them will never be reinstated.

Increases Refused.
Buffalo, June 20.—The committee appointed by the striking freight handlers to wait upon the different railroad companies and demand 15 cents an hour for regular work and 20 cents for overtime, called upon the different superintendents yesterday and in every case was met by an absolute refusal to grant the increase. The committee reported to a turbulent meeting of the strikers last night. Many men present advocated going back to work under the old terms, but on a vote being taken there was a big majority in favor of continuing the strike.

Building Trades Tied Up.
Scranton, Pa., June 20.—A general tie-up of all building trades here was ordered by the building trades council yesterday, when no overtures were forthcoming from the master builders for an adjustment of the trouble with the carpenters, plasterers and tinsners, who are now entering upon the third week of their strike for eight hours and increased pay. There were about 700 men on strike. The tie-up throws 2000 more idle.

Methodists Raise Objections.
New York, June 20.—The Methodist preachers' meeting yesterday adopted a resolution censure Chief of Police Devery for his "apparent illegal and scandalous conduct" in failing to stop the Jeffries-Fitzsimmons fight, and calling on the proper authorities to investigate the chief's official relation to the affair. Referring to the fight itself the resolutions urge the mayor and governor to interpose hereafter, if necessary, their executive authority to prevent "a recurrence of such flagrant and barbarous infraction of law and order and such a monstrous insult to our common Christianity and civilization."

To Summer at Manchester.
Washington, June 20.—Duke d'Arcos has decided on Manchester, Mass., as the place to spend his summer vacation, and accompanied by Duchess d'Arcos and the staff of the Spanish legation he will go there the latter part of this month. The legation here will be closed during his absence, all business with the state department being transacted by mail. No move has been made on either side thus far for new treaties.

Drift of Opinion.

"The man who contents himself with trying to obstruct the wheels of progress must not complain if they run over him.—Beverly Times.

"Nearly 15 years' imprisonment for stealing little Marion Clark is likely to put a check on the business of kidnapping children in New York.
It ought to.—Nashua Telegraph.

"Are cities getting poorer or is patriotism getting to be a lost art, that municipal governments are becoming so adverse in some cities to spending money for Fourth of July celebrations?
—Brocton Enterprise.

"No doubt, with the teachers as with the pupils, the break which graduation means in the school association is felt; but with the former
this is recognized as an inevitable accompaniment of their profession, and they grow accustomed to it. They never lose interest in the young people whose intellectual guidance has been for a time in their charge; nor is it in the nature of things for the pupil to have other than a kindly remembrance
for the instructor who has smoothed
the rough places on the road to knowledge.—Brocton Times.

"Congressman Bland died at his home in Missouri last week. His defeat for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1896 was a heavy blow,
and he never appeared afterward in
the full possession of his old spirit.
Whatever may be thought of the monetary policy of which he was the earliest exponent, it must be said of the man himself that he was thoroughly, honestly, sincerely in earnest. No man in Congress ever sustained a more unswerving public and private reputation. He was a rugged, earnest, honest man.—Milford Journal.

AGAINST REFUND.

Only Ten Councilmen Vote
for It.

An Improvement Loan
Order for $34,500.

The City Council held a Midnight Session.

The City Council of 1899 broke its record Monday evening for long sessions. It met at 7.35 and did not adjourn until one minute before midnight. All the 23 members were present, showing faithful attention of our Councilmen to the business of the city. The refunding order was the most important measure under discussion and many of the members expressed their views. An important loan order including many improvements was passed. The business is reported at length.

An invitation was received to attend
the gold medal exercises of the Adams
Academy next Monday at 11 A. M.
Placed on file.

Mayor Keith forwarded a communication from the Chief Engineer, which set forth the urgent need of an additional hook and ladder truck for the Central fire station the cost of which would be about $2,200. To Committee on Fire Department.

PETITIONS.

A number of petitions for minor licenses were received and laid on the table until later when an order was offered granting most of them.

The trustees of the Atlantic Memorial church petitioned to have its sidewalk assessment proportioned.
Laid on the table until later when it was granted.

A Loring petitioned for a license for a merry-go-round. Laid on the table until later in the evening when Councilman Nicol introduced an order in favor. It met with some opposition and was referred to the Committee on Licenses.

A petition for the rebuilding of the culvert on North street was referred to the Committee on Streets.

A petition from Ward Six asking favorable consideration of the refunding order was received and placed on file.

A petition was received asking that Clark avenue between Franklin street and Faxon park be repaved. To Committee on Streets.

A petition asking that the name of Canal street between Hancock and Washington streets be changed to Revere road was received and referred to the Committee on Streets.

A petition that the police ordinance
be changed so as to provide for eleven permanent men, an increase of one,
was referred to the joint Committee on Police and Ordinances.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported leave to withdraw on the petition to take the triangular plot at the junction of Liberty, Penn and Quincy streets for a public park.

Upon motion of Councilman Clark
the report was laid on the table.

The Committee on Printing reported ought not to pass on the order to print
the Assessors' valuation for 1899 and that the subject matter be referred to the next Council. Accepted.

The Committee on Licenses reported upon a number of minor licenses
which were adopted.

They reported leave to withdraw on the petition of H. H. Miles, C. H.
Bartlett and Hattie Leonard. Accepted.

The Committee on Ordinances reported on the orders to amend the sewer ordinance relative to house connections with the common sewers and on the new plumbing ordinance. The former took its second reading, and the latter was laid on the table.

The Committee on Streets reported
an order granting the New England Telephone company a location for two poles on Cottage street.

After questions by Councilman
Bryant it was ordered to a second reading.

PUBLIC HEARINGS.

A public hearing was held on the acceptance of Webster street.
Herbert F. Carter said this was now the main street to the beach. That the city should lay it out as it would accommodate many people.

Mr. Ware also spoke in favor of the street. There were now fourteen houses on it, nearly all of which were occupied.

There was no opposition and the hearing closed; the order was recommended.

Henry S. Weymouth spoke in favor of laying out Glover avenue. He had lived there several years and the prospects were there would be much more building there. He hoped Council would accept it.

No opposition. Hearing closed and
order recommended.

On the acceptance of Madison street Herbert D. Gearwar said one side was built upon and nearly half the other side was. It was a much used thoroughfare as a continuation of Botolph street. In answer to questions he said he was willing to be assessed for land

to be taken, and thought others were.

Samuel D. Ramsdell also favored the acceptance of the street. It was a short street and much used. He had offered to give five feet of his land.

No opposition. Hearing closed and
order recommended.

No one appeared for or against the order for the acceptance of Avon way,
and the hearing was closed and the
order recommended.

SEA STREET TURNOUT.

The Committee on Streets reported
an order granting the street railway
location for a turnout on Sea street.

Councilman Hill asked if this was located in the widest part of the street.
Councilman Swithin did not know.
The poles would be put on private
land.

Councilman Pinkham: The switch proposed is what is known as the diamond and would be way to the south side. The Committee were satisfied that it should be granted to accommodate people at Houghs Neck.

Councilman Bryant moved to amend
so that it should read that the whole width of the street should be paved at that point.

Councilman Swithin opposed. This little piece of paving would be bad for light carriages and bicycles.

Councilman Pinkham said there was some doubt what conditions could be imposed. The law under which the street railways are now governed gives the City Council no authority to impose conditions except on "original" locations. The Committee was in doubt as to the extent of "original,"
and on the Washington street petition
had asked an opinion of the City Solicitor. Sea street will soon be widened and the location would be only temporary. Therefore there should be no deadlock.

Councilman Bryant said the location
would leave but eight and one-half feet
on the side and if not paved teams
would be bumping against the pavings.
It would also be better for bicycles if paved.

Councilman Hill thought it would be better to move the turnout to a wider part of the street.

Councilman Badger agreed that it was a dangerous place but he thought if the street railway was approached rightly they would fix it right.

Councilman Swithin: Unless they get this turnout the people at Houghs Neck can not be accommodated as to trains. If this was delayed it would make a great inconvenience.

The order was laid on the table.
Councilman Bryant having withdrawn
his amendment.

OTHER REPORTS.

The Committee on Streets reported
location for electric light poles on Cottage street and Sea street, and the order was given one reading.

The same committee reported an order granting the Quincy & Boston street railway the desired connection with its car house in City Square.

Councilman Pinkham desired to hear from the City Solicitor as to conditions
before advancing the order.

Councilman Bryant thought whole street at the point should be paved and upon his motion the order was laid on the table.

Two applications for State aid were granted.

REFUND ORDER.

The order for the refund of $40,000
of the maturing municipal debt of $82,000 came up for adoption.

Councilman Bryant spoke at length in favor. He did not suppose at this stage that any vote could be changed. There was never an order which so affected
the property holders.

Some Councilmen had been in opposition from the start, but some influence had caused others to change
over since voting to ask the Legislature for permission. The tendency of cities was to keep the tax rate below a certain limit. As the tax rate is increased, property decreases. It was immaterial to many Councilmen what the rate is. It was silly nonsense to assert that the administration would get the credit. It was the Council that shaped the financial policy. Refunding would not injure the credit of the city. It would not lead to extravagance, as the debt limit would be decreased. Not to refund would be an injury to Quincy. There should be no politics in it.

Councilman Pinkham should not vote "No" for politics, but for the good of the city. He realized he was on the unpopular side. He claimed the city was not paying this year much more than it should. Since becoming a city, $767,000 had been borrowed and this was the tenth year of the city.
One-tenth was $76,700, and only $82-
000 matured. To refund will cost $7-700 in interest. It doesn't seem as if we can afford it. Our wants are numerous. It was not fair to saddle this year's debt on the future.

Councilman Jameson said the question had given him considerable anxiety. His first opinion was that it was unwise. He had endeavored to ascertain the views of his constituents and confessed some surprise that many had signed the petition in favor, but

For State Treasurer.

The name of Col. Charles H. Porter of Quincy has been mentioned, says
the Journal, in connection with the nomination for State Treasurer on the Republican ticket. Mr. Porter is a well known business man, having an office in Boston; he is a member of the Civil Service Commission of Massachusetts, and has been Mayor of Quincy.

There are three candidates already in the field. They are ex-Senator Edward S. Bradford of Springfield, Representative John J. Whipple of Brocton, and William E. Neal of Lynn, an employee of the Massachusetts National Bank of Boston.

It is a great many years since Quincy
has had a State officer, but ex-Mayor Porter has been honored by appointments upon commissions, and has proved himself worthy to be advanced.
All his life he has been connected with financial institutions and is qual-

AGAINST REFUND.

realized that those outside the Council knew but little of the finances of the city. He had been threatened with annihilation should he oppose the order, but he should do as his conscience dictated, and vote against the order. No politics should enter.
Didn't believe high tax rate would be a serious injury to city. Improvements came with a high tax. The city ought to be conducted on strictly business principles.

Councilman Swithin favored refund-
ing. Our taxes were unnecessarily high. Property is not worth so much where the tax rate is high, and borrowers had to pay a higher rate of interest. Some say taxes will be high but two or three years, but unless we refund the prospects are for an 18
tax rate for several years.

Councilman Poland opposed refund-
ing. It really meant higher tax rates in the end. People outside the Council
don't know much about city finances.
For this reason the petitioners don't cut much ice. The average increase in valuation had been half a million, and he expected as much or more this year. This would help to meet the increased maturing debt. The municipal debt was not the only city debt as many suppose; water, sewers, etc., were outside. We should have economized on the annual budget. We should consider the future in voting on the refunding order. It was better to pay off debt and economize on every corner.

Councilman Bryant said the petitioners stood high. Such firms as Mellen & Co. had held a director's meeting and voted to sign the petition.
To defeat the order would be a most serious mistake which could never be rectified. He defied the Wollaston Councilman to name ten large taxpayers opposed to refunding, but some would vote against it for personal reasons.

Councilman Jameson said he had no personal reason, and wondered what personal reasons any Councilman could have.

Councilman Bryant explained that he meant personal opinion.

Councilman Jameson said Wollas-ton petition did not represent over one-third the taxes.

Councilman Hill said not one in Atlantic had asked him to vote for refunding. He failed to discover any interest in that direction.

Councilman Badger thought the opponents were not on the unpopular side. It was unpopular to put a second mortgage on ones house. The way to reduce taxes is to economize.

Councilman Bryant asked the Councilman if he knew of any item in the budget which could have been reduced.

Councilman Badger admitted he did not.

Councilman Alden admitted he had changed his mind, and should vote no.
So many improvements were necessary
that we should meet the maturing debt. When paid we could have more improvements. To refund would benefit but a few. It made but little difference to the small taxpayers, but would allow large land owners to hold their land for a rise.

The order was then put upon adoption and was rejected by a vote of 10 to 12 as follows:

YEAS. NAYS.

Bryant, Alden,
Clark, Badger,
Dugan, Blanchard,
Hogan, Freeman,
Johnson, Hill,
Keith, Hultman,
McLennan, Jameson,
Nicol, Nash,
Packard, Newcomb,
Swithin—10. Owens,

MANY IMPROVEMENTS.

The Committee on Finance reported
amendments striking out the payment clauses in the following orders: $11-000 for pavement of Hancock street;
laying out Federal and Goldard avenues; $8,000 for permanent sidewalks; $1,500 for defining the lines of Willard street; $500 for regrading
Trafford street; $3,000 for completing Billings road; $300 for finishing Payne street; $1,500 for rebuilding a part of Beale street; and $5 for regrading Nightingale avenue. The amendments were adopted, the orders took their second readings and were laid on the table.

GRADE CROSSINGS.

The Committee on Finance reported
a substitute order on the matter of abolishing grade crossings, which authorized the Mayor to consult with the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. as to the best method of abolishing the grade crossings, to employ an engineer to make plans and estimates and appropriating $500 for the same. Substitute order adopted and after taking its second reading was laid on the table.

The same committee reported ought to pass on the order for $4,400 for street watering. Rules suspended and order passed

The same committee reported an amendment to the order for paving
Quarry street, making the amount $5,000, also inserting edgestones and striking out the method of payment.

Councilman Swithin opposed reduction. This was one of the most dangerous streets in the city. Paving was the only thing that will hold.
The Committee on Streets were unanimous on the amount.

Councilman Hill asked if the street
was built upon and many people lived there.

Councilman Swithin said no, but the people there pay a large tax. It was a business street.

Councilman Bryant felt it might be a question whether paving was the best thing to do. If 850 feet are paved this year it will give it a trial.

Councilman Swithin did not think the ice would lay on the paving. No ford road would stand. The street had more heavy traffic than any street in Quincy.

Councilman Badger thought the people there were entitled to some consideration, but we should go slow
before we expend $10,000 in an experiment; $5,000 would give the paving a trial.

Councilman Hogan did not believe $5,000 should be expended for an experiment. We should find out that kind of a street we want.

Commissioner Cavanagh, in answer to a question, said he did not think there was anything out of the way in paving. In his opinion that was the only thing to do.

Councilman Pinkham: All the quarry owners agree that teams would hold on the pavings. This was the only possible thing to do. He regretted to expend $10,000 but something has got to be done.

Councilman Freeman thought it was best to expend but $5,000 this year.

Councilman Clark was against the reduction. There was no grade on Quarry street that was dangerous.
There was no trouble passing there. It is the only thing that will stand.

The question was divided and the amendment adding edgestones was adopted.

Councilman Poland favored the $5-000 amendment.

Amendment to change the amount to $5,000 lost by a vote of 10 to 12.

Councilman Bryant asked the rules
be suspended.

Councilman Pinkham said the object
of that was to kill the order.

Councilman Bryant objected to that way of putting it. He wanted the matter debated and settled.

Councilman Swithin did not think
this order should be singled out.
The motion to suspend the rules
was lost by a vote of 10 to 12.

The order was then laid on the table
with the other orders.

The Committee on Finance reported
a substitute order for $32,000 to cover
the amounts in the above orders.

After some minor debate as to the method of handling this order it was adopted and afterward laid on the table.

Upon motion of Councilman Bryant
the following orders were taken from the table and passed under suspension of the rules: $8,000 for permanent sidewalks; accepting Goldard and Federal avenues; $300 for finishing Payne street; $11,000 for paving a part of Hancock street; $500 for regrading Nightingale avenue; $1,500 for rebuilding a part of Beale street; $3,000 for completing Billings road, Councilman
Nicol voting no; $500 for regrading Trafford street; $1,500 for defining the lines of Willard street; $2,000 for sidewalk on Hancock street.

The order for $10,000 for paving a part of Quarry street was taken from
the table.

After some debate in which the arguments made earlier in the evening were reiterated, the amount was changed to $7,500 which was passed to be ordained, Messrs. Badger, Blanchard, Jameson and Poland voting
no.

The substitute order for borrowing $34,500 for the above orders was taken from the table and after the necessary amendments were made, the rules were suspended and the order passed.

Councilman Newcomb of the Committee on Ordinances requested further time on the City Engineer ordinance which was granted.

MOTIONS, ORDERS, ETC.

Councilman Swithin offered a petition that the street railway be granted a new location on Alleyne street. To Committee on Streets.

Voted that when the meeting adjourn it be until Monday, June 26.

Adjourned at 11.50.

PRESENTED DIPLOMAS.

Sweet Girl Graduates of Mt. Holyoke Honored by President McKinley.

Latter Receives Degree of Doctor of Civil Laws.

Makes a Brief Address in Which He Praises
Our Educational Institutions.

Holyoke, Mass., June 21.—Refreshed
by the mountain outing of Monday,
President McKinley started early yesterday for the commencement exercises at Mt. Holyoke college, the central feature of his whole visit to the Connecticut valley. But the president was not the only chief executive in the party. Governor Wolcott was also in the party, to join with the nation's chief in taking a prominent part in Mt. Holyoke's commencement. The meeting took place informally, like any greeting between gentlemen of more ordinary walks in life.

It was what might be appropriately called honor day at Mt. Holyoke college, for it was honored by the presence of its commencement exercises of the president, and it in turn honored him
by conferring upon him the degree of doctor of civil laws. This is the first time that such a degree has ever been conferred upon a man by Mt. Holyoke, and the president was forced to deviate
from the determination which he had expressed not to make an address of any kind during his eastern trip, and to thank the faculty and the trustees for
the honor they did him.

The president's day Monday was given up entirely to the attendance at the graduating exercises at Mt. Holyoke.
The entire party left the White house
at 9:30 on the electric car on which the president has been making the short journeys. At the station Governor Wolcott and wife, Adjutant General Dalton
and Colonel Morgan were taken aboard.
South Hadley was reached at 10 o'clock and the visitors immediately entered the chapel where the exercises were to be held. The seniors followed. President McKinley and the other gentlemen were seated on the platform, while the ladies occupied reserved seats on the floor.
There was special music by the college choir and then Rev. Dr. Judson Smith gave an interesting address on "A plea for the humanities." He then introduced Governor Wolcott, who made an address.

Rev. Dr. Smith then announced that the president would present the diplomas to the seniors. The president descended the stairs in company with Mrs. Mead, president of the college, who introduced the members of the class as they filed
and received their parchments.

Immediately afterwards Dr. J. L. R.
Trask of the trustees presented the president with the degree of doctor of civil laws. The president, in response to the hearty outburst of applause which followed the announcement, made a brief speech. What he said was as follows:
"I cannot refrain from making acknowledgment in this presence of the very distinguished honor which the board of trustees and officers of this institution have been pleased to confer upon me. I want to assure the young ladies of the graduating class that I am both delighted and honored to be a member of the class of '99. Mt. Holyoke has been and is first in many things, but in nothing more than in educational institutions.

"I count myself most fortunate to have been privileged yesterday to look upon the faces of the graduates of this college, that splendid institution of learning
for the education of women, and I count myself most fortunate today to look upon the faces of the graduates of this gloriously historic institution, that has done so much for the exaltation of woman and whose influence is felt not only in Massachusetts but in every part of our common country.

"Mt. Holyoke is more than 60 years old today, and the influence of this institution in moulding and shaping the citizens of the nation can never be told.
I am glad that we are demonstrating in the United States today that the boy shall have no more advantages than the girl, and Mt. Holyoke and Smith and the half-dozen other institutions of the land
are demonstrating that fact.

"An educated womanhood is an open school for citizenship every day of the year, and the home is the training school for the mother, the soldier and the statesman. I wish for this graduating class all good things and I want you to be assured that all good things wait upon
a pure and noble woman."

At 3 o'clock a reception was held on a platform erected in front of the local church, at which the president shook hands with 2400 people and then returned to the White house at Holyoke. Governor and Mrs. Wolcott returned to Boston immediately after the chapel exercises.

Miss Grace McKinley, the president's niece, and a member of the graduating class, spent her time after she received her degree at the hands of "Uncle William" in entertaining Mrs. McKinley.
The evening was spent very quietly at the White house, and both the principal guests retired early. Last night was the last that will be spent in Holyoke, as at 10:15 miles of Springfield, and the balance of the day will be spent in receptions and a parade in Springfield.
The president's special train will leave Springfield for Adams at 4 o'clock, and the following days, until June 23, will be spent at the residence of W. B. Plunkett.

The president will leave for Washington
the night of the 25th.

rived here last night and accepted bonds

nished by his mother-in-law, Mrs.
Almira J. Merrill, who qualified for $10,000. Mrs. Sarah J. Hough, mother of the treasurer and assistant cashier, qualified for $5000, while Freeman N.
Davis qualified for $2500. Marshal Nute then left the house. Sheriff Hayes was out of town, and did not arrest Hough on the savings bank warrant, as had been predicted.

Four Were Discharged.

Gloucester, Mass., June 21.—The cases against the striking quarrymen of the Rockport Granite company for an alleged attempt to blow up the house of John Carlson of Rockport, the non-union workman who kept a boarding house
where other non-union workmen boarded, at 1 a. m. on the morning of June 7,
were again heard before Judge Taft yesterday. John Erickson and Matti Sorel were bound over to the grand jury in $2000 bonds each. The other four men were discharged.

Police Looking for Kidnappers.

Boston, June 21.—The Boston
police force on the lookout for Moses Fowler Chase, who was abducted from Detroit last Sunday night. It is said that he may be held in this city, and inspectors and officers are keeping a sharp eye out for any day that may lead to the

THE CLEVELAND RIOTS.

More Street Cars Smashed by Mobs
on the Public Streets.

Police Appear to Be Unable to Cope With Disturbers.

Non-Union Men Roughly Handled, Two Being Seriously Hurt.

Cleveland, June 21.—This city yesterday had another series of strike riots.
One man was shot in the leg, another was badly injured by a brick thrown at him and several others were attacked by mobs of the locked out street car men.

At noon a crowd boarded a Wade avenue car and beat the non-union motorman into insensibility. The conductor fled. Another car was stoned.
Many women were on board and shrieked with terror as the stones crashed through the windows. One woman fainted.

The passengers escaped as best they could when the stones began to fly, but the conductor and motorman were struck repeatedly. The latter drew a revolver and fired three times into the crowd. He then put on all speed and ran his car out of the crowd's reach.
George Berg, Jr., a striking conductor, was hit in the leg by a bullet, which was extracted.

In the afternoon, at the corner of Central and Wilson avenues, 2000 persons obstructed the passage of two crosstown cars. Bricks and stones were thrown and the windows of the cars were broken. Non-union Motorman Charles Jones was hit with a brick and badly injured. Later a car on the South Side line was attacked near the suburb of Brighton. The motorman and conductor were chased into the woods by a mob. No arrests were made in either case.

The people of the South Side made no attempt to interfere with the running of cars on the Clark avenue line so long as there was police protection, but last evening there was a determined effort to get at the non-union men who were taken to the Holden avenue barns yesterday afternoon to operate the cars
from that end of the line.

Soon after dark 5000 persons assembled.
There were 20 policemen at the barns,
but they were powerless to handle the mob. Fences were torn down, and the crowd broke into the barns. The non-union men escaped to the attic, and the rioters contented themselves with smashing a few cars. Several wagon loads of police then arrived, and the mob dispersed. At another place on the South Side switches were torn up and the tracks were blocked.

Four hundred employees of the Cleveland Foundry company struck yesterday because the company refused to discharge a foreman who had ridden on a big consolidated car.

Akron Cars Tied Up.

Akron, O., June 21.—Not a car is running on the Akron and Cuyahoga rapid transit line. Some time ago there was a disagreement as to wages and the matter was referred to arbitration. The report, which was submitted Monday night, included a clause providing for arbitration in the future, and this the company refused to accept. The men hold a meeting and decided to strike.
No effort was made to run cars.

Indicted on Bribery Charge.

Chicago, June 21.—The grand jury
has voted indictments against Daniel Coughlin, William Armstrong, and Coughlin was indicted on the charge of offering a bribe to Juror Taylor. He was also indicted with William Armstrong, his bartender, on a charge of conspiracy to do an act prejudicial to the administration of public justice.
The punishment prescribed by law upon conviction of offering a bribe is a fine not exceeding $5000. The punishment which may be inflicted upon conviction of conspiracy, as embodied in the pending case, is a term not to exceed five years in the penitentiary, or a fine not to exceed $2000, or both.

New South Wales For Federation.

Sydney, N. S. W., June 21.—The referendum on the federation question has resulted in 11,945 votes in favor of, as against 10,551 opposed, in the city of Sydney. In the suburbs the voting was 24,453 in favor, and 25,948 opposed, and in the country districts the returns, now practically complete, show 65,997 for federation, as against 44,035 opposed.
The result has been received here with great enthusiasm, and the federation leaders are applauded and eulogized on all hands.

Miss McPherson Pleading Guilty.

New York, June 21.—Hanging her head and apparently overcome by the shame
of her position, Fannie McPherson of Worcester, Mass., who confessed to having stolen $500 worth of clothing and silverware, was arraigned before Magistrate Wentworth yesterday, entered a plea of guilty and was held in $500 for trial. Neither friends nor relatives appeared in court, and the young woman apparently did not expect any.

Almost Ready For Launching.

London, June 21.—The Daily News reports this morning a conversation between one of its representatives and a member of the crew of the Shamrock, Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger for the America's cup. The sailor said she would be launched within a week and in the daytime. Her sail area is 13,000 feet, and the sailor predicted that she would be hailed the "finest yacht ever seen here."

Good Afternoon.

It is regretted by some of the charitable institutions and churches of Quincy that Millionaire Billings was not more closely allied with the native place of his mother, that they might have shared in his generous bequests.
Perhaps, as any balance of the estate,
will be distributed by the executors
for charitable purposes, the City Hospital or Unitarian church may be remembered.

The move of Chief Williams for a new hook and ladder truck is a step in the right direction, for Quincy certainly needs another piece of fire apparatus of this kind. As the chief stated in his communication, the present piece of apparatus has been in use eighteen years and is not strong enough for the long runs to which it is subjected. Then again in case of an alarm from any of the outlying districts, such as Squantum, Atlantic or Houghs Neck, the centre, which is the most thickly settled section of the city is almost at the mercy of flames should a fire happen to break out. It is only a piece of good luck that a serious conflagration has not resulted. It is an old saying that in time of peace
we should prepare for war and while the city has been fortunate in the past there is no knowing how soon the serious want of this piece of apparatus will become manifest. With a new truck at the Central station, and the present truck at West Quincy, the Centre would at all times have protection. Two-thirds of the fire alarms during a year come from the West
Quincy district and with a ladder truck there, a truck at the central station would not have to respond to alarms from that section. Then again
if the central station truck was at Quincy Point, Houghs Neck or Atlantic the West Quincy truck could easily cover the Centre in case of an alarm.

The refund order for $40,000 has been defeated by a decisive vote in the City Council. A majority was counted upon in favor of the movement, but there was apprehension that a two-thirds vote could not be obtained. The movement did not even receive a majority vote. An analysis shows that all the Democrats favored the refunding, while three-fifths of the Republicans opposed. Different localities had different ideas on the subject. All of the South Quincy ward delegation voted yes, while all the Atlantic councilmen were on the negative. The 2 to 1 in favor in the Centre ward was balanced by the 2 to 1 opposed in the Quincy Point ward. Ward Four balanced itself. The two majority therefore came from the Wollaston ward where the vote was 3 to 1 in opposition.

The Ledger is not convinced yet that some of the maturing debt should not be refunded. It has not advocated the measure as a temporary relief, but with the belief that it would be a permanent relief; that it is unnecessary
for the tax rate of Quincy to exceed $18, and that it would not have reached $17 per $1,000 since Quincy became a city had the loans been properly apportioned.

Any attempt to refund even a smaller sum this year would probably be useless although some who opposed the $40,000 said during the pendency of it that they might favor a smaller amount.

Drift of Opinion.

The next man who receives a degree from Smith College, should that institution further bestow such honors

can only be the second one. It was a great break for the President.—Lynn Item.

Those patriots who were so swift to condemn President McKinley's civil service order as a "surrender to the spoilsmen," have not the honesty and decency to admit that they were mistaken, now that they know they were. Civil service reform is not helped by such a dishonorable course on the part of its friends.—Malden Mail.

Who would not be a tramp at a dollar a mile. A graduate of the University of Paris is now in this country making a tour of the globe,
visiting its countries on foot, and expecting to win a purse of $25,000
offered by a London sporting club for this service. We fail to see who will be benefited by it more than the shoe-makers.—Providence Telegram.

The Brockton girls have organized a society to bring hesitating
young men to the proposing point.
This is an idea of the inspiration
order, and induces the Lewiston (Me.) Journal to moralize that it should be borne in mind that Massachusetts is the state with more than 70,000 surplus women, and if a girl intends to marry in that state she has to plan her campaign.—Milford Journal.

The complaint is made by ministers of all denominations that modern society makes so many various demands upon the preacher that it is impossible for any one person to meet them with satisfaction to himself or his hearers. Now we have had a very large opportunity to talk with lay men and women in many churches; and,
while we have heard complaints that ministers were "not up to the times,"
we cannot recall a single specification
which could be interpreted as a demand upon the minister for sermons about subjects commonly discussed in congress, at grangers' meetings, or on the board of trade.—Christian Register.

It is probably yet too soon in the progress of humanity for the nations to disarm. There is yet too much of the brute left in the human heart—even the most enlightened races—to make it safe to trust to purely humane impulses. There must be a reserve of power somewhere to enforce humane decrees. This is found in the trained and disciplined armies, officers, as a rule, by gentlemen of education and humanitarian impulses, whose influence upon the men under their command is elevating, and who can be better trusted to pursue a just and merciful course in times of excitement and peril than could the leaders of an insurrectionary mob. The maintenance of powerful armies and navies
by the great powers is not an unmitigated evil.—Minneapolis Tribune.

INSTANTLY KILLED.

First Fatality from Lightning for Some Years.

Richard Powers, a Young Man, the Victim.

Was at His Father's Home on Gilbert Street.

An unusually heavy thunder shower
passed over Quincy Tuesday night.
The lightning was very sharp and the thunder very heavy. The heaviest shower was about 8 o'clock and it was during this time that Richard, the 20-year-old son of John Powers of Gilbert street, was struck by a bolt of lightning and killed. The young man had just seated himself in a room in the western L of the house near the window, and had just taken up a paper to read, when a bolt entered the house and killed him.

The bolt struck the lighted lamp on the mantel and exploded it, and then struck the young man on the right side setting his clothing on fire. The rest of the family were stunned by the shock but hastily procured a light and went to the young man's assistance.
He was assisted from the floor where he had fallen and Dr. McLennan summoned. The physician's services were not needed, however, for the young man was dead. His right side and arm were badly blistered and blackened, and in places were raw while his right arm was almost crisp.

An examination of the house would indicate that the bolt entered the house through a closet some few feet from where the young man was, and followed the mantel, demolishing the lamp; then struck the young man and passed out through the open window.

The window casing was split open
when the bolt went out and the other wood work was charred and blackened.
Some of the bricks on the chimney
at the other end of the house, and some of the shingles on the house were ripped off.

The hole in the closet, where it is believed the bolt entered, is very small and under ordinary circumstances would not be noticed. Fortunately the building did not take fire.

The same bolt wrenched an umbrella from the hand of a young man who was passing along the street, and benumbed his hand so that it was useless for half an hour. The fire alarm wire also received a part of it, causing several blows to be struck in quick succession.

The unfortunate young man bore an excellent character, and was very popular among the young people. He was employed as a tool sharpener
having just completed serving his time. His parents are completely prostrated over the affair.

Barn Struck at Ashmont.

During the thunder shower of Tuesday evening a barn on Sheldon street,
Ashmont, was struck, and set on fire.
Nineteen of the 20 horses were saved,
but there was a loss of $2000 on building and contents.

Circus in Town.

The street parade of Pawnee Bill's Wild West show this morning attracted a large crowd all along the route. The parade was an exceptionally good one. In it were scores of lady riders, Indians, Mexican cow boys, Cubans, rough riders and two pieces of artillery, two bands and a calliope which furnished the music.
The parade was well worth seeing.
The route was Canal, Chestnut, Granite, Water, Franklin, School and Hancock streets to the Adams Academy, thence to the grounds on Coddington
street. If anything can be told by the parade, the show will be well worth seeing.

COSTELLO-McNALLY.

Wedding at St. John's Church

followed by Reception.

A wedding of interest was solemnized at St. John's church this morning, when Miss Margaret Agnes McNally, daughter of Mr. Michael Mc-Nally of Hancock street, was united in marriage to Mr. William Edward Costello, son of Mr. John H. Costello of Sawyer street, Dorchester.

The ceremony took place at 9:30 o'clock in the presence of a large gathering of the many friends of the young couple, and was performed by Rev. Julian E. Johnstone, the bride being given away by her father. A high nuptial mass was celebrated by
Fr. Johnstone after the ceremony.
Special music was rendered by the choir, of which the bride has been a member for several years, under the direction of Miss Gertrude Murphy.
During the offertory, Miss Mary F.
White sang Kennedy's "Ave Maria."
The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mary McNally, and Dr.
John H. Costello, a brother of the groom was best man.

The bride was gown in a white duchess satin with trimmings of duchess lace, and the bridesmaid wore
a white muslin over pink silk.

The ushers were Mr. Mark Mackey of Roxbury, Mr. John J. O'Hara of Quincy, Mr. T. R. Galvin of Braintree
and Mr. Henry McNally of Quincy.

A wedding breakfast and reception followed the ceremony at the residence of the bride's parents on Hancock street, the bridal party being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Michael McNally and Mr. and Mrs. John H.
Costello.

The house was very prettily decorated with potted plants, cut flowers and June roses.

Many beautiful and costly gifts were received by Mr. and Mrs. Costello.

The happy couple left later for a trip through Baltimore and Washington.

SAW THEIR MISTAKE.

Squantum a Surprise to Street Railway Men.

An Outing Which Will Long Be Remembered.

A Prize Cake Walk One of the Great Events of the Day.

At a recent meeting of the Massachusetts Street Railway Association, Manager Graham of the Quincy & Boston was extolling over what a beautiful city Quincy was, especially that part known as Squantum. Some of the gentlemen present were seen to smile
as though they doubted it, at which Mr. Graham extended an invitation to them to come to Quincy with their ladies and eat a shore dinner that was a shore dinner. The only stipulation made was that each should deposit $5 which was to be forfeited if they failed to show up with their wife,
their best girl or some other fellow's
best girl.

Tuesday was the day fixed upon and true to their promise, 3.50 o'clock saw them alight from a train at Atlantic and take a special car for Squantum Island, where the dinner was to be served.

The dinner came off on time and Landlord Lee provided a menu that would touch the heart of the most exacting. An orchestra furnished music during the feast.

Dinner over, dancing was in order.
Some of the party claimed they could not dance, but that proved a bluff, for they could. Superintendent Weeks led the grand march with an umbrella for a baton, and he did it well. Then came the Virginia reel, and fancy dances. It was during the dancing of the Virginia reel that the dancers had to run the gauntlet or go through the subway as it was called, and this to some proved very trying.

A cake walk was then proposed and voted. A prize of $5 was made up and a judge selected who was made to swear that all coons looked alike to him. The orchestra struck up a rag time air and the cake walk was on.
Those to compete for the prize were John Duggan and Mrs. Duggan, Horace Parker of the Newton & Boston and Mrs. J. R. Graham, George Morse, known the world over as the Rochester car wheel man, and Mrs. E. O. Foster.

There have been cake walks and cake
walks, but this cake walk laid way over anything yet produced or even thought of. Mr. and Mrs. Duggan were awarded the prize, although there was some kicking, as it was claimed John had received a tip and had been practicing for a week on the deck of his electric yacht Columbia, which the government wanted for the war with Spain, but which John refused to sell.
However he won the prize and his services will be in demand at all future
gatherings of street railway men.

Of course every gentleman present expected his forfeit money back, but that is where they made their mistake,
for when the time came to depart instead of passing the fives over to the men, Mr. Graham divided them among the ladies present. This of course established his reputation among the ladies forever, and the gentlemen could do nothing but submit.

It was 10 o'clock when cars were taken for home and it was with regrets
but with the consolation that they had enjoyed one of the pleasantest outings ever held by the Street Railway association.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people
wake up in the morning nearly
as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their
mouth, the lips sticky, and the
breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Dis-
corders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy
Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system
to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than
a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17
EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.

A QUINCY MOTHER.

Millionaire Billings Descended
from the Cleverlys.

R. C. Billings of Jamaica Plain,
who has just bequeathed a million dollars to relatives and friends, and another million to numerous institutions, was born in Boston on Jan. 3, 1819.

His father, Ebenezer Billings,
was descended from the old Billings ancestry of West Roxbury. His mother, Elizabeth Cleverly, of that portion of Braintree now called Quincy, was descended from the old Nash family of Weymouth. His grandfather was Daniel Nash. In early life
Mr. Billings attended the Boston schools and was of the old Latin School, from which he entered the well known dry goods jobbing house of Thomas Tarbell & Co., on State street.
Mr. Billings was soon taken into the firm, and he followed it through all its various changes from Thomas Tarbell & Co., to Faulkner, Kimball & Co.
and Faulkner, Page & Co. They achieved great success. He was twice married, his first wife being a daughter of Captain Charles Hills of Jamaica Plain. Two children were born to him, but his entire family had passed on before his death.

One of Phoebe Davis' ambitions is to play Desdemona.

Louis Mann wants to be a serious actor
and is said to have designs on Shylock.

Louis James will appear next season as

Joseph Jefferson has been on the stage
67 years, having started at the age of 3

Fred Berger states Sol Smith Russell's average weekly receipts this season have been $7,000.

Herr Fischer (Hans Sachs), so long a

Opera company, and Mlle. Camille Sey-gard were recently married in Germany.
Julia Marlowe owns the English and American rights to "La Reine Fiancée," the play by Catulle Mendes, which was played at the Odeon last year, and Charles Frohman intends to produce it next winter in a most lavish manner.

A young actress performing in Vienna has been fined 10 florins for appearing on

A new style of "Hamlet" is being given

The public would not like a fat Hamlet. It would as soon see a fat Ophelia or Juliet or a lean Fallstaff. Hamlet will remain to the end of time the lean and melancholy Dane. Hamlet has been fat and he never would have been melancholy, and that he was melancholy no one will deny.—Chicago Tribune.

POULTRY POINTERS.

There is no breed that lays eggs of a

If the ducks have cramps, remove them

With fowls that have a free range from now on two good feedings a day will be sufficient. They will keep healthier and thrive better if they are compelled to hunt through the day for part of their

THE COLLEGE GRADUATE.

Free just come home from college, and I'm going to make things hum.
I'll get the money rolling fast and strike the people dumb.
I guess I'll corner markets or construct a rousing play.
But prominence I'm bound to get in some quick,
easy way.
Perhaps I'll be an editor or write for magazines—
I'll show them my diploma, oh, they all know what that means!
They'll put me right into the place of some old
fogey pate.
When I'm down and tell them I'm a college
graduate!

I'm thinking some of poetry; it's such an easy thing to do.
To find some words that rhyme a bit, as string
and bring and sing.
And put them down on paper, with some other ones, you know.
And fix them round in order while you watch the poem grow.

They tell you of the fellows, though, who get them all sent back.
With little printed notices, "Enclosed does merit lack."
But they will treat me different—they will scan
the paying rate.

When I go down and tell them I'm a college
graduate.

I don't think much of business, though—there is too small a sphere.
And then they always start you out and pay you
year by year.
You do not get the chance, you know—the chance
you might have had
If you had waited longer or perhaps gone in with dad.

But what's a person going to do, their father being gone?
Oh, that's a proper question for some men to work upon.
But as to me, I've settled it—they'll open wide
the gates.
When I go down and tell them I'm a college
graduate!

There are so many tempting things just standing still for you
That really one cannot decide exactly what to do.
And most of them are far beneath the place you ought to be—
A man who's educated and accorded a degree.
And then they want you to get a chance to go to college now.

That when you want a job today they don't ask
why or how,
But simply talk awhile with you and hold out tempting bait.
When you go down and tell them you're a college
graduate.

ENEMY ON THE RUN.

Bold and Successful Attack by Wheaton Upon Peres Das Marinas.

How Treacherous Insurgents Surrounded Our Men.

A Mere Handful Fought Gallantly Against an Overwhelming Force.

Washington, June 21.—General Otis forwards the following:

Manila, June 20, 1899.

Adjutant General, Washington:

When on June 19, Cavite province, with four guns, four battalions, 4th and 14th infantry, Nevada troop, cavalry, sent battalions south on reconnaissance direction of Das Marinas, yesterday morning, where enemy reported concentrating. Scattered forces.

Battalion encountered enemy's force, 2000, marching to attack Imus, successfully impeding its progress. Wheaton, with two guns and two battalions, hurried forward, repulsed enemy with heavy loss, enemy leaving over 100 dead on field.

Our loss five killed, 23 wounded. Wheaton reinforced last night by battalion 9th infantry. Is driving enemy beyond Das Marinas, now in his possession. Casualties today not reported.

Wheaton's qualities for bold and successful attack unsurpassed. Otis.

BRIGADIER GENERAL WHEATON.

Press dispatches state that the troops commanded by General Wheaton entered Peres Das Marinas Monday without opposition, except upon the part of small bodies of rebels, who inflicted no losses upon the Americans. The town is an important place, surrounded by swamps, and General Wheaton will probably return to Imus.

Surrounded by 1000 of the enemy, six miles from reinforcements and with 1000 more insurgents moving rapidly down on their left to make their annihilation complete, the First battalion of the Fourth Infantry, Major Bubbs commanding, in all 200 Americans, fought their way back from Peres Das Marinas Monday, three miles toward the military base at Imus, where the rest of the Fourth came to their support. Reports were received that Peres Das Marinas had been deserted by the insurgents. The alcalde of the place came to Imus and formally surrendered his town.

The houses along the roadside were filled with amigors, and the battalion advanced confidently until within three-fourths of a mile of Das Marinas, when they discovered the enemy, paralleling the road at a long distance on both sides, and practically surrounding the little force. Natives began firing from houses in the rear, and natives in white clothes were captured with guns in hand. The whole scheme was to wipe out the small body of American troops, and might have succeeded but for the marvelous courage of the troops and officers. The fight began at noon, and the enemy's fire was concentrated in one hour. The Americans, on beginning to retreat, discovered that they were surrounded. The skirmish lines crowded the Filipinos back toward Imus, while outposts were on the right and left. Under a flanking fire the rear guard was desperately holding the enemy's rushes in check.

An incessant and galling fire poured upon the main road, and men were falling everywhere. The ambulance was filled, and carts were pressed into service, loaded with the wounded, and dragged by hand by the prisoners. Two of our dead were left behind. At 3 o'clock it looked as if nothing could save the battalion. At 4 o'clock they had pressed the enemy off, and on the right they were at last behind them. Fifteen minutes later, Hazzard, the aid of General Wheaton, pushed through alone, with the news that Wheaton was alone, to the relief. The men, with a cheer, charged the Filipinos.

General Wheaton found a force of the enemy 1000 strong, moving to intercept the battalion along a road where it runs at right angles. He opened with a rapid fire and moved down the insurgents. He then cleared the left of the force attacked and advanced rapidly. At 4:30 o'clock he had the enemy in full rout, and gained a mile and a half of the lost ground.

The regiment bivouacked at last in rice fields and food and ammunition were rushed forward to them. The day's fighting developed the most determined and best planned resistance yet made by the Filipinos. General Wheaton makes the following signed statement:

"I am glad to say that in this reconnaissance of the Fourth Infantry, who held back 2000 insurgents, the troops acted gallantly, and with the courage and coolness of veterans. Major Bubbs, commanding, and every soldier on the field should receive congratulations for their heroism and the manner in which they handled their handful of men against an overwhelming force. The Americans' movement has averted a contemplated attack on Imus by the entire Filipino army in the south."

THIRTEEN INNINGS.

Champions Finally Won in an Exceedingly Lively Contest at Chicago.

Chicago, June 21.—Boston won a great game. There were two Bostonians out in the 13th inning when Tenney sent a bouncer to McCormick at second. It seemed an easy chance, but the ball suddenly took a skyward direction and when it came down Barry fumbled it in the bargain. Tenney was safe and the bases were filled.

Griffith got rattled and gave Long his base, forcing in a run. Collins followed and sent the ball to the right field fence for two bags, clearing the bases and making the score 5 to 1.

The game had been a tie from the fourth inning.

Hope Placed in Bourgeois.

Paris, June 21.—The prolongation of the cabinet crisis is becoming most serious. MM. Dupuy and Lockroy both called upon President Loubet yesterday and expressed their anxiety to be relieved of the responsibilities of office as soon as possible. Should M. Bourgeois accept the task of forming a ministry it is thought his chances of success would be fairly good. His prestige has been much increased by the part he has played in the deliberations of the peace conference at The Hague, where he is believed to have won the gratitude of Emperor Nicholas by his tact and zeal on behalf of arbitration. The latest gossip favors a combination cabinet, including MM. Bourgeois, Brisson, Poincare and Waldeck-Rousseau, but nothing will be known until M. Bourgeois arrives.

Denial From Vaile.

Washington, June 21.—Published allegations that the mails sent homeward by Nebraskan and other volunteers in the Philippines had been censored at Manila have brought out an official denial by Director of Posts Vaile at Manila. Director Vaile says: "It is not necessary to assure you that I am not risking my personal liberty by allowing any letters to be tampered with, and it will be useless to assure the originator of this absurd story of censorship of the mails that he is mistaken, because he knows that the story was manufactured for 'political purposes.'"

Cure For Yellow Fever.

New York, June 21.—Dr. Alvah P. Doty, the health officer of this port, is much elated over the successful results of the experiments with a serum for the prevention of yellow fever. For the past 18 months Dr. Doty and his assistants have been inoculating a number of guinea pigs previously fed with germs of yellow fever. For some time the experiments have been doubtful in their results, but for the past month or six weeks they have succeeded in preserving the lives of the animals, thus affording sure evidence of the value of the serum in the prevention of yellow fever.

Warships to Investigate.

St. John's, June 21.—The British armed sloop Buzzard and the special service vessel Columbine left St. John's yesterday for Bay Islands to inquire into the alleged misconduct of French war vessels on the treaty coast. A colonial magistrate reports that the French commander sent a boatload of armed men to remove the fishing nets of the settlers, against which the colonial government will protest as an assumption of territorial rights by the French. Colonial agitation on the matter is very keen.

High water—10 a. m.; 10:15 p. m.

A SNAP FOR MAHER.

Mike Morrissey, Would-Be Champion, Knocked Out in the First Round.

New York, June 21.—Mike Morrissey of Tipperary, who was heralded as an invincible Irish champion, quickly proved to the thousands of onlookers at the Lenox Athletic club last night that he had many superiors.

Peter Maher sized his man up quickly and went for him straightaway. There was apparently no light in the new-comer. A light punch on the breast and a right cross on the jaw were the only blows struck, and these were delivered by Maher. The blow that Maher landed on the jaw seemed insufficient to knock out any man.

Maher entered the ring accompanied by Peter Lowry, Peter Burns and his brother, Jim Maher. He weighed 174 pounds, and looked fit and well. Mike Morrissey had a retinue of handlers when he reached the ringside, among whom were Jimmie DeForest, Bob Armstrong, Butch Joyce and Kid Broad. Morrissey said he weighed 182 pounds. The moment that the men shaped it was clearly evident that Morrissey was afraid, and Maher had the easiest task ever given him in his fighting career. Both fiddled for a few seconds, and then Maher went right to his man with a left lead, which landed lightly on the chest, and sent his right over to the jaw. Morrissey fell in a neutral corner, and lay there motionless on his right elbow, while Maher strutted about the ring until Referee White counted off 10 seconds. Maher then walked to his corner, and the master of ceremonies announced that Maher had won. The time of the bout was 35 seconds.

Disaffection Is General.

Washington, June 21.—Private advices received here from a high authority are to the effect that the conference at The Hague probably will be redeemed nominally from failure through an agreement on an arbitration project that will satisfy the apparent general demand on that point, but which, at the same time, by carefully framed safeguards, will so narrow the field of matters that may or must go before the arbitration tribunal as to make it little more than arbitration in name. The attitude of Germany is a study in itself, and in advance of that of some of the other powers, after all, in opposition to the plans submitted, and the disaffection is more general than appears on the surface. As for the other projects that were especially desired by the Americans, such as protection of individual property from seizure at sea, they have all been irretrievably lost, according to this report.

Wholesale Murders.

London, June 21.—A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Simla says: Over 50 small villages have been looted and burned in the Thibet district. At one town more than 100 murders were committed. The victims, in many cases, were literally hacked to pieces and thrown into the flames of their burning homes.

Duke of Orleans' Close Call.

London, June 21.—On arriving at Waterloo station yesterday in an electric brougham, in consequence of the jam of traffic, the Duke of Orleans was driven violently against a brick wall. The front wheels and panels of the motor car were demolished. The occupants escaped, but not without a bad shaking up.

Police and Peasants In Conflict.

Bucharest, June 21.—In a conflict yesterday between peasants and police, arising out of an election riot at Slatina, on the Albuta river, about 100 miles west of this city, the troops were called out and fired upon the mob, several persons being killed and many wounded.

DRINK GRAIN-O

after you have concluded that you ought not to drink coffee. It is not a medicine but doctors order it, because it is healthful, invigorating and appetizing. It is made from pure grains and has that rich seal brown color and tastes like the finest grades of coffee and costs about 1-4 as much. Children like it and thrive on it because it is a genuine food drink containing nothing but nourishment. Ask your grocer for Grain-O, the new food drink. 15 and 25c.

ANOTHER BUSY DAY.

President Addresses Thirty-Five Thousand People at Springfield.

Stores, Offices and Schools Closed In His Honor.

Brief Receptions at Westfield and Pittsfield on the Way to Adams.

Adams, Mass., June 22.—The president broke over his rule yesterday and made another speech. It was a purely spontaneous one and quite unexpected, and was due to the greeting fully 35,000 people had given at the Springfield reception, in front of city hall. Former Lieutenant Governor Halle had introduced the president to the multitude, saying that he would not make a speech, but the president did speak.

After luncheon the ladies remained at the club building, while the president and other gentlemen of the party were taken to the city hall, where a large platform had been erected. Here, at 2 o'clock, he reviewed the parade, which was composed of the three local militia companies of the Second Massachusetts regiment, under Colonel Clark, the naval brigade and the Grand Army boys' brigade.

After the passing of the parade, a line of citizens was formed, and the president held a reception, and shook hands with nearly 3000 people in an hour. In this he was assisted by Mayor Gilmore, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Allen and the city's reception committee.

The crowd was so demonstrative that President McKinley was practically forced into making a speech. He spoke as follows:

"I desire to express the very great pleasure I have taken in the more than generous welcome that has been given me by the citizens of Springfield. This would be a good time for Springfield to take her census. I am prepared for any ascertained population. You enumerators may obtain this year. I have been glad during the day to witness the devotion of your people, old and young, to the old flag that all of us love. I have been glad to meet the veterans of '61 and '65 who carried that flag to honor and glory. I have been glad to meet the members of the gallant Second Massachusetts, who carried that flag and brought it back with added glory from the field of Santiago."

"I was glad to see that flag in the hands of 10,000 school children of the city. With that flag in our hands there is sure to be patriotism in our hearts. It stands today for more than it ever did in the past. It stands not for despotism, but for peace and prosperity, liberty and law, wherever it floats."

"I thank you for this reception from the bottom of my heart. Being unable to shake hands with you all, I now bid you good-bye."

At 2:30 o'clock the president and his party were taken, under the escort of the Grand Army, to the station, where they boarded his special train, and in a moment were on their way to Adams, where he will spend a week with his friend, W. B. Plunkett.

The day was a pleasant one without an incident to mar the enjoyment. There was great enthusiasm all along the route of the drive and at the review of the parade. In every way McKinley day in Springfield was a success. It was made a general holiday; stores, offices and schools were closed, and the decorations excelled anything of the kind attempted in many years.

The day was an absolutely perfect one, and the ride down the river from Holyoke to Springfield was the best feature of the outing with the possible exception of the Mt. Tom trip. The arrangements were carried out without a hitch. The drive around the city of Springfield was delightful, and there was a visit to the arsenal grounds, a lunch and then a reception at city hall. Enthusiasm was continuous and the booming of cannon giving the national salute was heard on all sides.

The president and party left Springfield at 4:06 and the train made a brief stop at Westfield. Here the president was given a magnificent whip by Eugene D. Doherty, who met President McKinley at Hot Springs, Va., last month and had become an admirer of him. Mrs. McKinley received several bouquets from the young women of the normal school. W. B. Plunkett rode up from Springfield with the party, and after a brief stop at Pittsfield at 8:55, where the demonstration was fully as great as at Westfield, Adams was reached at 6:30. President and Mrs. McKinley took carriage to Mr. Plunkett's house. The remainder of the party walked.

Today will be given up to resting. Tomorrow evening the Assembly club, made up of young women of this place, will give a reception at Forest park pavilion in honor of Miss Barber and Miss Duncan.

PROBABLY SET BY TRAMPS.

Fire Renders Twenty Families Homeless and Causes Loss of About $100,000.

Livermore Falls, Me., June 22.—A big fire broke out in this village late last night and swept a large district. The blaze broke out in a barn on the west side of Main street, and apparently was set by tramps. The fire spread to the south, taking in most of the buildings on that side of Main street.

about 20 families lost all their effects, escaping in their night clothes, but no one has been seriously hurt. It is also impossible to estimate the financial loss, but $100,000 is hardly expected to cover it. The fire was first seen in a barn on the west side of Main street, but before the engines had been secured the sparks had set fire to the roof of an adjoining building. The fire engine was finally placed in position, but the two streams of water which it threw were not equal to the task and the fire spread rapidly. There was great excitement, people seeming half frantic as they came out of their houses. Help was summoned from the available places, even as far as Lewiston, but shortly after midnight the fire had swept through the cluster of houses which were behind those facing the street, and which were burned at the outset, and the danger of further spread was over and requests for assistance were countermanded.

Whitman's Victory.
Brookline, Mass., June 22.—With the score standing two sets to one against him, after Tuesday's play, Marvin D. Whitman, the national tennis champion, MALCOLM D. WHITMAN.

won two additional sets and the state championship from Leo Ware on the Longwood grounds yesterday afternoon. The match abounded in brilliant plays.

Won't Sail Friday.
Bristol, R. I., June 22.—The Columbia will not sail from her anchorage until Saturday morning, despite the efforts which have been made looking to the completion of every detail ready for the start, which, it was thought, would be before the present date. The steel boom will be placed in position today, and a new suit of sails bent. Work proceeds day and night on the blocks to replace those in which the sheaves proved faulty. The force of carpenters and cabinet makers is quite large on board the yacht, and the putting in of the bulkheads, lockers, staterooms and other accommodations will, it is expected, be completed this week. The sailors' dream of 41 fortune to the craft which starts on Friday will have its effect in that the Columbia will not sail tomorrow.

Congregationalists and Divorces.
New Haven, June 22.—Rev. W. M. Barrows, the minister who recently married Perry Belmont and Mrs. Henry D. Sloane at Greenwich, was severely censured yesterday by the general association of Congregational ministers of Connecticut, of which he is a member, in session here. Dr. Barrows personally apologized to the ministers, saying that he had been imposed upon by Mr. Belmont and Mrs. Sloane, but, in spite of this, resolutions were passed censuring him. The resolutions also make it impossible for them to remarry guilty parties in a divorce, and parties who are forbidden to remarry by the laws of any other state or the rules of other Christian churches.

Will Defend Mrs. Eddy.
Boston, June 22.—Members of the First Church of Christ (Scientist) who gathered for the weekly testimony meeting last night heard Judge Hanna read testimony in refutation of the assertions recently made that Mary B. Eddy, founder of the denomination, is dead. Judge Hanna also made an address of some length in reply to critics of Christian Science doctrines, in which he said that in the past Christian Scientists have taken no notice of attacks upon them or their cause. He was persuaded that silence had been too long kept, and that henceforth Mrs. Eddy would be defended from personal attack.

Squadron Leaves Boston.
Boston, June 22.—The squadron of warships in the harbor sailed for Newport this morning. On arrival there the officers will resume their study at the war college, and the vessels will be used for practice drills, especially for torpedo attack work.

Want Old Schedule.
Holyoke, Mass., June 22.—At a meeting of the striking employees of the Lyman mills a proposition was drawn up to be submitted to the company offering to return to work on condition that the schedule in effect in 1896 be adopted. This would mean an increase of between 10 and 15 percent.

LOOKED LIKE A FORT.

Mob Played Havoc With Street Railway Barns at Cleveland.

Company Positively Refuses to Recognize Union.

Conference Adjourns Until This Afternoon, With a Settlement in Sight.

Cleveland, June 22.—When the sun arose yesterday morning there was evidence that the city had been in the power of the mob. Rails were torn up, boulders rolled upon the street car tracks, switches destroyed and every possible precaution taken by the strikers to prevent the operation of the roads by the companies.

Holmden avenue barns on the south side looked like a fort after a battle. The wrecking crew of the railway was prevented from clearing obstructions from the Scovill tracks. As fast as obstructions could be removed they were thrown back by strikers. The work had to be abandoned until the arrival of policemen.

Sixty policemen were also sent early to the south side to suppress any outbreak which might occur, where Tuesday night a mob of 8000 made an attack on the Holmden avenue barns, where 35 non-union men were quartered. The mob was unable to reach the men, but had no difficulty in destroying the cars in the yard in the rear. Six were completely demolished and four badly wrecked.

Switches were torn up at Jennings and Abbey avenues, Jennings and Clark avenues and on the central viaduct. A large detail of police finally dispersed the mob without bloodshed. During the riot Tuesday evening in every part of the city switches were destroyed, rails torn up and tracks piled high with obstructions. No attempt was made to turn cars over the lines where the trouble was anticipated.

A determined effort was made yesterday to settle the strike. Committees from both sides met at 11 o'clock with the committee of the city council appointed Tuesday, to devise means for bringing the dispute to an end. The meeting was secret.

After a conference lasting three hours between representatives of the strikers and the street railway company, it was announced that President Everett would stand by his ultimatum. This, in effect, says that the company will not discharge a single man hired since the strike began, will not recognize the union and will reinstate such old men as have not been guilty of acts of violence. President Everett says that this will mean the reinstatement of about 60 percent of the strikers. The strikers at once held a meeting to consider these terms.

Late last night it was asserted that the effort to settle the strike is likely to be successful, and that a settlement may be reached today. The only question at issue is how many of the old men shall be reinstated. If the strike is declared off. At a conference yesterday the company offered to take back 60 percent of the old men at once, and reinstate the others who were acceptable as soon as opportunity offered. The strikers' committee would not consent to that. Subsequently the company agreed to reinstate all but 100 of the old men, and with that offer under consideration the conference adjourned until this afternoon.

For Assaulting a Girl.

Providence, June 22.—In the common pleas court yesterday John Reynolds and James Donohue, arraigned for having assaulted Charlotte Taylor, a girl 14 years of age, were sentenced to one and three years in state prison, respectively.

Coal Operators Give In.
Indianapolis, June 22.—President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers of America received a telegram last night announcing the practical settlement of the coal miners' strikes in the states west of the Mississippi, which has been in progress over two months. As a result of the settlement 22,000 of the 30,000 strikers in Missouri, Kansas, Indian Territory and Arkansas will return to work at once. The settlement is a victory for the men, as they secured the eight-hour work day, an increase of wages amounting to from 12½ to 15 percent and the "run of mine" method of weighing coal, which means that they will be paid for all the coal they mine. All of the companies west of the Mississippi have signed except four.

Good Afternoon.

Councilman Pinkham, in the debate on the refund order Monday evening, gave some impression that the city had been paying an average of $76,000 of the municipal debt each year (one-tenth of all the municipal debt created during the ten years of city government). But we are not paying the last installment of the municipal debt this year, yet $81,950.25 out of $265,505.86, leaving a balance of $183,555.61. One-tenth of this balance shows that we have averaged over $18,000 below $76,000 or about $58,000. But all of the debt contracted during the ten years was not expected to be paid before 1900, as considerable was contracted last year, more in 1897 and 1896, only one, two and three years ago, and may by law be spread over ten years. As the municipal debt has never reached $400,000 the maturing debt in any one year should not exceed $40,000, unless it is the intention to wipe out immediately all the debt. This might be a good idea, but has not been contemplated.

Drift of Opinion.

A contemporary thinks the woman's right discussion is growing tiresome, when it takes the form of advocating the propriety of woman's proposing with a view to marriage. What need there is of talking about the matter is not clear, when good authorities insist that the girl can always propose with her eyes, and that she is rather apt to do it—New Bedford Standard.

Nearly thirty-five years have passed since the war, and a new generation has had its day upon the earth, but the Negro population is still at the south, and there is not the slightest indication of its withdrawal. The Negroes regard the south as their home, and they don't feel at home anywhere else. And what is more, they won't go anywhere else. There is hardly an intelligent southern man who would not gladly hail a general exodus of Negroes to the north and west; who would not like to see them as large a percentage of the population in Massachusetts as they are in Georgia, and as numerous in California as in Carolina. We would like to see the Negro problem a national problem in fact as well as in theory, and see our northern and western friends dealing with them at home instead of in the south.—Augusta, Ga., Chronicle.

Grammar Graduates.

Graduation day of the ten grammar schools of the city, on June 29, will be known as "Parent's day" and the parents will be entertained at the High school building at 3 P. M. Superintendent Lull has forestalled the rush for seats. He says, "There are 325 graduates. The parents alone will need 650 seats. This number is the limit of the capacity of the hall. Therefore the attendance must be confined to parents. No children large, small or very small, can be admitted without a ticket. No reserved seats." The graduates and parents will be addressed by Col. Edward Anderson, the soldier-pastor of the Quincy Point church.

"STRONG TO LIVE."

The Motto of the Woodward Institute Graduates.

First Class to Complete the Whole Course.

Secretary Hill Speaks of Riches of a Scholarly Spirit.

A large class was graduated Wednesday evening from the Woodward Institute, not only the largest since the school was opened, but the first class that has taken the complete course of five years. As required by the will of Dr. Woodward all were Quincy born young ladies.

Woodward hall was crowded to its utmost capacity with relatives of the scholars and friends of the school, and it was fortunate that the temperature was lower than it has averaged lately.

An abundance of large fern branches were used in the decoration, and the portrait of Dr. Woodward and the chandeliers were festooned with laurel. Conspicuous on the walls were several new bas reliefs and large pictures, all standard works of art, and the recent gift of the alumnae. Over the platform was suspended the motto of the class "Strong to Live."

A short and interesting programme was presented opening with the singing of the following numbers:

"The Truth Birds," Beethoven
"A Maiden Sang Beneath a Tree," Aug. Weichert
"Good Night," Mozart
"The Fairy Isle," Wm. Shield

Miss Small, the principal, then introduced Mr. Frank A. Hill, the secretary of the State Board of Education, who delivered an interesting and scholarly address on "The riches of a scholarly spirit." At the outset he said the graduates should be happy not sad. Their face was toward the rising sun, and they should make the most of graduation day.

He spoke of the significance of diplomas, saying that they were not a guarantee of future success. It was not a new life that they were entering but the life to come was the same old life. If the altar fires of scholarly spirit have not been kindled at the Woodward course has not been a success.

The time of a larger intellectual life for women is now here. A century ago their education was ignored, neglected, ridiculed. Now, girls outnumber the boys in the secondary schools and are rivaling men in various pursuits. They have been recognized and are determined to triumph.

Womanhood should retain her loveliness. Educated womanhood was a school for citizenship. There was no question about the citizenship of these graduates. Good citizenship begins when womanly goodness begins.

The graduates were advised to become builders, not destroyers, and optimists rather than pessimists. Our material wealth and soul wealth can grow at the same time. Keep in touch with nature, and with the minds of the past.

Secretary Hill spoke for 45 minutes and was applauded at the close.

The graduating class then sang an original class song written by one of their number, Miss Katharine F. Garrity to music adapted from J. B. Galt.

Why grieve we for the sun that sets
In clouds of golden hue?
Even though the passing day has been Replete with pleasure true,
A never, fuller day will come
When dawn the morrow's light,
A wider vista all undimmed
Disclosing to our sight.

The sacred past we'll e'er hold dear;
Its treasures rare will dwell
Within our hearts, nor time, nor place
Shall ever break their spell.
Should clouds or shadows dim our way,
Perchance some lesson taught
In bygone days, may prove a guide
To paths with brightness fraught.

So feel no sadness or regret
For golden days now gone;
The future wreathed in blossoms fair
Now bids us venture on.
With hopeful, loving, trusting hearts
We greet the rising sun
That ushers in a glorious day,
Our future just begun.

The presentation of diplomas to the graduates by Rev. Walter Russell Breed, the vice chairman of the Board of Directors, closed the programme.

Mr. Breed spoke briefly. He queried at the outset, what is the aim of education. Formerly it was to obtain knowledge, but now for power. Character was essential, also intellectual activity, the cultivation of beauty, and the cultivation of social life. He spoke of the recent gifts of art to the school by the alumnae and hoped it was only a beginning. The commencement season was always of great interest. He was pleased to know that at least 12 of the 25 graduates were to attend higher schools. The diplomas were presented with congratulations and good wishes, and Mr.

Breed invoked the Divine blessing upon the graduates.

In the art room upon the second floor was a very creditable exhibition of drawings by pupils of the school.

The graduates were: Ruth Bassett, Carolyn Alden Bates, Frances Frederick Carr, Helen Cladin, Fannie Alice Damon, Mary Josephine Dunn, Grace Eaton, Mary Agnes Elcock, Marie Di Pazzo Fegan, Eva Loring Felts, Katharine Frances Garrity, Mary Augusta Graham, Mary Frances Jones, Pauline Louise Jones, Willitta May King, Elizabeth Frances O'Neil, Alice Gertrude Packard, Mary Ellen Pendergast, Eva Doraine Phillips, Martha Pierce, Jane Childs Reed, Ethel Rinn, Annie Agnes Shirley, Mary Gertrude Thomas, Minnie Frances Wight.

The Class of 1899 will hold a reception at Woodward hall this evening from eight until eleven.

Edward P. Jilson.

As the result of a paralytic shock Monday evening Edward P. Jilson died at his home, No. 7 Elm street, Preston, Conn., Wednesday night, June 14, about 10 o'clock. After being prostrated by the shock he did not recover consciousness.

Mr. Jilson was born in Wilmantic July 11, 1838, and was one of five children. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Seth Jilson. At the age of 14 years Mr. Jilson removed with his family to this city. He was for 25 years a mechanic in the employ of the old Norwich Lock Company. When the Shannon and Marguerite buildings were constructed he took charge of them and held the positions until a year ago, when it was necessary for him to have one of his legs amputated. Since that time he has been unable to do any work.

Mr. Jilson was married to Miss Caroline Chappell. She with three children, Miss Leora, Helen L. and Edward H. Jilson, survive the deceased. He also leaves three brothers, Dr. Benjamin C. Jilson of Pittsburg, Pa., Charles A. Jilson of Fall River, Mass., and George W. Jilson, of this city, and a sister, Lucy M. Jilson, of Quincy, Mass. The mother of the deceased died at the advanced age of 94 years, April 18 of this year.

Mr. Jilson was a man of quiet disposition. He was not a member of any society.—Cooley's Weekly, Norwich, Conn.

Sudden Death.

James Beahn of Granite avenue, West Quincy, a veteran of the Civil war, died Wednesday afternoon at the Charlestown Navy yard of heart disease, aged about 55 years. Mr. Beahn was a stone cutter by trade and he followed that occupation for many years. He was at one time a member of the police department and did duty at Wollaston. Some months ago he obtained employment in the stone house at the Navy yard. He has been failing in health for some time and his death was not unexpected. During the war he served in the 48th Massachusetts Infantry and in the 3d Cavalry, and was a member of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R. He leaves a widow and several children.

The Perjury Case.

George W. Fisher of Weymouth, the witness in the Grant liquor case at Quincy, who was committed for perjury on May 20, the day of the trial of Mrs. Grant, was given a hearing this morning.

Morrisey McKay, Larkin and Morrisey testified that at the trial they heard Fisher while on the stand deny that he knew Mrs. Grant or that he had ever been at her house on Mill street; that he never saw her until in court, that he had never purchased any liquor there and had never made any such statement.

Officer McKay also testified that on the night of May 3, he made an arrangement with Fisher to go to Mrs. Grant's and get liquor and that he saw him go there.

Officer Larkin also testified that on the morning of May 20, while in court at a conference between Fisher, Counsel Blackmur and himself, Fisher said the statement that he had told Officer Larkin he had got liquor there at Mrs. Grant's was true.

Officer Morrisey also testified that on the night of May 3, he saw Fisher go into the yard of No. 2 Mill street.

Fisher in his own behalf again denied making the statements attributed to him. He, however, admitted that he took fifty cents from Officer Larkin and started for the house of Mrs. Grant, but did not go in. He also said that at the trial he only remembered being asked three questions while on the stand. He also denied having talked with Mrs. Grant the day after the case was first called. The court held him for the grand jury.

The Chilton Paint is an old-fashioned one except that it is made by modern machinery, and the colors are ground into the Linseed Oil instead of being stirred in with a stick. The grinding of the pigment into the oil makes not only a smoother and more perfectly amalgamated product, but also one that is less liable to fade, and can never look streaked. One coat of Chilton Paint means something. In painting a house it is cheaper to use a good paint and one that will last for years, rather than an inferior article which does not cover or protect. Note that the Chilton Paint contains no benzine and is not put up by short weight or measure.

THE TEACHERS' FRIEND.

Mrs. Emmons Blaine Will Endow a School of Pedagogy.

Mrs. Emmons Blaine, who gave $25,000 a year ago to the Teachers' College of the University of Chicago, is going to show her interest in the cause of education by endowing a school of pedagogy in the same city. She has promised to give several hundred thousand dollars to this school for teachers.

Mrs. Blaine has had this idea in mind since 1883. The daughter of the late Cyrus H. McCormick, the great mowder and reaper man, she inherited a fortune of millions. She has long been eminent among Chicago women for good works.

She told her idea to some of her millionaire friends and has received assurances. It is said, of contributions which will aggregate a foundation fund of $1,000,000.

Colonel Francis W. Parker, the present head of the Cook County Normal school, has been selected to organize

MRS. EMMONS BLAINE.

the college and will be given wide powers in establishing an institution under the broad ideas that have been developed during his long career as a teacher of teachers.

Mrs. Blaine's great aim is to benefit the poor and not to pauperize them.

Emmons Blaine and Anna McCormick were married at Richmond Springs Sept. 26, 1888. He was 33 and she 23 and the predecessor of $3,000,000. Emmons was the favorite son of the late James G. Blaine and was the pick of the flock. He was educated as a lawyer, but afterward went into the railroad business and became general freight agent of the Santa Fe road at Chicago. He died June 18, 1892. His widow has been faithful to his memory.

He left one son, McCormick Blaine, the apple of his mother's eye.

The Pentagon Club.

The Pentagon club of Boston is so named because it is made up of women of five professions—doctors, lawyers, ministers, teachers and journalists. It prides itself upon having no constitution and no officers. Its 20 or 30 members meet and dine together once a month at the United States hotel, for the sole purpose of having a good time. The evening is devoted chiefly to telling funny stories. The Pentagon has hitherto been unique among women's clubs, but the junior editor of The Woman's Journal, who is a member, happened to mention the plan of the Pentagon in conversation with friends attending the recent national woman suffrage convention in Grand Rapids, and the idea so delighted a woman lawyer of Detroit and a woman doctor of Cincinnati that they went home each with the purpose of starting a Pentagon in her own city.

A Good Substitute For Feathers. Feathers and down are expensive, but if you know a bank where the cattail grows you can have down pillows galore for the mere making. You must know that the fluff of the ripe cattail, which may be gathered in July or August, makes a pillow equalled only by down itself. So be provident this year, and if you live near a lake or pond get you a harvest of cattails for future use. You will find them the most inexpensive and satisfactory material you can employ for this purpose. If it should be your fate to live in a section of the country where cattails do not grow, then substitute the silk from milkweed pods. Gather the pods in the fall of the year, hang them away in paper bags to dry, and they will burst open before the winter is over and can be made up into pillows in the early spring.—Woman's Home Companion.

Her Generous Gift. Helen C. Juillard gave $22,000 toward building the new floating hospital for children just launched at New York. The boat is more than 250 feet long. The first crib on board has been endowed by a society of little Brooklyn girls. At the launching, as the vessel sped down the ways, a wire cage decorated with flowers opened, and out of it flew six of the Vermont's carrier pigeons, used in the naval service. They carried the news of the launching to the Brooklyn navy yard. Miss Catherine C. Dodge severed the cord attached to the basket and christened the vessel Helen C. Juillard.

King Humbert's Answer. Queen Margherita of Italy is passionately fond of white and wears it more than anything else. One day she asked the king if he thought she was growing too old to wear white dresses. The king replied that he would like to think the matter over. In the course of a week the queen received a note from her royal husband saying that his answer would be found in the accompanying box. The box contained three beautiful white dresses.

DEMOCRATIC TANGLE.

A Lively Fight Probable In Coming Bay State Campaign.

The Williams Interview Has Set the Pot Boiling.

Declares That He Is the Recognized Leader of Democracy in His State.

Boston, June 22.—The two Democratic factions in this state are at present engaged in a war of words and it is likely that in the coming campaign there will be a lively contest, the center of which will be in Boston. The trouble began as the result of an interview published from Bath with G. F. Williams, who ridiculed the idea that ex-Senator Gorman could secure a single Massachusetts delegate to the national convention. This drew from Congressman Fitzgerald a statement in which he roundly denounced Mr. Williams for assuming to speak for the Democracy of Massachusetts. The men represented by Mr. Fitzgerald are especially indignant at the report that Mr. Williams intended to have the delegates at large to the national convention selected at the state convention this fall instead of at a convention specially called for the purpose next spring.

W. S. McNary, secretary of the state committee, denies that such a plan has been seriously considered as yet, and when asked how the state committee could expect to control the selection of delegates by congressional districts to the national convention, he declared that he did not apprehend that these delegates would be forth in conflict with the present policy of the state committee. Mr. McNary recited some statistics relative to the activity of the state committee since its organization under Mr. Williams, not complimentary to the zeal of the old leaders when they were in control. The present disposition of the old machine men is to fight in the convention this fall, Mr. Williams and Alexander B. Bruce, last year's Democratic candidate for governor, would not deign to notice the Fitzgerald manifesto.

The Post this morning prints the following interview with Mr. Williams, he being quoted as follows: "When I spoke to the effect that even if Gorman or any other man of his stamp were to be nominated, Bryan would still be the nominee of the party, I made it clear, though it does not appear to have been clearly reported, that it is an utterly impossible condition to assume that Gorman should ever receive a Democratic nomination. The Democratic party has cast aside the principles of Gorman, and can never go back to them. Therefore, if Gorman should receive from the hands of any following which he might gather together a presidential nomination, there would still be left as a distinct body the party which has left Gormanism behind, and it was to this party that I referred when I said that Mr. Bryan would still be nominated even if Gorman were to get a nomination."

With reference to dictatorship and the reported attempts to wrest the leadership of his party in Massachusetts from his control, Mr. Williams said: "I supposed that I had ceased to be a dictator, as certain persons are pleased to put it, when I expressed my satisfaction with the construction of the state committee last year, and Mr. Bruce was given the gubernatorial nomination. I can assume, however, to be the leader of the party in Massachusetts, and I suppose that this is not untrue. Outside of Massachusetts I am recognized as the leader here because I have a place in the national councils of the party, and being now the Massachusetts member of the national committee I am regarded as the party representative."

"The reported attempts to relieve me of the party leadership in Massachusetts I apprehend are no more than are always to be expected. But if there is any formidable uprising in this direction I have failed to notice it. The Boston machine, from which a certain amount of opposition has been encountered regularly since the Chicago convention, is not a factor, and has never been an important factor at any of our state conventions since 1896. Its attempts to secure the upper hand have always been thwarted since the silver sentiment spread throughout the state and I became the leader of the Massachusetts Democracy."

"The Young Men's Democratic club has gone to pieces, and no opposition need be expected from that quarter."

When it was suggested to Mr. Williams that rumors of dissension among leaders in this city who have heretofore supported him are current, and that these men to the number of about 12 are ready to work for his overthrow, while still supporting Mr. Bryan, he dismissed it as idle talk, and said there is no real opposition to him. Even from the Boston machine, which has been an opposition element in state conventions since 1896, as stated in the above interview, Mr. Williams said there would be no opposition this year, because the machine has its city interests to look out for and it cannot afford to make a fight against him.

FATE WAS UNKIND.

Errors and Erratic Pitching Caused Boston to Lose the Game.

Chicago, June 22.—Errors and Killen's erratic pitching were responsible for the downfall of Boston. Misplays figured on both sides, but fate was most unkind to Boston.

The game was practically decided in the first inning, when Killen's judgment ran riot with well formulated rules of the game and two runs eventually resulted. The disaster to Killen happened after two men were on bases. Demontreville put a bunt towards third. Killen gobbled it up, but tried to catch Ryan at third instead of Demontreville at first. The ball went wild and Ryan and Green soon scored. There were other costly errors. Long made a mess of a bounder to short in the third, and Collins threw wild to second. Hits followed and three runs resulted. The game was clinched for the Orphans when Killen split the plate on Ryan in the seventh. When Stafford finally cornered the ball and had started to send it home, Jimmy was on third.

Original Investors Lose Heavily. Terre Haute, Ind., June 22.—The Terre Haute Electrical Street Railway company and the Citizens' Electric Light and Power company's plan to sell the street car line yesterday to Stone & Webster of Boston for $500,000. When Russell B. Harrison, son of ex-President Harrison, first took charge of the property, he bonded it for upwards of $1,500,000 and placed most of the bonds with local capitalists. The sale price of yesterday left a net loss of over $1,000,000, and many local men of means have been hard hit.

Our Country's Growth. Washington, June 22.—Director Merriam of the census bureau estimates that the coming census will show a population of about 72,500,000, taking into account, among other things, the falling off of immigration in recent years.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The wreck of the steamer Belvidere, at Cape May, Cuba, has broken in two, and the forward section has entirely disappeared.

The lively stable of F. M. Foote at Middletown, Conn., was destroyed by fire, causing $5000 damages. Several adjoining buildings were seriously damaged. Senator Hanna has arrived at London. He expresses himself as having keenly enjoyed his first voyage to England. He is suffering slightly from rheumatism and will go to Aix-Les-Bains, where he hopes to derive benefit from an interval of absolute rest.

Secretary Hitchcock has certified to the treasury that the annual payments of $5000 each to all the states and territories, except Alaska, for encouraging the state agricultural colleges, under the Morrill act, are now due. The payments will be made shortly.

The monthly statement of the collections of internal revenue shows that the total receipts during May, 1899, were $23,500,734, an increase over May, 1898, of $34,026,616.

Mrs. Kate Murphy, aged 45, stepped from a moving car at Haverhill, Mass., and sustained a fracture of the skull. She will probably die.

William Cross, 7 years old, was drowned at Worcester, Mass. The body was recovered.

The Bellevue Plow company of Bellevue, O., one of the largest concerns of its kind in the state, has gone into the hands of a receiver.

John Keough, 38 years old, went bathing at Providence and shortly after entering the water became helpless. On being taken out he became unconscious. He died shortly after reaching the hospital. Medical Examiner Perkins said the death was due to alcoholism and the shock of the cold water.

A large boatbuilding shop at Monument Beach, Mass., was totally burned, together with a boathouse and several smaller buildings. The total loss will aggregate between $10,000 and $15,000. The Chicago Journal says it is expected that James H. Eckels, ex-comptroller of the currency, will be selected as permanent president of the Chicago Union Traction company.

The Midland Railway company of England has ordered four sleeping cars of Pullman's Palace Car company of Chicago.

The London Daily Mail says that the Imperial government has practically decided upon a gradual reinforcement of the British troops in South Africa up to a total increase of 40,000.

NATIVES GIVE UP WEAPONS.

Wars in the Samcan Islands Are Resuming Normal Conditions.

Apia, June 14, via Auckland, June 22.—Apia and the country round about are resuming normal conditions. Americans and British express satisfaction at the decision of the commissioners. Mataafa has surrendered 1850 rifles, and the loyalists have given up 2000. After June 20 a heavy penalty will be enforced upon natives found with rifles in their possession. Mataafa promises to turn in more weapons.

The natives have returned to their homes. Malletoa Tanus was recognized as king by the commissioners of the three powers, and the decision of Chief Justice Chambers in the matter of the kingship was proclaimed valid and binding. Malletoa Tanus then abdicated in favor of the commissioners, who appointed a provisional government consisting of the consuls of the three powers, empowering a majority to act in all cases where unanimity is not required by the Berlin treaty.

Chief Justice Chambers continues to hold office and the various municipal officials are confirmed. Dr. William Solf has been authorized to act as president of the municipality of Apia. The commissioners expect to leave on June 28, but they have requested Chief Justice Chambers to remain. Their report recommends the abolition of the kingship and the appointment of a legislative council, consisting of three nominees of the interested powers, assisted by a native house.

Under this scheme the governor would have a veto over general and municipal laws, the nominees would be the departmental heads; consular, diplomatic and judicial functions would be abolished, revenue would be raised by an increase of duties and a diminution of the poll tax; the jurisdiction of the supreme court would be increased, the municipality, under a mayor and council, would be extended, and the postoffice would be under the general government. The British cruiser Porpoise, Captain Sturdee, left via Fiji on June 8. Among the Germans it is rumored that Dr. Solf will be the administrator in the new native government.

FRESH PROPOSALS MATURING.

Mediation and Arbitration Agreement May Yet Be Reached by Peace Conference. The Hague, June 22.—The best informed circles here do not share the gloomy views of the European press regarding the peace conference. After a week's adjournment, the arbitration committee met for a short time yesterday. Dr. Zorn of the German delegation and Frederick Holls of the United States delegation attending. Mr. Holls expressed himself as satisfied with the results of the trip he took to Berlin, in company with Dr. Zorn, and the German delegates have been instructed to take part in the deliberations of the arbitration committee, which will now continue brisk work pending the final decision of Germany.

The disinterested committee, to which was submitted the circular of Count Muraviev, has considered the second, third and fourth paragraphs in the sub-committee, the result being a negative vote upon all three, on the ground that it would be impossible to decide upon a satisfactory plan for checking the continued improvement in explosive ordnance.

The Russians, it is said, intend to introduce fresh proposals, and it is not doubted that the conference will reach important proposals on the last four paragraphs of the circular, supplementing the Geneva convention and the Brussels conference, and providing for mediation and arbitration.

Another Dreyfus Story.

London, June 22.—The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says: The Austrian war office has learned that the evidence of M. Casimir-Perier upon the Dreyfus trial will be startling. It will be shown that he holds the key to the affair, which has hitherto been withheld in order to prevent a serious conflict between France and Germany. M. Casimir-Perier will depose that a German official of high social and military rank confidentially gave the French government the information which led to the arrest of Dreyfus, but stipulated for silence as to the informant's name. Now M. Casimir-Perier will declare all.

And Yet No Cabinet.

Paris, June 22.—After an interview with President Loubet last evening M. Bourgeois consented to remain in Paris and assist in the negotiations until a new ministry is formed. He is strongly urging Waldeck-Rousseau to resume the task and is actively enlisting support for him. In the lobby of the chamber of deputies it is freely asserted that Delcasse will not undertake the responsibility; and, as Senator Waldeck-Rousseau is not disinclined to another trial, he may possibly be invited, although there is talk of Jean Sarrrien, Republican radical, as premier.

Meetings of Protest.

London, June 22.—The Madrid correspondent of The Daily Mail says: The budget proposals of the government are being bitterly opposed in nearly all the commercial centres. At Barcelona yesterday 6000 men demonstrated against the new taxes, and similar meetings of protest were held at other points.

Strike in Packing Houses.

Chicago, June 22.—Four hundred men in four packing houses at the stock yards left work yesterday, inaugurating a strike, which, the leaders say, will spread, and by July 1, the most of the houses in the yards. The men struck for an advance of 25 cents per day. The strikers' places were filled by colored men. Special policemen have been called to maintain order.

Almost a Mile a Minute.

New York, June 22.—Booker T. Murphy, who on June 30 will try to ride a mile, paced by a locomotive, in one minute or less, made a trial yesterday on a board track near Maywood, L. I. He was paced by an engine and one 6 seconds, better by several seconds than has ever been made before by a cyclist paced by a train.

New England Shoe Industry to Seek Trade In Foreign Lands.

Home Market Is Hurt by Western Competition.

No Chance to Effect Further Economies in the Makeup of Product.

Lynn, Mass., June 23.—The opinion is expressed that the export trade is to be the most prominent feature of the shoe manufacturing industry of New England in the future. A good beginning has been made already in the line of establishing foreign markets, and Lynn manufacturers are rapidly awakening to a realization of the importance of securing a foothold in the foreign field. Secretary Houghton of the New England
Shoe and Leather association says:

"If New England manufacturers had put forth half as much endeavor to get the trade of foreign countries as they have for that of the west," said Mr.
Houghton, "they would already have built up a market which would render them independent of the western trade.
The foreign market is just as near, to all intents and purposes, they can get a foothold in London, Cuba, Jamaica, or South Africa, as easily as they can in Illinois or the southern states; they can sell their shoes in these countries at prices which will bring them in larger profits; and still more, they do not have to wait for their return as they do when dealing with western buyers. Foreign purchasers pay for their goods the instant they are released from the custom house; in fact, I have known of the manufacturer getting paid before the shoes had left Boston."

"The old tradition that the western manufacturer could not make as good shoes as his New England competitor is being disproved by the facts of the case.
 Western-made shoes are being introduced into the eastern market every year in larger numbers, and are being sold today in the city of Lynn itself, although to a limited extent only. There are many western firms that turn out shoes which are equal in every respect to those made in New England, and the product of the vast number of factories which have sprung up there in the last few years is glutting the home market."

"New England shoe men must look abroad for relief. They have economized in the makeup of their shoes as much as they safely can; they have found it necessary to reduce the wages of their help to such a degree that the workers are getting much less than they should;
 thousands of competitors have sprung
 up to supply a market that was theirs
 once, and, in my opinion, the only hope of the industry attaining the prosperity
 it once enjoyed, lies in the development of the foreign market."

Mr. Houghton denies the statement which is made by some, to the effect that there is a tendency among Lynn manufacturers towards the making of cheaper grades of shoes. It is true that shoes are made at a lower expense than ever before, owing to improved machinery, better methods, economy, etc., but there is no general lowering of the standard of the goods.

One of the principal objects for which the new Journal of the Shoe and Leather association is to be published is to lend fresh impetus to the export trade movement. This Journal is to be called the Monthly Gazette. It is pointed out that for various reasons New England will be qualified to lead in the foreign trade,
 her shipping facilities, for instance, giving this section of the country a great advantage over the west.

WAS ENTICED AWAY.

Story of a Girl Who, It Was at First Supposed,
Had Been Kidnapped.

South Framingham, Mass., June 23.—
It has transpired that Helen Eames, the 11-year-old daughter of Alfred M. Eames, has not been kidnapped as had been feared, but was enticed away by a man who met her on the street shortly after she left her father's office yesterday and after her return home yesterday and her excitement had calmed down somewhat, she told the following story:
 "Wednesday afternoon, between 2 and 3 o'clock, a strange man met me on the street. He was dressed in dark clothes and was red-headed. He asked me if I wouldn't like to go down to the beach.
 He took me to Boston on the steam cars.
 When we got to Boston he took me on the electric cars to Revere beach. He got me something to eat, and then took me to a cottage. He took me to a room in it."

"Helen says he tried to assault her,"
 added her father, "but did not succeed,
 and the doctor says she has suffered no
 bodily injury in that way."
 Helen then goes on with her story as follows: "I was frightened and screamed so loud that the man left the room and locked me in. I didn't see him any more. I stayed there all night.
 This morning I got hold of a key and got out."

"I told some folks and they brought me to Boston to the Boston and Albany station." The little girl remained in the waiting room at the Boston and Albany for some time. Finally her brother found her there and brought her home on the 10:32 train.

Fall River Dentist Drowned.
Fall River, Mass., June 23.—Dr. Clarence L. Dodge, a well-known dentist, was knocked overboard from a sailboat off Read Bros.' boathouse last night and drowned. The accident was caused by the gilling of the boat as it was being brought in to an anchorage. Dr. Dodge leaves a widow, and had just completed

 a fine residence which he had not occupied.

Fifty Years Old.

Worcester, Mass., June 23.—The 50th anniversary of Holy Cross college was celebrated with elaborate ceremonies.
 Governor Wolcott was present, as were many Catholic dignitaries from all parts of New England. Bishop Neale of Portland, Me., the oldest living graduate, a member of the first class, 1849, was present. Diplomas were presented to 43 graduates. Following the awarding of prizes and the naming of distinguished graduates for degrees, there was an alumni banquet.

Another Version.

Greenwich, Conn., June 23.—In view of the statement made by Rev. W. M.
 Barrows of this place before the general association of Congregational Ministers of Connecticut at their meeting in New Haven, that he had been imposed upon in marrying Perry Belmont and Mrs.
 Sloane, Attorney Hubbard, who is credited with arranging for the wedding, made a statement, in which he denies that Mr. Barrows had been imposed upon.
 The clergyman had been censured by the ministers for performing the ceremony. Mr. Hubbard asserts that he had only a two-minute conversation with Dr. Barrows, in which he explained the matter fully, and the fee offered was $250. The next day a representative of Mrs. Sloane's waited upon the clergyman, and he doubled the fee.

The President Resting.

Adams, Mass., June 23.—The president's party drove to Howland park yesterday to see a ball game between the North Adams and the Williams college teams. North Adams won, 14 to 8.
 General Wood, governor general of Santiago province, arrived here yesterday.
 The president and General Wood had a long conference, after which General Wood left for New York. It is understood that he will have another conference with the president upon the latter's return to Washington. The remainder of the afternoon and the evening were passed in a quiet manner by the president. There are no special plans for today, and it will be chiefly spent in driving around the surrounding country.

A Thirty-Five-Mile Spin.

Woburn, Mass., June 23.—A horse and vehicle were appropriated yesterday by Anna Franson, aged 24, a native of Stockholm, recently from her native land, and before she could be overtaken she had driven the horse through Woburn, Wilmington, Billerica, Lexington, Arlington and through to Brighton, where she was detained. A distance of 35 miles was covered in three hours. The woman, it is believed, is mentally unbalanced, and took the rig with the idea of reaching a relative who resides in the west. The horse withstood the drive and rough treatment remarkably, and is apparently in good condition.

Acquitted of Murder Charge.

Rockville, Conn., June 23.—The trial of Frank Squires for the murder of Daniel Miner in South Coventry, on Feb. 18, which has been in progress in the superior court at Tolland since Tuesday, was concluded yesterday with the acquittal of the prisoner. The jury was out but 45 minutes, and only two ballots were taken. The death of Miner followed a card party at the home of Squires' parents, during which hard cider was freely drunk. It was alleged that Squires hit Miner over the head with a fence rail, fracturing his skull.

Two Men and a Boy Drowned.

Danbury, Conn., June 23.—James Rasmussen, aged 45, his son, John, aged 6,
 and Rudolph Johnson, aged 45, were drowned in the East Lake reservoir last night. Henry Seymour, the fourth member of the family, was the only one that escaped. The two men leave families. The party was out fishing, and Johnson lost his fishpole. In trying to recover it he fell into the lake, and while his companions were endeavoring to rescue him the boat was overturned.

Soldiers Have Yellow Fever.

Sanctiago, June 23.—In consequence of an outbreak of yellow fever the garrison of United States troops here has been removed from the old Spanish barracks to a comfortable camp in the hills on the road to El Moro. Thus far four soldiers have died of the fever, and there are 18
 cases in the hospital.

 dem record by scoring in one minute flat. They easily rode away from the

CLEVER SNEAK THIEF

Coolly Walks Out of a Boston Bank
With Ten Thousand Dollars.

Captured at New York and the Money Recovered.

Proves to Be an Old Offender, Although but Twenty-One Years Old.

New York, June 23.—The Metropolitan National bank of Boston was robbed of $10,000 in bills yesterday and the thief was arrested as he alighted from a train
at the Grand Central station last night.
The money was found on his person. He gave his name as George Shea, and said he was 21 years of age. His real name is Philip Lambelle.

The first knowledge Captain McClusky had of the robbery was the telegram received about noon. Shortly after that Chief Inspector Watts of Boston called him up on the telephone and told him
the story of the crime. A description was given of the man, and Captain Mc-Cluskey immediately notified policemen
along the river fronts, at the steamboat landings and the officers stationed at the railway stations to look out for the robber.

Detective Saehume, who was detailed to watch the Grand Central station, boarded the incoming 6 o'clock Boston train at 124th street, and walked from the first car through to the rear car, the smoker. Lambelle was sitting in the rear of the car enjoying a cigar. The detective made no move to arrest the robber until after the Grand Central station was reached. He followed Lambelle out to the sidewalk and there informed him that he was under arrest.
A short struggle ensued, and Lambelle was overpowered. He put his hand in his pocket and drew from it the roll of bills, containing $10,000, which he offered to part with for his freedom.

At police headquarters the prisoner said he was George Shea, 21 years of age, born in Canada, married, but refused to give his residence. He was recognized as an old offender. He was arrested in this city in September, 1896,
for stealing $24 from Zimmerman & Forshey, Wall street bankers. He was arrested in July, 1898, for attempting to steal some jewelry in Maiden Lane.
He was not tried for the first offense,
and on the second charge he was not convicted. He has also been arrested in Chicago. The roll of bills stolen from the Boston bank was untouched.
It consisted of two $1000 bills, two $500
bills and the remainder in $100 bills.

Although he gave his name as Shea,
the robber was recognized as Philip Lambelle by a letter in his pocket, which he had written to his mother in Chicago.

The story as told by the bank officials is that a man called at the bank about noon and made some inquiries as to where he could obtain a money order.
He carried on his conversation with

Here is something to be borne in mind. The late legislature provided that "no minor under 18 years of age
be employed in handling intoxicating liquors, or in handling packages containing intoxicating liquors, in any brewery or bottling establishment where intoxicating liquors are for sale or offered for sale." The penalty for forgetfulness of this is a fine of not less than $50, or imprisonment for not less than three months or both. —Milford Journal.

Squadron A, rode to camp with them
from New York city, enjoying the long ride like a veritable boy and taking to his camp fare as if he preferred it to the best menu Albany could afford.
Everybody knows that he does it because he likes it and does not care one rappee whether anybody else likes it or not. —South Framingham News.

The American boy in his teens
is not an omnivorous reader. A love for books is marked in the little fellow who, having recently learned to read,
finds pleasure in a constant indulgence
in their new accomplishment. Proportionally there are many more avid readers among the small boys
than among the larger; and, as a rule,
we have found that the small boy has an excellent taste. He is not to be deceived or led astray by the penny dreadful, but has a wholesome liking for good fighting fiction such as he finds in Henty and in Cooper, and in his much-treasured "Treasure Island."
The elder boys compared with these literal devourers of books cannot be called "readers," devoting more of their attention to the current periodicals, and especially those given to gossip of sporting nature, and to humor. The average American schoolboy at graduation is a very well informed youth, but he can hardly be said to be a well read one. —Litterature.

HOUGHS NECK.

Misses Justine, Agnes, Dorothy and Ethel Downey were quite badly shaken up and bruised this morning by the capsizing of their carriage at the corner of Sea street and Manet avenue.
The young ladies were returning home from the Quincy depot, where they had been to take their father, Mr.
Thomas Downey.

When near the corner of the streets
above mentioned, a limb of an overhanging tree struck their horse causing him to run. Directly in front of the young ladies was Littlefield's barge whose horses had also been struck by the same limb and frightened. To add to the confusion, one of Johnson's lumber wagons came along, and in the mix up the Downey carriage was overturned and the ladies thrown out.
Fortunately, however, the horse did not run. Miss Justine received a cut on the face and had her shoulder injured. Miss Agnes had her ear cut.
Miss Dorothy was injured in the side, and it is thought that the horse must have stepped upon her. Miss Ethel escaped with a few bruises. The other young ladies were also bruised and shaken up. The carriage was badly smashed.

Hold-Up Reported.

A man whose name could not be learned, entered a barber's shop at Wollaston Thursday morning. Exhibiting a roll of money, he said that he had been held up on Newport avenue by four thugs who tried to rob
him. He said he came out from Boston on a train which reached Quincy about 9 o'clock and started to walk back to Wollaston. When near the sewer trench on Newport avenue four men jumped out upon him and held him up. He put up a fight and just as they were getting the best of him, men at work on the sewer were coming to his assistance, at which they left. The man's face was badly cut and he looked as though he had been in some kind of a fight. The barber dressed his face, after which he took the train for Boston.

GRAND RECEPTION.

Class of 1899 of Woodward In- stitute Entertain.

The reception of the Class of 1899
of the Woodward Institute, on Thursday evening was the society event of the season. It was very largely attended by prominent people of the city and friends of the school. Among those present were noticed Supt. Lull of the public schools and wife, Representative Sprague, Rev. E. N. Hardy,
Rev. H. A. Philbrook of Middletown,
Conn., Rev. E. W. Preble and wife,
Rev. Edward Anderson, Councilman and Mrs. Freeman, Councilman and Mrs. Hill, Councilman Pinkham,
Henry H. Faxon, C. E. Finch, Jr., principal of the Wollaston and Massachusetts Fields schools, and wife, T.
B. Pollard of the Washington school and wife, Charles Sampson of the Quincy school, John O. Hall, Jr., sub-master of Adams academy and wife, and teachers of the Quincy schools.

The whole building was open for inspection, and was fragrant with the perfume of ferns and flowers. The hall was profusely decorated.

Miss Small, the principal, and the officers of the class received in the easterly corner. The officers are: Miss Grace Eaton, president, Miss Katharine Frances Garrity vice president, Miss Carolyn Alden Bates secretary, and Miss Eva Loring Felts treasurer. The entire junior class acted as ushers and receiving committee, and also served light refreshments during the evening.

For the third year music was furnished by Richardson's orchestra,
both during the reception and for the dance which followed from 9.30 to 11.
The hall was too crowded for the dancing but it was nevertheless greatly enjoyed. It could hardly have been otherwise with such inspiring music
and gay throng of young happy people. Success to the Woodward is the wish of all.

Champion of State.

It is generally admitted that Mr.
Atherton of the Wollaston golf club
by his recent victories in open tournaments is the champion of the State.
The Post says, "It is hardly probable that Atherton will accept the challenge of Mr. Lockwood for the Commonwealth club for a thirty-six-hole match
for the State championship."

Atherton has entered nearly, if not quite all, of the open events during the past three months, while Lockwood
has failed to come into these contests.
He might have gone to Myopia, which was on the 10th inst., where the State championship was practically decided,
and which Atherton won, but he did not put in an appearance. He has already met Atherton twice, once meeting defeat while in the other contest last Monday the result was a tie. If the Wollastons play the deciding match with the All-Newtons, Lockwood will undoubtedly have a chance at Atherton,
but it will only be for eighteen holes.

Supt. Aldrich Out.

The Newton school committee continues to stand 9 to 3 against Superintendent Aldrich. At a meeting of the board Thursday evening resolutions in support of Supt. Aldrich were offered by his adherents and voted down, 9 to 3. This, apparently, indicates that Mr. Aldrich will not be re-elected at the annual election next Wednesday evening.

The meeting marks the end of a long and bitter struggle between the school board and Supt. Aldrich, which has attracted the attention of educational circles throughout New England.

The trouble originated with a number of citizens who claimed that Supt.
Aldrich, was too arbitrary and dictatorial. This feeling grew in intensity, and was shared by certain members of the school board.

Slowly but surely the majority of members in support of Mr. Aldrich became a minority, and the matter was made a vital issue at the last municipal campaign.

Mr. Aldrich was formerly principal of the Adams school in this city and in April 1883 became superintendent of Quincy schools. He resigned in 1891 to go to Newton.

MILTON.

The lawn party under the auspices of the Ladies' Sewing Circle, of the Congregational church, Monday evening, adjoining the grounds of Mrs.
Drake and Mrs. Carlton on Granite avenue, was a pronounced success.
The grounds were illuminated with hundreds of Chinese lanterns and looked very pretty. A hurdy gurdy furnished music. Refreshments were on sale.

The alarm from Box 43 at 11.20 A.M.
Tuesday was for a fire in the barn of Mr. Thorpe on Adams street. The building was badly damaged.

The grammar school graduation was held Tuesday, and the High school Thursday evening. The High school reception was held Friday evening.

The Milton schools closed Thursday
for the summer vacation.
Rev. Mr. Newman of New Jersey,
said to be one of the best preachers

The Boston, Milton and Brockton street railway line is fast nearing completion. The trolley wire is up on the East Milton end of the line and the rails are laid within a few hundred feet of the end of the line. July 4 should see the line in operation.

The game of ball Saturday at East
Milton will be between the Milton A.
A. and the Clover A. C.

Woodward Alumnae.

A large music room of the Woodward Institute was the scene of a very pleasant gathering Monday evening,
it being the occasion of the first annual meeting of the Alumnae Association of that school. About fifty, including the present graduating class and members of the faculty, were present.

The president, Miss Eugenia M.
Hatch, '97, called the meeting to order with a few words of welcome.
She spoke of the aim of the association, and the need of individual effort on the part of each member to promote and strengthen the good work of the school in the light of its motto,
"Strong to live."

The following programme was then carried out: Solo, Miss Eloise P.
Flood, '96; Prophecy of the class of
'99, Miss Eva L. Phillips '99; class poem written by Miss Ruth Bassett
'99, and read by Miss Helen Chalm.
'99; paper, "The Graduates' Outlook," Miss Ruth Randall, '96; piano solo, Miss Eugenia M. Hatch, '97.

An informal social with music and dancing followed, during which ices and lemonade were served. At the close of the evening all gathered round the piano and joined in singing
the school songs.

A great deal of enthusiasm and interest was manifested by all, and it was agreed that the first meeting had been a very successful one.

Two fine pictures presented to the school by the Alumnae were on exhibition in the assembly hall, as was also one in the library given by the graduating class.

The poem follows in full:

We pause tonight, uncertain on the threshold,
And gaze back o'er the five swift years gone
by,
To seek from out the treasured store of blessings
A Bethlehem's star in our ambition's sky.

A motto that will lead us ever safely
Thro' dangers rife, and ever to us give
The strength we need to cheer and to inspire us
That we may know the truth of "Strong to Live."

The past has shone beneath the sun of girlhood,
Its happy rays on trouble and on care
Fell as the moon shines o'er the water's surface,
And the pilot of the rocks is unaware.

But break of day displays the jagged ledges
All rough and brown outside the rippling bay;
And dawn of womanhood alike discloses
The rocks of disappointment in our way.

But when the pilot sees the present dangers,
He steers his course with care toward port
and home,
And we must look ahead with God as pilot,
And every barrier see and overcome.

As children straying from the home protection
To seek alone the paths which seem so new,
Yet feel content because a loving mother
Waits their return, their interests to review.

So each of us, departing, feels the blessing
The parent school bestows—so dear at last,
And mutely we accept the loving God-speed,
A life bond twixt the future and the past.

We bear away a thousand, thousand blessings,
To build the noble future we have planned,
And eager are our hearts to brave each hardship,
To fight, although the fight be single-hand.

For, gazing out beyond the peaceful present,
Our hearts are strong, before no strife they quail,
And in the youthful lexicon before us
We search in vain—there's no such word as fail.

May Woodward ever live, and ever prosper,
A monument to him whose name it bears;
And may the ages hold his gift as sacred
For what it stands—for what of life it shares.

And to posterity, may school and founder
Go down e'er blessed, ay, thrice and twice thrice blessed.

And to her who has kept its sacred mission,
Our future's work will be her help confessed.

Wednesday the ticket seller reported that the number of twenty-five cent

REPORTED DEAD.

A Co. K Boy in Critical Condition from an Accident.

It was reported Thursday night that Alphonse A. Garbutt, a member of Co. K, 5th Mass. Regt., U. S. V., had died at the Frost hospital from concussion of the brain, caused by being run into by a bicycle rider. According to the report he was about Chelsea on the night of June 19, with friends and was run into by a bicycle rider and knocked down, the bicycle rider escaping in the confusion. He was somewhat dazed by the fall, but picked himself up and started for home. Later in the night he was found lying in the street by an officer who arrested him for drunkenness. The next morning in court he appeared dazed and was released and went home. Later, as he appeared to grow worse he was taken to the Frost hospital, where it was learned that he had concussion of the brain.

At the Frost hospital, Che sea, this noon the Ledger learned that Mr. Garbutt was not dead but that he was in a critical condition, and that there was but little change from the day he was admitted. He has frequent convulsions but the physicians in charge are hopeful that he will come out of it all right. Their diagnosis shows that he has concussion of the brain.

Mr. Garbutt is well known in Quincy, where he was employed as a sculptor by Herbert W. Beattie. He was a strictly temperate young man, and remained so throughout his service as a volunteer. It is, therefore, not believed that he was under the influence of liquor when found by the police, but was suffering from the fall he had received.

No Formal Report.

Washington, June 23.—Admiral Kautz reported his arrival at San Francisco by telegraph to the navy department, but made no report upon Samoan affairs. This probably will be committed to the mails. His official superiors are fully satisfied with his conduct while at Apia. There is a disposition to accept the action of the high commission as satisfactory, mainly because the commission has been on the ground, has heard all the evidence, and is presumably best able to determine the means of adjusting the many conflicting interests.

UNCLE RUSSELL SAGE.

Uncle Russell Sage insists that it is an honor to die rich, and all his immediate relatives agree with him.—Boston Herald.

It is said to see Uncle Russell Sage voted down in his own church. Still, let's hope he will not foreclose on the mortgage.—Exchange.

Russell Sage is also convinced that the people of this country are being over-educated. Some of these days they may become so thoroughly educated that they will decline to be plucked in Wall street.—Columbus Press Post.

Russell Sage has given $50,000 to the Women's hospital of New York. Has he caught it so soon from Carnegie? If he keeps it up in the rash manner he has begun, he will not carry out his resolution to die rich.—Chicago Tribune.

It is said that Russell Sage has a habit of strolling around with his hands behind his back. This looks as though he had laid the base of his great fortune as a careful and economic member of some state legislature and old habits still cling to him.—Kansas City Star.

Pear trees thrive best in a heavy soil, while quince trees require rather a damp soil.

If the current worm makes its appearance, dust the foliage with white bellflower.

If the web caterpillar shows on the trees, cut off all the affected limbs and burn them immediately.

With rhubarb and asparagus it is best to sow radish seed, as they are slow to germinate, and the weeds may smother them.

Wherever pruning is needed to improve the shape of the trees or shrubs, it may be done at any time, but the larger wounds should be painted over.—Exchange.

KINCAIDE RESIGNS.

Wishes Co. K Success and Has No Hard Feelings.

Like a good soldier, Capt. Henry L. Kincaide of Co. K did not retire under fire, but now that the charges trumped up to get him out of the command have fallen short of the mark like a spent bullet, he realizes that another man is wanted for captain and gracefully retires.

His resignation forwarded a few days ago was reluctantly accepted by the Adjutant General. Col. Whitney, C. I. Weaver and others speak highly of the character and military ability of the young man, and hope to see him in higher positions in the militia service.

Mr. Kincaide joined Co. K twelve years ago, and steadily advanced, officer by office, to the command of the company, and went to the front at great personal sacrifice when the call came for volunteers in the war with Spain.

Like the officers of other companies, not only in the Fifth regiment, but in the Sixth, Eighth and Ninth, who issued orders, some feeling was engendered among the liberty-loving young men who chafed under military discipline. The only feeling against Capt. Kincaide was, that he was too strict a disciplinarian. Yet it was this that made Co. K the company it is. Capt. Kincaide was thoughtful of the comfort of his men and the people at home had confidence in him, so that the members of Co. K fared fully as well, and perhaps a little better than any other company in the Fifth.

Mr. Kincaide, when interviewed by the Ledger said he had no feeling against any member of Co. K, and wished the company success. He should always have a kindly interest in Co. K and should be pleased to assist the company when possible.

Sunday, June 25, will be children's day at the Washington Street Congregational church. Rev. Edward Anderson will preach to the children at the morning service, at 10:45 o'clock. The singing will be by the school. A cordial invitation is extended to all to be present on this occasion.

No Formal Report.

Washington, June 23.—Admiral Kautz reported his arrival at San Francisco by telegraph to the navy department, but made no report upon Samoan affairs. This probably will be committed to the mails. His official superiors are fully satisfied with his conduct while at Apia. There is a disposition to accept the action of the high commission as satisfactory, mainly because the commission has been on the ground, has heard all the evidence, and is presumably best able to determine the means of adjusting the many conflicting interests.

Town Swept Away.

Austin, June 23.—The old town of Carrizo, county seat of Zapata county, has been swept away by the Rio Grande river flood. The town had a population of several hundred Mexicans of the poorer class. Their houses were made of adobe, which melted away when the water struck them. The Rio Grande is higher than has been known for 40 years, and it continues to rise rapidly.

Children Caught by Tide.

Summerside, P. E. I., June 23.—Four little girls, the eldest 11 years of age, the youngest 6 years, were drowned in sight of their homes here. They were five in the party, which had gone clam digging. The girls had wandered along the sand bars about the shore for several hours, and before they noticed it the tide came in and surrounded them. They immediately started to wade ashore, but only one, Aggie Gallant, succeeded in reaching a place of safety. Before help could reach the spot, all the others had perished.

Eno's Case Again in Court.

New York, June 23.—A motion was made in the court of general sessions yesterday to dismiss the bill of John C. Eno, former president of the Second National bank, who defaulted for $3,000,000 of the bank's money and fled to Canada. There were 12 indictments found against Eno June 11, 1898. Eno came back from Canada Feb. 1, 1899, and his father has made good the loss to the bank. Eno was admitted to $10,000 bail. The court took the papers under advisement.

Big Reduction by Grand Trunk.

Chicago, June 23.—A Grand Trunk has issued a new tariff on oats and corn, which it is thought will lead to a competitive cut by other roads. On both the domestic and export commodity the rate went down 4 cents on oats and 6 on corn. This move came as a surprise to shippers. The new tariff on corn for New York is now 11 cents and that on oats 13 cents. Up to Wednesday night the rate was 17 cents.

MR. TODD'S WAGON.

WHEN HE HAD BUILT IT, IT WAS A BEAUTY.

But in spite of having exhausted all his skill as a wheelwright there was one little thing he had forgotten.

"Look, gardener?" exclaimed a Devonshire clergyman's little son to the man who was mowing the grass on the plot in front of the rectory windows. "I'll show you my new magic pocket bank. See here; I put the pennies in this hole, and the box won't open until there's a shilling's worth. Isn't that so, father?"

The rector, who was standing close at hand, replied in the affirmative, and the old gardener first made a close examination of the little invention, and then declared that he reckoned 'twas "a case of Tommy Todd's wagon."

"That was 'fore your time, sir," he told the clergyman, "cos ole Pa'son Morris 'ad the buryin' o' th' man after he was dead. Tommy Todd was a carpenter, wheelwright an' erect builder, so to speak, all in wan, an' he lived down where th' Independent chapel be to-day, an' he'd got a workshop fitted up behind 'is dwellin' ouse, 'andy like. Squire 'Awkins—he's up in churchyard, too, just now underneath nigh a ton o' marble tombstone—bordered a farm wagon o' th' ole chap, which he was to build for un at leisure; an' mortal tall nosed wos Tommy 'bout th' construction o' that there same."

"I wants a prime piece o' plank, wif-out no shakes in un," he sed wan day to a lawful timber merchant. "You may reserve yer inferior stuff for hoar-marks—'d you heer? I be buildin a wagon for Squire 'Awkins o' Bickety Barton, therefore I'll hev superior growth."

"An' that's th' spirit he approached everybody in. 'My customer, th' squire,' he'd say, or 'I spawse you ban't acquaint' w' my client, Mr. 'Awkins?' He was that uppish that th' village people sed they wished th' wagon was completed, fur Tom Todd 'ud never regan 'is natural nature till he'd got un o' 'is premises."

"O'wever, wan day us heard tell th' job wos finished an' th' th' wagon wos 'pon view from your to vive that day; not later, 'cos he wos goin to be vetchd away at six. Well, sir, most all th' 'abituants turned out fur to see ole Tommy's work. There wos Lippety Harris as 'adn't bin out fur nigh three year—he cum down 'pon th' support o' 'is two cuzzins—an' Bertha Crank—blind as a bat n' near as deaf's a haddock—he turned up an' feeled th' conveyance, all answer from shafts to wheel spokes, that her might call un to memory 'if ever he meet w' a haccident an' killed enny wan."

"Us all squeeged into th' workshop an' samined that there piece o' wheel-rightship minoot. He wos strong an' trusty, an' there wos th' squire's name an' address painted out vivid 'pon th' tailboard so feteelin as you like! Some-ow or other a whisper o' th' 'citement reached 'is purchaser's ears hisself, an' darned if he didn't happen down in th' flesh 'bout six o'clock, in company w' th' 'n an' he wos as was to take 'is 'new belongin' 'ome."

"'W'attee think o' un, squire?' I axed. 'Tolerable tasty, eh, sir?' 'Yas, Finch,' sed he, 'he's all my fancy painted un, but strikes me there's a disappointment ahead fur pore ole Todd, nevertheless!'"

"Well, pa'son, I furgot misself entirely an' swaered a rale stout, clear th' latmosphere oath. 'Nansense!' I replied. 'There ain't another wagon like th'ie in Europe. Look at 'is air o' finish, an' th' them curly wig tails to th' letters!'"

The squire agreed as there suttently won't another sich nowhere, an' then he sed to Tom:

"'How'm 'ee a-goin to get un out th' workshop, Todd?'"

"'My life! You should 'a' zeed th' look 'pon everybody's face. Us stared an' gapped at there wagon like as if he wos a furrin language as us didn't know the handl'n o' un. Th' squire wos cooter than us all. There weren't no gettin' o' Tom's handiwork out o' th' workshop by high fut o' wall each side th' doorway. Then th' wimmin all beginned to 'owl an' wape, an' us men swaered unchecked, cos oaths wos so 'propriate to th' 'casion."

"'Poor ole Tommy Todd tried to hang hisself later in the evenin, but 'is father-lav cut un down, straightened out 'is neck ag'n so well's he could, an' th' squire met un handsome 'bout the wagon. Fd, arter all, there 'twus!'"—Nuggets

Mother Hubbards in Porto Rico.

The introduction by the Americans of the Mother Hubbard to the little girls of Porto Rico was a perfectly natural step to be taken and only followed the precedents of earlier historical effort in the way of clothing. It has never been generally known where the Mother Hubbard originated. It is a comfortable garment, not altogether beautiful. Public opinion has been raised against it in times past, and its too common use has been tabooed by popular taste. The origin of the gown, which makes it so appropriate for the Porto Rican children, was in Honolulu, where the missionaries in the early days designed it for the native belles. It had many advantages, the chief among them being that it was light and cool and easy to make, as Honolulu maidens were not skilled in needlework. History does not state whether the gown received its name in Honolulu in those early days, but undoubtedly it did. The missionaries, devoting their lives to the work of doing good to others, had but little time for reading outside their religious books, but they were all of them familiar with the classic works of Mother Goose. The Mother Hubbard of her annals was an eminently respectable dame, and in the bare state of her closet she sufficiently resembled the imprudent Honolulu dames to make her name seem to the not too critical missionaries a very acceptable one for the newly invented frock for the tropics.—New York Times.

A Woman's "Cycling Rest."

With the American woman's mania for organization it is a wonder that we have no "cycling rests" designed especially and particularly for the wheelwoman. The lonely woman, pedaling her weary way about the country, does not care to stop for rest and refreshment, no matter how weary she may be, at wayside hostleries full of "jolly good fellows," who think any woman on a bicycle and alone is "fair game" to flirt with. She doesn't care to be grinned at by the beer serving attendant when she meekly asks for a cup of tea, and when she finally swallows the bitter brew of the beer inn and spins away it doesn't make her homeward ride any pleasant (although it may accelerate her pace) to hear the piazza comments on proud persons who won't pass the time of day and allusions to another meeting, a mile or two farther on. English cycling associations have little cottages on the line of good roads, where even nonmembers may stop and have a cup of tea or a glass of milk and sit down to rest undisturbed. Such an institution as this would do more to encourage the pursuit of health than all the weighty, encyclopedic papers on hygiene and soul culture and communion with nature that Sorosis reads during the whole season.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Unless You Love Him.

Intimate acquaintance, congeniality of tastes and purposes, respect, admiration, material and social advancement—all these may appeal at a time to the young woman or the young man as furnishing the possible material for a prosperous venture into matrimony. But to those of us who are on this side of the married life, with years of experience to give us insight, there never was a greater fallacy. Respect and admiration may do for friendship; marriage absolutely demands love. You remember that when the Apostle Peter sums up the qualities that go to make the perfect Christian character he does not begin by urging the necessity of faith. He says, "Add to your faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge." It is as if he would have us know that faith is not to be regarded simply as an adornment to the Christian character. It is a prerequisite. It is the atmosphere in which the Christian life has its breath and being. So it is with love when the time comes to settle the gravest question of life.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Sailor Hat Must Suit Face.

In the devising of sailor styles a great many things have to be considered. There is your tall, thin woman, who doesn't top off with the same straw sky piece that would adorn a stout and briefer sister. The women with the bulging brows have to be regarded, too, in these days of advanced femininity. Then there are the moon faced girl and her hatchet faced opposite, the woman with the long nose, and her friend with the square jaw. Miss Pert with retousse proboscis has a style of her own. The long headed and square headed girls all come in for their share of attention. Add to this the consideration of sailors for yachting, golfing, sailing, walking, and the possibilities of variety become impressive. Then there is rough and smooth colored material to work in, with quality regulating price to be considered. That about exhausts the subject from the manufacturers' standpoint. Every woman thinks she knows just the style of sailor hat that will suit her best. Sometimes she does—not always.

Women Smokers in France.

Statistics have been taken in France of the spread of the habit of smoking, and it has been discovered that within the last year the cigarette and even, astonishing as it may appear, the pipe have found an enormous increase in their female votaries. The fashion of smoking among women is no longer confined to the secrecy of a private room. The Duchess de Uzès and the Marchioness de la Roche foucauld now publicly take a cigarette after dinner, and whatever these ladies permit themselves may safely be taken as a sign of the highest bonnet. The statistics alluded to show that 807,000 cigarettes are yearly consumed in France.

STRONG COMBINATION.

New French Cabinet to Be Presided Over by Waldeck-Rousseau.

An Early Fall Is Predicted by Its Opponents.

Illustration of Manner in Which Dreyfus Case Has Revolutionized French Politics.

Paris, June 23.—The cabinet formed yesterday by Senator Waldeck-Rousseau is a strong combination and is wholly in favor of Dreyfus; but, since it contains such extreme men as Marquis De Gallifet and M. Millerand, it can hardly be expected to have a long career. The socialist party have been declared that they will not in any way be bound by or responsible for M. Millerand's acts as a minister. The latter, however, is a powerful debater, who will share with M. Waldeck-Rousseau the brunt of defending the cabinet in the chamber, most of the other ministers being far less skilled in debate. M. Waldeck-Rousseau, who is perhaps the most successful pleader at the French bar, loses an income of $20,000 by becoming minister. M. De Lanesman, minister of marine, is famous for his advocacy of an Anglo-French entente. M. Jean Dupuy, minister of agriculture, is no relation of the former premier. The new cabinet completed is as follows:

Senator Waldeck-Rousseau, president of the council of ministers and minister of the interior.
Minister of foreign affairs, M. Delcasse.
Minister of war, General Marquis de Gallifet.
Minister of marine, M. De Lanesman.
Minister of justice, M. Monis.
Minister of finance, M. Caillaux.
Minister of commerce, M. Millerand.
Minister of public instruction, M. Leygues.

Minister of the colonies, M. Decrais.
Minister of agriculture, M. Jean Dupuy.
Public works, M. Pierre Baudin.
The senator, accompanied by the new cabinet ministers, proceeded to the Elysee palace at 6:10 p. m. to present his colleagues to President Loubet.

On leaving the Elysee palace, M. Waldeck-Rousseau visited M. Dupuy, the sitting premier, to whom he presented the president's decree, naming him the new premier. The new cabinet will meet today.

Except in connection with the Dreyfus affair the new ministry has little interest and is received rather coolly. The Dreyfusites are delighted, and the anger of the anti-Dreyfusites know no bounds. Its opponents predict that the cabinet will fall next Monday, owing to the incongruous combination of Marquis De Gallifet and M. Millerand.

It is understood that the cabinet will permit a meeting between Dreyfus and his wife. Brest remains calm. Its inhabitants are for the greater part Dreyfusites, and it is said there would be no danger of a hostile demonstration even if Dreyfus landed during the day time.

The appointment of General Marquis De Gallifet as minister of war is an extraordinary example of the way in which the Dreyfus case has revolutionized political conditions. For years past the general has been the bugaboo of the extremists, not only because of his monarchical sympathies, but on account of the rigorous manner in which he took part in repressing the communists. His entry into the cabinet is undoubtedly due to his attitude towards the Dreyfus case, which has been throughout favorable to Dreyfus, although he holds that the proclamation of the prisoner's innocence should not include placing the responsibility for the apparent judicial blunders upon the general staff.

Le Courrier Du Soir publishes an interview with General De Gallifet, the new minister of war, who is represented as saying: "I am reproached for my attitude in 1871. At that time I served the majority, the constitution and the law as a soldier on the active list. I have remained silent until now. Today I find the army talking far too much. I am, as I was 20 years ago, at the service of the majority, the constitution and the law."

M. Alexandre Millerand, Radical Socialist, in an interview published by the same paper, is reported as saying: "The Republicans have concluded an armistice in order to meet the needs of the republic and to restore things to their proper places in the army, the magistracy and the administration."

M. Debiowitz, the Paris correspondent of the London Times, says: "M. Gallifet, the outgoing minister of the colonies, had the audacity to say yesterday that he was 'waiting for justice to pronounce' in the case of Dreyfus. This proves that the Dupuy cabinet wanted Dreyfus condemned again in order to absolve the Dupuy of 1894, who was compromised equally with Mercler, but, in this strange affair, at moments of supreme crisis, some unforeseen event always intervenes to prevent the triumph of inquiry. Faure's death and Dupuy's fall again saved the situation."

Ministerial Crisis Not Imminent.
Madrid, June 23.—Premier Silveira denies that there is any foundation for the report that a ministerial crisis is imminent. Senor Duran, minister of justice, says the opposition is trying to divide the cabinet, but will not succeed. The premier described the opposition to the budget as of the superficial character always engendered when new taxes are proposed. Minister of Finance Vilaverde is disposed to accept certain amendments of the budget.

Boers Ready to Fight.
Berlin, June 23.—The Kolnische-Zeitung publishes a dispatch from The Hague asserting that Dutch official circles are aware that the Transvaal government is preparing to make a most stubborn defense in the event of war with Great Britain, and is arming in the most complete fashion.

WILLIS AT HIS BEST.

Orphans Barely Saved From a Shutout In Final Game of the Series.

Chicago, June 23.—Moses split even with Chicago on the present series by winning the game by the score of 5 to 1. The game was decided with the stick, but errors of Demontreville gave Boston three unearned tallies for good measure. Manager Seale changed his mind and put Willis on the slab for the second time during the series. Willis was at his best. With excellent control he had the Orphans guessing from the start. There was but one hit in any one inning. One came in the first. It happened to be a two-bagger, and, as a base on balls had preceded it, the Orphans were saved from a shutout.

Phyle, the Western league youngster, with whom Manager Burns has had varied luck, officiated for the Orphans. He was delightfully easy for Boston.

Looks Bad For Coughlin.

Chicago, June 23.—Indictments charging Dan Coughlin and his bartender, William Armstrong, with jury bribing were returned yesterday. Coughlin served several years in prison for complicity in the murder of Dr. Cronin, but was acquitted on a second trial. The indictment against Coughlin individually alleges that May 13 he sought to corrupt Juror John F. Taylor by offering him a bribe of $200. Taylor was then serving on a jury in the case of John Carbine vs. the Illinois Central railroad.

DAN COUGHLIN.

Welcome News.

Philadelphia, June 23.—The news of the safety of the British steamship Ethelwood, Captain Henshaw, which sailed from this port with a crew of 14 men June 7 for Port Antonio, Jam., was contained in a cablegram received here yesterday by the Quaker City Fruit company from Nassau, N. P., which harbor the vessel has just reached. All harbor the vessel has just reached. All on board are reported well. The Ethelwood broke her thrust shaft on June 10 when two days out from the Delaware capes. It is presumed the Ethelwood reached Nassau under sail.

Anderson Did It In 1:03.

Syracuse, June 23.—Local racing men dispute the claim that Charles Murphy's mile in 1:05 is a record. On Aug. 9, 1896, it is claimed, Evan E. Anderson, riding behind a locomotive and one car on the St. Louis, Chicago and St. Paul railroad, made the mile in 1:03. The fact was generally printed in the newspapers and magazines at the time, they state.

Unsettled conditions will prevail from the Mississippi valley to the Atlantic coast. Increasing cloudiness and slightly warmer weather will prevail in New England, followed by showers; light easterly winds.

CASE OF MOSES CHASE.

Alleged Abductors Confend That He Can Manage His Own Affairs.

New York, June 23.—Moses F. Chase of Lafayette, Ind., prospective possessor of an estate estimated at between $600,000 and $800,000, is zealously guarded from callers at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel by his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Duhme of Cincinnati, and a private detective has been engaged to head off intruders. Chase, who recently attained the age of 21 years, is declared to be mentally incompetent by his father, Frederick S. Chase. His uncle and aunt emphatically contend that he is of sound mind, and fully able to manage his own affairs and the estate left to him by his mother. They also indignantly deny that there was an abduction, and claim that their nephew accompanied them to the east of his own free will. Young Chase, accompanied by his father and Mr. Hass, a nurse from the sanitarium in which the young man had been a patient, started from Flint, Mich., to Lafayette to appear in court, and were met in Detroit by Mr. and Mrs. Duhme, who succeeded in getting the patient to accompany them in a carriage. They went from Detroit to Cincinnati, then came to this city.

No Settlement Reached.

Cleveland, June 23.—Three hundred men attacked two cable cars yesterday at the corner of Cedar and East Madison avenues. All the windows in the cars were smashed with stones. A woman in one of the cars was hit with a stone, but not seriously hurt. Motorman Small was hit in the head and knocked down with a brick. The police dispersed the mob. A man boarded a Euclid avenue car, struck the motorman several times in the face with his fist and then escaped. The motorman was badly injured. The hope of a settlement of the strike was shattered last night when the strikers' meeting rejected by a unanimous vote the proposition submitted by the company to the special committee of the city council, and to which the strikers' committee had agreed. After rejecting the proposition of the company the strikers began drawing up a petition of their own, which will be submitted to the council committee.

Roosevelt on Trusts.

Chicago, June 23.—Governor Roosevelt arrived here yesterday on his way to Las Vegas, N. M., to attend the reunion of the rough riders. June 24, the anniversary of the fight at Las Guasimas. The governor, when interviewed, laughingly dismissed any reference to himself as a presidential candidate. Asked about trusts and the proposed conference of governors to consider the question, he said by the representative of Texas, Colonel Roosevelt said: "The poor man, when he fights the rich man, is his own worst enemy. Legislation along the right lines is the only solution of the trust agitation. The rich and poor should be treated alike in the matter of property assessments and taxation. I wish we had a few more such people in this country of the type of Mrs. Emmons Blaine."

GIVE THE CHILDREN A DRINK

called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee but is free from all its injurious properties. Grain-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder, and children, as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about 1-4 as much as coffee. 15 and 25c.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. Army & Navy Tablet Co., 17 East 14th St., New York.

The class of '99 at Harvard had for the important office of Secretary one of the distinguished family of Adams of Quincy. Arthur Adams, who received 281 votes of his classmates for this position out of a whole of 423, has been very popular with his fellows during his college course. This is instanced by his being the first man in his class to be elected to the "Dickey." To many people the most important officer at Harvard is, without doubt, the class secretary. He is much in evidence before and on Class Day, and the office belongs to him for life, or as long as he chooses to keep it. Adams was born May 20, 1877, in Quincy, and is the son of John Quincy Adams, Harvard, '55, and Fannie Crowninshield. Young Adams has been known throughout his college course as a manager of more college teams than any man in his class. He was assistant manager of the '99 Freshman nine and was manager of the '99 Sophomore crew, the '99 Junior Baseball
nine, and is manager of the present
'Varsity Ball team. He is as well a member of the Institute of 1777, the
D. K. E., the A. D. club, the Hasty Pudding club and the Memorial Society.—Boston Budget.

A lawn party was held Thursday evening at the residence of Mr.
Brown on Farrington street.

Her Predictions Good.
Miss Eva M. Brown of Mr. Faxon's temperance bureau, when seen this morning by the Ledger in relation to the decision of Judge Bond said, the decision was perfectly satisfactory to the promoters of the law, which was never intended to include or reach newspapers, but was aimed more at drummers who canvassed in no-license
towns and delivered their goods by express. She had the utmost confidence in Judge Bond, and she never knew of a decision of his in a liquor case
that had been overruled by the Supreme court. Miss Brown further stated, that when the Hayes bill was before the Legislature this year that she appeared before the committee and took the position that the Supreme court would never hold newspapers liable under Section 4 of the so called Faxon law, and that legislation on that point was needless. She argued that the law should be left as it was and let the Supreme court rule upon it.

An Exchange.
Carpenter Raffalle and Gusseppe
Acampama, two South Quincy Italians, decided a few days ago that they would go into business manufacturing powder. Raffalle had the money and Acampama claimed to have the experience and brains necessary. Thursday Raffalle gave Acampama $50 of his wealth to go to Boston and buy a boiler. The latter went but did not buy the boiler, although he said he did.
This morning Acampama arose early,
and packing his grip, left town without leaving his address. Later Raffalle reported the matter to the police and Inspector McKay hunted the Italian section of Boston for the fellow
but was unable to find him. Now Raffalle has the experience and Acampama the money.

CABINET WILL DECIDE.

Dreyfus Case Will Not Be Left For Parliament to Dispose Of.

Hostile Groups to Organize a Combined Opposition.

Head of War Department Appears to Be a Much Discussed Individual.

Paris, June 24.—The radical socialists have decided to support the government, provided it defends the republic. When this decision was made known, Charles Pelletan, deputy for Alsace, and a few others withdrew from the group.

The first cabinet council of the new ministry was held at the Elysee palace last evening, President Loubet presiding. At this meeting the general lines of a declaration to be made by the government Monday were decided upon. A ministerial statement will be drafted at a council to be held tomorrow.

At the instance of General de Gallifet, minister of war, the council decided upon the transfer of a number of superior officers of the army, for "indulging in manifestations unbecoming a soldier."

Not for a long period has a French ministry been greeted with such signs of unanimous hostility. Judging from the tone of the papers of all shades, the cabinet can scarcely live a single day; and the prediction is more freely made than ever that defeat on Monday is inevitable. It is rumored that parliament will be prorogued within a few days to enable the government to carry out its program unhampered. No doubt the cause of hostility is the presence of General Gallifet; and when the paroxysm of anger exhausts itself, it is not unlikely that a resumption of feeling will occur, and that the government will get a good majority in the chamber of deputies.

The actual names of the officers who are to be transferred will not be publicly known until they appear in the Official Journal, but there is good authority for the statement that Generals Mercier, Goussier and De Pellieux will not be included.

It is announced that the Dreyfus trial will be absolutely public. Former President Casimir-Perier, General Mercier, who was minister of war when Dreyfus was condemned, and many other prominent men have taken apartments at Rennes.

The progressive Republicans held a meeting under the presidency of M. Meline. Considerable diversity of opinion was developed. One faction decided to oppose the new cabinet, owing to the presence of M. Millerand in the ministry. The Socialists deputies are also at variance regarding the entry of General Gallifet into the cabinet, and a portion of that party has decided to found a new group, to be entitled "Revolutionary Socialists."

The Meline meeting appointed a committee to confer with the other groups hostile to the new cabinet for the purposes of organizing a combined opposition to the government. Notice has already been given of a number of interpellations for Monday next.

The Temps says: The composition of the cabinet may appear extraordinary in the face of the material tranquility existing, but, unhappily, moral tranquility does not prevail in the same degree. The cabinet will shortly prorogue parliament and take upon itself alone the solution of the Dreyfus affair. Within the limits of its power the government might do some useful work by defending the army against the imprudent language of its representatives and against the attacks of its enemies by causing respect for the magistrature and their decisions, and by protecting the Dreyfus court-martial against the menaces of some and the flatteries of others.

Stigmund Lacroix says in the Radical that it is a ministry of union and Republican defense. "General de Gallifet's name alone suffices to make the factions tremble and the defenders of the staff office forgetful of their duties. The present hour is decisive, which fact is known to the men President Loubet has summoned to power. Let them advance and Republican France will follow."

The Soleil expresses surprise at the composition of the cabinet in which General de Gallifet's presence dims that of his colleagues, while the presence of M. Millerand simply astounds the Moderates. It adds: "We advance toward a storm rather than toward a calm, which is the true setting for justice."

The Figaro describes the new cabinet as the "quintessence of concentration," and adds: "It is easy to imagine the ministers after a brief discussion mutually flinging their portfolios at one another's heads, but the cabinet will not be occupied with a political program, its business being republican defense, the maintenance of national order and the re-establishment of moral order. Waldeck-Rousseau and his colleagues propose to end the Dreyfus affair openly, subsequently transferring the functions to another government. Forecasting the government's fate, The Figaro says: "It is right that the indignant Meline should cast his arms heavenward, but the Socialists are not prepared to listen to him, Barry or Millerand. The voters, being reassured by Gallifet's presence in the ministry, will overlook the presence of Millerand. Nevertheless, Monday's battle in the chamber of deputies will be a hot and fierce one, but the new government will prove victorious, the deputies going to their homes shortly afterward to reassemble only when the Dreyfus affair is a thing of the past."

M. Drumont describes Gallifet as the St. Arnaud of Jewish salons, declaring that Gallifet has been secretly the mainstay of revision, working with Reinach. He adds: "One soul animates Gallifet and Reinach, a soul composed of crime and mud."

M. Desmoulin, in The Gaulois, calls the ministry mosaic, an olla podrida, a harlequinade, and says that the men who will now meet in the closest intimacy would last week have cut one another in the streets. Everything has been subordinated to the Dreyfus affair. The ministry's program will be merely based on the decrees of the court of cassation, its one object being the acquittal of Dreyfus by the Rennes court-martial. Still, perhaps another surprise awaits the world. The Dreyfusard ministry is unconsciously preparing for a second condemnation of the prisoner.

The Petit Bleu is wholly laudatory. It says that the cabinet, though otherwise a hybrid, is honestly republican. Waldeck-Rousseau is not likely to change the rifle on his shoulders, but will steadily pursue his course regardless of hostile attacks.

M. Clemenceau, in The Aurora, declares that only extraordinary circumstances would have been able to unite Waldeck-Rousseau, Gallifet and Millerand. He is prepared, however, to follow them in the path of justice. He recalls his previous onslaughts on Gallifet, adding that he maintains them, but Gallifet repents. Being prepared to perform an act of reparation to the country, he will judge Gallifet's actions unbiased by the general's past career.

M. de Blowitz, the Paris correspondent of the London Times, says: The incongruity and lack of cohesion that characterize the new cabinet really explain its existence. These men have sunk their personal ambitions and antagonisms in order to save the country from a threatened revolution. They have devoted themselves to the defense of law and honor. It is a conception of patriotism and devotion, proving that France, by one of those supreme efforts familiar to her in emergencies, is proudly recovering herself and resuming her proper place in the work of civilization.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

Business in General Above the Average For This Season of the Year.

New York, June 24.—Bradstreet's says: Less than the average effect of approaching mid-summer influences is discernible in current trade reports. Prices, too, show a strength unusual at this period. This is notably manifest in the iron and steel industry, where the tendency of values is still upward. An unexpected weekly output of coke is coincident with statements that the usual summer cutdown in iron and its allied industries will be ignored.

Hopes of improvement in the woolen goods industry have materialized in an active demand at leading markets for the manufactured product, and simultaneously from several markets come reports of abnormally small stocks of lightweight goods in dealers' hands. Wool is more active and firmer in sympathy therewith. A feature is heavy sales of high grade domestic wools to foreign buyers.

Improved crop reports are responsible chiefly for lower quotations of products declining in price this week. Wheat has been affected by glowing reports from spring wheat sections, but more especially by continued enormous deliveries of old crop supplies, pointing to the 1898 yield having been heavily under-estimated. At the decline, however, good buying on export account has developed. Cotton crop prospects have continued to improve, and the raw product is lower on the week, with a slight shading claimed also in print cloths, although cotton goods as a whole are in exceptionally strong position.

The boot and shoe trade is in good position, jobbing demand being active, and recent advances are more easily realized. Specialty good reports as to distributive trade come from the northwest, where wheat crop prospects are maintained. Favorable weather conditions are a feature, affecting trade at the south, though some sections note the need of additional moisture. Eastern trade reports are as a rule encouraging. Boston notes increased firmness in wool and heavy sales to foreign buyers. Speculation is still a feature, although manufacturers have bought more freely.

Reports from the hay crop of the eastern and middle states are discouraging as a yield. Business failures number 199 for the week, as against 150 last week, 220 in this week a year ago and 215 in 1897.

Dues More Than Doubled.

Rochester, June 23.—The national convention of the Boot and Shoe Workers concluded its session yesterday. The discussion in regard to the new constitution resulted in unanimously deciding to amend the constitution by raising the weekly membership dues from 10 to 25 cents. The increased dues will enable the society to provide sick and death benefits for its members. Besides obtaining a strike fund, the society will also be able to raise several thousand dollars, which will be applied toward placing the label on manufactured goods. After the adoption of the new constitution, the following officers were elected: President, J. T. Tobin, Boston; secretary and treasurer, Horace M. Eaton, Boston. It was decided to hold the next meeting in Detroit.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

A falling fence on Columbus avenue, Boston, killed Elmer Smith, 4 years old. In a special match for the E. C. cup and the championship of America at Inman's targets shot at Batavia, N. Y., between J. A. R. Elliott of Kansas and William Crosby of Batavia, the latter won by a score of 123 to 124.

Henry B. Plant, president of the Plant Investment company, controlling the great system of hotels and railroads on the west coast of Florida and the line of steamers from Tampa to Havana, died suddenly at New York. Mr. Plant, who was in his 80th year, had not been in the best of health for several years.

Five new cases of yellow fever are reported at Santiago—three soldiers and two civilians. No deaths are reported.

FULL OF FIKE AND GINGER.

The Bostonians Won a Game in Which Questionable Umpiring Was a Feature.

Pittsburg, June 24.—The Boston ball players are always welcome to Pittsburg, even though they come to win victories. They landed here full of fire and ginger and won a game that was brimful of excitement from end to end. They played fine ball and so did the locals at times.

But along with the good work there was some bad on both sides, and there was lots of kicking at the decisions of Umpire Connolly. These kicks were not confined to one side, for both had grievances against this umpire. In the seventh inning Connolly put O'Brien out of the game for kicking too much. This caused the 1500 people present to make lots of noise, and for a time it looked as if the game was going to be forfeited to Boston.

A Compromise Reached.

Cleveland, June 24.—The strike among the employees of the big Consolidated street railway is in a fair way to be settled. On Thursday the officers of the Big Consolidated issued an ultimatum to the effect that the company was willing to take back all but 100 men, which meant that 80 percent of the striking employees would be reinstated. In the matter of other grievances the company made no changes. The strikers refused to accept the proposition of the company. Yesterday the peace committee of the city council called a meeting of the strikers. The result of the meeting was that the strikers agreed to allow the company to retain 100 of its present employees and put in a clause providing that hereafter in case of difficulty between the company and the employees the latter should have the right to appoint a committee to discuss the grievances. This is not contrary to the stand taken by the company. The strikers asked primarily for the recognition of the union. The council peace committee, however, persuaded them that it was to their benefit to submit, and they have practically agreed to do so.

After the Armour Company.

Albany, June 24.—A conference was held here yesterday to outline a plan of action to re-commence suits against Armour & Co. to recover about $1,500,000 penalties for selling oleomargarine in this state. These cases were suspended two years ago, the firm agreeing to pay $20,000, and discontinue the sale of the imitation of butter in this state. The compromise was agreed to. Governor Black, however, did not ratify the agreement, and it has remained in an undecided state since that time. Governor Roosevelt ordered that the matter be prosecuted, and yesterday's conference was held in view of the stand taken by him.

Active War Preparations.

Bloomington, June 24.—The volunteers of the Orange Free State have voted $350 for the increase of artillery, tents and other military supplies. A resolution was adopted directing the government to adopt the Mauser rifle as the national weapon. A proposal to vote $22,500 for ammunition and of $23,950 for other war material was adopted. Trade with Cape Town and Johannesburg is at a comparative standstill. The Germans who are in sympathy with the Transvaal are holding meetings, at which they adopt resolutions requesting Germany to intercede in behalf of Pretoria.

Three Miners Killed.

Roseland, B. C., June 24.—An explosion occurred yesterday in the War Eagle mine, the scene of the fatality of a month ago, and three men are dead at the morgue, and another is probably fatally injured, and a fifth seriously hurt. Five men were working in the 625-foot level, with machine drills. One of the drills struck a "missed hole," where a previous shot had failed to go off, and a frightful explosion took place.

Delayed by Fire.

Washington, June 24.—The navy department has received a letter from the Armstrong Shipbuilding company of England, stating that the recent fire in their ordnance plant at Newcastle would somewhat delay the completion of the cruiser Albany, which this country purchased from Brazil just prior to the outbreak of the Spanish-American war. The Albany was to have been completed and ready to sail Oct. 1.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

COLORADO RATS.

They Are Not Only Fierce Fighters, but Arrant Thieves.

A writer in The Century Magazine tells us something about the mountain rat of Colorado.

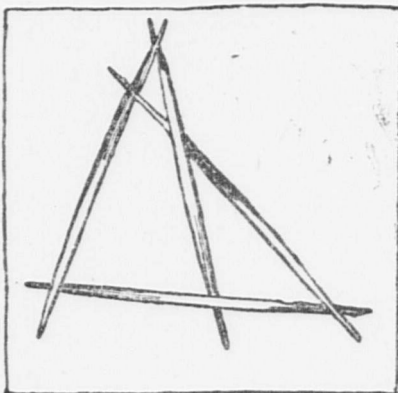

This fierce rodent is nearly twice the size of the Norway species and is always ready for a fight. Besides his bellicose propensities, he is an arrant thief. The miners have a saying that he will steal anything but a red-hot stove. He does not steal to satisfy hunger only; he appears to be a kleptomaniac.

Provoked by the depredations of one old graybeard that haunted our cabin, I one day assisted in harrying his castle, where I found the following articles: Four candles, 1 partly burned, 3 intact; 2 spoons, 1 knife, 2 forks, 27 nails, all sizes; 1 box pills, 1 coffee-pot lid and 1 tin cup, 2 pairs of socks, 3 handkerchiefs, 1 bottle of ink, 3 empty vials, 1 stick giant powder with 10 feet of fuse, beans, rice and dried apples galore.

His spirit of mischief is as strong as his passion for stealing, and the honest miner solemnly avers that if you leave open a bag of beans and one of rice he will not rest till he has made a clean transfer of all the beans to the rice bag, and vice versa. I know that more than once he has during the night filled one or both of my boots with the cones of the spruce tree.

I have heard also of a voracious prospector who, returning from a trip without coffee-pot, frying pan and bake oven, accounted for their absence by declaring that the mountain rats had carried them off and emphasized his assertion by shooting through the leg of a skeptic who was so injudicious as to doubt the fact.

A Toothpick Explosion.

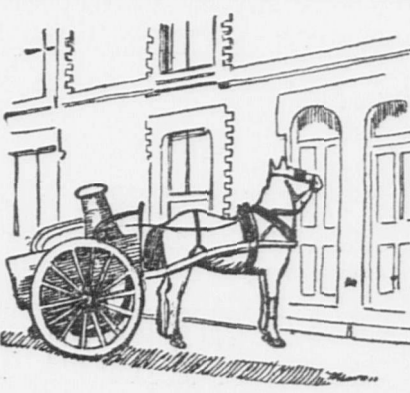

Fix some toothpicks like this and then set fire to one end of one of the toothpicks. Do not stand close to the table after you have lighted the bit of wood.

A Hat Experiment.

A gentleman who visited a pumping station of the Philadelphia water-works was shown into the engine room. "What I am proudest of here is my draft," said the engineer. "Here it is." He raised a trap door in the floor, disclosing a black hole about a foot square, and the visitor looked in eagerly. Nothing was to be seen, but a tremendous draft sucked in his silk hat. "Ha! ha!" cried the engineer, joyously. "Now this is an interesting experiment. Just watch that tall stack over there." He pointed to the lofty stack, and as he did so the silk hat shot straight out of it, 50 feet up in the air, and then like a big black bird sailed slowly away. "Grand experiment indeed," said the visitor, "and I thank you for it. I will now endeavor to secure the remains of my hat." So he chased away after his property, while the engineer looked on with an amused smile.

A Clever Horse.

The picture shows a scene which may be seen any afternoon in a little English town. "Tom" is the property of a dairyman well known in that district. While going the rounds certain women customers have been in the habit of giving the horse bread. Preceding his master, and arriving at the houses of these good friends, he draws his cart up on to the pavement and then knocks at the door by raising the knocker with his mouth and then letting it drop again. This he continues to do until the door is opened, when he receives his well earned reward.

Paid In Oysters.

When the collier Brutus of the navy reached Mare Island navy yard the other day, after a voyage to Manila, her bottom was found covered with mature oysters, and the commandant of the navy yard has forwarded to the bureau of construction and repairs a box containing samples of the shells. The painting upon the plates below the water line was in good condition, and there was no unusual corrosion, but from stem to stern she was covered with these oysters, which became attached to her while lying in Manila bay. On one occasion, when all the coal in her hold had been removed and a large part of her bottom was exposed above the water, the plates were cleaned by the natives without expense on condition that they be allowed to keep the oysters, which they consider a great delicacy.

HELEN GOULD'S NAME

Appeared as Signature to a Bogus
Check Calling for $20,000.

Ex-Schoolteacher of Lynn Under Arrest at Providence.

Police of That City Are Puzzled Over a Most Remarkable Case.

Providence, June 24.—Rachael Hicks, who has been engaged in missionary work at the Fourth Baptist church here, presented yesterday afternoon a forged check for $20,000 on the Union Trust company here, signed with the names of Helen and Edward Gould, and was arrested.

Miss Hicks is a native of Kallide, O., and was formerly a school teacher in Lynn, Mass. She is about 25 years old and very prepossessing.

The young woman was arraigned,
waived examination, was adjudged probably guilty and bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $2000. She furnished a bondsman. The grand jury will sit in September.

It was some weeks ago that the note
was first presented to the trust company, they refusing to take it until they had made an investigation. Miss Hicks stated that she would wait until they had communicated with the Goulds and were satisfied as to its being genuine.

The bank officials did this, and received replies from both Helen and Edward Gould stating that it had not been signed by them.

To this Miss Hicks yesterday made the reply that the Goulds had both signed the note in her presence on March 29 last,
and she still insists that it was all right.
In telling her story to the police she claims to be a traveling missionary,
working in the interests of a woman's college at Denver, and she gives the names of well-known people about the country with whom she claims to be well acquainted.

The police are greatly puzzled over the case, and seem to be of the opinion that Miss Hicks is mentally unbalanced, although her conversation would not even suggest it. The authorities say that if she wanted to she could long ago have got out of the city, and the alleged intention to defraud is therefore somewhat doubted. The officers of the institution told her explicitly that they would make an investigation before discounting
the note.

This was over a week ago, and she could have gotten away easily had she seen fit to do so. She made no scene when arrested, but seemed to be greatly surprised that the note had been reported as bogus.

The police look upon her as perhaps having been imposed upon by some persons, who may have represented themselves as Edward and Helen Gould. Her story is being thoroughly investigated.

Taught in High School.
Lynn, Mass., June 24.—Miss Rachael C.
Hicks, who was arrested in Providence
yesterday, was sub-teacher of the English high school in this city in 1890-1, and left here in the latter year for Chicago.
When she first came to Lynn it was understood she was a native of Maine, and that she was of prominent parentage.
She visited here a few weeks ago.

The Lancaster Mystery.
Worcester, Mass., June 24.—Spy reporters yesterday learned from Alex
Wade of Clinton that he saw a carriage in the brush near where the body of the woman was found in the Lancaster swamp last Saturday morning about the first of May. He approached the vehicle and says he saw the form of an apparently lifeless person on the seat in a half reclining position and entirely covered with a robe. The crossing tender, Charles P. Osmond, also saw the team, and it remained in the brush till nearly 6 o'clock. The horse, a dark bay, which had a swelling below the knee on one of the hind legs, was hitched to a tree, and the harness had partly slipped from the animal's back and was touching the ground. Officers will attempt to follow up this clue today.

Maine Farmers Organizing.
Portland, Me., June 24.—At the meeting of the provisional committee of the Maine farmers' movement held here, it was decided to thoroughly organize the movement in all of the counties of the state. A committee of 40 is to be formed, covering the entire state. This committee is to directly represent the farmers of the state, and is to be in session at Augusta during the sessions of the legislature. Then there are to be county councils which are to arrange for mass
county meetings once a year or oftener.
The state council will manage all details
of business for the farmers as a whole.

For Alleged Larceny.
Lawrence, Mass., June 24.—Mrs. Florence Donovan was arrested last night
for alleged larceny of $200 from her stepmother, Mrs. Laura E. Downing. A few weeks ago the young woman, who was then Miss Alma Downing, went to a Haverhill bank and reported the loss of her stepmother's bank book. Two weeks later she returned with the book and drew all the money credited to Mrs.
Downing, about $200. The owner of the book discovered her loss and the police investigated the matter. In the meantime the girl had wedded Florence Donovan of this city.

Enjoying Himself.
Adams, Mass., June 24.—Yesterday was a day of rest and quietness for the entire presidential party. The president did very little official work during the day and seemed to be enjoying his outing to the utmost. The party last evening witnessed one of the most remarkable cloud displays ever seen in the Berkshire hills. The heavenly display lasted many minutes and the frequent changes were eagerly watched. The plans for today include a reception to the people of Adams by President Mc-Kinley.

A Criminal's Fate.
Boston, June 24.—Chief Inspector Watts yesterday identified the body of the man killed by a train at the Point of Pines on the night of June 17 as that of Arthur Nelson, 39 years old, a well-known old-time pickpocket of great skill. He was born in England and was known as English Arthur, alias Gleason.

The sum of $34 was found in the dead man's clothing. A man in the depot had reported the loss of $34 just previous to the accident, and it is thought Nelson
was trying to escape when he was killed.

Took Carbolic Acid.
Leominster, Mass., June 24.—An autopsy was performed yesterday on the body of an unknown woman who was found unconscious on West street early Thursday morning and subsequently removed to the police station, where she died. The autopsy showed that she had committed suicide by taking carbolic acid. She was evidently a German, 70 years of age.

Hickey's Condition Critical.
Collinsville, Conn., June 24.—The wreck of the eastbound freight on the central New England railroad which occurred near Canton yesterday was not cleared so that traffic could be resumed until this morning. Though all of the train crew were more or less injured, Fireman Hickey is the only one whose condition is critical. The loss will be about $5000.

To Get a Cadetship.
Lowell, Mass., June 24.—The Mail announces that Congressman Knox will appoint George F. Waugh of Lowell to a cadetship in the United States military academy at West Point. Waugh was a non-commissioned officer in the Sixth Massachusetts volunteers, and while sick in Porto Rico escaped from a hospital ship to join his regiment at the front.

Struck by Express Train.
Clinton, Mass., June 25.—William E.
Fyfe, aged 62, a prominent business man of this place, while riding with his daughter, Mrs. E. L. Plummer, was struck Friday evening at a grade crossing by the White Mountain express train and instantly killed. Fyfe was thrown 60 feet over a 15-foot embankment. The bodies were badly mutilated.

Lynn Men Take Poison.
Lynn, Mass., June 24.—John Watts, married and having three children, took aconite with supposed suicidal intent
last night, but escaped death through an overdose. Bernard Burrell, aged 50 years, drank carbolic acid last night and is at the hospital in a dying condition.
Despondency over his wife's illness was the reason for the act.

Caught at Pittsburg.
Boston, June 24.—Annie Rigby and Annie Evans, said to be two of the most expert female pickpockets in the country, who were arrested in this city
May 20, and jumped their bail, were arrested yesterday in Pittsburg. A headquarters' inspector left today to bring them back.

Sent to an Asylum.
Woburn, Mass., June 24.—Anna L.
Anderson, the Swedish woman who was captured in Brighton after having taken a horse and driving the animal 35 miles
at a wild pace through the city and across the country, was yesterday committed to the Danvers insane asylum.

Creedon Was Game, but Lost.
New York, June 24.—Joe Walcott, the colored welterweight boxer, won again
from Dan Creedon, the Australian middleweight fighter, after fighting 20 hard rounds before the New Broadway Athletic club last night. Nine weeks ago the Lenox Athletic club Walcott knocked out the Australian in less than half an hour. Creedon was in much better shape than when he met the negro last April,
and put up a first-class defense against Joe's continuous attack. Walcott was always on the aggressive, and the betting was better than two to one on him at all stages. Many wagers were made at even money that Creedon would not last a dozen rounds, but the Australian still gamely "fought" the American enough punishment to knock out half a dozen fighters. The men boxed under Marquis of Queensberry rules, with a clean break.

Aged Clergyman Seeks Death.
New York, June 24.—Rev. David More-lle, an Episcopalian clergyman, attempted suicide by turning on six jets
of gas in his apartments on West End avenue here yesterday. All the furniture in the apartments was removed several days ago. The clergyman's wife left the house about the same time and did not return. The caretaker in the house says that Mrs. Morelle left with a young doctor, with whom she had been seen a number of times. Mr.
Morelle is 71 years old. He is crippled in his right leg. Mrs. Morelle is 35 years old. Mr. Morelle was taken to Roosevelt hospital. His condition is serious.

"No Gambling" in Chicago.
Chicago, June 24.—The Baxter investigating committee adjourned yesterday, subject to the call of the chairman.
Chief of Police Kipley testified that there were no gambling houses in Chicago. "There is undoubtedly a great deal of gambling done," he said, "in fact in nearly every prominent club in Chicago there is more or less gambling.
But those clubs operate under state charters, and I would hesitate a long time before arresting the club members." The alleged games in the back rooms of cigar stores he considered merely private social clubs.

CORBIN DEFENDS OTIS.

Says No Officer in the Government Service Has Done Better Work.

Health Reports From Philippines Are Reliable.

War Department Makes Indignant Denial of Rumors Now Afloat.

Washington, June 24.—Adjutant General Corbin was not in a mood yesterday to discuss the renewed rumors that an increase in the army would be made on the return of the president from his vacation. "That's what they are saying, is it?" he asked. "Well, suppose we wait until the president gets back before we talk about it."

When asked whether there was any foundation for the story that General
Otis was liable to be recalled, he exclaimed indignantly: "No, and I wonder who invents all these lies about Otis." There is not an officer in the government service who has done better work under greater disadvantages than General Otis, and whoever puts in circulation such outrageous falsehoods
as these doesn't deserve to live."

Indignant denial comes from the war department of statements that the health reports from Manila are suppressed, and the statistics of killed and dead from injuries and disease tampered with.

From the time General Anderson's
first military expedition landed near Cavite, nearly one year ago, to the present time there have been but 364 deaths
from disease according to the official statement prepared by the department,
although the total strength of the army
in the islands during this period has approached 40,000 men. During this time but 69 men have succumbed to wounds,
which is regarded as a remarkable record, considering the large number injured.

It is alleged that even should the department desire to keep the public in ignorance of the true situation it would not be practicable, as the death of soldiers would be sure to be communicated to their homes by some one. General Otis' death report not only gives the names of the dead, but the disease from which they died, and in the death list of 364 are included those who perished from wounds in battle, as well as those drowned in the fights along the water front.

The total is interesting compared with the fighting of the men killed outright in the fighting of the past four months, during which time the actual warfare with the natives has been in progress. In this period the killed in the Philippines
number 226, out of an average of about 7000 men engaged. It would seem from these figures, compared with the losses suffered in the Santiago campaign, that some remarkable improvements have been made in caring for the troops, when 2000 men died in Cuba from disease and only 260 were killed. Not only has the medical department been vastly improved, but there have been no failures
on the part of the commissary and quartermaster's departments, such as occurred in the Cuban campaigns.

The utmost solicitude has been shown by the president in the welfare of the troops, and he has insisted, since the sufferings entailed on General Shafter's army by alleged incompetence, that there should be no repetition of those incidents. The health of the troops in the Philippines has been maintained, the army surgeons say, not as a matter of chance, but through the most determined scientific efforts for the prevention of disease ever made in tropical countries.

Hardin's Chances Improved.
Louisville, June 24.—For the third time
in as many days the Democratic state convention last night broke up in disorder. It entered upon the fourth day of its sessions today without having accomplished anything more than temporary organization. The report of the committee on credentials was reached in the order of business last night, but its consideration was prevented by the disturbance of persons who were admitted to the floor of the convention
though not entitled to seats. The Hardin people place the responsibility for this on local sympathizers with the Stone-Goebel combination, but the latter candidates disclaim all knowledge of an attempt to pack the convention and declare that disturbance was due to loose methods of the arrangement committee. What influence the occurrence will have on the chances of the candidates can hardly be foretold, but Hardin is most likely to profit by it. It is thought the convention will get down to work in earnest today.

Five Were Drowned.
Lampasas, Tex., June 24.—Mrs. T. J.
Lloyd, living seven miles northwest of this place, with her five daughters and a visitor, Miss Childers, went in bathing in a creek yesterday. The youngest three girls went beyond their depth,
when their eldest sister and Miss Childers went to their rescue, and all five were drowned. Mrs. Lloyd saved by herself. The bodies were recovered.

Fought to a Draw.
St. Louis, June 24.—The battle last night for the so-called bantam weight championship of the world between Casper Leon of New York and Clarence
Forbes of Chicago before the West End Athletic club resulted in a draw. The boys fought 12 fast rounds, but neither was able to secure a decided advantage.

A Dismal Outlook.
London, June 24.—Eastern and northern Finland, according to a dispatch to The Times from St. Petersburg, are threatened by famine and floods. The late cold weather has ruined the rye crops.

Whisky, Cards and Women.
Eastman, Ga., June 24.—Kin Stevens, colored, was hanged here yesterday. He confessed his crime, and said that whisky, cards and women had been his ruin.

"I have used Fairbank's Fairy Soap on the most delicate silks, laces and fine embroideries,
without the slightest injury in any way to these fabrics. I therefore cordially recommend it to any one desirous of securing a soap with which to cleanse delicate and dainty materials. It is also invaluable for the toilet, rendering the skin soft and white. In fact, for general use I have found nothing to compare with Fairbank's Fairy

Consult this living patient. "Dr. James M.
Solomon: Dear Sir: The following is my testimonial, which I hope will help others. That after suffering several years with something that was never reached, getting only temporary help from different doctors, and each attack becoming more severe, I was advised by a friend, who had been cured of a tumor, to see her doctor.
I was then unable for any work, and feeling worse from day to day; realizing that something was preying upon me of a serious nature, I was discouraged about my condition, and sought Dr.
Solomon with little faith—it was more of an experiment. He got my confidence on the first interview, when, without a word of description
of my feelings from me, he at once located my trouble, and I could not help believing that he knew from what I was suffering, although was greatly surprised and somewhat terrified when he told me it was cancer of the stomach. I began treatment at once, Nov. 3, 1892, and was faithful to his directions, with but little resistance. I would get, till the following June (1893) I felt like a new being, and the doctor pronounced me recovered. I am sure that I have, and I can never repay the gratitude I owe
to Dr. J. M. Solomon. Sincerely, EMMA FISCH,

he is one of the many living witnesses of the only painless method that positively CURES

The objection to the name of Canal street is not wholly local, but it recalls localities in New York and other cities such as one would expect to find along a canal, and is therefore an undesirable name for a pretty residential locality. The same reason which made it desirable to change the Newcomb street extension to Woodward avenue, Cemetery to Crescent, and Liberty to Water street are equally applicable to Canal street.

Relative to the liquor raids at Nantasket it is said that the town had permitted the sale previous to the date of the licenses July 1. It is because the town tolerates such liberties by rum sellers that it is necessary to get a sheriff of the county to protect the people of the State who go there for the fine beach, and finally to buy the beach for a reservation and crowd them out. Hull has asked special privileges of the Legislature because of the large number of summer visitors, and unless it appreciates the special act, and enforces it, others must.

The unreasonable conviction of a Lowell newspaper for alleged soliciting of the sale of liquor by inserting an advertisement of a Lawrence liquor dealer, has been quashed by Judge Bond. In closing his decision he said: "Where a crime is charged by the doing of certain acts which are set out in the complaint, the act set out must be such as to constitute the crime charged. In this case the acts set out do not constitute the crime of soliciting orders for or purchases of intoxicating liquor, and therefore the motion to quash such complaint is sustained."

The school committee of Newton cannot be criticised if they carry out the wishes of the voters of the city. Their duty seems apparent. The policy in the Newton schools has been criticised and the voters made it an issue at the polls. They changed the personnel of the board with the expectation there would be a change of policy. While Supt. Aldrich has a large and influential backing, it is a case where the majority should rule. In fact, superintendents of schools, as well as pastors of churches, should not retain their positions until they are in the minority. For the interest of education and harmony they should move on when any decided opposition is manifest.

The Woodward Institute may now be said to be thoroughly organized, one class having completed the full five-year course. The class of 1899 was a surprisingly large class; larger than the High School annually graduated a few years ago. The school has a large corps of teachers, which with the new building and equipment give the young lady pupils unusual advantages. The progress and success of the school are due largely to Miss Small, the principal, and the directors are fortunate indeed in having her services. A pleasing incident of the reception of the Class of 1899 was the presence of Rev. B. A. Philbrook, who came all the way from Middletown, Conn., to be present. Mr. Philbrook was pastor of the Universalist church in this city when the institute was opened, and it was largely through his efforts that Miss Small was selected as principal.

BARKER'S MAN.

Bank Thief Lambele May Be One and Same.

Chief Inspector Watts believes that Philip Lambele arrested for the theft of $10,000 from the Metropolitan National bank is the sneak thief who made an unsuccessful attempt to rob Herbert W. Barker of this city.

A Boston paper reports that the description given at the time by Mr. Barker tallies identically with that of Lambele, but as yet Mr. Barker has had no opportunity to personally see him, except from newspaper cuts.

It was on the morning of Feb. 10, about 11 o'clock that Mr. Barker drew the sum of $1,500 from the Shoe & Leather bank in Boston, on a check endorsed by his father, Mr. William P. Barker of Greenleaf street.

At the window, just as Mr. Barker received the money from the paying teller, a stranger stepped up to him and asked:

"Where can I get some government money changed?"

The question was such an odd one that Mr. Barker turned completely around. As he did so another man grabbed the $1,500 and darted out the door. Mr. Barker followed the thief and pressed him so closely that he became frightened. He dropped the money on the sidewalk, and as he did so, exclaimed:

"There's your money!"

Mr. Barker picked up his money and the thief got away. But $3 was missing from the sum received from the paying teller.

If Lambele is not the sneak thief in the Barker case he may be the pal.

Other charges may also be preferred against Lambele when he appears in the Boston court.

—The restless ebb and flow of the waters of the ocean have at length been utilized in furnishing mechanical power. The man who claims to have solved the problem is William Reed of New York. There is undoubtedly a vast power in the movements of old ocean, and if Mr. Reed has really succeeded in harnessing it at a reasonable cost, he should have an invention of great value.—Dedham Gazette.

MANY POINTS RAISED

In Case Against Expressman for Transporting Liquor.

An interesting case under the Faxon law was heard before Judge Humphrey
 this morning.

The case was that of James Mc-Donnell, Jr., who was charged with attempting to unlawfully carry through Quincy and deliver in Brintree an unlicensed town, liquor not legally marked.

McDonnell was in court May 31 charged with transporting liquor not marked according to law.

At that hearing it was brought out that on the night of May 29 when Officer Goodhue arrested McDonnell for illegal transportation, that he had upon his team ten cases of ale and two jugs of whiskey. The tags on these goods contained the name to whom they were to be delivered but no street or number and one of the jugs had no mark at all.

At this trial counsel for the defendant filed a motion to quash, as the police officer under the statute had no authority to arrest for carrying liquor
 through Quincy.

The motion was allowed and the complaint quashed.

Then it was that the new complaint was issued upon which he was arraigned today.

The evidence in the first case was admitted for this without reiteration.

A. E. Avery, counsel for defense, then filed a motion to quash on the grounds that the complaint did not set forth an offense that is unlawful and criminal; that it was not specific enough as to its terms, not stating that the liquor was for unlawful use,
 and not showing how the tags were illegally marked; that it failed to set forth that he intended to commit any overt act; or that he did in Quincy commit any overt act; and that he failed to set forth that the defendant intended to deliver the goods to persons other than to whom they were consigned.

Counsel claimed that there was nothing in the statute that made it a criminal act to have in his possession goods not properly marked. It was not an offense to receive the goods improperly marked, and as he had not arrived at the place of delivery it was not a crime. It was, however, an offense to have goods marked for one person that were intended for another.

The complaint should go further and state that the defendant had in his possession liquor intended for illegal sale. Because the seller failed to do his duty is no offense of the express-man.

P. R. Blackmur counsel for the government, contended that it was illegal for him to receive goods, knowing that they were not properly marked, and one jug with no mark and he had therefore committed part of a crime. He also contended that the complaint was amply set forth in the complaint.

Mr. Avery also raised the question as to the constitutionality of the law
 in that it contends to exclude free exchange of trade and gives a railroad rights denied an expressman; also that an officer could not arrest Mc-Donnell or seize liquor without a warrant.

The court took the points under consideration, and will give its findings next Thursday.

In the seizure case, Mr. Avery also filed a motion to quash, as the complaint alleged the liquors were kept for sale and not because they were marked illegally.

This also was continued until next Thursday.

DEFENSES OF FILIPINOS

Major Bell's Observations of the Insurgents' Trenches.

NOW KNOWN HOW THEY ARE MADE

The Engineer Who Oversees the Work is a Graduate of a Hongkong Engineering School—Bamboo Has Been Extensively Used in Making
 These Barriercades.

Harry A. Armstrong, the Chicago
 Record's correspondent, writing from Calumpit, P. I., under date of May 3, says: From the bridge at Calumpit trenches are to be seen in every direction. There are trenches commanding
 the railroad and flanking trenches,
 which were dug to catch the American soldiers by surprise as they rushed to the bridge. The guns in these defenses were trained to sweep the river.
 Trenches barricaded the wagon roads,
 and every position is protected. Nor are these defenses mere earthworks, the Filipinos having used railroad iron to make bombproof protections and at the same time afford loopholes from which to fire. The retreats from these fortifications were conducted along pathways hidden, very largely, by branches of bamboo, and to these places of shelter Aguinaldo's forces retired whenever American shells fell among them. Major Bell has made a careful observation of these trenches.

"There are four miles of trenches
 two miles beyond the Rio Grande,"
 said the major. "And these trenches
 show some knowledge of proper construction. The shelter trenches are good for temporary defense, but their location was such that the Filipinos could not escape without exposing themselves to our shots. Behind them were open fields, and our men might easily have shot them as they ran. The trenches which the insurgents constructed with head protection have such a limited range of fire that they are not dangerous obstacles to American soldiers. Our men are better shots, and being braver always smother the fire of the Filipinos sufficiently to advance upon the trenches
 without great loss of life. The discovery of this fact will do more to bring the Filipinos to terms than any other factor, because they have been relying on the trenches to overcome the inferiority of their fighting equipment and their poor marksmanship. They judged that our advances would be similar to those made by the Spanish in the past,
 but have discovered with considerable surprise that their trenches are far from being impregnable. They have found, too, that these defenses frequently become death traps to the men who are trying to hold them."

Death traps they certainly have been in many cases, for the American troops flank them, pouring down raking volleys, which the Filipinos cannot stand.
 General Hale knows this. Colonel Funston knows it too, for he has plunged into rivers and crept across bridges that he might get a handful of his men
 where they could see down the lines of earthworks. Almost invariably, when the Americans succeed in these efforts,
 the trenches are abandoned, the insurgents streaming out into the open unless they can reach the retreating trench.
 There is one of these retreating trenches
 on the Bagbag river. It is deep enough to hide a man, and leads from a protected intrenchment to the protection of the railroad grade. The insurgents have planned for retreat at every standing, and their earthworks have become skilled in this art. Across the railroad grade, at equal intervals, cross sections have been cut out, and through these openings the retreating Filipinos could get from one side of the track to the other without being seen. The railroad, too, has given them a better intrenchment than their engineers could have built, but it is also the causeway of the American army which sweeps along the grade and rebuilds the bridges in a night. The great dry ditches along either side of the track are wide enough for columns of fours and deep enough
 to enable the soldiers to escape observation or bullets.

It is known now how these defenses have been made. The engineer who oversees the work is a graduate of an engineering school at Hongkong. That accounts for the neatness and precision
 with which the work has been done.
 These insurgents who have no guns are put to work, together with their prisoners, with pick and spade, or, if these implements are lacking, with a bamboo slat, which is used as a shovel. Women have been seen helping in the work, carrying the excavated dirt away in baskets, which they bear on their head.

Bamboo has been used extensively in the making of these barriercades. It is a handy and light material. The natives use whole sections of the log for corner posts, then split the stalk and use the strips for siding, making thus a sort of huge basket. This they fill with dirt, which comes from the trench itself, until at last they have a fortification, behind which they stay until a flanking
 fire is poured down the trenches or until Lieutenant Fleming and his artillery begin to drop shells among them.
 These bamboo basket barriercades are from three to eight feet across and built to the height of a man's hips.

There is one bamboo barriercade near Bigaa which was stuffed with a little rice straw. Over this was sprinkled a thin layer of dirt. Beyond it and across the stream was a line of hidden intrenchments commanding this false barrier. The Americans, however, did not come up to the make believe trench,
 as the Filipinos had planned that they should. Had they done so, no doubt the Mauser bullets would have pierced that light protection of bamboo and straw to find many a soldier. But the Americans resorted to their favorite flank movement, and the Filipinos were caught right at home.

ODD CLAIRVOYANT POWER.

How an Illinois Lady Recovered a Valuable Gold Watch.

The finding of a lady's gold watch in a jewelry store in Arcola, Ill., the other day brought to light a peculiar chain of circumstances which sounds rather strange to be a true story, says the St.
 Louis Globe-Democrat.

A few weeks ago the residence of Mr.
 Joe Moore, a farmer residing near the village of Humboldt, six miles south of Arcola, was robbed of a lady's gold watch which was highly prized by the family. A man and woman who were tramping through the country stopped at the Moore home and were given food and shelter for the night. The next morning the twain departed, taking with them the watch. The watch was not missed until some time the following day, and by that time the thieves
 had got well away.

The owner of the stolen watch was finally prevailed upon to seek the advice of a Charleston clairvoyant, which she did. The woman of the mysterious gift informed Mrs. Moore that her watch was in Arcola and told her how she would be able to recover it. Mrs.
 Moore went to Arcola the other day
 and, following the fortune teller's advice to the letter, located her lost watch in a jewelry store in that city, where it had been left for repairs.

When the couple who had stolen the watch arrived in Arcola some few weeks ago, they pawned it to a young man of the name of Ed Miller for $3 and went on their way. Miller did not suspect anything wrong until the lady overhauled him on the street and asked him about the watch. At this he was surprised and asked her how she knew he had the timepiece. She told him that a fortune teller had given her a description of the person who had the stolen property, and as he tallied so closely with the description she thought there was little chance of a mistake.

Miller took the lady over to the jewelry store, secured the watch and returned it to the owner and asked for the fortune teller's address, stating that he might be able to run the thieves to earth through that medium. It is one of the strangest cases of clairvoyant power ever heard of in this section of the country and has caused considerable comment.

SCHEMES OF FILIPINOS.

One of Their Methods of Annoying
Our Soldiers at Night.

Undoubtedly it is the plan of the Filipinos to give the Americans just as much worry as they can during the rainy season with the least possible ex-posure of themselves to danger. One of their schemes of annoyance, according to information received at the war department in Washington the other day, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, is to keep up an incessant firing in the direction of the American camps at night. Their object is to deprive the American soldiers of sleep and thus wear them out. They shrewdly argue that if the Americans are deprived of sleep at night they will not have as much energy in getting after them during the day as they would have after a night's unbroken rest. Every night these Filipino forces in front of the Americans move up as near as they can with any show of prudence. Then the work of annoying the Americans is begun. The Filipinos have constructed a number of what are known as "bamboo guns." From these guns they shoot homemade shrapnel into the American camp. The shrapnel is made up of nails, tin cans and other like material. So far the guns have caused no damage to speak of to the American forces, but the racket they make is described as something awful. They are kept going all night long, and sleep while they are booming is said to be almost impossible.

According to reports just received at Washington, Aguinaldo's men have adopted a clever scheme for their protection when forced to fly before the Americans. When one line of Filipinos is holding a line of intrenchments, another is in the rear constricting another line. When it becomes too hot for the Filipinos in the first line, they then retire to the second line and here they make another stand until the third line of intrenchments is completed. By these tactics they are reducing their losses
 somewhat.

The Raleigh's Collision With a Whale.

Lieutenant F. L. Chadwick of the United States navy is visiting his uncle,
 Dr. L. S. Chadwick of Cleveland. During the war with Spain Lieutenant Chadwick served on the cruiser Raleigh.
 He entered Manila bay when Dewey
 made his famous dash into the harbor.
 Lieutenant Chadwick, according to the Cleveland Plain Dealer, said recently that on his return trip there was a collision with a huge whale that was sleeping on the water. Lieutenant Chadwick was on watch when the boat
 gave a lurch. "I thought we had run
 on some hidden rocks," he said. "I rushed to the rail and found that the ram of the cruiser was fast in the side of a whale 40 feet long. The engines had to be reversed before the whale was released. He floated away dead. You may think that is a fish story, but it is an actual fact, and the cruiser's log will verify it."

The Cyclone Not the Work of God.

In nine pulpits at Eau Claire, Wis., the other day the cyclone at New Richmond was the subject of sermons, says
 the Chicago Inter Ocean. The general sentiment expressed was that it was a mysterious dispensation of Providence,
 but the Rev. Joseph Moran of the Episcopal church said it was the devilish work of an unknown power and not the act of God.

What's the Matter With Name?

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

With due respect to all who love euphonious titles and are stirred by the repetition of heroes names the writer fails to see reasonable ground
 for changing the old plain title "Canal street" to "Revere road." Only important reasons should prevail in a question of this kind, as it is obvious that such change as proposed leads to much confusion and trouble in land titles, etc.

The old name is suggestive of and probably stands for an interesting bit of town history. Is it expedient to obliterate such way marks, and forget the early struggles and efforts to develop our granite industry. The Canal was an enterprising and costly experiment in its day, and

THE WOOD LILY.

Within the forest's meadow bordered hem,
Poising, light tilted, on a single stem;
In lonely beauty, seldom seen with more Than three companions at the forest door;
I hail thee as a messenger of grace
Sent to enliven sunless wold and space.

Slim petaled wonder of a race, too few;
Shy cousin of that tossing reed,
Which top with splendor the tall meadow grass,
Jocund are they with all the sprites that pass—
Bee, bird and zephyr. But thou shinest alone
To brighten here the wood's umbrageous zone.

Looking the dense forest up and down,
Nothing seems more imperial than thy crown;
'Tis never far from knoll or meadow side,
Never uplifted with cool, flaunting pride,
But comes, in all its glorious garb arrayed,
Beauty's evangel to the gloom and shade.

BACK TO SIGHT AND LOVE

How an Officer Proved That Love Is Blind.

The silent stars looked down through a clear, still night upon a host of sleeping men. The brigade had advanced by forced marches and now lay within two miles of the derelict camp. Tomorrow's dawn would see the assault. Two officers stood together talking in low whispers, for it was of the utmost importance that the enemy should be taken by surprise, and the orders as to silence were strict.

"Buck up, old chap, you'll come through all right. And if not, what does it amount to? You've got no women folk to bother about."

"No, thank heaven. It is in times like this that one is glad never to have married—like poor old Harcourt."

"Why poor?"

"I was thinking of his wife. I should not care to be tied to an ugly woman myself."

"That's all rot, Hamilton," retorted the other. "I don't believe it matters a row of pins, so long, of course, as she isn't repulsive or underbred."

"Think so?"

"Yes. The most unlikely women sometimes attract most."

"Well, old chap, I'm precious thankful I've no thoughts of woman to bother me tonight. I shall try for a lead tomorrow, even if I have got the route. We've a good chance of being first into the zebra."

"We will give you a race for it, anyhow. But we'd better try and get a sleep, for this awful heat takes it out of a fellow."

The two went to their separate posts. And as he lay sleepless the thoughts came to Hamilton that it was somewhat lonesome to think that no woman's eyes would fill at the news of his death; and he looked upward at the stars above him, wondering where his soul would be tomorrow.

The shadow of death lay upon him, as at times it does upon the bravest soldier; he would fight none the worse for it in the morning.

The sun had risen. In the previous short half hour of dawn the assault had been delivered, the derelict forces had been driven from their intrenchments and now the black, grinning "Gippsys" were fraternizing and triumphing with their laughing and chaffing white comrades.

Backward, across the half mile of plain, the surgeons were busy. Away to the southwest could be heard the sounds of pursuit as the British officers chased the flying Baggara.

A field hospital at the front is not a pleasant place, neither can it be described in cold black and white. War correspondents, as readers of the dailies have no doubt noticed, judiciously avoid more than the merest mention of such places.

There were some ghastly cases, and both surgeons and assistants had been worked hard. But the pressure was over and at last there was time to attend to the wounds which were not deadly.

"Now, Hamilton, let's see," said Surgeon Major Murphy, approaching an officer who lay motionless on a stretcher—who had so lain half an hour at least. The doctor looked his patient over, gave a low whistle and beckoned to one of the orderlies who at that moment turned his head.

"Look, see, Hawkins, here's a bad case! He must go back to the hospital."

"Bad as that, doctor?" asked the motionless man, faintly.

"Tis so. Now you keep quiet."

Lieutenant Hamilton had been totally blinded by the explosion of a shell in an earthwork as, well in front, he was leading his company. He was sent to the rear—to hospital—and Sister May was given charge of him.

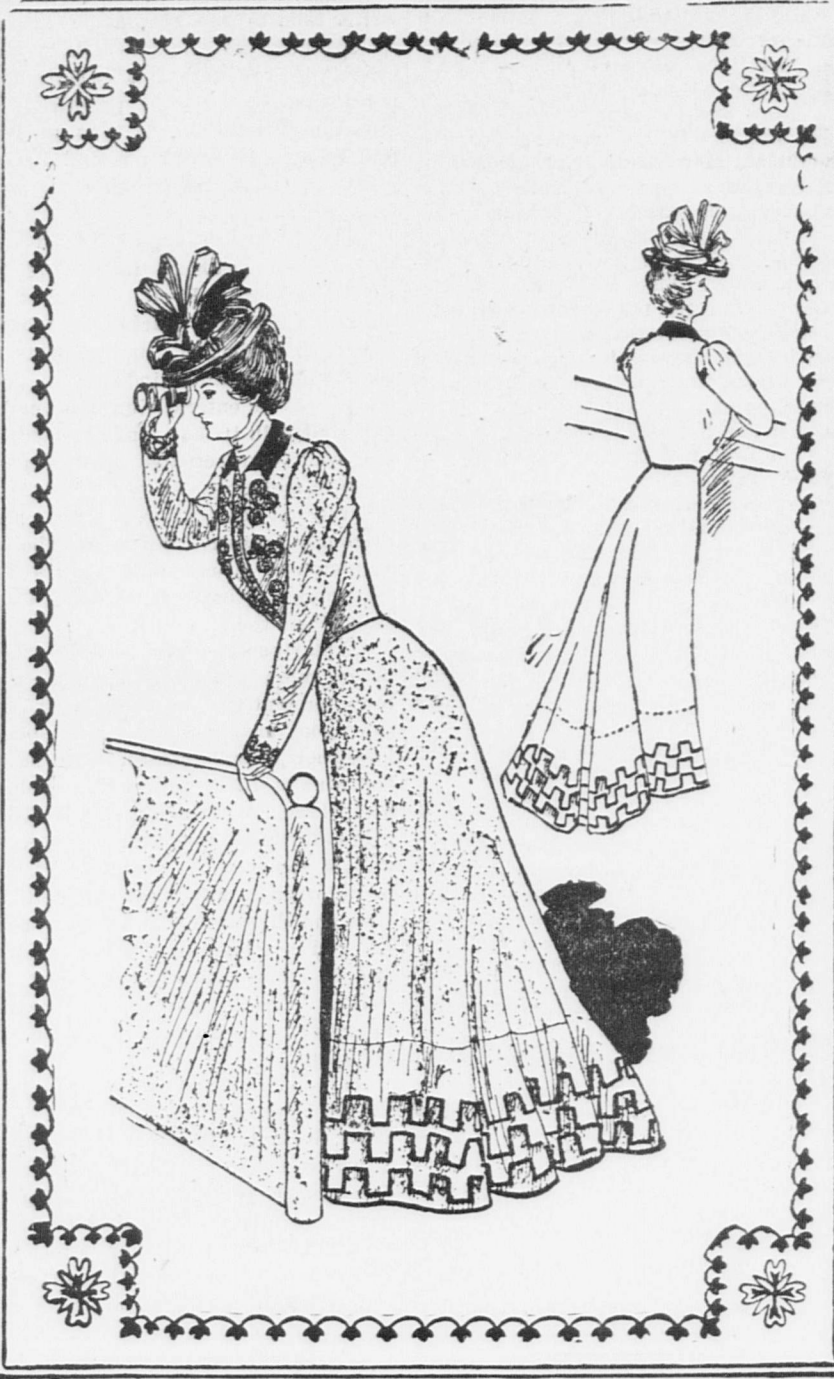

He had not much pain, only he was blind. Treatment appeared to have no effect on this. It seemed likely to be a long business. The days began to hang heavily. Then came the old story, "Love in idleness."

Hospital sisters do not cease to be women when they take up their work. Sister May was just as susceptible to love as though she had been a silly young thing of 18, though, in fact, she was ten years older. And he? Pity being akin to love the recipient of pity runs a double risk. Her voice was soft and musical, her touch was soothing, her care of him seemed first motherly, then sisterly, and then—

So it was that by easy stages they drifted into that strange attraction which the world calls "love."

And her one fear was that some day he might see again. The surgeon said it was just possible and was advising a consultation with the world famed Professor Augenwirth of Glaefrath. She prayed against that possibility, for in her own eyes she was plain—nay, ugly past redemption. Yet, though she could not realize it, her too large mouth and prominent teeth, her irregular nose and all the fancied imperfections of her face mattered little; for her large gray eyes were soft and full

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

WALKING DOWN OF FUSTIAN FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

A model garment that follows the design of a handsome gown recently built by Paquin and published in Harper's Bazar, has a long tunic, finished at the lower edge by square scalloped lap over flat flounces similarly finished and applied to the lower skirt. The skirts are sheathlike and close in a closely hooked seam in the centre of the jacket. The Eton jacket meets the skirt about the waistline and closes over a suggested vest attached to left side of the front of the jacket. The latter is fitted to the form by the single darts on each side.

The original model was of gray fustians, a heavy cotton cloth. The Greek scallops were outlined with blue taffeta and edged with dark blue ribbon velvet. The ornaments upon the waist were of blue taffeta edged with narrow blue satin ribbon shirred. The turnover collar and piping about the waist-line were of dark blue velvet, and the cuffs of the sheath-sleeves were trimmed like the fronts of the jacket. The introduced vest was a band of ochre yellow cloth embroidered with gold thread and blue chenille figures. The costume would be effective if rendered in any medium weight cloth, and trimmed with military braid, with Persian embroidery vest.

To make this costume of cloth 45 inches wide over a sham skirt of silk, 7 1/2 yards will be required. Of taffeta silk for the sham skirt, 9 yards will be required.

of animation, her skin was like velvet, her figure and carriage perfect. But, womanlike, she could only dwell upon her facial defects and was full of apprehension lest some day his sight should be restored, and seeing her features, he should loathe her.

Her cousin Kate, a sister nurse, seeing how things tended, chaffed her unmercifully.

"Now, May, I thought you had long ago sacrificed your life to nursing; and yet the first good looking young lieutenant!"

"He will always want nursing, Kate," she faltered in excuse.

"Ah! but suppose Dr. Haggerty is right and his sight comes back. He won't want any nursing then."

Sister May did not answer. A week later Hamilton left the hospital for Glaefrath full of hope. The night previous to his departure they came to an indefinite understanding, and though she would not give an unqualified answer to his pleadings, she had not the courage to stop him altogether. In recklessness she allowed herself to drink in the sweets of his passionate words; they would at any rate be a lifelong remembrance, even though on his return he should cast her off.

The operation was successful beyond his hopes, and in a few weeks he was rushing back to his love—eyes shaded, it is true, but with the certainty that in a short time his sight would be fully restored.

"I want to see Miss Johnstone," he said to the orderly at the hospital entrance.

"Miss Johnstone, sir? Which?"

"Why, the nurse."

"Yes, sir; but there's two of them."

"Well—er—she's very good looking. I did not know there were two."

"Oh, yes, sir; there's two. But I know the one you mean now."

And he was shown into the waiting room.

"Gentleman wants me? Who can it be?—Then the door opened. He started forward.

"My love!" he whispered. "I knew you were beautiful. I have come back to claim you."

Sister Kate drew back startled. For the moment she could not imagine who this man with the shade over his eyes could be. In that moment he had drawn her to him and was wildly pouring out his love.

In that moment also the door again opened, and Sister May, looking in, saw all.

She faltered and stepped back, the beating of her heart choking her for the minute.

"Stop, sir!" said Kate, regaining her senses. "You must be Mr. Hamilton."

"Yes," he answered, amazed, releasing her.

This frivolous little voice was not that of his love. This overfizzed hair, these shallow eyes were not beautiful at the second glance. What had he done?

"Are you not Miss Johnstone?"

"Yes, Kate Johnstone."

"Kate? And is your sister?"

"Cousin."

"Is she not here?"

"Yes," said Kate, with a smile. "Stay here. I will fetch her."

"Why, May, you there?" she whispered, on finding her at the threshold and wondering if she had seen or heard. "Here is Mr. Hamilton. Come!"

"No, never! I will never see him!" she panted between her heart beats.

"Nonsense! He has come back on purpose for you, and his eyes are all right."

"Yes, and he expects to see a pretty girl like you!" retorted May bitterly.

"Look here, May, don't be a fool! Go in. He is waiting!"

But Hamilton had already grown impatient. The door opened, and he saw them both.

"Here she is," said Kate.

"Ah!" he said.

Sister May looked down, trembling.

"Are you May Johnstone, my dear nurse?" he asked, his voice full of tenderness and love.

"Yes," she whispered.

Kate had disappeared; they were alone.

"My darling, I have come for you," he said.

"But—you can see now?"

She looked up recklessly, and their eyes met.

"Yes, thank God, I can see my love!"

Then she surrendered herself.

The Courage to Burn.

M. Jules Claretie is responsible for this story of Erckmann and Chatrian. Those who have studied the works of these men in the original can appreciate how conscientious they were. In the height of their popularity they agreed to supply the Journal des Debats with a romance. It is said that the skeleton of the story always came from one and the giving of flesh to it from the other. When the work was concluded, the joint authors sat in judgment over it and read it all over.

"What do you think of it?" asked one of them.

"It is very bad," said the other.

"Then let us make a good fire with it," and so page by page the manuscript was burned in a stove. The Debats had to wait. In time, however, a fine novel was sent to the paper, and the fame of Erckmann and Chatrian increased.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning June 25.—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Spiritual growth.—Mark iv, 26-32.

The nature of spiritual growth is represented in the typical reference by two parables of Christ concerning the growth of seed cast into the ground. The soil is the human heart; the seed is the word of God; the growth is spiritual development; the fruit is Christian character; the harvest is the end of the world, when God distributes His rewards and punishments. The one thought emphasized by the topic and also by these two parables is the nature of spiritual growth, or the growth of the kingdom of God in the heart and life of men. Several characteristics of spiritual growth are pointed out.

1. Spiritual growth is constant. The seed grows continually. The man rises night and day, and the seed springs up and grows. It is not an irregular, intermittent growth, but a constant, steady growth. This should be the nature of spiritual growth. Constant study of God's word, constant communion with Christ, constant abounding in good works, should lead to constant advance of the spiritual life toward God and godliness.

2. Spiritual growth is mysterious. The seed should spring up and grow, he knoweth not how, for the earth bringeth forth fruit of herself. How mysterious is growth! Who can explain it or understand it? The fact we know; the philosophy is unknown. How characteristic of spiritual growth! Spiritual birth is mysterious. "The wind bloweth where it listeth, * * * but thou canst not tell whence it cometh or whither it goeth. So is every one who is born of the Spirit." Mystery is the nature of spiritual growth. Who can explain how the word of God can take hold of the human heart and change it and transform the human life? We know the fact, a blessed knowledge, but the philosophy of it is unfathomable. It is of God and mysterious, incomprehensible.

3. Spiritual growth is gradual and progressive. "First the blade, then the ear; after that the full corn in the ear." Step by step the process continues. The order is always the same; it is never reversed. God is orderly in all that He does. The fact should warn us against too high expectations. We cannot become saints in a day. Saints are not born, but developed. It should act as an encouragement and inspiration. Perhaps we do not grow as we feel that we should. Let us remember that not by giant strides does the seed grow, but gradually and progressively.

4. Spiritual growth is characterized by fruit bearing. The seed becomes the ear, the mustard seed the fruit bearing tree. Spiritual growth will manifest itself in spiritual fruit.

Bible Readings.—Ps. i, 1-6; lli, 7-9; lxi, 12; Jer. xii, 1, 2; Hos. xiv, 5-7; Mal. iv, 1, 2; Math. xiii, 1-9, 33; Luke i, 80; Eph. ii, 19-22; v, 14-16; Phil. iii, 12-14; II Thess. i, 3; I Pet. ii, 1-3; II Pet. iii, 18.

New Motives.

Christians have new motives for missionary activity in these days. The old theory that whoever does not accept Christ in this life is lost, whether he has ever heard the gospel or not, is seldom broached now by the more intelligent classes of people. But present motives are, or should be, no less strong than those of former days in encouraging missionary activities. To bring light into darkened souls; to encourage the weary and heavy laden, sinking under life's burdens; to uplift the fallen; to give strength to overcome the demons of lust and selfishness; to show the despairing mourner that the grave is but the open portal to heaven—these are the true motives to missionary effort. Could they be any nobler or more potent?—Universalist Leader.

The Constant Builder.

The man of intellect keeps his confession in a book, but has no knowledge of it with the heart, but the real soldier of Christ carries his confession in the consciousness of his own soul. It is with him when he sleeps. Every morning he awakes with it. Throughout all of life he carries it in his inmost soul. And because it is the dominating power in his life, by virtue of his confession, he is a constant builder in the church of Christ.—Translated from the Dutch by Rev. J. Hendrick de Vries.

First of All.

The preacher should, first of all, be a preacher of truth. He is the Lord's messenger and must speak as God directs. He ought to be more anxious about what he says in God's name than about how it will affect the hearers. He who acts upon this principle is more likely to impress the more thoughtful of his audience, as well as receive the Divine favor and approval.—Presbyterian.

Depends on What We Are.

Temperaments are the crises which test the strength of one's character. Whether we stand or fall at these crises depends largely on what we are before the testing comes.—Presbyterian Journal.

Consecration.

I bring Thee myself, dear Lord,
And all that I want to be,
My joys and my weary cares,
And consecrate all to Thee.
Whatever the days may bring
Of gladness or grief or pain,
There's nothing to be withheld;
I give it to Thee again.

I wait for Thy blessing, Lord,
The touch of Thy loving hands,
The strength that Thy grace can give
To do what Thy love commands.
The way may be hard and long,
The burden be very great,
But all that I am I bring
And cheerfully consecrate.

And if in my pain, dear Lord,
I sometimes cry for relief,
Thou knowest if Thy dear will Shall bid me still bear my grief.
I claim but Thy promise, Lord;
Thou wilt not leave me alone,
But close to Thy loving heart
Wilt tenderly hold mine own.

GREAT BICYCLE RIDE.

Charles Murphy Covers a Mile in Sixty-five Seconds.

EXCITING FLIGHT AGAINST TIME.

The Cyclist, Paced by an Engine, Performs the Record Near Maywood, N. Y.—A Wind Shield at Rear of the Car the Only Artificial Aid.

Charles Murphy, the Brooklyn cyclist, who has been training at Babylon, N. Y., for a mile a minute ride behind a locomotive later this month, had a trying out the other day, with the result that he wheeled the mile in the amazingly fast time of 1 minute and 5 seconds.

CHARLES M. MURPHY.

The trial took place over a smooth and level stretch on the Long Island railroad near Maywood. A special carload of railroad officials and newspaper men went down to see it, and they, as well as 50 more natives who stood along the track, gazed open mouthed at the veteran cyclist as, with no great effort, he hung on to the flying locomotive, says the New York Press.

The time probably is the fastest ever ridden on a wheel under any conditions, although a rider named Anderson is said to have done a mile, paced by a locomotive, in 1:03 1-5 in Illinois. Murphy himself did not know he was going so fast the other day, and as he finished in good condition the knowing ones think he will do a mile in a minute or less when the time comes.

The conditions were favorable for the ride. A wooden track more than two miles long had been laid out between the rails. There was little or no grade, the weather was just right. Murphy was fit as a fiddle, and an extension had been attached to the single car behind which Murphy rode to shield him from the wind. This extension went to within an inch of the rails, so that Murphy practically was hemmed in on the sides and overhead.

Flags marked the quarters of the mile, and a flying start of about half a mile was made. The engine and car went over the route alone first as a test, the time being 1:06. Then they went back, and about 6 o'clock the word was given for the start, an interesting group on the rear platform watching Murphy's every move.

The train got under headway quickly and was going at a rattling clip when the beginning of the mile was reached. Murphy was humming along behind, his eyes glued to a white strip of board attached to the rear platform and his legs churning up and down as rapidly and smoothly as the piston rods moved on the engine in front of him.

There was some uneasiness before the ride began that Murphy would wobble or swerve and perhaps meet with an accident, but this vanished when it was seen that he was going true as a die. He rode almost a hair line and never once got off the center board of the track, not varying from a straight line more than four inches. The train flew along, and with it flew the cyclist, his hair streaming and his body bent low, his front wheel not more than a foot away from a fender fastened to the car as a precaution against a mishap. The track was a streak of light and the dust curled up from beneath the car in clouds.

The ride became more thrilling as it progressed, and it seemed as if the cyclist was going faster and faster with each revolution of his wheel, and the fractional time did show that the last quarter was the fastest. The wheelman scudded along so noiselessly that apparently it was less exertion for him to burn up distance than for the snorting engine.

When the finish line was reached, the signal for Murphy to let up was given by the waving of a cap. The engine also sounded its whistle, but the cyclist's mind was too intent on other things for him to hear. The most exciting part of the ride was just after the finish. As Murphy straightened up and tried to decrease his speed, which was no easy matter at the rate at which he was traveling and the engine drew away from him his wheel swung from side to side, and all his strength was needed to control it.

The swaying was caused by the suction from beneath the train, and Murphy said that this was the most trying part of the whole ride. He had a hard time getting his machine under control, and did not succeed in stopping before the end of the board track was reached. This was a quarter of a mile and several hundred yards more from the finish of the mile, but for all that Murphy had to jump from his mount to avoid riding off the boards into the cinder roadbed.

Murphy was smiling and looking fit enough to do it all over again when the train backed up and took him aboard. He was surrounded by an admiring crowd, many of whom had watched the race from along the route, but couldn't see much on account of the dust. He was greatly pleased and likewise considerably surprised when told of the time. The fact is he had expected the train to go in about 1:25, the real intention having been withheld from him lest he should get nervous.

"If that engineer goes in 1:05 when he says he is going in 1:25, there's no telling what he'll do when he says he's going in a minute flat," he remarked. Murphy was not even breathing hard when picked up. His pulse was about 90, but soon subsided to normal. He rode a machine weighing 21 pounds, geared to 112. The time by quarters was 16 2-5, .33, .49 1-5 and 1:05.

"There was no strain," Murphy said in describing his flight against time, "except on the eyes. My eyes got crossed toward the last from keeping them so fixed on the white board. So far as the physical exertion went, I have felt it more on a home trainer. There was more of a feeling of responsibility, however. A hundred yards after the finish was where the hard work came in, and it was no easy job in backing away from the train. I can tell you. The wind from the train made my wheel shake so I could hardly hold it. I didn't know I was going as fast as I was, but it was no trouble to keep up."

Three timepieces were held on Murphy. Two of them were stop watches in the hands of Al Reeves and Tommy Lee, both of which caught the time at 1:05. The other watch was not of the stop variety, and its time was 1:06. The stop watches naturally would be the more accurate. Murphy declares that he once rode a mile in less time than he did the other day. This was on Twenty-second avenue, Brooklyn, several years ago, but the time never was credited. Murphy is 29 years old and has been a familiar figure on the cycle path for the last dozen years.

The locomotive which paced Murphy yesterday is the same one that hauled Governor Roosevelt over Long Island in the last gubernatorial campaign.

DRAWBACKS IN PHILIPPINES.

Discouraging Agricultural Picture. Dangerous Diseases and Parasites.

The agricultural department at Washington has received an interesting report, dated Manila, from Lieutenant A. P. Hayne, California heavy artillery, on agriculture in the Philippines. Lieutenant Hayne had been able to make no personal observations beyond the American lines, but he transmits the translation of an article prepared for him by Senor Manuel del Busto, chief of the agricultural experiment station in Manila.

The most remarkable feature of the report is the almost hopeless picture presented of the conditions prevailing in the islands. The great fertility of the soil is pointed out, and it is said that only in a few restricted areas, where three crops a year have been gathered without interruption for several centuries, is there any apparent need of fertilizers. In spite of this, all attempts at colonization have failed, either through the poor class of immigrants secured, the financial instability of the various companies or the corruption and oppression of the governors and government agents. The result is that the middle and lower classes in the islands are almost of the worst possible type.

In addition to this primary difficulty in securing reliable labor, the agriculturist is confronted at the start with the necessity for an immense amount of work in clearing new land. When this is accomplished and a luxuriant crop raised, it is at the mercy of the first typhoon. Besides the typhoon, there is to be feared in certain provinces the "dagado," or dry land wind, which dries up and destroys vegetation. Diseases so far hardly known to European doctors result from the turning up of this virgin soil. According to competent medical authority, many of these strange disorders cause death within a few hours, while from others, even if the patient recovers, he is condemned to a wretched and lingering existence.

Another of the great difficulties in the way of agricultural development is the utter lack of roads and shipping points. The native Filipino is unable to do any large amount of work and cares to do less. He is indolent and given to gambling. All these vices have to be taken into account in any undertaking where labor is employed. The lack of credit is another serious handicap to enterprise. The minimum cost of money in the Philippines regardless of security is 12 per cent. At present the Filipinos are cursed by a well organized body of the worst sort of usurers. The price of nearly all crops is steadily falling as the production retrogrades in quantity and quality.

Lieutenant Hayne in transmitting this interesting document states that he would strongly recommend special quarantine measures against Philippine plants, as there exist an immense number of very injurious parasites in the islands and many private parties are already preparing to import botanical specimens.

Prof. Osgood's Ancient Punch Bowl.

The will of the late Rev. George Osgood, a retired Unitarian clergyman of Kensington, near Exeter, N. H., gives to his nephew, William Fogg Osgood, assistant professor of mathematics at Harvard, the punch bowl used by the graduating class at Harvard in 1768, says the Boston Herald. The interesting relic descended to Mr. Osgood from his great-uncle, Major Jeremiah Fogg, a graduate of Harvard in the class named and during the Revolution a prominent officer.

Heard His Funeral Sermon.

A dispatch from La Porte, Ind., says the Rev. George D. Simons of Zanesville, O., preached the funeral sermon of an old parishioner at La Porte the other day exactly as he will preach it when the man dies, says the New York World.

The man wanted to hear his own funeral sermon, and it was thus rehearsed at his request.

FUTURE OF HONDURAS.

Ex-President Bonilla's Views on the Country.

GOOD FIELD FOR AMERICAN MONEY

The People Are Prosperous and Contented—Have Learned, Too, That Revolutions Do Not Pay—Says His Countrymen Do Not Want to Be Annexed by Anybody.

Dr. P. Bonilla, former president of Honduras, talked about his country and its people to a reporter the other evening in New York. Dr. Bonilla is about 40 years old and has straight black hair, black eyes and a bristling black mustache. In complexion and features he looks something like an Indian. He is a powerfully built man, more than six feet tall and weighing about 190 pounds. He speaks English with a strong accent.

"There is much that I would like to tell North Americans about Honduras," said the doctor; "so much, in fact, that it is difficult to make a beginning. Perhaps I may begin with what may seem to some a very startling statement when made by a Central American country: There will be no more revolutions in Honduras for a long time to come. This comes largely from the fact that the people throughout the country are more prosperous than they have been in years and that they are contented. General Sierra has made an excellent president during the few months that he has been in office, and there is every reason to believe that he will continue as he has begun. The people have learned that revolutions are not altogether profitable, and for the next four years, the length of the term of our chief magistrate, General Sierra will be allowed to carry out the wise policy that he has inaugurated.

"The main reason for the satisfactory condition of Honduras at present is because we have abrogated the import duty we had on silver. We have plenty of silver in Honduras taken from our mines. When I was called to the presidency five years ago, it seemed to me that our silver dollar should not be worth in certain transactions any more at home than abroad. Therefore, when we could sell our dollars to the traders for what we could get in New York, London or other capitals, we did not export silver. When we could not get the exchange price from the traders, we exported. Thus we have plenty of silver, taken at its face value, for domestic transactions, and plenty of gold to discharge our foreign obligations, and everybody is happy.

"Honduras offers a particularly attractive field just now for the investment of American capital. It is not, I think, generally known that we can produce quite as fine a quality of tobacco as can be produced in Cuba. The plants yield even a larger leaf. Tobacco growing in Honduras is in its infancy, and any one with capital to invest can get most satisfactory returns by investing it in that industry. The land has not been worked as it has in Cuba, and therefore the yield will be larger at less cost of cultivation.

"But there is more money to be made in rubber in my country than in tobacco. Honduras is almost literally a forest of rubber trees, but there has been no attempt to develop the industry. We export a little rubber, but it is all in its natural state. If we had capital invested to develop the industry, there would be a great future for the country and much profit to the investor. The raising of cattle and the mining of copper are other industries which we have to offer to the capitalists of the United States. Our cattle range over the western and Honduras is rich in copper mines. The copper is always found with gold, which yields a profit in itself.

"I have been asked if we want annexation to the United States. My answer is: We do not in the ordinary acceptance of the term. My countrymen prefer at present to be free. They would fight against annexation to any country. In fighting the United States it would be again a contest between the Anglo-Saxon and Latin, and there could be but one result—the Anglo-Saxon would triumph. If, however, in the fullness of time you will send enough of your people to Honduras to make homes for themselves there and thus triumph over us in civil and business affairs, as you have in Hawaii, then we will welcome such a triumph, and if your people, having interests common with ours and having domination over us even at the polls, want annexation, we will say that is destiny and the providence of God, and we will be annexed."—New York Sun.

How grandpa must of loved his son
When my paw was a boy!
He'd git the coal and chop the wood
And think up every way he could
To always jist be sweet and good—
When my paw was a boy.

Then everything was in its place,
When my paw was a boy.
How he could rattle, jump and race,
When my paw was a boy!
He never never disobeied.
He beat in every game he played—Geel! What a record they was made—
When my paw was a boy!
—Chicago Times-Herald.

Tommy Knew Where to Put Them.
An Atchison mother recently refused her boy permission to learn how to swim. He said nothing to indicate his disappointment, but the next day she found the face of her mirror covered with newspaper clippings showing that if Fred Funston had not learned how to swim he would not now be a brigadier general.—Atchison Globe.

A Romance That Was.

There's a graceful little clerk
Who goes every day to work
In a big department store down town;
She rides on the train with me.
Oh, her smile is fair to see
And her eyes are big and velvety and brown!

I have seen her every day
As she rode upon her way
To deal out lace and linen in the store;
I have looked at her, and she
Has looked sweetly back at me.
But, alas! I fear that we shall flirt no more.

A villain yesterday
Snatched her pocketbook away,
And she turned and cried, "Oh, stop him, sir!"
So I left them on the run,
And I rather guess that I am through with her.

The Controller Controlled.

He was a man of mighty brawn, a Milo he for muscle;
His grip and twitch quick floored his man in rough and tumble tussle;
And yet a mite, a microbe small, subdued his fierce resistance
And laid him prone upon his back, be-seeking for assistance.

The Stay at Home.

And some will go to Europe,
The mountains will get more,
And some will live henceforward
To the ocean's sounding shore.
The farm will get its quota
And they'll all get up with zest,
Leaving time of room for me right here
To take a needed rest.

Mrs. Matchman—Mr. Cokelair, the gas man's son, has given Eva a beautiful diamond brooch.
Mr. Matchman—That's only common justice! I figure that during the three years he's been courting her I've paid over $100 for extra gas!—Jewelers' Weekly.

As far as the eye can reach,
The man who summers on the strand

With bold intent to force ahead,
When, lo, fate hitches on the back
And pulls us down some other track.

WEYMOUTH.

An explosion occurred at the pyrotechnical works of E. S. Hunt & Sons at about 10.30 o'clock Friday morning. An alarm was rung in from box 34 and Hose 3 and Hook and Ladder 3 were soon upon the scene. In the meantime the employees of the firm had made good use of a small hose which is always kept on the premises for use in just such emergencies. The explosion took place in building number 5, and by the efficient work of the firemen was confined to that building. The building contained large quantities of explosives and the firemen were placed in great danger, but nevertheless soon succeeded in getting the fire under control. Hugh Currey, an operative of the fuse machine, was severely cut about the face and arms by jumping through a top story window. A member of the firm stated to the Ledger man that the loss would be about $1,500; no insurance.

Charles Higgins, clerk at Connell's pharmacy, is enjoying his annual vacation.

The house at the corner of Front street and Walnut avenue, recently purchased by Hews and Mason is undergoing expensive repairs.

Ralph W. Loud has accepted a position with the Municipal Sewerage Company of Boston.

The graduating exercises of the class of '99, Weymouth High school, were held at the school building Thursday afternoon. A reception and dance was held in the evening, Tirrell's orchestra being in attendance. The floor was in charge of Francis J. O'Connor and an efficient corps of aids.

Oscar Smith has taken a position as night fireman at the power station of the Weymouth Light and Power Company.

MILTON.

The High school graduation at Milton took place on Thursday evening at the Town Hall, there being 21 to be graduated. The programme included parts by Miss Carrie Allen, Jerry McQuade, Frank P. Fanning, Miss Ruth L. Huntington, Miss Ruth E. Gallagher, Miss Sarah G. Pope, William E. Mitchell, Miss Alice G. Palmer and Walter J. Farrell. Diplomas were presented by Rev. Henry S. Huntington, chairman of the School Committee.

—The inducement offered by the promoters of the new telephone company is cheap telephone service. The value of a telephone connection lies chiefly in the extent and variety of the circuit. Every new subscriber added to the list enhances that value and enhances it in what may be called geometrical proportion. Thus a connection with the Boston division of the New England Telephone Company with upwards of 22,000 subscribers, is worth today at least ten times what such a connection was five or six years ago when there were only ten thousand subscribers.—Boston Beacon.

—A synopsis of the Dubuque law which enables grocers and other purveyors of the necessities of life to collect small bills was published some time ago. It is of interest to many people to know that the constitutionality of this law has been tested and the law sustained by the Supreme Court.—Norwood Advertiser.

JOHN WANAMAKER,

The millionaire of Philadelphia, who made his fortune by store advertising, says "I never in my life used such a thing as a poster, or hand bill, or dodger. My plan for 20 years has been to buy so much space in a newspaper and fill it up as I want it."

BRAINTREE.

Officer Hunt has moved to Taylor street.

N. F. Hunt expects to launch his steam yacht in a few days.

James R. Qualey has moved into the Storrs' place recently purchased.

The water pipes are now in Liberty street and the water has been turned on.

Mr. G. H. Holbrook has the frame up for Mr. Hamblett's house on Lowell street.

The High school reception came off Tuesday evening in spite of the thunder shower.

The next church supper to be given by the ladies connected with the First church will be at Point Allerton.

Mr. H. F. Drinkwater with his "Celo" won second money in the race at Saugus Wednesday the time was 2:18 1-4.

Richard B. Harrison of Hollis avenue has gone to Utah where he has accepted a position as assayer for a mining company. Richard has been a very studious young man and he will succeed.

The Monatiquot Grammar school had a very fine exhibit of penmanship.

Postmaster Torrey is endeavoring to get Sunday mails for the South Braintree office.

On Wednesday evening June 21st, Mr. Everett Stanwood Hollis, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Hollis, and Miss Eva Mabel Torrey of Weymouth were married at the parsonage by Rev. A. A. Ellsworth.

Mrs. Ruth Thayer, widow of Jonathan Thayer, observed the 98th birthday Tuesday at the home of her son, Mr. H. H. Thayer, on Washington street. All day long friends and neighbors poured in to express their best wishes and extend congratulations. Mrs. Thayer retains all her faculties and can remember distinctly the events of long ago. She is the mother of seven children, four of whom are now living.

The children who are obliged to travel over the River street crossing have shown their appreciation of the kindness of Mr. Isaac L. Jones, the faithful gateman, by presenting him with a handsome bible, suitably inscribed, and upon the fly leaf is written this quotation: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these ye have done it unto me."

Last Sunday the Universalist society was presented with fifteen "Church Harmonies" by the pastor, and as many more were subscribed for, by individual members of the church. It is needless to say that the adoption of these new hymnals will mark a decided advance in the musical life of the church. All are enthusiastic over the change made, and especially the choir.

A Boston daily reports that the Wood Memorial church, Cambridge, held a special meeting last evening, looking toward the selection of a new pastor. An informal note was taken, resulting very strongly in favor of Rev. C. H. Williams, who is now preaching in South Braintree, Mass., and who was nominated at Wood Memorial church a few weeks ago. Rev. Mr. Williams will probably be heard at the church again soon. Braintree cannot afford to lose him.

TODAY'S COURT.

Andrew Tracy was arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth, and was sent to the house of correction for three months.

The continued case of James F. McDonnell, Jr., of Braintree, for attempting to deliver liquor illegally marked was called, and continued until next Thursday for judgment.

—The last statement of the public debt showed that Uncle Sam still owes $847,367,470 the annual interest charge being $34,387,408. In 1872 this debt was $1,814,704,100. The debt represents $13.81 for each one of us and the interest charge amounts to 51 cents apiece. The cost of running the government for one year was $532,381,201. The heaviest single expense was $147,452,369 for pensions. The interior department which handles pension funds costs each man, woman and child in the country $2.25 per year. The department of agriculture costs four cents per capita; in 1892, it cost five cents. The department of justice costs one-half cent; we pay $1.26 each to the war department, and $0.20 to the navy. We each contribute $1.36 to the post office department, but we pay back for our stamps, on an average of $1.20.

Castle Square Theatre.

The first Boston production of the play by Harrison Grey Fiske and Charles Klein, called "The District Attorney," will make the attraction at the Castle Square theatre the coming week. This play had its first performance some few years ago and created a notable sensation by reason of its extremely interesting story and the direct straight-forward style of its telling. The action of the play passes in New York City and the characters introduced are taken from the every day life of that metropolis, the plot dealing with scenes not unfamiliar in the political and legal circles of the city. The successful attempt of a political ring to fix the responsibility of a heavy forgery, of their own doing, upon an innocent victim gives the leading motive of the play, and its scenes are all admirably planned, the dialogue is well written and the element of comedy is sufficiently prominent to give the proper contrasts in the development of the story. The cast announced is as follows: John Stratton, William Courtleigh; Matthew Brainerd, Frank Sheridan; General Ruggles, J. L. Seelye; Wellington Gridley, Tony Cummings; Frank Pierson, Charles Mackey; Daniel McGrath, Lindsay Morrison; Vernon Holt, N. H. Fowler; Grace Brainerd, Lillian Lawrence; Madge Brainerd, Mary Sanders, Policemen, jurors, etc. For the week beginning Monday, July 3, a revival of Pinero's farcical comedy "The Magistrate," so successfully played at this theatre some eighteen months ago, is announced, with Mr. George Ober in the title role.

Keith's Theatre.

Ching Ling Foo, who played to crowded houses all last week at Keith's, will again be the attraction with the best tricks that he has already given, with changes of method and a number of new ones, that are said to be of even more startling character. Other attractions are Louise Trux, the whistler; Prof. Vernon, ventriloquist; Canon and Herbert, acrobatic comedians; Lavender and Tomson, juvenile acts; Lester and Stevens, comedy sketch; Wilson and Halpin, and the biograph with timely pictures.

If it were the policy of the Chilton Company to put up its paint short weight or measure, it would make so much difference that it would amount in the course of a year to a handsome profit, but this would all come out of the customers of Chilton Paint and therefore the scheme of scant quantity has never been entertained. The Chilton Paint has always been made with Pure Linseed Oil and will continue to be so made until a better vehicle can be found, and should an oil be made which is superior to that compressed from flaxseed, the Chilton Company would be the first to use it, and would then inform the public of the fact through its advertisements. Linseed Oil is the old-fashioned oil for paint and the one which should be used. Nothing has ever been found which approaches it for the purpose intended. No benzine or benzene drier is ever admitted to the Chilton Paint.

It enjoys the confidence of the people and deserves it.

RECORD OF THE TURF.

Conquest Star (2), 2:23, by Nelson, 2:09, is showing fast for John Dickerson. Zembia, 2:13 1/4, is to be bred to Arion and raced. It is four years since her last appearance in public.

Some one who asserts that he has kept tab says that Roan Wilkes, 2:04 3/4, has never made a break in a race.

Joe Thayer worked his 2-year-old brother to Jayhawk, 2:14 1/4, a mile in 2:44 1/2 the other day at Lexington.

Henry Titter is giving Naron (3), by Arion—Nancy Hanks, easy work at Readville, Ill. She will not be raced until 1900, however.

In "General" Turner's string is a green mare, sister of Domera T, 2:18 1/4, and a half sister of Joe Patchen, 2:01 1/4, that is quoted as a fast pacer.

Pittsburg Phil, the celebrated "plunger" of the running turf, has recently purchased a pair of runners bearing the names Caoutchouc and Prestidigitator.

Crystalline (2), 2:19 1/4, is pleasing the critics well since her arrival at the Lexington track. The daughter of Onward moves like "lie in the can" in her exercises.

Joe Thayer has driven Simrock (3), by Simmons, a mile in 2:30, last quarter in 35 seconds, at Lexington and the Bondsman (3), half brother of Jayhawk (3), 2:14 3/4, quarter in 34 1/2 seconds.

I Direct, 2:13, the son of Direct, tried without hobbles and declared not good enough to bring east by Keating, recently worked a mile at Pleasanton, Ills., in 2:12 1/2, last half in 1:04 1/4, without his straps.

Jay F. Godman, Wabash, Ind., owns a stallion that is certainly inbred. He is registered as Baron Hart 25,555 and is by Baron Wilkes, 2:18, out of Rainfall, 2:32 1/2, by Kentucky Wilkes, 2:21 1/4; second dam Olga Wilkes, 2:34 1/4, by Jersey Wilkes; third dam Lilly, by Socrates.

THE FASHION PLATE.

Green and white is a favored combination in summer millinery.

Bias and straight cut folds are in great use on gowns of light cloth, sheer wool, silk, veiling, bunting and tannine.

All button and lacing cord effects at the back of the dress skirt are now being abandoned by well dressed women.

Graceful evening gowns are made of crepe de chine, silk warp Italian cloth, nuns' veiling and india silk in white or pale tints of mauve or pink.

Both French and American modistes are still making use of all kinds and colors of narrow ribbon as trimming for summer gowns of silk, veiling, grenadine, barege, etc.

Very dainty and refined looking are the gowns of gray and white foulard silk, with trimmings of black chantilly net, laid over rose pink, with a number of black velvet bows set here and there on the bodice.

Many of the new summer fabrics have a continuous trimming woven in the goods. Grenadines, tannines and nets have beautiful insertions, incrustations, chenille devices, like embroidery, and runnings of crimped ribbon interwoven.

More and more do some of the new hats resemble the turban. Their designers have thoroughly mastered the art of folding tulle as deftly as the Turk himself. Indeed the modern tulle hat is a very close copy of its imposing foreign prototype.

In the notably dainty effects among summer toilets are white serge, cloth or pique skirts, with waists of soft pink, primrose yellow, Persian mauve, turquoise lined or stem green silk. White parasols lined with color matching the waist and white round hats decorated with one large rose cluster and many full white ostrich plumes complete the costumes.—New York Post.

THE TRUE TONIC

TRUE'S ELIXIR

Is not a stimulant but a blood purifying, cleansing and harmless mixture of vegetable ingredients which cures disorders of the digestive tract and expels worms. It does not whip the tired organs into temporary activity as most remedies do, followed by an equal reaction, but True's Elixir removes the cause of the trouble and its tonic effects are due to good, sound digestion and pure blood, which follow its use. A favorite family medicine for 47 years. Its popularity is due entirely to its cures. Ask your druggist for it. 35 cents a bottle. DR. J. F. TRUE & CO., AUBURN, ME.

AFFAIRS BADLY MIXED.

George A. Learned, Acting Auditor of Pittsfield, Resigns by Request.

Placed Under Arrest on the Charge of Forgery.

Examination of Books Said to Have Disclosed
Much Wrongdoing.

Pittsfield, Mass., June 26.—George A. Learned, acting city auditor, was arrested Saturday afternoon, charged with the forgery of an endorsement on a city warrant of $81 and with appropriating the money.

Last Thursday William Dunn, a resident of the city, went to the city auditor's office to obtain an order on the city treasurer for $81 for work done for the city. Learned was absent, and Dunn went into the mayor's office, where he informed Mayor Whiting that he had been to the auditor's office for the money two or three times and had been put off with the statement that the money was not ready. The mayor had approved Dunn's bill some time ago, and when Learned returned he was summoned before the mayor. To the latter he is said to have confessed that he had forged the endorsement of Dunn to the order on the city treasurer, had collected the money and had spent it. The mayor then demanded Learned's resignation, which was at once complied with.

Experts were set at work upon the auditor's books, but the fact that they had been committed and acknowledged was not made public until Saturday, when Learned was taken into custody. Learned is about 42 years old, and a son of the late George V. Learned. When Mr. Learned, Sr., died in 1873, Mayor Hawkins appointed his son as acting city auditor. Owing to a deadlock in the city government since that time no city auditor has been elected, and Learned, as well as other city officials, has held over from year to year, having been re-appointed by Mayor Whiting. Learned had always been considered honest and faithful, his only defect being a disposition to indulge in strong drink at times, but he had been warned of the consequences of such a habit and had promised to do better.

An examination of the books of Learned shows that his wrongdoing has been going on for some time. It has developed that orders have not only been forged, but that their amounts have been raised, until it is believed the shortage will reach $1000. Orders that have been found to be forged have been cashed for Learned by local storekeepers.

An order purporting to be endorsed by Mrs. Ann Maloy for $3.50 was cashed at a local store, but Mrs. Maloy claims that her endorsement is a forgery. An order of Fred H. Fennell for $4.50 was raised to $40.50 and cashed by Learned at the office of another city official. The examination also shows numerous bills for which orders have been drawn and the money thereon received by Learned. Many unrecipited bills were found among Learned's papers. Learned is unable to secure bail. Several new complaints will be lodged against him, and a continuance of the present case will be asked until the examination of the books is completed.

"Murder" Will Out.
Lynn, Mass., June 26.—The Saugus "murder mystery" has been solved. The blood and brains found in the Newhall's woods belonged to Oscar Phelps, big dog rover. Mr. Phelps lives in Cliffondale, and does not come into town very often. Hence he did not hear about the rumors which he had been the means of starting. Finally the report of the supposed murder reached his ears, and then he explained that he had taken Rover out into the woods and shot him, because he was getting too old. He afterward buried the body.

"Sports" All Escaped.
Marlboro, Mass., June 26.—A cock fight which was in progress early Sunday morning at a secluded resort called Rock Hill was broken up by officers of Northboro. Upon the approach of the officers the crowd scattered in all directions and none of the participants was captured. The officers, however, arrested two hack drivers and captured two hacks, a carry-all and a buggy. They also seized a considerable quantity of liquors and 10 birds.

Dr. Hale's Decision.
Boston, June 26.—In the course of yesterday's services at the South Congregational church (Unitarian) it was announced that Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, who recently tendered his resignation, will remain as pastor emeritus. The selection of his assistant is yet to be made. Dr. Hale will take a three months' vacation.

Hub to Be Honored.
Boston, June 26.—The Herald says that Admiral Dewey will visit Boston and enjoy entertainment here, before he goes to New York, this forecast being based on the statement of the United States consul general at Halifax that he has received word direct from Washington that the Olympia will make Halifax its first American stopping place.

Killed by Lightning.
Sandwich, Mass., June 26.—The house occupied by Abram L. Ellis was struck by lightning, the bolt entering near the chimney and instantly killing Mr. Ellis, who was sitting near Mrs. Ellis and three children were in the room, but were uninjured. Very little damage was done to the house.

CHURCH IS CLOSED.

Brooklyn Presbyterians Could Not Heal the Differences Existing Between Them.

Brooklyn, Mass., June 26.—The First Presbyterian church of this city closed its doors last night and the body will cease to exist as soon as its affairs can be wound up. Notice was read from the pulpit yesterday to the effect that "after careful and prayerful consideration" the officers and members had decided "that under existing circumstances there is no mission for a Presbyterian church in Brooklyn at the present time, and they sorrowfully have resolved to close the church and wind up its affairs. The session has done all that could be done towards restoring unity in the ranks of Presbyterianism in the city, but their efforts have been fruitless. The First Presbyterian church will remain as an organization until all its debts are paid and its affairs settled."

A few months ago over half of the membership left the church for the purpose of forming an independent body, claiming that the session was too arbitrary. The trouble was aggravated later when the session caused the resignation of Mr. Theophilus McLeod against the wishes of the majority of the congregation. Although afterwards it was proven that Mr. McLeod was guilty of very serious and unnatural crimes, the independents would not come back. A letter to the Boston presbytery from Mr. McLeod, acknowledging his guilt and bowing to their decision of removing him from the ministry, also failed to bring about a union, and it was decided to close the church.

Probably Fatal Shooting Affair.

Millbridge, Me., June 25.—A shooting affair, caused by jealousy and liquor, that will probably prove a tragedy, occurred Saturday night, when George H. Garrison shot Horatio L. Ramsay with a 32-calibre revolver, inflicting a wound that is likely to prove fatal. Ramsay, who keeps a boarding house, has been, it is said, suspicious of an undue intimacy between his wife and Garrison, who is one of his boarders. Ramsay is 45 years old. His family consists of a wife and two children. Garrison is 50 years old, and a widower.

No Separate Parish.

Worcester, Mass., June 26.—The Spy says that the trouble which has existed in the St. Joseph's Catholic church at North Brookfield, from which the French-speaking members seceded more than two years ago, has been settled by a papal decree received from the Vatican. After the secession of the French-speaking people, the bishop at Springfield was appealed to, but he sustained the position of the church, inasmuch as he would not listen to a proposition from them for a separate parish and pastor. The secessionists then purchased land and began the work of organizing a parish for themselves, meanwhile appealing in strong terms to the Vatican for the setting aside of the decree of Bishop Beaven. The decree from the pope is a direct refusal of the prayers of the French-speaking people of the church, and an endorsement of the action of Bishop Beaven. The matter has excited interest in Catholic church circles in the New England states and Canada, on account of the determined efforts put forth to defeat the decree of the bishop.

A Quiet Sabbath.

Adams, Mass., June 26.—The rain kept the president and all members of his party indoors most of yesterday forenoon, but it cleared up somewhat before noon, and all, except Mrs. McKinley, attended services at the Congregational church, where Rev. A. B. Pennington preached on the theme, "War for Righteousness and Peace." His argument was that a struggle was necessary for development. The presidential party attended the exercises of the Sunday school. A special program, entitled, "The Righteous Nation," had been prepared for the occasion. It contained a number of patriotic songs. In the afternoon the president took a carriage ride. The balance of the day was passed in a quiet manner. All the party are enjoying very good health, except Mrs. McKinley. She contracted a cold on the trip from Washington, from which she has not yet recovered.

City May Have Lost $20,000.

Norwich, Conn., June 26.—Ex-Tax Collector George L. Griswold is under arrest, charged with embezzling $12,000 of the city funds, and after his arrest it is said Griswold admitted his guilt. It is thought his shortage will amount to $20,000. Griswold was elected town collector in '94 and city and center school district collector in '95, and his term of office expired in '98. Since then he has been engaged in the real estate and insurance business. It is alleged that he lost the money in speculation. It is intimated that another well-known citizen is also involved with him. Griswold is about 35 years of age, and is prominent in number of secret societies. He is married and has two children.

ALLEGED MURDERERS LOCATED.

They Moved on, However, Before Chicago
Police Could Lay Hands on Them.

Chicago, June 26.—The police state that positive evidence has been secured pointing to Frank Smith and "Moafey" Brauer, two sailors, as the men who robbed and murdered Martin Meier, the aged Swiss recluse, who was found dead in his lonely home on West Fifty-seventh street about three weeks ago. Smith and Brauer are said to be in Michigan, and several Chicago officers are searching for them.

The information was given the police by an acquaintance of the alleged murderers, who, it is said, knew of their intention of robbing Meier, and to whom they confided the details of the robbery.

Instead of securing several thousand dollars, however, it is supposed the men succeeded in finding but $18. Meier had previously told the men that he expected his brother at the house in the afternoon to help him do some shingling. The robbers left Meier bound and gagged, believing that he would be released by his brother. But no one called at the house until the following Wednesday, the robbery having occurred on Monday, and Meier probably was gradually strangled to death by the gag in his mouth.

Smith and Brauer, according to the informer's story, that night went to St. Joseph, Mich., and thence to Stevensville, from which point he received a letter from them, dated June 7. The description of the two men corresponds to the men seen around Meier's house on June 5. The men have been traced as far as Stevensville, but there all track of them was lost.

Good Afternoon.

Wonder if the municipal debt will be reduced this year, even if the maturing debt of $82,000 is paid off. New debt amounting to about one-half this sum has already been authorized by the government of 1899.

Some important appropriation orders are expected at the meeting of the City Council this evening, as the Councilmen are anxious to put through important matters that they may have a vacation during August.

There are localities about the city which need better police protection more than the section of Ward Five where the petitioners hope to secure night patrol. In the interest of economy the force should however not be increased this year.

Aside from the completion of the brick and concrete sidewalks order in 1897 and 1898, for which an additional appropriation has been voted, it is doubtful if any extensions will be made this year. The good work should be continued as fast as possible, but $8,000 is perhaps enough to expend in one year.

The amount of the tax levy order will probably be reported to the City Council this evening. The increase in this item and the increase in valuation will be anxiously waited by the taxpayers, who hope after all that has been said that the tax rate will not be $20, or even $19 per $1,000.

It is said upon good authority that the police inspectors of Lowell who brought the suit against the newspapers were not true friends of the no-license movement but were of the kind that would take advantage of a technicality in order to ridicule the law.

With all the excellent secondary schools—the Adams Academy, Woodward Institute and Thayer Academy—it is surprising that Quincy will this year graduate more pupils from its High school than will Brockton. The number in this city is 83, and Brockton graduated 68.

Drift of Opinion.

The way of the defaulter is hard, after all. Money may come easy when one helps himself out of a corporation treasury, but there is not much fun in the consequences.—New Bedford Standard.

We trust that the "sweet girl graduates" will bear in mind after graduation that to give their mothers a vacation this summer would be a good start in carrying out all the self-sacrificing ideas they have been boarding up during school life.—Haverhill Gazette.

Some authorities hold to the idea that a child's disposition is largely governed by his diet, citing the gentleness of the rice-eating races against the quarrelling of meat-eating children in proof. If that deduction holds good, the diet in a good many localities should be changed right away.—Lynn Item.

The talk of Richard Olney as Democratic candidate for president is amusing. What sort of a platform could Gorman, Bryan, Altgeld and Williams construct for the approval of Olney? He is an expansionist, a gold man, and believes in suppressing disorder at strikes with law and Gatling guns.—Worcester Gazette.

Some see a menace to the country, in great fortunes, but the millionaires and multi-millionaires are so numerically insignificant that they can never overthrow the government if the honest and intelligent of moderate means are banded to gether to preserve it. As a matter of fact, a very rich man rarely possesses any political influence, owing to the popular suspicion of those who control large sums of money. We never had but one millionaire president or ex-president, and he made his money after his first election to the chief magistracy.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Captain Coughlan of the navy is quoted as saying, "If a man is an American citizen, he is an American citizen, pure and simple. I have no patience with the hyphenated citizenship." Whatever Captain Coughlan may have said judiciously on other subjects, we think this remark will inspire profound respect for him on the part of all men who regard American citizenship at its true worth. The jealousies and petty race squabbles which are imported into this country and dignified as Americanisms with hyphenated prefixes are unworthy of the country and disgraceful to the men who introduce and perpetuate them.—New Bedford Standard.

Granite Manufacturer Dead.

Mr. Thomas McDonnell, one of Quincy's well known granite manufacturers, died quite suddenly Saturday night at his residence on Bridge street. He had been ill with bronchitis for some days. It was not thought to be serious, however, and no later than the afternoon of his death he was about his home. Saturday evening his illness took a sudden turn for the worse and he failed rapidly until 10 o'clock when he died.

He was 48 years of age and has resided in Quincy for many years. Up to last year he was the senior member of the well known granite firm of McDonnell & Cook, whose place of business was on Water street, South Quincy. The firm was dissolved a year ago, and Mr. McDonnell shortly after established a plant near his residence, which he carried on up to the time of his death.

He leaves a widow and a large family of children, one of whom is in the training class of the public school.

For the President's Cup.

The play for the President's cup at the links of the Wollaston club was spirited throughout last week and the first round and three matches in the second were completed Friday. The tournament is a handicap event throughout, each man in the play receiving his regular club rating, making rather an unique event among the club contests. The results of the first round were as follows:

Atherton beat Farrington, 3 up and 2 to play; Russell beat Brook, 1 up; Clark beat Davenport 1 up; Chipman beat Bremer by default; Cracknell beat Rice, 4 up and 2 to play; Chase beat Tarbell, 5 up and 3 to play; Porter beat Monk, 3 up and 2 to play; Freeman beat Pope, 5 up and 3 to play. The results in the second round were as follows:

Atherton beat Russell 1 up; Clark beat Chipman 1 up; Porter beat Freeman 3 up and 2 to play

ADAMS GOLD MEDAL.

It is Awarded this Year
to Daniel C. Carey.

The Winner Also Receives
a Scholarship.

Master's Prize Won by Algernon R. Burchsted—Other Prizes.

There was an unusually large number present this morning at the annual declamation exercises of Adams Academy pupils at the Stone temple for the Adams gold medal and Master's prize. A large majority of those present, however, were ladies, although many of the alumni were noticed.

The exercises were of more than ordinary interest from the fact that all of the speakers were Quincy boys. At the outset Dr. Everett announced that in no sense was this a commencement exercise, as the gold medal and master's prize were open to any pupil of the school. The several selections had been selected under his control and were those best calculated to each individual. Many of the selections were familiar and others were not so. The selection given by Andrew Joseph O'Brien, "The Murderer's Secret," Dr. Everett said was one that he had long desired to have spoken but which Mr. Tyler did not desire.

The selections as a whole were rendered in an earnest manner that showed much thought and study on the part of the pupils to familiarize themselves with the scenes from which the original were taken, and as a whole it was one of the best exhibitions held by the school.

Music during the exercises were furnished by Mr. James F. Harow and Dr. F. J. Peirce, two graduates of the school.

The programme was as follows:

1. Liberty of Discussion, William C. Preston George Joseph Donaher, West Quincy.
2. The Murderer's Secret, Webster Andrew Joseph O'Brien, West Quincy.
3. Catiline to the Patricians, Croly John Garfield Anderson, Wollaston.
4. The Disinheritor of Mexico, Corwin Avery Lowell Bennett, Wollaston.
5. On the Central American Treaty, E. Everett Edwin Mardock Morse, Quincy.
6. Satan's Address to the Sun, Milton Sydney Curtis Hardwick, Quincy.
7. Speech of an Indian Chief, E. Everett Nathan Gorman Nickerson, Wollaston.
8. On O'Connell's Amendment to the Address, Macanley Daniel Charles Carey, Quincy Point.
9. Dying Speech of Buckingham, Shakespeare Royal Archibald Moore, Wollaston.
10. On the Afghan War, Gladstone Algernon Raymond Burchsted, Wollaston.

William Ewart Gladstone, Original Avery Lowell Bennett, Wollaston. Distribution of Prizes.

While the judges were out the following scholarship prizes were awarded:

For excellence in study prizes were awarded as follows:
First class, D. C. Carey; second class, A. L. Bennett; third class, R. A. Moore; fourth class, A. J. O'Brien; special prize for mathematics, J. A. May.

For general scholarship and good conduct,—First class, D. C. Carey; second class, James Haley third class, L. M. Baker, R. A. Moore, N. G. Nickerson and F. F. Tate; fourth class, F. J. Duffy, J. E. W. Geary, W. George, C. B. Hoxie, A. J. O'Brien, W. G. Thomas and R. F. Weston.

For translations,—A. L. Bennett (3), R. S. Pinkham, A. J. O'Brien. Brackett essay prize—A. N. Hatch. Anderson prize,—D. C. Carey. Alumni oration prize—A. L. Bennett. The judges for the gold medal and master's prize were Dr. Joseph M. Sheahan of Quincy, Hon. George B. Crocker and Mr. Phineas Pierce of Boston, who awarded the gold medal to Daniel C. Carey and the master's prize to Algernon R. Burchsted.

In awarding the Dimmock scholarship prize to Daniel C. Carey, Dr. Everett explained that this fund was contributed by pupils of Dr. Dimmock and was to assist the receiver through his first year in some higher school. Dr. Everett also announced that steps were being taken by the pupils of Mr. Tyler to give a scholarship to assist the receiver during his second year in some higher school.

Radcliffe Examinations.

Examinations for admission to Radcliffe College for the young women of this vicinity will be held, by request of Miss Coes, secretary, at the Woodward Institute, June 27, 28, 29, 30, and July 1. The work of Woodward Institute is being recognized by educators outside of our city in a most satisfactory way; and the excellent standing of Miss Clara Baxter at Vassar, and Miss Ruth Randall at Bryn Mawr, speaks well for the college-preparatory training at our Woodward Institute for Girls.

Goebel the Strongest.
Louisville, June 26.—There is no sign of an agreement between any two of the Democratic candidates for governor, and it seems likely that the ballots today will result just about as did the 11th on Saturday night. Candidates and managers have been on the go, out of one conference into another, but so far to no purpose. The 1902 delegates in the convention are divided so nearly evenly that there is not a difference of 30 votes in the strength of the three candidates, Stone, Goebel and Hardin. But of these Goebel is the strongest, because of the solidity of his support. He controls his following absolutely, and can vote them for himself or throw them to either of his opponents at will. Neither Stone nor Hardin can do this, and for that reason neither is in a position to make terms.

Death by Asphyxiation.
Boston, June 26.—Charles H. Hooper, senior member of the firm of Hooper, Lewis & Co., one of the oldest stationery houses in this city, committed suicide Sunday by asphyxiation. Mr. Hooper left his home at Brookline to visit his store, as has been his custom on Sundays. Not returning at night, his daughter and her coachman came to the city and searched the store. Mr. Hooper was found in a closet, sitting on a chest of drawers, lifeless, with the place filled with gas from an open jet. Mr. Hooper, who was 63 years old, is said to have been despondent of late.

Big Blaze at Boston.
Boston, June 26.—The six-story brick block 148 to 152 Purchase street and 146 to 154 Pearl street, owned by the Stone estate, was practically ruined by fire last night, and the numerous tenants lost nearly all their stock. The total loss will aggregate about $200,000. William King, who slept in the building, is missing, and it is feared that he was burned to death. The fire started on the third floor, occupied by the Boston Book Binding company and printing firm, and the nature of their stock accounts for the rapidity with which the flames spread.

Decapitated by a Train.
Saco, Me., June 26.—The headless body of an unknown man, with the right leg cut off at the ankle, was found on the tracks of the Boston and Maine railroad at Milliken's mills yesterday. The man evidently fell from the night freight while stealing a ride.

Caterpillars' Travels Extended.
St. John's, June 25.—Reports of caterpillar plague spreading over the island and have been received from Cape Broyle and other points. The insects are larger than a moth, with wide-spread wings, eyes very red, and they are devouring every speck of vegetation. No other like it has been seen here before.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of Edward Kiernan of Weymouth for drunkenness was called and he was defaulted. The continued case of Timothy Sheahan for drunkenness at Quincy was called and again continued.

JOLLY GOOD TIME.
At the Picnic of the Wollaston Unitarian Sunday School.

The Wollaston Unitarian Sunday school had a jolly good time at its annual picnic at Merrymount Park on Saturday afternoon. About 150 persons were present and enjoyed the sports and good things to eat. The larger part of the crowd was transferred by Rogers' teams.

A large measure of the success of the outing was due to the indefatigable efforts of Mr. F. A. Page and his assistants on the various committees, viz: Sports, Mr. Walter O. Parker, Dr. Fred C. Merrill, Mr. H. W. Lull, Mrs. Charles T. Baker, Mrs. Henry Fay and Miss Marion Sherman; refreshments, Mrs. S. S. Delano, Mrs. W. E. Rowe, Miss Almira Simmons, Mr. E. H. Spague, Mrs. Charles K. Crane, and Mrs. Joseph N. Smith. There was plenty for the large crowd to eat, including a delectable chowder made under the direction of Mrs. F. A. Page and Mrs. William M. Chase, also ice cream, cake and lemonade. The sports were exciting and hotly contested. The winners were: Throwing the shot, A. L. Bennett. Jumping, A. L. Bennett and L. B. Estabrooks. 100 yard dash, W. C. Bennett. Wheelbarrow race, W. L. Whittemore. Sack race, John Merrill and Majorie Fay. Ring contest, Percy Hull. Potato race, W. C. Bennett. Throwing ball, F. F. Thayer. The ball game was interrupted by rain after two innings. There were also boating, horse-shoe pitching, etc.

The Greenleaf School.
The teachers, pupils and friends of this school held their annual farewell exercises in the rooms of the school on Friday morning, June 23. A large number of parents and friends were present. They first inspected the drawings upon the boards, done by the children. Then there were drawings upon paper and historical books arranged by them. These included original "stories with Perry pictures, etc., to illustrate. This feature in all our schools is enjoyed by our little and big children. Flowers made the rooms attractive. Flags, national emblems and hero pictures also lent attraction. There were singing, reading and speaking, after which came refreshment of ice cream and rolls, and then a social hour thus acceptably closing another year of this old-time popular school.

The two lady teachers of this school are long-time Quincy residents; Miss French coming here when a child with her parents; Miss Wright was born here, both received their early education in our schools, adding higher training before entering the lists of public school teachers.

This school was established by the Rev. John D. Wells, pastor of the old Stone church, to meet a want felt at the time.

Children's Day.
Sunday was Children's day at the Washington Street Congregational church, Quincy Point. The pastor, Rev. Edward Anderson preached an interesting and appropriate sermon to the children, at the morning service. The children of the Sunday School contributed songs. The regular session of the Sunday School at 12 o'clock was omitted. The junior and senior Endeavor societies met at the usual hour. The regular Sunday evening service was omitted, as Mr. Anderson left Sunday evening to meet his son in New York City, where he will remain until Thursday morning, returning to attend the High school exercises that evening.

Victory for St. Johns.
The St. John's A. A. won their base ball game with St. Thomas A. A. of Jamaica Plain, at Merrymount park on Saturday. They played a steady game and fielded finely, so that when the visitors went to pieces in the fifth they had no difficulty in scoring a big victory; 17 to 7. The score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
St. Thomas	0	1	0	1	2	0	3	0	7
St. John's	0	0	0	0	11	0	2	4	17

Canal Street.
Editors of the Daily Ledger:
The writer feels in duty bound, whatever his own opinions on the subject, to present any petition from citizens, and several brought him having been thought worthy of by the Council have been accepted. Among them being the massive bridge over Town brook, widening of Hancock street, several crossings, and Woodward avenue.

The proposed change of name of Canal street seems highly proper. The widened brook called a canal will soon have to be looked to by the board of health, as it is so completely filled with mud and sewage as to be fast approaching the danger line. The street as originally named ran only from Hancock street to Faxon hall, and had no more to do with the canal than Moon Island with the moon, Strawberry Hill with fruit, or Cat island with dogs. The change is desired by a large number of property owners. It would seem however that it would be better to continue over the whole length as far as possible in the direction of Merrymount Park, including Valley street. The whole to be called Paul Revere road, which would stand for something and would be about a mile in length.

The short street from Greenleaf is now called Park road, and is one of a number built by land companies with the expectation of being accepted, but without consulting the city officials regarding method of construction, width, name or location with existing street, seldom connecting square but on one side, or on an angle. This is grievous and the subject will be brought before the people later.

The streets are often burdened with names we do not like, or a repetition of others. There are half a dozen each of Elm, Park and Faxon streets, and in Ward two alone we have Newcomb place from Union, Newcomb avenue near Point Holes, and Newcomb square at Howard street, which is confusing. Newcomb square is appropriately named, as the original settlement was made at the place. The others including the street in Ward 1 were named by families owning the land cut up for house lots.

On Saturday you published a letter from R. D. C. complaining that land titles would be disturbed. I never heard that argument before, and would suggest that he have the renaming of New road for instance before it is built up. The city of Boston was not troubled when city changed the names of Ann, Warren, Chester Park and others, when there was more value than in the whole of our city. Quincy of all places should have historic names. Elisha Packard.

New Timetable.

On the former, a car will leave Quincy every ten minutes for Neponset and returning will leave Neponset on the even hour, 15, 25, 35, 45 and 55 minutes past the hour. Cars leaving Quincy at 10, 30 and 40 minutes past the hour run via Hancock street, those leaving at 20 minutes past the hour via Hancock street and Norfolk Downs, and those leaving at 20 and 50 minutes past the hour via Wollaston.

Returning cars that leave Neponset on the hour and half hour run via Hancock street through to Nantasket, 30 minutes past the hour car running via Hancock street and Norfolk Downs. Cars leaving at 25 and 55 minutes past the hour run via Hancock street through to Holbrook. Cars leaving at 15 and 45 minutes past the hour run via Wollaston through to Weymouth Landing.

On the Weymouth Landing line half hour service will be inaugurated and the cars will run through to Neponset leaving Weymouth Landing on the even hour and half hour. Returning cars for Weymouth Landing will leave Neponset at 15 and 45 minutes past the hour and Quincy at 10 and 40 minutes past the hour.

On the Neponset-Squantum line the only change is, the last car will leave Neponset for Squantum at 9.30 P. M. instead of 8.30 P. M., and the last car from Squantum will leave at 10 P. M. The complete timetable will be published in Wednesday's Ledger.

Bethany Bible School and church will hold its annual picnic on Saturday at Hayward's grove, making the trip on the electric. It is proposed to make it a family gathering as far as possible, and a grand good time.

The Globe, says, F. L. Pigeon's Quincy cup challenger, Thelma, has been hauled out and lead put into her centerboard. Her mast, which had a pitchfork, is to be resteped. Mr. Pigeon expects that with these changes his boat will be much faster.

The music at the vesper service at Bethany church, Sunday evening, under the direction of Mrs. Jennie Hocking Hunt, was unusually good. The quartette consisting of Mr. E. E. Bullock, 1st tenor; the Temple quartette, tenor; Miss Newman of Boston, soprano; Miss Holbrook of South Weymouth, contralto; and Mr. Hayden of Quincy, bass. Each member of quartette contributed a solo.

About 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon a horse owned by Mr. Callup of Ashmont stumbled when near the corner of Hancock and Atlantic streets, throwing the driver out. The horse then ran toward Neponset and was captured on the bridge by Officer McCarthy. The driver escaped without injury.

Council Business.
The indications are that tonight's meeting of the city council will not be a late one, unless the members get into a debate on orders or reports. The committee on licenses will report on a number of petitions for minor licenses. The committee on sewers and drains will report on the petition for a drain on Willard street.

In the calendar are the orders for $400 for street watering and the order granting the New England Telephone Co. a location for poles on Cottage street.

On the table are the orders granting the street railway a location for a turn-out on Sea street and a location for a track from City square to the car house, the plumbing ordinance, and the report of the street committee on the Liberty street triangle.

A REPLY TO NORTHERN.

Charge of Rape Against Negroes Is a "Masterpiece of Slander."

Hose Case Said to Have Been Greatly Exaggerated.

A Million Men Have Assisted in Killing Forty Thousand Negroes.

Boston, June 25.—In the People's Temple yesterday, Rev. Charles S. Morris delivered an address of great force and vigor in reply to the speech which ex-Governor Northern of Georgia delivered here recently. Mr. Northern defended the lynchings in the south, pictured the negroes as committing horrible crimes, and stated that Massachusetts, under the same circumstances, would act just as Georgia did.

Mr. Morris, after dwelling on the injustice with which the south has treated the negro since the war, went on to speak of the question of lynching. He said: "The south seems to have a genius for laying at the negro's door charges which will thoroughly deprive him of northern sympathy and respect. For the last 20 years the south has periodically thrown the nation into hysterics by the artful cry of 'negro domination' and 'negro uprising.' But when this bugbear and scarecrow began to get too flimsy, then the old cry gave way to the new one of 'rape,' 'rape,' of which we have heard so much in the past few years."

"This charge is a masterpiece of slander. What other word could the south hit upon that would more blister, blacken and blast the negro? What charge in the whole category of crime is so revolting as outrage on a woman, and doubly prejudicial when committed by a black man on a white woman? Outrage is punished with death only when committed by black men on white women, and almost never when committed by white men on black women."

"When you hang a negro to the nearest tree, and not even send a white man to jail for the same crime, is that the way to teach the black man the heinousness of his offense? In the south, negroes are almost invariably lynched for assaulting white women, but how do the American people really regard this crime?"

"Now, as a matter of fact, outrage is the cause of but one-fifth of the lynchings in the south. During 1898, 127 were lynched, of whom 103 were negroes. One was lynched for stealing two hogs, one was 'impudent to a white man,' one was a woman, and one a child 8 years old. Only 16 committed outrage."

"When Governor Northern came to Boston he described in all its revolting details what purported to be an eye-witness' description of how Sam Hose murdered Mr. Cranford and then laid the wife in the warm red blood of her husband and held her there an hour and a half in his brutal embrace."

"This was the very climax of his speech, but his description was purely imaginary or deliberately false. The truth is that Sam Hose never touched Mrs. Cranford nor even spoke to her. Hose had a grudge against Cranford because the latter was the leader of a mob which lynched nine negroes in cold blood a few days previously. Hose never denied the killing of Cranford, but even to his death he asserted his innocence of the crime of outrage. As the details of the investigation of the crime, Mrs. Cranford herself said Hose did not say a word to her or in any way touch her. Yet what are we to think of Governor Northern and such papers as the Atlanta Constitution in describing in detail a purely imaginary picture of a crime which was never committed?"

"I protest that it is simply infamous for the south to attempt to fasten this crime on the north. Governor Northern was forced to admit that while the entire male population was absent from home during the war, the women were protected by the strong arms of the negroes on the plantations. And every woman was as safe as if under the protection of a guardian angel. The north has been sending to the south thousands of school teachers. They have been utterly ostracized and left alone by the whites. They have been living among the negroes, sleeping in many cases in the houses. Many of these young women are young, accomplished and beautiful, but there is not one instance on record where they have suffered wrong at the hands of a black man. Is it not plain, then, that this charge of outrage is a trumped-up one?"

"But there is another side. The lynchings have a degrading, degrading effect on the white people of the south. There has been a gradual increase in the number of lynchings. Lynchings have spread to the northern states, where there were 24 last year. Eighteen white men were lynched. This lust for blood cannot help having the most direful consequences. The men in Georgia who burned Sam Hose, burned the constitution and all the laws of Georgia. The men who burned him will never be the same. Their morals are seared as with a hot brand. There may be no law to prevent them, but they go forth branded and marked like Cain. Think what it means to the south, to the nation, to have a hundred lynchings every year. At each of these lynchings there are at least 100 men. These men, with the brand of Cain, go back to their wives and families to boast of their deeds. There cannot be fewer than one round million of southern men who have in the last quarter of a century personally assisted in killing the 40,000 black men shot down around the ballot boxes, and 200,000 more who have assisted in killing the 2000 negroes lynched in the south since 1882. Here are 1,000,000 branded men—one-fourth of the entire manhood of the south. Is it out of such material that you can make a new south?"

"Think, again, of the embittered and revengeful relations of the murdered men. Here are 6000 children of murdered men, to say nothing of wives, sisters, brothers and friends, who grow up learning to hate and despise the south. Is it wise to increase the number of such people?"

Chicago, June 26.—Taylor and Demont presented Brooklyn with most of their runs, the former by hitting three batsmen and giving five bases on balls and the latter by two very bad errors. Non-Union Men Are Unpopular.

Cleveland, June 25.—Only one outbreak of violence attended the resumption of traffic on all the lines of the Big Consolidated street railway yesterday. There was objection in some parts of the city to the retention of the non-union men, who were kept by the company. A party of 25 men assembled near the Brooklyn bridge, and whenever a car came along with a non-union crew the passengers were asked to disembark and wait for a car manned by a union crew. In most cases the passengers did not comply. Finally a non-union conductor undertook to argue with the crowd, and he was promptly struck over the head with a club, and he and the motorman driven away. The mob refused to permit the car to move until a union crew came along and pushed it to the bridge. As a rule the old men are glad the strike is settled. It is predicted that all the non-union men will be glad to leave the city within 30 days, though the company imposed as one of the conditions of the agreement for the settlement of the trouble that all the new men should be treated with consideration by the old employees.

Connolly's Strange Story.

St. Louis, June 26.—The Post-Dispatch says that Frank Connolly, who was acting as treasurer of the American League Dynamic company in the spring of 1898, when he mysteriously disappeared from McVicker's theater in Chicago, has turned up in St. Louis after a varied experience. It is believed all the time that Connolly had been foully dealt with, but the police were unable to find the missing man. According to Mr. Connolly's story, on the night of his disappearance he had supper with a woman friend from Pittsburg. After that until two weeks later, when he recovered his senses in a freight car near Mattoon, Ill., everything was a blank to him. He had lost $400 in money and several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry. He was taken to a hospital, where he recovered from a severe illness, which was the result of being drugged. Thinking himself disgraced and fearing for his friends, Connolly went to Cuba and acted as correspondent for a number of American papers during the war. Coming to St. Louis an old friend of Connolly met and recognized him.

Death of Dutch Neel.

Chicago, June 26.—"Dutch" Neel, the Chicago pugilist who fell unconscious in the ring last Wednesday night in the sixth round of a glove contest with Harry Peppers, the California middleweight, died yesterday without having regained consciousness. Neel's death is attributed to a blood clot on the brain, resulting from over-exertion while in an unfit physical condition. Peppers is now in jail in default of $2000 bonds. The battle which resulted in Neel's death was a six-round contest for a purse. After a minute's sparring Peppers landed a right light on Neel's ear. The blow unbalanced Neel, and as he reeled sideways he slipped and he fell to the floor of the ring. He rolled out of the ring on the floor, his head striking with a noise that was heard throughout the building. He got up a moment later, but soon became unconscious.

Ran Into an Iceberg.

St. John's, June 26.—The British armed steam frigate, while trying to reach the French treaty shore, collided with an iceberg, which stove in her bows. By means of collision masts and moving the guns and heavy gear to the stern, she made her way back here safely. At the time of the accident prompt preparations were made to leave the ship, should it prove impossible to keep her above water.

MUST BE A GOOD ONE.

Otherwise the Shamrock Will Stand No Show With the Columbia.

Showed Defender Her Heels In Lively Brush.

New Boat Makes Remarkably Good Time in a Trial by Her Builders.

Newport, R. I., June 26.—The Columbia had her first trial trip yesterday in Narragansett bay. She met the Defender in a short mile stretch, with an eight-knot breeze, and easily passed her to windward. The Columbia went back to Bristol in the afternoon for slight repairs.

The trip turned out to be more successful than either her builders or her owners had reason to hope. Not only did the new boat show herself to be able in every particular, but she vanquished the old racer Defender with the greatest ease.

The race was sailed in an eight-knot breeze, each boat carrying three low keels with sheets well attended. It took the Columbia about three minutes, sailing from the Defender's weather quarter to blanket her, and in five minutes she was 100 yards ahead, going past the old cup defender as if the latter were anchored. Under these conditions, it would seem as if the Columbia was 15 to 20 seconds a mile faster than the Defender, and if she can make the same gain in a hard blow, anxiety as to the safety of the America's cup will be considerably allayed.

The trial yesterday was a builder's trial, and though the managing owner, Mr. Iselin, and a number of his yachting friends were on board, still the Columbia's designer, Nat Herreshoff, was in charge, and after the sail down the bay, the boat was towed back to Bristol for a few minor repairs. It is expected that by the end of the week she will be formally turned over to Mr. Iselin. In the meantime the interior fittings will be finished, and her bowsprit, which apparently started in the socket during yesterday's brush, probably will need some attention.

After breakfast yesterday, the crew began the work of getting up the mainmast. It was a pretty difficult task for 25 men to get the great stretch of canvas well into the socket. Such a huge spread of sail had never been hoisted before, and it was over an hour before it was set to Captain Barr's satisfaction.

The weather was threatening, and the southwest breeze of the early morning had flattened out almost to a calm. At 9:15 the anchor broke ground, and the Columbia was off on her initial trial, beating slowly down the bay, with Nat Herreshoff at the wheel.

Even in the light wind Mr. Herreshoff was able to throw her round on an average of 30 seconds a mile. When Captain Barr took the wheel, he tacked on 20, 25, 22, and even 20 seconds, showing the new boat to be between 10 and 15 seconds quicker in stays than the Defender. In the freshening wind there was no perceptible wave along her quarter, and but a small wake astern. As the wind caught the big mainsail, it filled out and beat beautifully.

On the other hand, the headsails were a disappointment. The forestaysail seemed to be cut very straight along the foot, while the head of the sail, which was too full, flapped badly in the wind. Later the luff of this sail was hauled down hard, and the sail set much better, but the job kept spilling out wind into it so it shook nearly all day. The bowsprit was steady, but had a big bag along the luff, which shows that it could stand but little stretching.

The Columbia made five hits—on the way down Narragansett bay, a long leg to the north of Prudence island, another to the south of Sandy Point light, about half way down the island; a third to the south of Halfway rock, a fourth to Gould island, and a fifth to the Connecticut island shore, just north of Jamestown. As she came out after the latter catch, she met the Defender and Navalhoe coming from Newport harbor.

Just before the Defender came out the working topsail was set on the Columbia, but it was taken in within 15 minutes, and the boats had their first trial together under the same sails, mainsail, forestaysail and jib.

The Columbia was first to swing around into the wind, after the run to leeward, and the Defender followed immediately. Both boats made a number of short hitches, but as they were half a mile apart, little could be judged of their comparative speed. The Columbia was to the windward and seemed to gain on the Defender, pointing higher and outfooting her. But this did not satisfy those on board the new boat, and just after the two boats had tacked to port, under the Jamestown shore, the Columbia was eased off, and, running down toward the Defender, took a position on the Defender's weather quarter. Captain Barr, who was sailing the Columbia, berthed the new boat in the jib's possible position for a race, and with the two yachts scarcely 50 yards apart, the first real brush to windward between the old and the new boats was on.

It was a fair, honest test of the sailing merits of the two boats under flattened sheets, a 10-knot breeze and a smooth sea, and those who saw it, did not have to wait long for the result. The Defender had plenty of room to reach out ahead of her rival, and only required the necessary speed to do it. That she failed in the attempt showed the new boat to be another wonder, and that the Shamrock will have to sail with marvelous speed to win the America's cup.

Within three minutes after Captain Barr started the Defender, he had blanketed her, and in five minutes' time he was well out ahead. Both boats stood over towards Fort Adams for a few minutes longer, and then the stay-sails of the Columbia came down, and the torpedo station for an anchorage outside the harbor was made.

The Defender ran in and anchored near the Columbia, and Butler Duncan, who has the old cup defender in charge, went aboard the Columbia to offer his congratulations.

PENNSY AND CORNELL.

Former Captured the Four-Oared Race Over the Poughkeepsie Course.

Freshmen of Latter Beat Columbia and Pennsylvania.

One of the Closest and Most Exciting Contests Ever Seen on the River.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 27.—At the crack of the pistol, the four-oared crews from Cornell and Pennsylvania took the water together yesterday on the two-mile course, but the Pennsylvania stroke started at 38, while the Cornell stroke was only 24.

The Pennsylv's stroke, while not as prettily rowed as Cornell's, had much more go to it, and before the boats had gone 10 lengths the Quakers had shoved their boat's nose ahead of the Ithacans' boat. Cornell had dropped down to the Courtney stroke of 33 to the mile, and although inch by inch the Quakers' boat shoved to the front, the Ithacans did not increase their stroke.

From a mere gain of inches in the first half mile, the gain of the Pennsylvania boat became one of feet as they neared the mile mark. Twice the Cornellians tried to reduce the lead, but each time the Quakers responded and maintained their lead.

Just as they got under the shadow of the bridge, and when Pennsylvania had obtained a lead of almost a length, the ferryboat crossed the river and threw up a heavy swell.

The Pennsylvania shell was turned almost directly towards the Cornell shell, and to avoid a seemingly probable collision the Cornell boat was turned away also. Quick as a flash Pennsylvania straightened out again, and when they cleared the great abutments the Quakers had a lead of fully 14 lengths. From this point to the finish there was little material change.

Time—11m. 12s. Cornell's time—11m. 5s. Time—First mile, Pennsylvania 5:29 3-5, Cornell 5:33. Strokes—one-half mile, Pennsylvania 35, Cornell 24; one mile, Pennsylvania 35, Cornell 23; mile and one-half, Pennsylvania 34, Cornell 24. Strokes—One-half mile, Cornell 24, Cornell 34.

The freshmen race, which was started promptly after the four-oared finish, was one of the closest and most exciting races seen on the river in years, the Columbia crew giving the Cornell crew a sharp and pretty fight for first place and making phenomenal time, considering the slowness of their stroke. At the sound of the pistol the crews got away in a bunch, but at the settling down of the stroke to the crew's usual style, Cornell had poked the nose of her shell a few feet ahead of the line. For the first half mile the struggle was exciting, but the spectators arose on the press car and in the observation train and cheered for each crew. Cornell was rowing a long, sweeping stroke of 34, while Pennsylvania was rowing at the rate of 35. Columbia was rowing a phenomenally long stroke, 32, the wonder of all of the experts on the train, for the boat went along as fast almost as the Cornell boat.

Close together the three boats hung but there was something about the way the Cornell boat glided over the water that made Columbia and Pennsylvania's hearts go down. As the crews reached the mile mark with the Cornell boat about a half length out from the bunch, Columbia seemed to gain, and there were shouts of approval as the nose of the boat crept forward. But the old Cornell boat form was there. Never did the stroke go above the 34 mark, and the speed came from increased power in the stroke.

Columbia was steady in its stroke also, only hitting it up to 34, but the boat began to lose after the mile was passed and soon Cornell had a lead of a clear length. Pennsylvania was, in the meantime, steering erratically, especially at the mile mark, going out of the course badly. In this way she lost some speed, and although the crew pulled a stout stroke and did it cleanly, they dropped behind rapidly, the nose of their boat as they came under the bridge being just even with the stern of the Columbia boat. The race after the mile point was passed was between Columbia and Cornell, with some chance for the Columbia men.

Just after passing that point the Pennsylvania boat seemed to lose power and dropped rapidly astern as the Columbia stroke hit it up to 34 in an endeavor to close up the gap between Cornell's boat and Columbia's. Cornell responded with a stroke of 36, and it was evident that there was a lot of reserve force in the Cornell boat, and that the Ithacans could hold the Columbia boat where they pleased. Columbia went away from Pennsylvania, although the latter's crew were rowing a stroke of 36 to the former's 34. Amid the tooting of whistles and the cheers of the Cornell contingent the boats crossed the finish line, Cornell leading with 14 boat length to spare and Pennsylvania following Columbia three boat lengths behind. The time of Cornell was 9:55, not so good as that made by Yale in 1897 of 9:19 on the same course.

Time—9m. 35s. Columbia second, 14 boat lengths behind Cornell. Time—10m. Pennsylvania third, 8 1/2 boat lengths behind Columbia. Time—10m. 10s. Strokes—One-half mile, Cornell 34, Columbia 32, Pennsylvania 35; mile, Cornell 34, Columbia 33, Pennsylvania 34; 1 1/2 mile, Cornell 35, Columbia 33, Pennsylvania 34; two miles, Cornell 36, Columbia 34, Pennsylvania 36.

LAUNCHING OF THE SHAMROCK.

British Will Not Envy Americans Should the Columbia Beat the Challenger.

London, June 27.—The Shamrock has been successfully launched. Lady Russell christened the yacht with the customary bottle of champagne, saying: "I christen you Shamrock. God bless you. Good luck to you. May you bring back the cup!" These cheers were then given and, on a signal from Lady Russell, the boat and the cradle glided safely into the water. As the Shamrock reached mid-stream from the slips, a barge collided with the yacht's bow above the water line, making a big dent. It was soon ascertained that the damage was slight. After the launch the party had tea. The health of the Shamrock was drunk and congratulatory speeches were made. Previous to the launch Sir Thomas Lipton gave a luncheon at the Savoy hotel to the guests invited to the ceremony.

After the ceremony the guests repaired to the marquee, where refreshments were served. Herbert Gladstone proposed the health of Sir Thomas Lipton. Sir Thomas Lipton, in acknowledging the toast, said he felt bound to thank the designer, the builder, and all the workmen who have been engaged on the yacht. They had spared neither pains nor time to bring the work to a success, and the splendid launch that had just been witnessed was a testimony to their skill and care.

As to competition for the cup, he felt certain that, whether the Shamrock won or lost, the yachtsmen of America would give them a hearty and fraternal greeting. If the American yacht won and retained the cup, the people of Great Britain, without a grain of envy or ill-feeling, would sincerely congratulate the Americans on the possession of a better boat, and the consequent right to retain the prize.

"I hope, however, that the coveted trophy," he continued, "may be brought back to the old country by our dear little Shamrock. I do not know who was the first to plant shamrock on American soil, but I think I may fairly claim the honor of first floating it in American waters. If the Shamrock succeeds in securing the cup, I am satisfied that the Americans will not leave her in challenged possession. In the case where they may come to these shores to seek to regain the trophy, I know I can promise them a welcome as cordial as that which I am certain will be extended to this country in the coming struggle."

TWO GAMES AT PITTSBURGH.

Four Pitchers of the Champion Team Took a Hand in the Contest.

Pittsburg, June 27.—There was enough baseball here to satisfy the most insatiable member of fandom that ever lived.

There were two games played, and the first lasted just two hours and 35 minutes. It was brimful of excitement, had playing and pitching. No less than five twirlers were used before the argument was ended, and then it was in favor of the champions by a score of 12 to 10.

The second contest was won by the locals in an easy manner. It was just as full of good work as the first was notable for miserable efforts.

SHE MEANS BUSINESS.

England Considers It Time to Force Transvaal Matters to an Issue.

Poisoning the Whole Atmosphere of South Africa.

Disease of Hatred and Suspicion Responsible For Present Conditions.

Birmingham, Eng., June 27.—In the course of a speech here last evening, Joseph Chamberlain, reviewing the Transvaal question, said that, owing to the enormous military preparation of the government of the South African republic, Great Britain had been compelled to increase the British garrison in Cape Colony and Natal, entailing an additional expenditure of £500,000 annually.

"If the reforms which Lord Ripon proposed in 1894 had been accepted," said the minister, "there would have been no raid and no crisis at the present. But the raid tied the hands of the government and prevented the application of pressure."

Mr. Chamberlain said the government had tried to establish friendly relations with President Kruger, but all their advances had been received with contempt. He then proceeded to eulogize Sir Alfred Milner. The government accepted full responsibility for the actions of that official. As for the counter-proposals of Mr. Kruger they did not constitute even a fair installment of reform.

After denouncing in the strongest terms the attitude and actions of the Boers, Mr. Chamberlain, with great deliberation and emphasis, added: "The Transvaal's enormous secret service fund has procured it friends and advocates in every country. The way the British subject there is treated is not only a menace to them, but interference with our prestige among the natives, who now regard the Boers and not the British as the paramount power."

"Besides the breaches of the London convention the Transvaal is flagrantly violating the equality that convention was intended to secure. Its misgovernment is a festering sore, poisoning the whole atmosphere of South Africa. The Dutch in Cape Colony and Natal would be in the happiest condition, but so long as the disease of hatred and suspicion prevails in the Transvaal it is impossible to stop the contagion."

"Four times since independence was granted we have been on the verge of war with the Transvaal. It is erroneous to say the British government wants war but it is equally erroneous to say that the government will draw back now that it has put its hands to the plow."

"We hope the efforts that are now being made will lead to an amicable arrangement for Great Britain only desires justice, but there comes a time when patience can hardly be distinguished from weakness and when moral pressure becomes a farce, that cannot be continued without loss of self-respect. I trust that time may never come in this instance; but, if it does, Britons will insist upon finding the means to secure a result essential to the peace of South Africa."

"The speech was warmly applauded. In replying to a vote of thanks, Mr. Chamberlain said he felt strengthened and encouraged by their confidence and support. He had spoken from the heart, because he believed they had reached a critical turning point in the history of the empire."

Initial Crisis Safely Passed.

Paris, June 27.—The new cabinet ministry presented themselves to the chambers yesterday afternoon. Identical statements were read in the chamber of deputies by Premier Waldeck-Rousseau, and in the senate by Minister of Justice Monis. M. Waldeck-Rousseau accepted an order of the day, reading as follows: "The chamber, approving the declarations and acts of the government, passes to the order of the day." The motion was adopted by a vote of 263 to 237. The senate, by a vote of 187 to 25, approved the declaration of the government. M. Waldeck-Rousseau replied to the various interpellations, explaining the motives animating the formation of his cabinet of somewhat divergent views, one of the main objects being to reunite all Republicans. In conclusion, the premier said: "Our task is heavy. Whatever course the chamber may pursue, I have done all my duty." The speech of M. Waldeck-Rousseau was much interrupted. The noise at times was deafening and several members were called to order.

Good Afternoon.

The Board of Health may be removed before the inspector. It seems the board has been slow in causing cess pools to be emptied as it was in acting on the charges against the inspector of plumbing. To appeal to the State Board of Health in behalf of suffering Wollaston is all foolery. Quincy is able to attend to its own affairs a little while longer. Mayor Keith should promptly veto any such order, and then prick up his Board of Health.

Commissioner Cavanagh is making a radical departure in the resurfacing of streets. He has discarded gravel for that kind of work and is using to great advantage crushed stone. The street department is greatly handicapped by the location of the stone crusher at Quincy Neck. This makes the teaming of the stone, because of the long haul, so expensive that its use will have to be limited. It is said that on the resurfacing of Beale street, Wollaston, if this plan was located at West Quincy, it would mean a direct saving to the city of about $400 on a job for which $1,500 has been appropriated. It is estimated that if the plan was located at West Quincy near the railroad that the stone could be loaded on the cars and hauled to Atlantic for about five cents a ton. To haul it from the Neck to Atlantic by teams, as at present, costs nearly a dollar a ton. Consequently Atlantic's streets may have to suffer. The comparison is applicable to a certain extent to all of the wards. If crushed stone is to be used exclusively on our streets, as in other cities, it is for the interest of every ward that the crushing plant be located at a place where it can be operated and the metal distributed the most economically.

According to the United States Investor, the number of industrial combinations organized in this country since January, 1898, is 487, with a total capitalization of something over seven billions of dollars. The census of 1890 made the total capitalization of all manufacturing concerns in this country only a little more than six billion dollars, so that there has evidently been quite a capitalization of hope.—New Bedford Standard.

Busy bodies to the contrary the happiest days are not over with school days gone by. There are certain trials and worries of school life that are quite as trying to experience as the things which come later in life, when the realities of existence are faced at closer range. When one ends school life he rids himself of a good deal of real hardship and trouble. All it is not so rosy when one goes to school. There is a question whether the average person has disappointments, hardships, or rebuffs any harder to bear than those which come to him during his school days when a boy at school.—Brookton Enterprise

THE TABLES TURNED

The Board of Health Now Under Fire.

An Appeal Made to the State Board.

Order Adopted for Several Water Extensions.

Councilmen Badger, Blanchard and Owens were absent at Monday night's meeting of the City Council.

Mayor Keith forwarded a communication setting forth the injustice of the present ordinance concerning house connections with the sewer which compel a deposit to be made by the applicant and that the work shall be done by the city only. He recommended that the ordinance be changed in this respect. To joint Committee on Sewers and Ordinances.

The Mayor also forwarded a notice from the Harbor and Land Commissioners of a hearing on June 27 on the petition of C. C. Hanley to build a pile structure in Town river. Placed on file.

A number of petitions for minor licenses were received and referred.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Licenses reported ought not to pass on the petition of A. Loring for a merry-go-round license. Accepted.

The Committee on Ordinances reported as correctly engrossed the order relative to common sewer connections. Referred to joint Committee of Sewers and Ordinances.

The Committee on Sewers reported reference to Board of Health on the petition for extension of drain on Willard street. Adopted.

TAX LEVY ORDER.

Councilman Bryant offered an order that $198,000 with $2 for each poll, be assessed and raised upon estates. To Committee on Finance.

Upon motion of Councilman Bryant, rule one was suspended and it was voted when the Council adjourn it be until July 10.

WATER EXTENSIONS.

Councilman Pinkham offered an order that the Commissioner of Public Works be requested to make the following extensions of water pipes:

Webster street, 600 feet of 6 inch. Safford street, 200 feet of 6 inch. Merrymount road 425 feet of 6 inch. Washington street, 2,800 feet of 10 inch.

Howard street, 900 feet of 8 inch. Wendall street, 300 feet of 6 inch. Adams shore of 1000 feet of 6 inch. Beale street of 1800 feet of 16 inch. Lincoln avenue, 400 feet of 6 inch. Winthrop avenue, 100 feet of 6 inch. Linden street, 250 feet of 6 inch. Field and Brackett streets, 2,900 feet of 6 inch.

Councilman Pinkham said this would take about half the appropriation and would be enough work for July and August.

Councilman Dugan offered as an amendment that the following be added:

Reardon street, 200 feet of 6 inch. Barry street, 700 feet of 6 inch. Side street, 400 feet of 6 inch. Quarry street extension, 500 feet of 6 inch.

Councilman Bryant asked what the estimated receipts were from the 1,000 feet of pipe at Adams shore.

Councilman Pinkham replied there was a guarantee to not 8 per cent. On the other streets except the 16 inch pipe on Beale street which was to connect the mains, and the taking out of some of the two-inch pipe, the return would be 8 per cent.

Councilman Dugan said that in the streets covered by his amendment there was need of better fire protection and there were from twenty to twenty-five ready to connect.

Commissioner Cavanagh said in reply to questions, that it would cost $1.50 per foot to lay the pipe on these streets and he could not say what the income would be.

Councilman Hogan said there were twenty-two who had guaranteed to take water. Fire protection was needed badly here as the nearest hydrant was half a mile away. The amendment and order were adopted.

Councilman Newcomb gave notice that he should move at the next meeting to take the plumbing ordinance from the table.

CALENDAR.

The order for $400 for additional street watering took its second reading and was passed under suspension of the rules.

The order granting the New England Telephone Co. a location for two poles on Cottage street took its second reading, and was laid on table.

Upon motion of Councilman Bryant it was voted that the Commissioner report at the next meeting if the location of these two poles was satisfactory to him.

BOARD OF HEALTH UNDER FIRE.

Upon motion of Councilman Bryant, Chairman Thompson of the Board of Health appeared before the Council.

Councilman Bryant asked him if it was a fact that application for cleaning cesspools at Ward Five could not be granted?

Mr. Thompson: The Board of Health has no money and we are 150 applications behind. We will clean the most urgent cases first.

Councilman Bryant: Do you consider the Board of Health doing its duty to allow cesspools to run over?

Mr. Thompson: The Board is doing its duty but can not do much without money.

Councilman Bryant remarked that there are a large number of cesspools that are overflowing and he supposed they had a man who had teams to do the work.

Mr. Thompson: The City Scavenger is working under a contract which has one more year to run. He did not think they had a right to employ any one else to do it. Mr. Faxon being a large property owner is appointed so that he can take care of his own estates.

Councilman Bryant: Will he clean out others.

Mr. Thompson: You had better ask him.

Councilman Bryant: If the Board of Health say these cesspools are nuisances and do not abate them, then they are not doing their duty. Is there any other reason except the City Scavenger being short of carts that he can not clean them out?

Mr. Thompson: That is not a question for the Board of Health but for contractor.

Councilman Freeman: Is it not a fact that the reason is that the Board of Health have provided no place to dump sewage?

Mr. Thompson: Yes. We have just got permission from the Sewer Commissioners to build a catch basin near a sewer man hole, at the pumping station to dump it in. It will then be flushed by a hydrant.

Councilman Jameson asked what part of Merrymount park it was, and was shown on a map.

Councilman Bryant: Have you read the contract so that you know what happens if he fails to carry it out?

Mr. Thompson: I have read but cannot answer without consulting it. The applications are sometimes sent to the city scavenger and sometimes to the board. The board follow them up by his reports. Some of these application have been in 30 to 60 days.

Councilman Bryant: Why does the Board of Health have a city scavenger that does not do his duty?

Mr. Thompson: We are trying to find a place to dump. All this work comes in two months. It never will be taken care of at one time.

Mr. Bryant: Do you not think you could find a man at $6 a load who would furnish horses and teams. It seems as though some one could be found. If he does not furnish enough teams his contract could be annulled. Must we go to the State Board?

Mr. Thompson: We do not object if you want to go to the State Board of Health.

Councilman Bryant: It seems that the Board of Health must be incompetent.

Mr. Thompson: We do not ask any advice from Mr. Bryant.

Councilman Bryant then offered an order that the Mayor be requested to have the State Board of Health inquire into the condition of the present applications for cleaning out cesspools in Ward Five, and have the nuisance abated.

In support of his order, Councilman Bryant said there was no reason why this condition should not be remedied. The order was adopted by a vote of 12 to 8.

In Memory of T. H. Wason.

At the graduation exercises of the Brimmer school in Boston Monday, a portion of the programme was devoted to the memory of their late teacher, Mr. T. H. Wason of Quincy, who commenced teaching in that school December 6, 1870.

The master, Mr. Q. E. Dickerman, who became its master in 1877, spoke very feelingly of his late assistant: one who was always trying to make his work easier; one who always had the interest of the school foremost in his mind, and the very best welfare of his boys at heart.

One of the young graduates Master Harold Clarke, read many reminiscences of Mr. Wason, written by the boys of the two higher classes, and on behalf of the graduating class presented a life size crayon of Mr. Wason, to the school, to be hung in the hall.

Remarks were also made by Senator Charles Innis of the class of 1890, Mr. William McDewitt, class of 1894, and others.

Mr. George Stoddard, the first graduate of the school in 1844 was present, made a good talk to the graduates, and showed them the Franklin medal which he received on his graduation 55 years ago.

Y. M. C. A. ANNUAL.

Directors Elected and Considerable Important Business.

The annual meeting of the Quincy Y. M. C. A., was held Monday evening in the parlors at the Association rooms, President Delevere King presiding. The meeting was very largely attended.

After prayer by the general secretary, the Association voted to amend the constitution, so as to provide for honorary vice presidents to be elected by the board of directors, and to serve for three years.

The committee on nominations recommended to the board of directors the election of Dr. John A. Gordon, Theophilus King and Herbert T. Whitman as honorary vice presidents.

This committee also presented the names of George H. Brown, Nathan G. Nickerson, George E. Thomas, W. H. Mitchell and John B. Cornish as directors for three years and on ballot they were elected.

The financial statement read by the treasurer showed the expenditures of the year to have been $3,000 leaving a net deficit of nearly $300.

The statement of membership showed the total membership to be 351, a large gain over previous years.

Several important announcements were made. First, that an endowment fund had been started, which now only consisted of $26, being made up of small sums subscribed by various Sunday School classes. This was but a nest egg, and it was hoped it would grow and contributions will be thankfully received.

The principal of this fund can never be used. The interest only to be used in extending the privileges of the junior department to poor boys.

Second, the extending of the educational work in connection with the evening institute of the Boston Y. M. C. A. Young men by this will have the choice of some fifty subjects and will be on an equal footing with young men of Boston. The extending of these privileges was a valuable concession of the Boston association to associations within a radius of eight miles.

The Association endorsed the summer camp on Saunders island, Lake Winnepesaukee, which will be a permanent camp where young men may spend their vacations. It will be conducted by the Boston Association for all associations to New England.

Dr. Sherman paid tribute to the memory of William Evans, a convert of the Association and to T. Henry Wason, recently a director.

Lunch was served by the Ladies' Auxiliary.

The board of directors later held an executive session, and on ballot elected these officers for one year:

President,—Delevere King, Quincy.

Vice President,—H. B. Bailey, Wollaston.

Recording Secretary,—E. D. Gould, Quincy.

Treasurer,—W. F. Cummings, Atlantic.

The board also elected the honorary vice presidents mentioned above.

Arrangements were made for the vacations of the officers and the meeting adjourned subject to the call of the president.

Two Kinds of Pumps.

If ever a locality in this city was sorely tried it is Brook street, Wollaston. For upwards of a year the street has been opened for sewer work, and now, to apparently cap the climax, a wheezy steam pump, which runs night and day has been set in motion and its loud "thump! thump! chunk! chunk!" can be heard all over the Plains through the long hours of the night. Mothers are frantic, to say nothing of other people, who desire a quiet night's rest. Right side of this pandemonium pump there is another one of larger capacity which does its work so noiselessly that when in its vicinity one is in doubt whether it is running or shut down. All of which goes to show that there are two kinds of pumps and that the duty of the Sewerage Commissioners in this case is obvious. The Brook streeters have had a hard time of it for upwards of a year and it does seem rather rough to still further rub it in with this worn out pump.

railway a turnout on Sea street was taken from the table.

Councilman Bryant asked if it had been ascertained if there were any trees opposite the turnout.

Councilman Swithin: The plan does not show any trees.

Councilman Bryant offered an amendment that the street at the turnout be paved from curb to curb.

Councilman Swithin opposed. This was a street for driving. It would injure the street for driving if paved. If order was passed the people would get better service and therefore it should not be delayed.

Councilman Pinkham said the City Solicitor had been ill and therefore unable to give an opinion as to the paving. He hoped amendment would not prevail. The street was better without paving.

Councilman Packard should dislike to see the street paved. It would be bad for light carriages.

Councilman Bryant said what knowledge he had was when a turnout was paved but eighteen inches on a curve it was the worst kind of an obstacle.

It would be better to pave across the street. He did not want to bother the people of Houghs Neck, but if this is granted it is for twenty-five years. If the railroad want to accommodate Houghs Neck they should be willing to expend $150. It was a bluff that this will cause delay. He hoped council would see that rights of the people were protected.

Councilman Clark thought the street would be much better without being paved.

Councilman Jameson: If the street was but eight and one-half feet from the outer rail no turnout should be granted. It was dangerous.

Councilman Swithin did not believe the citizens wanted this street paved. None but business streets should be paved.

Councilman Freeman thought Councilman Bryant's argument sound.

Councilman Bryant: Houghs Neck people will accept it just as soon as it is paved as if not paved.

Councilman Dugan hoped amendment would prevail. We should be careful in granting locations.

Councilman Pinkham resented the insinuation that the Street committee had the wool pulled over their eyes. They have decided it was better without paving. He was of the opinion it would be void under the statutes if ordered. He did not think railroad would accept with that condition.

Councilman Poland moved to recommend. Lost.

Councilman Bryant said the statement of Councilman Pinkham was made to hold the committee together. Under this order the poles can be put anywhere the company pleases. It was no business of the Council whether it was law or not.

Councilman Pinkham repudiated the assertion that he was trying to hold the committee together as charged. The president of the road stated to the committee that he would not accept the location with the restriction. He did not think it a bluff.

Councilman Hogan favored the amendment.

In reply to questions Commissioner Cavanaugh said it would be in the interest of economy to have street paved.

The amendment was then adopted and the order took its second reading, and was passed under suspension of the rules. Councilman Jameson alone voting no.

Councilman Packard offered a title. Councilman Hogan favored the amendment.

Pastor Called.

A meeting of the Wollaston Congregational society was held on Monday evening to consider the question of extending a call to a new pastor. Mr. N. G. Nickerson was the moderator. After a brief discussion on a few technical points two names were presented to be balloted for,—the Rev. Edward A. Chase of South Lawrence and the Rev. William J. Long of Andover. It requires a three-quarters vote to extend a call to a candidate. An informal ballot was first taken with this result:

Whole number votes cast,	81
Necessary for choice,	61
Rev. Mr. Chase,	47
Rev. Mr. Long,	30
Blanks,	4

A formal ballot was then taken:

Whole number votes cast,	76
Necessary for choice,	57
Rev. Mr. Chase,	60
Rev. Mr. Long,	14
Blanks,	2

And the society extended a call to the Rev. Edward A. Chase of South Lawrence to become its pastor.

Granite Men Attend.

The funeral of Thomas McDonnell was held this morning from St. John's church and was very largely attended. Many granite men were noticed among those present. Rev. Matthew McDonnell a brother of the deceased, and several visiting priests were seated within the rail. Solemn requiem high mass was celebrated with Rev. J. P. Cuffe as celebrant, Rev. J. E. Johnson as deacon, Rev. M. J. Foley as master of ceremonies. There were many flowers. The interment was at St. Mary's cemetery, West Quincy.

Sewer Bids Opened.

The Sewer Commissioners opened bids Monday evening for building about 8,000 feet of 8 to 18 inch sewer in Wards One and Three. The several bids received were:

M. Russo & Co., Boston,	$14,764.50
Frank L. Allen & Co., Worcester,	13,374.50
H. A. Hanson & Co., Boston,	13,454.75
John J. Falvey, Boston,	11,661.90
C. E. Trumbull & Co., Boston,	11,432.00
E. W. Everson and William H. Sherman, Providence, R. I.,	11,429.50
James Driscoll & Co., Brookline,	11,239.50

The bids were taken under advisement.

—Says the Randolph Register: "The people of Randolph have been waiting patiently for the opening of the Brockton, Milton & Boston Electric Street Railway, which has been set many times—by outsider—and as often have the dates gone by without seeing the cars. As soon as the road is completed it will come under the supervision of Superintendent Horace B. Rogers of Brockton as a part of the Brockton street railway system. Just now there is a hitch between the contractor of the boulevard in Milton and the contractors of the road, and no one knows when the road will be completed. The summer is advancing so rapidly it is feared that it will pass without one having the privilege of riding through the Blue Hills this season."

Farewell Party.

Rev. and Mrs. E. W. Preble, who are about to remove to Ashmont, were surprised at their residence on Edwards street, Monday evening, by the Ladies' club, of which Mrs. Preble is a member, who called to wish them all happiness in their new home. The evening was passed in a pleasant manner, the presence of two or three gentlemen who squeezed in being no hindrance to the festivities. Refreshments were served and before they left for home Mrs. Preble was presented with a handsome china dish, the presentation speech being made by a lady who agreed to scalp the reporter if he told her name. This same reporter being a timid man therefore has the aforesaid scalp and remains numb, Rev. Mr. Preble is to assume the management of the Dorchester Advertiser July 1.

Will Cost More.

The price on iron pipe has advanced so within the past few months, from $19 to $30 per ton and the supply is so limited at that price,—that Commissioner Cavanaugh is delayed in laying the 16 inch pipes on Beale street from Summit to Highland avenue. When this work is completed Wollaston will have an ample supply of water for years to come through pipes of sufficient capacity for all purposes. This 16-inch pipe will connect with the new Metropolitan system which was laid on Beale street, as far as Summit avenue, a short time ago, and replaces an old 6-inch pipe of the Quincy Water Works. In connection with this much needed improvement all of the 2-inch pipe on the Plains will be replaced with 6-inch pipe.

Laying of Mill Cornerstone and a Parade the Features of Last Day's Visit.

Adams, Mass., June 27.—The morning hours of yesterday were spent quietly
by the presidential party in Plunkett's house. Just before noon the president and several other members of the party went to the site of the new mill,
and there the cornerstones were laid by the president. Outside the party there were only a few workmen who witnessed the ceremony. A little later the president prepared for his trip to North Adams.

The president was met at North Adams by Sanford post, G. A. R., and a band. With this escort he was taken to a reviewing stand, from which he saw a pretty parade of school children and citizens of the city. On the stand were a number of prominent men.

As soon as the president had taken his position, the Grand Army post counter-marched for the review, and was followed by 2000 school children. Each child had a flag, and as they passed the stand they joined in singing patriotic songs. Under a nearby tree a stand had been erected, and here an organ and a chorus led the singing as the bands of children came along. The spectacle was a pretty one, and the president expressed his pleasure at it.
Then followed military and social organizations, to the number of 3000 men.
After the parade had passed, Mayor Cady made an address of welcome to the president.

After he had finished speaking, the president was taken for a drive about the city. He then returned to Adams.

The departure of the president for Washington last night was impressive.
It was first arranged that the people should give him an enthusiastic send-off, but later it was considered best to let the farewells be as quiet as possible,
on account of the condition of Mrs.
McKinley's health. She looked quite ill, and had to be assisted into the train.

Hardly a sound was uttered by the people until the president appeared on the rear platform, and addressing them,
said: "I am always glad to come to Adams, and always regret going away. I have come to like this people after my acquaintance with them, and while I go regretfully, I go with the hope of an early visit among you again. I have noticed with pleasure the progress that has been made since I first visited your little city, seven years ago. I was here then to participate in the opening of one of your great mills, and I rejoice to know that that
and other like size was added a few years later. It gave me uncommon pleasure to participate in laying the cornerstone of still another, which is larger than either of its predecessors. I rejoice because it means more work and more wages, and more work and more wages
mean happy homes and happy firesides,
and happy homes and happy firesides
make a good community, make good citizens, and make a great country. I am glad to have had the pleasure of being a few days with you, and it is with great regret that I bid you all good bye, wishing you every good thing."

As he finished speaking, company M gave three cheers for the president, and the people followed with three more.
As the train started, the president, remaining on the rear platform, waved his hat and handkerchief until he was lost to sight.

Millbridge, Me., June 27.—George H.
Garrison, who shot Horatio L. Ramsay
Saturday night, was arraigned before Justice Plummer yesterday. The warrant charged assault with intent to kill,
to which Garrison pleaded not guilty.
Garrison's statement to the court was to the effect that Ramsay had entered his room by breaking in the door, had knocked him down and was choking him, when, fearing that his life was in danger, he shot him. Ramsay, in an ante-mortem statement, denies that he made any assault, but had simply demanded entrance to the room to talk over a business matter. When he refused admittance, he broke out the panels
of the door, and Garrison fired at him.
Ramsay's recovery is considered doubtful.

Boston Has Cemeteries Enough.

Boston, June 27.—Mayor Quincy yesterday returned to the board of aldermen, with his veto, the order passed by them granting to the Boston Catholic Cemetery association to use for purposes of burial a tract of land in Dorchester, containing 54 acres. Mayor Quincy explains that, in his opinion, such a grant would not be consistent with sound municipal policy, inasmuch as a great quantity of valuable land in the city now is used for burial purposes, and as such, are exempt from taxation. In currence of his message Mayor Quincy said: "Personally I am opposed to the burial of the dead, alike upon sanitary,
economic and sentimental grounds, believing cremation to be far preferable."

Another Case of Shakes.

Hartford, June 27.—Last night, for the second time within six weeks, distinct earthquake shocks were felt in towns
along the Connecticut river from a point
a short distance east of here as far as Saybrook, near where the Connecticut empties into the sound. Though it was not experienced here, places on the other side of the river that did not feel it on the night of May 16 report its occurrence.
It took place at 7:30 o'clock and lasted about 20 seconds. It was much more severe and of longer duration than the former one, but no damage is reported.

Miss Hicks Is Insane.

Providence, June 27.—Miss Rachel Hicks, the former Lynn, Mass., schoolteacher, who is under arrest here on a charge of forging a note for $20,000 has not been taken to the Butler Insane asylum.
The doctors and others concerned
awaiting the arrival of her relatives from Kailda, O. Dr. Hall, one of the doctors of the Butler asylum, said that Miss Hicks is insane, and requires the treatment which the asylum can offer.
Dr. Collins, one of the attending physicians, pronounces the girl incurable,
and says her condition is pitiable.

Not Acceptable to Bay State.
South Framingham, Mass., June 27.—
Adjutant General Dalton, Surgeon General Blood and Colonel Capelle visited the state arsenal and looked over the quartermaster's stores recently sent the state
by the war department. When the volunteers left the state last year they were fully equipped with everything new.
There was not a single second-hand article in the lot. The equipment returned to fit out the state militia is about as miserable a lot of articles as could be found at a second-hand dealer's. The surgeon general says that for sanitary reasons it would be unwise to issue the articles. The condition of matters may prevent the Second brigade encampment
this year.

Tax Collector Short $25,000.

Norwich, Conn., June 27.—A partial examination of the books of ex-Tax Collector George L. Griswold, who was arrested Saturday, a self-confessed em-bezzler, shows a shortage of about $25,- 000. Griswold was arraigned yesterday before Judge Brown. Counsel for the defense asked that the case be continued until July 3, and that $10,000 bonds be placed at $15,000, which the prisoner was unable to furnish.

Embezzler Pleads Guilty.

Boston, June 27.—Louis J. Wyman, charged with embezzlement and larceny,
five counts each, pleaded guilty to the guilt, yesterday morning in the superior criminal court and was held in $4000 for sentence. Wyman took jewelry valued at $4000 from Isadore Hirsch during March and April, 1896. He was arrested in Kansas City and brought here.

Took His Own Life.

Waterbury, Conn., June 27.—Edwin Atkins, 66 years old, shot himself in the head yesterday and died almost instantly. For the past six months he has been worried much over religious affairs, claiming to have been lost, owing to the commission of some grievous sin. He had frequently threatened to end his life. Mr. Atkins was a large property owner.

Double Drowning Accident.

Haverhill, Mass., June 27.—Two 13-
year-old boys, Eugene Rogers and Levi Goudout, both of whom were unable to swim, were drowned Monday while bathing in Little river. The boys sank in each other's arms. A young man named O'Clair tried in vain to rescue them and nearly lost his own life in the attempt.

Prisoner Badly Hurt.

Hartford, June 27.—Frank Henry, an inmate of the state prison, was badly temple crushed and skull fractured at the base of the brain by getting accidentally caught in a shoe leveler that he was repairing. Henry was sentenced from New Haven last July for 10 years for burglary.

Payne For Campaign Manager.

Milwaukee, June 27.—A prominent Republican, who is a close friend of Henry
C. Payne, is authority for the statement that that political manager has been asked to take the chairmanship
of the Republican national committee,
succeeding Mark Hanna, also as chairman of the executive committee. Senator Hanna is not a member of the national committee, while Mr. Payne represents Wisconsin in that body, and is vice chairman of the legislative committee. It is asserted that Mr. Payne is now considering the matter, and that he is strongly tempted to accept the position.

Mrs. Dodge's Treasures.

New York, June 27.—An expert has made a thorough examination of the jewels taken from Mrs. Phyllis Dodge Saturday on her arrival by the steamer St. Paul from Paris. The investigation disclosed the fact that the valuation made of the gems at the time of the seizure was very low, and that the jewels are really worth over $100,000.
Among the jewels is a pearl and diamond necklace, which alone is worth $50,000.
A black and white pearl ring is appraised at $10,000. A "dog collar" cost $5000. The duties on the jewelry alone roughly estimated would have been about $40,000.

More Trouble at Cleveland.

Cleveland, June 27.—Several small riots took place yesterday, due to the presence of non-union crews on Big Consolidated cars. On the Broadway line a northbound car was attacked while going through a Polish settlement. The motor-man and conductor were stoned by stones and the former drew a revolver, firing over the heads of the crowd, which then gave way in flight. The man who fired the shots, Charles W. Kennedy, was arrested. At South Brooklyn there were several hostile demonstrations against non-union crews.

Means Idleness For 50,000.

Pittsburg, June 27.—All the tin plate works in the country will be closed at midnight on Friday as a result of the failure to settle the wage scale. Fully 50,000 persons will be thrown idle by the shutdown of the works. The wage committee made a demand for an advance of 20 percent. The present wage scale expires on June 30. About 25,000 skilled workers are members of the amalgamated association and as many more are dependent upon them and will be idle
while the skilled men are unemployed.

middle and south Atlantic coasts in the lower Missouri valley, the middle Rocky mountain region and north Pacific states.
It has grown warmer in the upper lake region, cooler in the middle and north Rocky mountain region, and has remained nearly stationary elsewhere.

England.

PINGREE AND MCKINLEY.

Characteristic Statement From the Governor Concerning His Attitude Toward President.

Detroit, June 27.—Governor Pingree yesterday made a statement brought out by Washington dispatches which quoted Secretary Alger as saying that Governor Pingree is for President Mc-Kinley, first, last and all the time.

Said the governor: "If General Alger said that, it is his opinion from his point of view. The question whether I am for McKinley lies with the president, not with me. If General Alger knows that President McKinley is opposed to territorial expansion and is not an advocate of the murders and the destruction being visited upon the innocent Filipinos, he has a right to say that I am for McKinley. If General Alger is informed that McKinley is opposed to trusts and to legislation which fosters, creates and encourages them,
and in favor of legislation to restrict and suppress them, then I am closer to the opinions of McKinley than has generally been believed. If General Alger is assured that President McKinley is in touch and sympathy with the disreputable political methods of Mark Hanna and his friends, and deprecates
such leadership, then I am for McKinley.
"The question of whether I favor Mc-Kinley is of no consequence in this senatorial matter, but I am for McKinley in everything he does which I consider right, and against everything he does which I consider wrong."

Governor Pingree further said: "The success of General Alger's senatorial campaign will neither be a reproof nor an endorsement of the national administration. It will be a repudiation of Sen. or McMillan's questionable methods; it will be a protest from the great masses of the common people against the rottenness which has run rampant in the state. Whether I am in favor of McKinley or not, the people
General Alger may be an administration man first, last and all the time, and I been in his position during the time he has held office of secretary of war I believe I should have done just as he has done. And more than that, I would say by the gods of my superiors Alger has done it. I would not go back on my chief even if I did think he had made a mistake, and that is what Alger may have thought."

Kidnapper Gets Twelve Years.

New York, June 27.—Mrs. George B.
Barrow, who arranged before Justice Werner in the criminal branch of the supreme court yesterday, pleaded guilty to the charge of kidnaping Marion Clarke. She was sentenced to 12 years and 10 months in prison. Justice Werner bitterly denounced the woman, and the public are hereby notified that the taxes thereon
severely assessed for the years hereinafter specified,
according to the list committed to me as Collector of Taxes for said City of Quincy
by the Assessors of Taxes, remains unpaid, and that said parcels of real estate will be offered for sale
by public auction, at the Collector's office in the City Hall, in the City of Quincy, on Further Rate Cutting.

Chicago, June 27.—Following the recent reductions in grain rates, the eastern lines have now cut the rates on export provisions 2½ cents. This Chicago and Northwestern was the first in the field and put in an 18-cent rate to Montreal Saturday, claiming that this rate was necessary to meet competition. The Chicago lines yesterday decided to meet the cut, thus making the rate to Boston and New York cents, Philadelphia 18 cents and Baltimore 17 cents.

The B. and A. Absorbed.

New York, June 27.—The Tribune
says: "The report that the New York Central had come to an agreement with the Boston and Albany railroad, by which the Central would lease the Boston and Albany for a term of 99 years
and guarantee 8 percent on the stock,
was not a surprise either in railroad circles or in Wall street. That the lease is practically closed was confirmed
from a trustworthy source yesterday."

Strike Gaining Strength.

Chicago, June 27.—The strikers in the stockyards have reached the 3000 mark,
and it is said their number will be greatly augmented today. Hog killing is practically at a standstill, and little work is done in the packing departments of Armour & Co., Libby, McNeill & Libby, and Nelson Morris & Co.

A Bowery Blaze.

New York, June 27.—Koster's concert
hall and several minor concert halls
located on the Bowery at Conely Island were destroyed by fire early this morning. Loss, $80,000.

For Sale—Furniture.

Good Afternoon.

One of the last good acts of the Rev.

E. W. Preble before removing from town was to unite the Muses, not the town in Greek mythology, but a happy couple where the bride did not change

her name.

The proposition to elect Harrison A.

Atwood as architect of the new normal schoolhouse of Boston has been watched with interest because of the former prominence of the candidate in politics. The order met with considerable opposition, and good reasons

were advanced against him. The vote was delayed from meeting to meeting,

but came to a head Tuesday evening

when Mr. Atwood was elected by a vote of 12 to 10. To the credit of the Republicans they voted 6 to 4 against,

while the Democrats voted 8 to 4 in favor.

The amount of the tax levy order

for 1899 as reported is an agreeable surprise. It is $7,000 less than last year and $3,000 larger than in 1897. The tax levy order is not the total amount to be raised by taxation,

but will be increased by maturing

notes and interest, Metropolitan water tax, state and county taxes and overlays. The amount permitted to be raised under the tax rate limit is $217,938.20 by one method and $229,-

648.46 by the other, so that Quincy neither goes to the debt limit or the tax rate limit.

In 1891 the amount of the tax levy

order was $141,563; the next year

$129,968, and then $100,000. In 1894

and 1895 it was $175,000. In 1896 the City Council voted $202,500 but the Assessors found a way to reduce it

$12,000. In 1897 the amount was

$195,000; last year $205,000, and this year $198,000 is proposed.

The reduction is a surprise because the annual appropriations outside of debt and interest were about $6,000

larger; but the receipts of the city

from various sources outside of taxes

are on the increase, so that while the appropriations for all the departments

except sewers were $295,142.42, this year it is estimated that $198,000 will be enough to raise on the estates.

This will make the city levy, maturing

debt and interest but $14,284.40

larger than last year, and the other items of the Assessors' budget will be

One of the greatest burlesques on justice and decency ever known since water commenced to run down hill, is the picture of Hough, the Dover, N. H., bank embezzler, back in his old place in the bank aiding to straighten out his own rascality! Angels may not weep at such a spectacle, but devils might well laugh.—Milford Journal.

The friends of Col. Curtis Guild, Jr., are dead in earnest in their championship of him, because they believe in him as a man, as a business man, and as a student of public affairs. Massachusetts has had no case just like this in which a man has won his place in public regard without large wealth and without holding a series of public offices.—Beverly Times.

There is lamentation because of a reduction of the school appropriation in Danvers necessitating a reduction of teachers' salaries, and it is feared that other places will take advantage of the situation and secure the best instructors. But the way things are going in general there need not be much worry over there on that score for all signs point to most other places having all they can do to hold their own. Danvers is merely one of the pioneers that is compelled to set the ball a-rolling.—Lynn Item.

The mayor of Cambridge recently vetoed an order appropriating $350 for the expenses of a junket by the roads and bridges committee in the investigation of the merits of vitrified brick pavements for streets. It seems that if the resolution for paving our streets with asphaltina without competition came before the mayor of Cambridge it would take him but a very short time to give it his official condemnation. It is one of the cases in which the Mayor was right, and the city council was wrong.—Lowell Sun.

Director of the Census Merriam seems to be in doubt whether the census of Cuba, Porto Rico or the Philippines will be taken. Hawaii and Alaska have been provided for, but the other possessions have not been mentioned by congress. Unless specific authority is granted by the next congress no census will be taken in the new territories. For the general information of the people of this country the census ought by all means, to be taken carefully and quickly as possible.—Attleboro Sun.

Addressing the graduates of Westford Academy, Gov. Long said: "You must not be misled by the inspiration of this graduation day. You will find the world a world of toil and hard work." The student who heeds the words of the wise Secretary will find his task much easier, and the reward greater, if he does not shirk the toil nor avoid the hard work. The environment of graduation is too apt to intoxicate the senses of the young person just leaving school, but the words of the old teacher who years ago fitted other young people to start in life, are words fitly spoken. He possesses the genius of hard work and never has turned his face from it and he has his reward.—Lynn Item.

They recently held a grand international beauty show in Paris, at which the contestants were mainly actresses and models. The prize for being "the most beautiful woman in the world" was awarded to one Mlle. Jeanne Dortal of Paris, unknown outside of a few studios, and whose name will be forgotten as soon as it is read. One of the big New York dailies is raising a howl over the justness of this decision and contends that there are many American women more beautiful than this fair Parisian. But its contention is simply a waste of words to prove what goes without saying. Moreover, the most beautiful woman in the world—if there is any one woman in the world who is really more beautiful than all others, which is extremely doubtful—will never be discovered displaying her faultless loveliness in a beauty show.—Kennebec Journal.

The island of Porto Rico is a virgin field for the exploitation of the promoter through the resourceful skill of the engineering work worthy of that name has been done, other than the little governmental improvement of the harbor of San Juan and of the one military road which crosses the island. The opportunities for development of water power which may be utilized by electric transmission, either in running sugar mills or other machinery, or electric railways, or in electric lighting, are abundant and well distributed. Where rivers of considerable volume fall 500 to 1,500 feet in a few miles, the power which is available is evident. Moreover, there is such a vast field for public improvement in transportation facilities and in the use of machinery that one has no difficulty in drawing in the imagination a vivid picture of what this water power must mean for the future of Porto Rico.—H. M. Wilson, in The Engineering Magazine of July.

WITH OPEN EYES.

A Boston Pilgrimage by Codding School Pupils.

Helen Rhines, a pupil of Miss Lingham's room at the Coddington, grade VII, writes as follows of a Boston pilgrimage by the class:

Last Saturday, the tenth of June, our teacher took her scholars to Boston to see some historic places.

The first thing we saw, after leaving the Park street station, was St. Paul's church, where Daniel Webster went to church.

Next was Park Street church, on the corner of Park and Tremont streets, beside which building is the oldest cemetery in Boston, the Granary Burial ground; where James Otis, Adams, Revere, Hancock and Franklin's father and mother are buried.

We came to King's Chapel, where Washington attended, and City Hall. In front of City Hall are two statues, one of Josiah Quincy, and the other of Benjamin Franklin.

Before going to the State House we saw the Shaw Memorial. Col. Shaw was a young man who volunteered to lead the colored troops to war when they were looked down upon. Col. Shaw fell in the first charge.

Then we went to the State House, and saw the beautiful marble work. We entered the House of Representatives. This room resembles a school room of over two hundred seats.

Then we took the elevator and got out at the top story and climbed over one hundred stairs to get to the dome. From here we saw the Charlestown navy yard and Bunker Hill monument. When we came down, we saw the room where the valuable documents are kept.

When we came out we went to the Common and Public Gardens.

On our way to the Art Museum we saw Trinity church, which was designed by the same architect who planned the Quincy Public Library.

In the Public Library we saw some pictures painted by Sargent, and also the great reading room.

Then we went to the Art Museum. In the Egyptian room we saw statues and the mummy cases. The cases were painted all colors. One case had been opened; and another broken, and the cotton that was around the body could be seen. We saw some picture writing that came from Egypt.

In the Japanese room we saw a fine collection of paper screens there was a small temple called the Taj, that was beautifully carved.

In the picture gallery we saw many beautiful pictures. One picture was Turner's Slave Ships, which is noted for its color. It represents a ship on fire and the slaves are unable to save themselves because of their chains. The sad picture called "Jesus at the Crucifixion," "Charity," painted by Thayer and many of Corot's landscapes.

Then we went to the Natural History rooms. Here we saw skeletons of large animals, and a fine collection of stuffed birds and nests containing eggs.

There is an exhibition of drawings at the English High school. They are farther advanced in drawing than we. There were drawings of boys and girls carrying books and bundles; but they have no faces.

After that we took a car for home and reached here a little after six. We all agreed we had had a very pleasant time.

Pleasant Outing.

The ladies of Paul Revere Relief Corps, No. 103, had a very pleasant outing at the residence of Mrs. Calvin Dyer on Whitwell street, June 26, it being Mrs. Dyer's birthday. After partaking of a most bountiful collection at five o'clock, music, singing and merriment were the rule of the evening until half past ten or eleven when the guests departed leaving their kind wishes for the coming year. Miss Cora Dyer is quite a charming hostess, assisted by her friend, Mrs. Emma Weston, an expert on the piano from Somerville, made the evening one to be remembered by all those present.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people
wake up in the morning nearly
as tired as when they went to
bed, a disagreeable taste in their
mouth, the lips sticky, and the
breath offensive, with a coated
tongue. These are nature's first
warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Dis-
corders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy
Tablets are resorted to at this
stage they will restore the system
to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or
sour stomach and Constipation than
a prolonged course of any other
medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S.

NEW RESERVATION.

Metropolitan Park Commissioners Make Taking at Nantasket.

The first step toward making a public reservation of Nantasket beach,
as authorized by the Legislature this year was taken Tuesday by the Metropolitan Park Commission, when they seized by right of eminent domain nearly 900 feet of land. The land taken extends from "the chutes" to Hotel
Tivoli and includes property of Henry Norwell, A. L. Jewell, J. M. Jellison and estate of J. T. Burkhardt, being the estates upon which the buildings were recently destroyed by fire.

There is much discussion among the hotel proprietors in regard to granting liquor licenses, particularly at the Hotel Nantasket, which is within 400 feet of the land taken. The act under which the land is taken forbids the granting of licenses to sell liquor to places within 400 feet of land taken. The Hotel Tivoli is within that distance but already has a yearly license which does not expire until next May.

Aid Needed.

Mr. Editor:
I would like space in your valuable paper, to call the attention of the citizens of Quincy to a very sad case in their city. A young man by the name of Fred Miller living in Glencoe place, is fast sinking into the last stages of that dread disease consumption. He has not the money to be treated by experts, nor does he have the necessary nourishment needed in the disease; thereby his sufferings are greatly aggravated. It will take but very little to give this young man relief by sending him to the state home
for consumptives in Rutland, Massachusetts. Won't some of our citizens who have money, for the sake of humanity and charity, help me try
and save this young man's life.

He has a young wife and one child, which makes the case more sad. His character is beyond reproach for industry and sobriety. He was employed as conductor on the street railroad until his present illness, which was brought on through the grip, and being compelled to labor before he was really able to work. I have carefully investigated this case and find it is worthy of aid. Dr. Jones was the attending physician. The young man was a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M., but through illness he got behind in his dues, but I hope the order will kindly remember him now in his hour of need and fight for his life.

All those who can spare even one dime for this cause can leave it at the Ledger office, or notify me and I will call upon them at their home.
Remember delay means death to this young man. So be in haste to give your mite, remembering that God the Father will reward you ten fold.
Yours for humanity, charity and Christianity, Mrs. C. W. Moore, 2
Box 207, Atlantic, Mass.

Monument Pays Dividends.

As a money-making scheme a monument in a graveyard would ordinarily be considered a queer investment, yet in the Williamstown Cemetery there is such a monument
that has answered its purpose well,
says the Despatch of Williamstown, Ky. Twelve years ago a marble works company made a proposition to W. G.
Cram, one of the rich men of Grant County, to erect a monument in his private lot, not to be paid for at once,
but to pay interest at the rate of ten per cent. upon the cost price to himself as long as he should live. It was to cost $1,500. The company's terms were accepted and the monument was built, a space being left vacant whereon to chronicle the birth and death of Mr. Cram, together with his good deeds. Mr. Cram is yet alive and bids fair to live many years more, though he has passed the age of threescore and ten, and the monument has already paid him in dividends $300 more than the original cost of building. Last Thursday, during a wind-storm, the shaft was broken off fifteen feet from the ground, but it will be repaired at the company's expense.—Transcript.

The City Council Committee on Police and Ordinances meet Saturday night.

Chief of Police Hayden will put on a large number of special officers the night before the Fourth.

W. G. Spear, custodian of the collection of antique articles this week.

Dr. William Everett delivered the address Tuesday at the dedication of the new Frost Public Library at Winthrop.

Chief Engineer Williams has issued a new card giving the location of all fire alarm boxes, and the running card of the several pieces of apparatus.

Tax-Collector Dixon is busy getting his poll tax bills ready to send out.
The first lot, which will include Wards One, Two and Three will be sent out on Saturday. The bills this year are on salmon colored paper. Very appropriate for July 4.

The Quincy Clothing Co. fire, smoke and water sale opened Tuesday afternoon and the clerks have been on the

that they are selling their clothing at a bargain have only to call and be convinced that they are phenomenal bargains.

A Work of Art.

Herbert W. Beattie, the sculptor, has just completed the model of one of four large panels which when cast
in bronze are to be placed upon a monument to be erected upon the battlefield at Antietam. The model completed represents the Fifth Maryland Infantry closing in upon Roulette's barns and house. In the foreground are seen three mounted officers one of whom has been wounded
and is being assisted from his charger
which has been killed by the same shot. In front of these officers the regiment is shown advancing in close order at double quick, unmindful of the hail of leaden bullets that are falling thick and fast about them. In the background are seen the famous barns
and house behind which is the Rebel artillery in action shelling the charging regiment. The picture is very realistic.

Post Office for Quincy Point.

Through the efforts of Postmaster
Hammond, a sub-station of the Quincy
post-office will be opened at Quincy Point, on Saturday, July 1, at the store of Miss Ella M. Freeman. The new station will be known as substation, No. 2, and Miss Freeman has been appointed as postmistress. Although Quincy Point is supplied by the carrier system, the sub-station
will be of great convenience to residents of that section, for besides selling stamps it will issue money orders and registered letters. Quincy Point had a fourth-class office for a number of years until the carrier system was extended to that section when the fourth class office was abolished. Miss Freeman was postmistress when the office was abolished and had been for several years, and is therefore experienced in handling mail.

High School Graduation.

The High school graduation will take place this evening at the school hall. As 83 will be graduated only a limited number can take part. There will be salutatory essay, class history,
an essay on "The benefits of reading,
class prophecy, and valedictory
oration. Mr. Albert Edward Winship, editor of the School Journal, will address the graduates, and music
under the direction of Miss Fish will be a feature. Gold and white are the class colors, and the motto selected is:
"Honor waits at Labor's gate."

May Not Go Into Camp.

It is now stated, in connection with the reports that the Eighth Regiment is not in condition to perform the summer tour of duty, that the Ninth also is not over-anxious to undergo the arduous work of a season in camp
under the conditions scheduled, and the opinion is being more or less generally expressed that it would be well to omit the summer duties of all commands which saw service in the field
during the war.—Transcript.

TODAY'S COURT.

Maurice Murphy was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Case continued until next Wednesday.
Charles Ratti and Peter Josephine were arraigned for assault on Honora Josephine at Quincy. Ratti was found not guilty and discharged, and the case against Josephine was continued until July 12.
Alice Connelly was arraigned for the larceny of clothing to the value of $21 from Delia Ago
at Quincy. She was fined $5.
James R. Landers was arraigned for trespass on property of William H. Cleaves at Quincy.
The complainant failed to prove ownership to the land upon which it was alleged Landers
trespassed, and he was discharged.

Its "Public Library."

The extent to which the great railroad systems of the United States invoke the aid of printer's ink in their laudable ambition to develop passenger business is something that rather astonishes the foreign transportation manager. Take the Boston & Maine Railroad for instance, which is the most conspicuous in the country for effective advertising. The summer publications of that railroad now number no fewer than 16 different volumes,
all but one of them illustrated, and making in themselves a veritable library of railroad literature. They cover in almost minute detail every one of the various "sections" reached by the Boston & Maine and its connections. No one need be at a loss to secure any desired information as to the various mountain, seashore, lake or country resorts or the fishing or shooting regions of the territory. It takes time and skill to accurately collate all these essential facts and statistics, and it costs lots of money
besides; but the educational and artistic result is something that the company may well feel proud of.

The latest addition to the Boston &
Maine's "Picturesque New England"
library is "The Valley of the Connecticut and Northern Vermont," descriptive of the wonderful summer
region lying along the beautiful valley of the Connecticut river and continuing to Lake Champlain and Lake Memphremagog in the north.

A copy of this book will be sent by the passenger department of the Boston & Maine Railroad, on receipt of two cents in stamps; as will also the indispensable "Summer Resorts and Tour," and the other descriptive publications (2 cents in stamps for each book), "All Along Shore," "Among the Mountains," "Lakes and Streams," "Southeast New Hampshire," "Merrimack and Valley,"
"Central Massachusetts," "Southwest
New Hampshire," "Lake Umbagog,"
"The Monadnock Region," "Lake Memphremagog and About There,"
and "Fishing and Hunting."

Six cents in stamps will procure a copy of either "New England Lakes,"
"Rivers of New England" or
"Mountains of New England," magnificent new portfolios of half-tone reproductions of original photographs just issued by the Boston & Maine Passenger Department. These are veritable editions de luxe in the way of railroad literature.

March of the Grand Army.

Mrs. Ida Vose Woodbury, the Memorial day orator at Whitman, closed her fine address with an original poem which made a deep impression upon the veterans. One of our readers expressed a wish that we publish the beautiful poem, which is as follows:

See, they come! they come!
Not with banners proudly streaming,
Not with swords and bayonets gleaming,
Not with beat of drum.

Silent they, and slow;
Not with horses wildly prancing,
Nor with martial tread advancing,
But with heads bowed low.

Hush! be not afraid,
They have wakened from death's slumber,
And again, hosts without number,
Join the grand parade.

Every brow so white
Bears today the crown of laurel
For the bravest in the quarrel,
Victor for the right.

Ask you, "who are they?"
They who in our nation's trial
With a God-like self-denial
Gave their lives away;

Now are "entered in,"
From the fight they ne'er desisted,
Even unto death resisted
Striving "against the sin."

See! again they come;
Tattered are the banners flying,
Hoarse the life's and bugle's crying,
Low the beat of drum.

Maimed, and halt, and blind,
Empty sleeves, and wan, pale faces,
Shaking frames, with many traces
Of the years behind.

Years of toil and pain,
Weary march and cannon rattle,
Prison pen and bloody battle,
Showers of leaden rain.

Ask you, "Who are they?"
They who freedom's flag unfurling,
And secession backward hurling,
Conquered in the fray.

Now are worn and old;
Youthful vision, manhood's vigor,
All have fled; disease and rigor
Grasp them with firm hold.

Sweet white flowers we bring—
Garlands faint would make immortal
For the brave ones past the portal
Now before the King.

And with bated breath
Listen for their footsteps treading
Through the endless labyrinth, threading
The vast halls of death.

And with wreaths more gay
Deck the brows of heroes living,
Equal praise for equal giving,
Though on earth today.

And uncovered stand;
Loyal hearts with acclamation
Hail them saviors of the nation,
Bravest of the land.

Acted In Self-Defense.

Millbridge, Me., June 28.—George H.
Garrison, the principal in Saturday night's shooting affair, was yesterday acquitted of the charge of assault with intent to kill, and was discharged from custody. Additional evidence introduced so strongly sustained the allegation of self-defense, that the decision of the justice was not unexpected. A strong point for the defense was the testimony of Laura Ramsay, wife of the victim, and her daughter, Annie, each of whom told of Ramsay's intoxicated
condition at the time of the shooting
and of his threats against Garrison's life. Ramsay's condition is somewhat improved, with a possibility of recovery.

Cargo Caught Afire.

Boston, June 28.—The two-masted
schooner Mazouka, of Rockport, Me., which arrived here a few days ago from Rockport, with a cargo of 1000 barrels of lime, sprung aleak while passing through Fort Point channel, and the cargo caught fire. The vessel was hauled out of the flats, in order to prevent obstructing the channel with the crew stripped the vessel of her sails, running rising and anchors, and her deck of 200 barrels of lime, which was intact. The remaining 800 barrels are a total loss, as is the vessel. The crew, after saving their effects, left the vessel to her fate.

Jail Keeper Baby Beaten.

Rutland, Vt., June 28.—James Mc-Donald and William Leonard, prisoners
at the house of correction here, broke out of their cells yesterday and assaulted Keeper Holland in an attempt to escape.
McDonald got away, but Leonard returned to his cell. Citizens, assisted by bloodhounds, have been searching for the fugitive, but have not succeeded in locating him. Keeper Holland, who was beaten with an iron bar, has seven ugly wounds on his head, but it is thought he will recover. Leonard and McDonald had procured an implement with which they had saved out of the bars of their cell doors.

Opening of Council of Women.

London, June 27.—The International Council of Women opened here yesterday. The Countess of Aberdeen, president of the council, in her address, sketched the duties of the council. She said international arbitration should ever be placed foremost in its program, advocated the establishment of an international bureau of information regarding all that affects women, and warned women against arrogating to themselves alone the duties of curing all evils. She deprecated the idea usually formed about women's congresses, that they were bent upon devising plans whereby women might be emancipated
from home duties, saying: "This congress holds fast to the belief that woman's first mission must be her home."

Eighteen Thousand Troops in Review.

London, June 27.—The queen and many other notables were present on the famous plains of Aldershot yesterday to witness a review of over 18,000 of the best troops in the kingdom. This review is interpreted in London as a means of satisfying Queen Victoria that her troops are ready for any emergency they may be called upon to meet. In the Transvaal or elsewhere. Not since the queen's jubilee has a more magnificent army corps paraded before a European monarch, and while 600 additional troops remained in their barracks, the display afforded the queen ample evidence of her military resources. All the regiments which took part in the review were those which would answer the first hurry call to arms.

Crew of Burning Steamer Rescued.

Wilmington, N. C., June 28.—Steamship George W. Clyde arrived here yesterday with Captain Ingram and crew of 21 men of the steamship Pawnee on board, the Clyde having picked them up from small boats soon after they abandoned the Pawnee, leaving her wrapped in flames. The Pawnee was abandoned off Currituck, on the North Carolina coast, a little past midnight on Sunday night. The fire was discovered about midnight, and had gained such headway
that every effort to check the flames was futile. The Pawnee had a full cargo, principally lumber, of which there was between 500,000 and 600,000 feet.
There was also a quantity of cotton.

Traie the Upmost Question.

Kingston, Jan., June 27.—It is now announced that Jamaica's exclusion from the imperial scheme for establishing closer relations between Canada and the West Indies caused the sending of the reciprocity delegates to Ottawa. It is also announced that Governor Hemming
is shortly going to Canada, but the merchants here declare the question fundamentally is one of trade and not of politics, and that Jamaica's only reliance is in America.

Turned Over to Owners.

Bristol, R. I., June 27.—The Columbia, fully completed, was turned over to the owners, represented by Mr. Iselin, yesterday afternoon, and last night left for Newport in tow of the tender St. Milchael. A number of carpenters and riggers were on the boat nearly all day, the interior joiner work being finished, while the bowsprit, which started back during Sunday's trial, was again set in position
with additional steel braces.

A GALLANT STRUGGLE

Between Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, In Which the Former Won.

Westerners Lost by Going Out of the Course.

Columbia and Cornell Did Not Figure to Any Great Extent in the Contest.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 28.—In one of the most exciting four-mile boat races ever witnessed in the history of college rowing, 20,000 persons yesterday saw the Pennsylvanians carried over the line a winner by a short half length from the Wisconsin, who lost it in the last 100 yards by bad steering. Cornell, the victor of former years, pulled after them, a good four lengths in the rear, and Columbia, never in the fight after the end of the first mile, trailed in a good three lengths from the stern of the Cornell boat.

It was 7:05 o'clock when the final start was given, and this time the crews got away without accident. This start was beautiful one, the four boats' noses seeming to hang together for the first two strokes. Then they settled down to the stroke taught them by the various coaches. Before the first eighth of a mile was finished the Wisconsin boat had shoved its nose ahead of the others, with Cornell second, Pennsylvanians hanging well to her, and Columbia fourth, dropping astern.

When the first half mile was reached so fast was the Wisconsin boat going that it had taken its whole length ahead of the Pennsylvanians and half a length ahead of the Cornell boat. Columbia was rowing with the nose of her boat just overlapping Pennsylvanians. Frantically the Pennsylvanians roared on the train yelled at their crew and the backs of the Quakers seemed to respond, as in a few minutes they shot their boat up even with the Cornell boat. But to catch the Wisconsin boat was not so easy. On a perfectly even keel, with the bodies going well back together and the heads seeming as if they would swing off the shoulders, the Wisconsin crew flew on. When the mile was reached the Wisconsin boat had a lead of a clear length over Pennsylvanians, while Cornell and Pennsylvanians were saw-sawing for second place. The Wisconsin boat settled down to a stroke of 32 to the minute, the boat never checking between the strokes and the blades cutting the water as keenly as a knife.

In the meantime Pennsylvanians and Cornell were having as pretty a fight for second place as has ever been seen on the course. Time and time again the Cornell crew put a little more back in the boat and sent the nose of their boat even with that of the Quakers. But it was apparent that there was but little chance of their holding it.

When the Wisconsin boat had reached the mile and a quarter point they eased off a trifle in their stroke. At the same time the Cornell men picked up their stroke and shoved their boat's nose slightly ahead of Pennsylvanians and over-lapping the stern of the Wisconsin shell. But with apparent ease, the Wisconsin stroke went back to its regular 32 and the boat shot ahead again a good half length. At the same time Pennsylvanians' boat, which had been lagging a half length behind Cornell's, shot up level with the Cornell boat, while the Columbia, making a desperate effort, placed the nose of their shell near Pennsylvanians' stern.

As this point it was one of the most beautiful races imaginable, the four crews rowing with great regularity and all of them with a clean, neat stroke. Again, as they neared the mile and a half point, Cornell's boat came up even with the Wisconsin boat, but was unable to catch Wisconsin, which now had a lead over the two crews of three-quarters of a length and was still going. From this point on to the two-mile point the Wisconsin boat seemed to fairly fly.

Pennsylvanians was putting more strength in the oar, but the westerners' boat drew away with ease. As they passed the two-mile mark there was a quarter of a length of clear water between the nose of the Pennsylvanians shell and the stern of the Wisconsin shell. Cornell was even with Pennsylvanians at the mark and the two crews stayed on even terms until the 2 1/4 point was reached.

Then the see-sawing began again. Cornell and Pennsylvanians altered their forging ahead of each other, while the western crew kept their shell a boat length in the van. Columbia struggled on three boat lengths behind, rowing with all the power that there was in the boat. At the 3 1/4-mile point Cornell began to draw back a little, while Pennsylvanians spurred ahead a little and finally lapped the Wisconsin shell, while she had a fair length of advantage over Cornell. Going the last quarter of the third mile where the river runs under the great bridge, Pennsylvanians and Wisconsin struggled almost like demons, the one to keep the advantage and the other to gain it. But Wisconsin was rowing better than Pennsylvanians. The Quakers made various spurts, while the Badgers rowed steadily at 32.

As they passed under the bridge Wisconsin had a length's lead on Pennsylvanians and 1 1/2 on Cornell. Just after they passed the bridge Pennsylvanians succeeded in lapping her boat over the Badgers' stern, but the westerners immediately responded, increasing their stroke slightly. Cornell had evidently lost ability to put any more power in the stroke. Her boat was fully 2 1/2 lengths behind Pennsylvanians, while Columbia was still struggling on, three lengths to the rear of Cornell.

Passing the 3 3/4-mile point Pennsylvanians hit the stroke up to 35, and then began one of the most exciting contests even seen in boat racing. Slowly the bow man of the Pennsylvanians boat lined up with the coxswain in the Wisconsin boat, but just as he had come on a line with him the Wisconsin crew responded to the spur and again drew away. At this point Wisconsin was seen to swerve badly toward the western shore, and to the surprise of everybody maintained this course, although it took the boat inside of a number of small pleasure boats. The Pennsylvanians boat gained upon the Wisconsin boat, and as they passed into the last quarter the Wisconsin boat, unable to turn back into its line, had found dead water in the new line which it had sought near the shore, and though the crew pulled desperately, the nose of the Pennsylvanians shell came out, inch by inch, until it crossed the line a scant half length ahead of the Badgers' boat.

It was a finish that set wild with delight every lover of good sport. The Cornell boat was fully three lengths to the rear of the Wisconsin boat, while the Pennsylvanians finished gallantly their stern clear almost four lengths behind Cornell. The official time, given from the referee's boat, was 20m. 4s. None of the crews was in bad condition when they finished.

Pennsylvanians' time was 20:04; Wisconsin's time was 20:05; Cornell's 20:13; Columbia's, 20:20. The record for the course is 19:29.

The normal stroke of each crew for the entire race was as follows: Pennsylvanians, 34; Wisconsin, 32; Cornell, 33; Columbia, 33. The highest stroke rowed by Pennsylvanians, at the finish, 35.

FINISH SURPRISED CHAMPIONS.
Thought They Had the Game, but "Old Bones" Changed the Situation.

Pittsburg, June 28.—While it could hardly be called championship ball that was played here in the game between Boston and the Pirates, the contest was a beautiful one. It lasted 10 innings, and the finish surprised the visitors.

They were somewhat astonished in the ninth inning, when just as they were waiting for the last man of the Pirate ranks to be called out he made a home run and tied the score.

The man who had made the home run was "Old Bones" Ely. The ball went to the deep center field fence. It might as well have gone over the fence, for there was no chance to catch the old man as he ambled home.

Manager Seale was perturbed at the sudden turn of affairs, and talked about hard luck. But the next inning the Pirates again got at the ball with the wood and scored the winning run.

Columbia's Admirers Disappointed.
Newport, R. I., June 28.—The yachtsmen who saw the brushes between the Columbia and the Defender yesterday are not so enthusiastic over the speed of the new boat as they were after the short skirmish on Sunday forenoon. The two great racers met yesterday under different conditions than those which prevailed on the first trying out. Instead of a light air which scarcely heeled the two boats, the wind yesterday was a good deal stronger, blowing from the southwest, which compelled the crews of the racers to lie out to windward in real racing fashion, and under these conditions the Defender made a most excellent showing. Both boats sailed dead down the windward for 10 miles from Brewster Point Judith. The tryout revealed the fact that the Columbia in her present condition is not going to have an easy time with the older boat when they get together on the measured course and in a stiff breeze. The Columbia, however, is a very fast craft, and the tuning up that she will get between now and October will certainly make her a fit boat to meet the British challenger Shamrock under any conditions.

Ready For Great Contest.
Gales Ferry, Conn., June 28.—The work of the Harvard and Yale varsity crews preparatory to the great struggle tomorrow afternoon is practically completed, and sailing, but the lightest work will be given the men during the intervening time. Both crews are fit and on edge, and very little now would have them trained too fine. The men feel they are in condition to pull the race of their lives, and indications point to one of the fastest races that has ever been rowed by the rival universities. Higginson will undoubtedly put the stroke up high, but the heavier Yale men hope to be able to wear down their rivals.

Crimson Beats the Blue.
New Haven, June 28.—The Harvard baseball nine defeated the Yale nine on the eve of the Yale commencement. A remarkable thing about the game was that it was practically a foregone conclusion, when Harvard scored three runs in the first inning. After the fatal first inning Yale played on the whole better ball than Harvard, though the team work of the visitors was decidedly better and Yale was lamentably weak at bat. The score was: Harvard 4, Yale 2.

Serious Strike Riots.
Berlin, June 28.—Serious strike riots broke out yesterday in the Bochum coal mines. The troops who were called to protect the non-strikers were attacked by the rioters, and were compelled to use their side-arms and fire-arms. Many persons were injured. The strikers fired on the miners' houses, and the gendarmes returned the fire.

Ten Days For Manslaughter.
Frederickton, N. B., June 28.—A month ago, after a drunken debauch, James Gover is alleged to have found William McLean in a room with Mrs. Gover, and stabbed him to death with a butcher knife. Yesterday a jury found him guilty of manslaughter, and Judge Van West sentenced him to ten days' imprisonment in jail.

Understands Cricket Playing.
London, June 28.—A. E. J. Collins, the 14-year-old Clifton college schoolboy whose remarkable batting has excited the interest of all cricket players here, carried his bat through the innings yesterday for 628 runs. When his partner was caught out Collins had been at the bat seven runs. The total for his side was 823 runs.

Not Up to Requirements.
Berlin, June 28.—The Kaiser Friedrich, which was built for the North German Lloyd company, not having fulfilled the conditions of the contract, has been rejected by the company, and she will be turned over to the builders on her arrival at Bremen from New York, from which port she sailed on June 29.

Goebel Gets It.
Louisville, June 28.—The 25th ballot for governor resulted as follows: Stone, 330; Hardin, 378; Goebel, 385. Under the resolution adopted by the convention Stone having received the smallest number of votes, was dropped. The 26th ballot was then taken amid much excitement and confusion. The ballot was announced as follows: Goebel, 569; Hardin, 531, and William Goebel was declared the nominee. Mr. Goebel was introduced and made a short speech of thanks. He asked for the support of his opponents. After the nomination, the convention enjoyed a few moments of relaxation and conciliation. Speeches were made by the managers for the three candidates, and the theme of all was "get together and win."

To Protect American Interests.
Washington, June 28.—The Chicago area yesterday from Tampa, Fla., was a ship around the Cape of Good Hope to Brazil, but owing to the unsettled state of affairs in the Transvaal, she will be retained in that vicinity as long as may be necessary to afford protection to the American interests in that quarter. These interests are considerable, both in number of American residents in the Transvaal engaged in mining operations, and in the volume of American capital employed in the mining industry.

A Midnight Lynching.
Fulton, Ky., June 28.—Henry Stewart, the negro who robbed and seriously shot Gail Hamilton, a negro, and robbed M. Stone, a white man, Sunday, was taken out at midnight and lynched by a supposed negro and white mob. The excitement is high among the negroes.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

As a result of an altercation in the French chamber of deputies between M. Boileux, Socialist, and M. Millevoy, Republican Nationalist, these two deputies will fight a duel with swords.

Definite Decision Reached as to Reinforcements For Otis.

Will Be Enlisted Practically as Regulars.

No Difficulty Is Anticipated In Securing the Men Needed.

Washington, June 29.—A decision to send reinforcements to Major General Otis, beyond the limit of 35,000 men fixed by that officer as necessary to quell the rebellion in the Philippines, was reached at a conference held at the White House. Secretary Alger says that General Otis will have 40,000 men when the rainy season closes, for a resumption of active operations.

The plan adopted is to continue the enlistment of recruits at the regular army recruiting stations beyond the limit of 65,000 regulars authorized by the army reorganization act. The men thus secured will be charged on the rolls to the provisional volunteer force of 35,000. No limit has been placed on the number of enlistments to be made in excess of 65,000. The officers in charge of recruiting men for the regular service say that the limit of 65,000 men has been reached. This number is exclusive of 2500 men of the hospital corps and 500 general recruits, who, according to a recent decision of the comptroller of the treasury, are not to be charged against the authorized strength of the regular army. Under that decision the regular army now consists of 68,100 men, and all these have been secured.

If enlistments are made at the rate that continued up to the time the limit was reached, about 1000 additional troops will be enlisted every week. It is expected, however, that an official announcement that the army wants recruits for service in the Philippines will result in a great increase in enlistments over the rate of recruiting for the regular service. These additional men will, under the present arrangement, occupy an anomalous position in the military service. They will be enlisted practically as regulars, and yet be borne on the rolls of the provisional volunteer army.

Volunteers will not be accepted in organizations. Secretary Alger is determined to adhere to that rule. Looking over the act of congress, he has concluded that the authorization to raise these volunteer troops "at large" indicates a purpose on the part of congress to follow out the plan successfully operated in the case of the immune regiments. It is the present purpose to disregard state and local lines in securing the recruits and welding them into organizations. Regiments will be designated the First, Second, Third, etc., volunteer United States Infantry or cavalry. No difficulty is anticipated in securing the men needed. It is believed that the 1000 men who are weekly offering themselves at the recruiting offices will be even more willing to enter the army as two-year volunteers than as long term regulars.

Officers for these volunteer regiments will be obtained by promoting officers now in the regular army and by commissioning many of the best officers of the volunteer organizations which saw service. The war department has carefully preserved the records of these officers and has at hand a long list of such of them as exhibited soldierly and organizing qualities.

The story from Los Angeles, intimating that Brigadier General Harrison G. Otis has been summoned to Washington in order that President McKinley may offer him the portfolio of war, is denied by all who are presumed to have knowledge of the subject, the fact that Alger refuses to resign not being the only thing in the way of Otis' advancement to the post in question.

Stories of similar character have repeatedly emanated from Los Angeles, General Otis' home city. If the general has been called at all, and war department officials do not admit it, it is for the purpose of giving President McKinley the benefit of his experiences in the Philippines.

"If Otis Had Enough Men.

Chicago, June 29.—General Charles King, who commanded a brigade in the Philippines, arrived here last night. The general discussed the various phases of the Philippine situation freely, and among other things declared that if General Otis had had 50,000 troops at his command at the outbreak of hostilities he would practically have stamped out the insurrection by the beginning of the rainy season. He expressed the opinion, however, that warfare of a guerilla character was likely to be kept up for some time after the close of active opposition. He also said that General Otis should have from 50,000 to 60,000 men when active hostilities should be resumed.

Troops' Health Is Good.

Santiago, June 29.—Fourteen new cases of yellow fever have been officially reported during the last two days. This raises the total number of cases to 50, of which 12 have proved fatal. Major Carr, the surgeon in charge, reports that the general health of the troops is good.

Big Race Today.
New London, June 29.—The two great American universities are again face to face with their annual contest for aquatic supremacy. Singular as it may seem, there appears to be a perfect unanimity of feeling at the Yale and Harvard headquarters as to the probable outcome of the three races which the college crews will row today. Both agree that Yale, barring accidents, has the better chance in the great "variety" race that will be rowed for four miles down the Thames just before sundown. It is also admitted by both that the Yale freshmen crew will not have the same advantage over Harvard in the race of two miles up the river, while, as for the four-oared race between the "variety" substitutes over a two-mile course, after the freshmen race, Harvard has certainly the preference. The attraction of three college boat races on the same day is a new feature of the sport on this time-honored course.

Columbia and Defender Try Conclusions in a Run to Windward.

New Boat Easily Leaves Her Opponent Behind.

Won in Thirty-Eight Miles by Eight Minutes, Including Handicap.

New London, Conn., June 29.—In a 38-mile beat to windward yesterday the Columbia beat the Defender eight minutes, besides giving the old champion a two-minute handicap. Yachtsmen are jubilant, for a yacht's most sterling qualities must come out in a race to windward. The race was from Brenton's reef lightship, off Newport, to New London. The Defender was given a two-minute start. Thirty-two miles of the 38 was a beat to windward with such a stiff breeze blowing that neither yacht cared to carry a working topsail, and it was in this kind of work that Columbia gained such a long lead, averaging more than a quarter of a minute faster each mile than Defender. At this time the water was very rough, but the new boat rode very easily and did not buffet the waves as much as Defender.

It looked like an all-day storm, and a stiff breeze from the southwest kicked up quite a sea outside, putting white crests on the waves in the inner harbor. The Defender hoisted anchor shortly after 10 o'clock and ran down the east passage under her jib. Her mainsail was hoisted on the way out, and Captain Rhodes sailed down as far as Castle Hill to get a look at the water outside. Then he knocked about the bay, awaiting the Columbia.

The crew of the Columbia hauled anchor at 11:15, and she was towed down as far as Castle Hill, where the hawser was cast off, and the yacht beat out to sea under her three lower sails.

The Defender was inside of Brenton's Reef lightship looking under her jib and mainsail, waiting for her rival. There was a pretty heavy sea, and as the two yachts plunged along, clouds of spray were thrown into the air from under their bows and fell away to leeward. The weather was threatening at the start, and a light rain compelled the crews to don their oilskins. The showers were not heavy, but lasted nearly all day.

The Columbia ran up to the Defender rapidly and continued on the board track until the lights were passed. The Columbia was at that time 300 yards to the leeward of the Defender and half her length ahead.

At 12 o'clock both boats tacked around the lights. They continued along on this hitch for about five minutes, the Columbia luffing up to take a haul on the jib halyard. At 12:20 the Defender broke out her staysail, and the race was on with the Defender to windward. At 12:30 both boats tacked to port, heading toward Point Judith and footing very fast. At first the Defender gained a trifle, but as they continued on this hitch, the Columbia crawled up slowly, and, but for a shift in the wind more to the south, would have tacked the Defender's bow on the next tack. The shift in the wind helped the Defender considerably, and when at 1 o'clock the Columbia tacked to starboard, about a mile off Point Judith whistling buoy, she could have almost forced the Defender aboard, but the latter tacked 100 feet off the former under her lee bow.

Captain Barr could not stand having his wind stolen by the Defender long, so he fetched about at 1:05 and stood up along shore on the port tack. Then the Columbia began to crawl slowly on the Defender, and at the same time got into the wind better. In 25 minutes the new boat had worked across the Defender's bow and was to the windward of her.

With plenty of wind the Columbia and the Defender held down the shore on the port tack, the former continuing to gain. Off Noyes' Point, at 2:30, the Columbia was over half a mile ahead and steadily increasing her lead, and when she finally came about, off the end of Fisher's Island, the distance between the two was nearly a mile.

At 3:35 the Columbia took her final port hitch, this time fetching well by Race Rock. The Defender held on the starboard tack and then turned after the leader. The boats proceeded up the harbor, the Columbia coming to anchor at 4:28 and the Defender at 4:36. The yachts made a splendid marine picture as they raced up the bay with their enormous sails bellying out with the strong breeze from over the quarter, and with the water curling away from their sharp bows.

Off the Pequot the Columbia dropped her jib and forestaysail and let her anchor. Well out in the stream the Defender anchored near by.

Both boats were sailed skilfully. Captain Barr was at the Columbia's wheel the entire distance, and Captain Rhodes steered the Defender. After the first 10 miles the race was uninteresting to watch, for the Columbia had in that short distance worked out into a fine windward position and gained steadily on the Defender.

While everything was being made snug aboard the Defender, her managing owner, Butte Duncan, rowed over to the Columbia and congratulated Mr. Iselin on the splendid showing the new boat had made.

Everybody aboard the Columbia was delighted at the racer's great speed. Mr. Iselin said that he was more than ever satisfied with his boat. He said he had not figured out how many minutes she had beaten the Defender, but Woodbury Kane stated that he thought about eight minutes was nearly right.

Drift of Opinion.

"The best tendency in the teaching of today is that the teacher extends his horizon."—Journal of Education.

"Ex-Mayor Matthews, like Mayor Quincy, is an expansionist; but when it comes to George Fred Williams they're both regular lemon-squeezers."—Milford Journal.

"The Congregationalist says it is constantly receiving letters asking, 'What would Jesus do if he were president of the United States, a general in the Philippines, editor of a religious newspaper, etc?'" The writers of these letters answer the question from their point of view and state what they think should be printed by the Congregationalist in reply. The editor says: "We do not venture to guess all the things Jesus would do if he were living now, but we hope and believe he would not send questions of this sort to religious papers." This comment indicates the state of desperation to which even religious editors are sometimes reduced.—Waterbury American.

—Roadmaster Bryant of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. had an exciting adventure with hen thieves early Wednesday morning at his home in Hanson. He heard a team stop near his house and rushed out to find a man near the hen house. He tackled him and would have secured him but a pal made his appearance and the two escaped.

Gold or Blood.

Wednesday afternoon one of the colored men employed by Contractor Bryne on the sewer, a strapping fellow, made his appearance in City Square. On his head was a greasy slouch hat and fixed firmly in his thick lips was the remnants of a cigarette. The fellow had been drinking and he was looking for gold or blood.

He called at the Sewer office and finding he could get no satisfaction there he declared that if he did not get his gold he would shoot, and he did not care whether he shot once or twice. From the Sewer office he went into Lincoff's jewelry store to buy a revolver, stating he would have his gold or blood. He did not get a revolver, however, and he next called upon City Treasurer Burke, to see if there was any money for Bryne there.

Finding none there he wandered out to the sidewalk. The fellow was hot when he started in, and had reached a point where he was boiling over when he ran into Officer Barry to whom he repeated his threat to shoot and that he was going to Boston for a gun. All he wanted was his gold and that he was bound to have.

Officer Barry talked to the fellow in a fatherly way and the last seen of him he was going toward Wollaston with the cigarette stub still between his lip.

Q. H. S. GRADUATION.

"Honor Waits at Labor's Gate"
the Class Motto.

Editor Winship Speaks on the Value of Education.

An Unusually Large Class Graduated—Interesting Exercises.

There was a very large attendance at the High school graduation Wednesday evening, but not the usual crowd because of the rain. The Class of 1899 numbered 41, while diplomas were also awarded to 42 others who have completed the business course of two years.

The School hall was prettily decorated with branches and vines. Over the platform in a semi-circle were the class motto, "Honor waits at Labor's gate," in gold letters upon a white background, gold and white being the class color.

A pleasing programme was presented including five class parts, music, address and presentation of diplomas, as follows:

Music,—"The King's Musketeers," Howson Wenough Lee Nash.
(b) Lullaby, Corbin High School Chorus.
Salutatory Essay, Carrie Marguerite Poland.
Class History, Ethel Vogler.
Essay,—"The Benefits of Reading," Bessie Whittmore.
Class Prophecy, Catherine Priest.

Valedictory Oration, Elijah Swift.
Music,—"O That Thou Hadst Hardened," Sullivan-Bartlett.
Lulu Ethel Phelan with Chorus.
Address, Mr. Albert Edward Winship, Editor of the School Journal.

Music,—"Class Ode," Rubenstein-Watson Words by Christina Pirie Mitchell, by the Class of 1899.
Presentation of Diplomas, Hon. Charles H. Porter, Chairman of the School Committee.

Music,—"Wake to the Hunting," Smart High School Chorus.
Director of Music, Miss Madeleine Fish. Accompanist, Miss Helen Sibley, '99.

The essays were all well committed to memory, brilliant and interesting, and clearly delivered. The music which is now under the direction of Miss Madeleine Fish, one of the teachers of the school, continues of a high grade.

The address of Mr. Albert Edward Winship, editor of the School Journal, was particularly appropriate, and it is not surprising that the gentleman is in demand all over the country at graduation season.

He said at the outset that he was not given to flattery, but he had heard many salutatory essays and valedictory orations yet never heard fine gems more perfect in their way than those delivered. He seldom criticised individual parts but when the class prophet told of the annexation of Boston to Quincy, he would remind her that it had already taken place.

In ye olden times a call was made upon the Spartans for 50 boys, but it was refused and the answer sent, you may have 100 men but the possibilities of 50 boys cannot be calculated. If that was true in those days, how much more so is it in these changing days.

The country's estimation of children was illustrated the other day when a baby was kidnapped from New York. How everybody became interested and all the detective forces of the country were at the disposal of the father. Young people are our treasures.

Editor Winship spoke of the great changes occurring daily and gave illustrations showing how the young man with education succeeded best, even on the farm, in the slaughter house, in the blacksmith shop and in the home.

Chairman Porter of the School Committee in presenting the diplomas, told the boys that they were to go forward now without text books. It had been the endeavor of the school to fit them for faithful upright and profitable work. To the girls we look for the best things in life, and he wished them joy and success. Addressing the parents, he hoped all who could would encourage the graduates to go on with their studies, as he knew from experience that education will repay for all sacrifices. As each graduate received his diploma he was greeted with applause.

It is not often that a young man heads a graduating class at the Quincy High and therefore special congratulations should be extended to Elijah Swift of Wollaston.

The graduates:

HERE AND THERE.

Local Brevities of the City of Presidents.

Dr. E. E. Davis starts today for a three weeks' cruise along the Maine coast.

Miss Cora Dyer has gone to Newmarket, N. H., to join Mrs. E. E. Hayden.

The engagement of Miss Mary Evans and Mr. T. T. Morris both of this city is announced.

The clock in the Quincy post-office would be better appreciated if it gave somewhere near correct time.

Miss Dorcas C. Higgins of Quincy Point, went to Portsmouth, N. H., Wednesday to attend a wedding.

The second reunion of the officers of the Fifth regiment will be held at the Atlantic house, Nantasket, Saturday.

Judge Humphrey of the District court will take his vacation during the month of July. Judge Pratt will probably officiate during Judge Humphrey's absence.

The election to fill the office in Co. K, made vacant by the resignation of Capt. Kincaide, has been ordered for Friday night. First Lieut. Whitney will probably be elected.

An unusual opportunity to purchase an ice cream and refreshment room, fully equipped, and doing a good business is advertised in today's Ledger. The location is a fine one, and the only reason for selling is the poor health of the present proprietor.

The Sewer Commissioners held a meeting Wednesday evening and awarded the contract for building about 8,000 feet of 8 to 15 inch sewer in Wards One and Three to James Driscoll & Co. of Brookline, the lowest bidders. Their bid was $11,239.50.

A mass temperance meeting will be held in "Aunt Nabby's" grove, (Hockley), West Bingham, July 4, at 11 A. M. Dinner at 1.30; basket collation. Clam chowder and ice cream for sale. Address and music furnished. Admission free; all welcome. Leave electric at Clifford court.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew of Christ Episcopal church have placed a beautiful framed photograph of the church in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association as a gift. The picture will also serve as a bulletin for it gives the rector's name and a list of the services to which strangers are invited.

Mr. Frank Bassick, who formerly lived in a house rear of E. B. Southers' periodical store, and drug clerk in B. F. Larabee's store, Boston, and who now resides at 2 Dwight street, lost two overcoats and single breasted cutaway coat, by thieves who entered his room with false keys in broad daylight.

Mrs. Augusta Clarke of New York, daughter of Mrs. Seth Arnold, Quincy Neck, sang two select ones at the morning service of the Union Congregational church, Weymouth, Sunday morning: "There is a green hill far away," by Gounod; and "He shall feed his flock," from the Messiah.

Mrs. Clarke is a talented singer, having received a thorough musical education abroad. Mr. Herbert A. Hayden of Quincy Point played the accompaniment.

The list of graduates from Harvard college in the class of '99 included Arthur Adams, George Edward Adams, Henry Francis Barker and Israel Damon of Quincy; Edward Harmon Virgin of Dedham, formerly of Quincy, Francis Butler Granger of Randolph, Samuel Vining Morse of Canton, John Forbes Perkins and Theodore Sedgwick Watson of Milton, Carleton Estey Preston of Hyde Park, Edward Bailey Draper of Canton, and John Henry Sherburne of Hingham.

Miss Eva Phillips, who was graduated from Woodward Institute last week, has been admitted to Boston University, not only without any condition, but with advanced standing.

Prof. Perrin writes of her preparation in German "This will admit her to membership in junior electives and possibly a senior course, if such are considered desirable." Woodward is presenting candidates for examinations at the different colleges this year in maximum Greek, Latin, French, German, science and mathematics, and offers exceptional facilities to young women born in Quincy for advanced courses of study.

WASH DAY

Does not the above picture suggest an idea to you? Talk it over tonight with your wife. You both know the horrors of wash-day; your wife how ever, probably thinks it is necessary to submit to them from motives of economy. Let us make an estimate for you as to the cost of saving you all the annoyance of wash-day? We make a specialty of family work and can probably save you all the trouble and some money at the same time.

Aldrich Removed.
By a vote of 9 to 3 the Newton school committee voted Wednesday evening to adopt the report ousting Mr. George I. Aldrich from the position of superintendent of schools of the city. The special committee to whom was referred the petition in favor of Mr. Aldrich reported at length. It said in part:

"Coming now to the pertinent part of the address, viz: the request that we inform the public what charges we make, we report that the board makes no charges and presents no indictment against the present superintendent. It must be obvious that no satisfactory results could be reached by public discussion. The only results would be demoralization of the schools and unfriendly feelings in the community.

The decision of these matters is committed by law to the school board. "One of our most important functions is the appointment of a superintendent. We were elected for that purpose. We have almost daily transactions with him in the course of our official duties. No board of directors has more intimate relations with its agent than we have with our superintendent of schools. He is our agent and educational expert, and should possess our confidence. This is an absolute necessity. If he does not possess this confidence and support it is because our experience and close relation with him in his exercise of the prerogatives of his position do not, in our judgment, warrant it.

"It would be inexcusably coarse treatment of our executive officer, who has served our city schools for nearly eight years with such faithfulness and ability as he could, to parade before the public the sum of the reasons which have brought the board to its decision. If in temperament, in the construction of his mind, in the opinion he has of his own powers, rights, duties, in his notions of what our public schools should be and do, in his attitude toward public opinion and to the board who gave him office, Mr. Aldrich has not always met the approval of all his fellow-citizens, it would not be strange. It would be simply a common human experience.

"If there are those in the board who think that he should receive abundant gratitude for whatever service he has rendered that is of unchallengeable value to the schools and to the city, but who, nevertheless believe that, owing to the two irreconcilable camps which now divide the opinions of our citizens, his usefulness is so seriously impaired that a change of superintendent is necessary, it is hoped that when this opinion is finally expressed by official vote, such action will not be set down to malice or prejudice, but to the calm, well-grounded judgment of a responsible board, which is trying, in great patience and fidelity, to serve the educational interests of Newton.

After the adoption of the report, Mr. Albert B. Fifield of New Haven was nominated and will be acted upon two weeks later.

There is no "patent" about the CHILTON PAINT nor are there any secret processes. Any one having the requisite amount of capital and proper machinery can make just as good paint, provided the right disposition is there. This "disposition" is what is lacking. It has been the disposition of the Chilton Company to always make as good an article of paint as it was possible to turn out, regardless of expense, and it is due to this same "disposition" that it is a fact that more CHILTON PAINT is used in the section of country where it is known than of any other paint.

Downs the Blue In Aquatic Contests.

Harvard Gets Satisfaction For Eight Years of Defeat.

Varsity Eight Won by Six and a Half Lengths.

Yale Came In Behind In Freshmen's and Substitutes' Races.

Details of One of the Most Interesting Contests Ever Seen on the Thames.

New London, Conn., June 29.—Harvard's victory on the Thames yesterday was unprecedented in the history of intercollegiate aquatic contests in that she won three magnificent races, the 'varsity eight, the 'varsity four and the freshmen eight-oared races from Yale. Over 15,000 people saw the races, which were rowed under most favorable conditions of water, wind and temperature.

All three races were rowed in the afternoon. The four-oared race was first, then the freshmen's contest followed quickly, and scarcely was it finished ere final preparations were made for the 'varsity-eight race, which was soon finished with Harvard 6½ lengths in the lead.

There were those who, in commenting upon these three great victories in one day, spoke of Harvard's pluck, and it is indeed noticeable. For eight years she had persisted in rowing Yale, and in each of those eight years has tasted the bitter apple of defeat, but her courage and her faith in her prowess never faltered, and her faith today stands realized.

It is Harvard's year. The jubilant men of Cambridge on the street last night found plenty of sympathy. The crimson of the fireworks in the city and on the river seemed more vivid, and nobody grudged the men all the comfort they took out of their great and signal victory.

In brief, Harvard's university eight won from Yale over a four-mile course by 6½ lengths in 20 minutes and 52 seconds.

Harvard's substitute four won from Yale over a two-mile course by six lengths in 10 minutes and 51 seconds.

The Harvard crews rowed a modification of the English stroke, coupled with some features of the stroke pulled by Wisconsin. Yale had greatly modified the Cook stroke, and the boat did not go as it did when the famous coach was there.

When the big race of the day was started the water was as calm as an inland lake. The crews rowed in flagged lines, the blue occupying the eastern course, the crimson the western. Yale caught the water first, but Harvard was a close second, and the two eights started on their long journey practically on even terms. The New Haven boys hit up a stroke at 37 to the minute, with the men from Cambridge pulling beautifully at 36. The shells had not travelled half a mile when they presented a beautiful spectacle. Harvard was still in the lead, but Yale had dropped her clip to the same figure with perfect rhythm. The reach, the catch, the heave and the recovery were simultaneous in both shells, and, as the two crews sped on with noses and rudders exactly even, they looked as if they might have been mechanically connected and propelled by identically machinery. Just before the first half mile was reached, Yale seemed to put more power into her strokes, and gave the first indication of an advantage. Harvard apparently paid no attention to this and rowed steadily on. Accordingly, at the half-mile flag the nose of the blue shell was a trifle in the van, giving Yale, perhaps, a lead of an eighth of a length. The first flag, however, had hardly been passed when Harvard spurred, Yale dropped her stroke one point, and the Harvard boat came up on even terms.

Reaching down for the mile flag, the Yale coxswain swerved slightly from his true course, and directly after the mile flag had been passed Harvard took the lead. Yale, whose men up to this time had been rowing beautifully, indulged in a little freaky watermanship, and Harvard stole away. During the next half mile the crimson-tipped oars were sweeping gracefully through the water, and in this short stretch Harvard increased her lead to a full length.

The Yale steers saw the Harvards pulling steadily away, and he frantically called to his men to hit up. They responded nobly, and increased the rate two points, rowing 26 to the minute. Harvard, meanwhile, had been rowing easily at 34, and, after watching Yale a few strokes, Captain Higginson decided that a Harvard 24 was as telling as a Yale 26, and he wisely refused to respond to Yale's spurt.

At this point the Harvard men did the prettiest rowing of the day, and among these on board the coxswain was the unanimous opinion that no finer piece of work had ever been seen on the Thames. Notwithstanding Yale's speedier stroke, the Elis found it impossible to overcome the Harvard lead.

On the contrary, during this very Yale spurt, the Harvard shells, as they were called, were actually gaining another half length, and proceeded to make it two full lengths in an amazingly short period. Yale temporarily surrendered, and dropped from 26 to 22 strokes to the minute, while Harvard lowered her stroke to 32.

At the two-mile flag the Cambridge oarsmen were apparently growing stronger. Yale was rowing well and improved in the next half mile, but for every notch of five work that Yale cut out, Harvard gunged out two, and at the 2½-mile flag it was Harvard's advantage by three clean lengths. Yale put in some work, and undertook to fight bravely the fate which now seemed certain. The race had gone too far, however, and Harvard proceeded to make a walk-away of it, and at the three-mile flag found the race partaking of all the elements of a procession. Harvard had stolen two more lengths from the Yale boat, and was gliding gracefully along, with Yale five long boat lengths to the rear. Down the long lane of fantastically decorated yachts gathered at and about the finish the Harvard eight swung faintly, steadily pulling away from Yale.

Reaching for the finish flag, the tide caught the Harvard shell and swerved it woefully. The little coxswain had his head about him, however, and with great skill worked the boat back into her line, and shot down toward the judges' boat. Here was witnessed wretchedly poor course-pulling, myriads of small boats hovering about the course. In most Harvard's fraction of a length, perhaps, but Yale had a similar experience, and the disadvantages were even.

Harvard crossed the finishing line in a whirlwind, rowing beautifully, 6½ lengths to the good. Yale finished in fairly good shape, but her men were somewhat depressed. Harvard had won her grand race in 20 minutes, 52½ seconds, while Yale crossed the line in 21:12.

The two eights were speedily picked up by their respective launches. Yale started on her trip up the river to her quarters, and after the Harvard men had been surfeited with their ovation at the finish, the happy sons of John Harvard started on their triumphant journey to Red Top, bringing over with joy at their possession of a finely earned victory as was ever won by a university crew on the Thames.

The races preliminary to the 'varsity simply served to whet the spectators' appetite. At 4:15 both boats of the substitute fours were in position. Referee Melkham made it a matter of seconds in getting them off. Harvard caught the water first and jumped to a lead which was never wrested from her. Yale splashed at the first stroke and rowed far less easily than Harvard. Before half a mile had been rowed it was evident that Harvard's four substitutes would furnish to the crimson eight in case of accident to the regular men far better support than the second men who would supplement Yale's 'varsity.

In the half mile the crimson had established a lead of two lengths. The crew was pulling smoothly, while Yale's shell was noticeably jerky between strokes. Harvard cleared her paddles in magnificent style, while Yale seemed to halt and then nervously yank them out.

Shortly after passing the first half mile Harvard spurred and added another length to her lead. This drive developed the first unsteadiness in the Harvard boat, an awkward break appearing in evidence at the bow oar. Yale, however, continued to splash, and she was unable to take advantage of the Harvard irregularity. A quarter of a mile sufficed for Harvard to recover her form and the Crimson boys resumed their Yale annihilating pace. Two more lengths came Harvard's way in short order, and as the crews approached the first mile flag it was seen that, barring accidents, it was Harvard's race by a wide margin.

When the battle was half finished Yale made her most desperate effort with a lively spurt. Harvard, however, was ready and met Yale's effort with another. There were temporary muscle and skill in the Yale four, and the latter succeeded in cutting down the lead of their rivals nearly a length. At the mile, therefore, Harvard was ahead by four lengths.

Instead of continuing their good work, however, the Yale men began to indulge

THE BRUSSELS RIOTS.

Paving Stones Torn Up and Hurled at Soldiers and Police.

City Wears a Complete Revolutionary Aspect.

Author of Election Reform Bill Called a "Murderer" and "Bandit."

Brussels, June 29.—When the chamber of deputies reassembled yesterday M. Destree, Socialist, called attention to the riots which had occurred since the adjournment, in which he was struck by a gendarme's sword, and demanded the man's punishment. Thereupon the chamber at once returned to a state of tumult, as the tumult increased the chamber rose. In the meantime the streets were filled by a shouting mob, which eventually gathered in front of the war ministry, where a cordon of police and gendarmes with drawn swords, and the crowd retaliated with stones.

Shots were fired on both sides. Three persons were wounded, and a police officer was severely stabbed with a shoemaker's knife.

The rioters, on being dispersed, assembled at another point. A large crowd gathered in the Rue Royale, tearing up the paving stones and using these as missiles. Finally the civic guard was ordered out to relieve the police.

Despite these attempts to suppress the disturbances, rioting continued to a late hour, many persons being injured. A feature was the general tearing up of paving stones to be hurled at the police and guards. A tramway conductor received two bullet wounds.

Ultimately the troops were called out. About 25 arrests were made, many of those who were taken into custody being in possession of revolvers.

The public prosecutor, with his entire staff, remains on permanent duty at the Hotel de Ville.

It is rumored that one man who was wounded has since died at the hospital. The election reform bill of M. Van Den Peereboom seeks to perpetuate the clerical domination of the country. The Liberals and Socialists in coalition, being in a hopeless minority, started a campaign of obstruction. A new Beer-naert ministry is predicted as the outcome of the agitation.

The city wears a completely revolutionary aspect. Trams cars are used as barracks. The commander of the civic guard asked to be supplied with 15,000 cartridges. Street lamps were smashed; the rioters pricked the horses of the gendarmes with needles. Several innocent give-on-lookers were injured by the swords of the police.

The scene in the chamber beggared description. M. Van Den Peereboom was dubbed "murderer," "bandit" and "minister of civil war" by the Socialists.

Malden's Big Fire.

Malden, Mass., June 29.—The building occupied by the Boston Moulding company on Franklin street was burned yesterday, and the fire spread so rapidly, by reason of the inflammable nature of the contents, that several small fires in the vicinity broke out before the fire department could successfully fight it. The losses aggregate $5,000. The burned dwellings were not protected by insurance, and the fire comes as a severe blow to many families who suffer loss. William P. Savage, a fireman, was severely, but not fatally, burned.

The Newfoundland Bait Squabbles.

St. John's, June 29.—The colonial government is preparing a circular intimating to American fishermen that the bait act is about to be stringently enforced against the French and warning the Americans that, if they assist the French by bringing them bait to St. Pierre, the laws will be similarly enforced against them also. It is hoped that the Americans will refrain from assisting the French, thus enabling the colony to fight its own battle.

A Novel Launching.

Baltimore, June 29.—The new steamer Queen Anne of the Princess Anne Railway company was launched here yesterday, a notable feature of the occasion being the omission of the custom of breaking a bottle of wine over the vessel's bow as she glided from the ways. Instead of this, two white doves were released as the vessel began to move, and her deck was strewn with flowers.

Log Drivers Drowned.

Bangor, Me., June 29.—Four drivers on Murphy & Lawler's drive were carried down the rapids at Webster brook, between Webster lake and Lake Umbagog, two of them, David Nadeau and Eli Pratt, both of Presque Isle, were drowned, neither being able to swim.

Six Hundred Locked Out.

Detroit, June 29.—A complete lockout is in effect in Piquette & Smith's shoe factory, employing upwards of 600 persons. The trouble was forced by a strike of employees of the turning and welt department for higher wages.

A Croker Appointment.

New York, June 29.—Fire Commissioner Scannell yesterday appointed Edward P. Croker permanent chief of the fire department of New York at a salary of $60,000 per year. The new chief is a nephew of Richard Croker.

Eddy Refrigerators. The best in the world. Family sizes $7.00 to $15.00. Heavy 12. Kitchie & Co.

Many other handsome presents were received among which was an oak sideboard, table linen, lace curtains, silverware, art square, etc., Mr. Frank Leonard making the presentation speech.

Col. Edward Anderson Gives

Greeting to Pupils.

Excellent Music Under Direction of Mrs. Smith.

A very entertaining programme was given at the graduating exercises of the ten grammar schools of the city at the High school building on Thursday afternoon. A crowd was expected and the expectations were realized, for about 1200 gained entrance to the building, although the seating capacity of the hall is estimated at 800. A request was made that ladies remove their hats or bonnets, and as it was enforced the pleasure of those in the rear seats as well as those in front was enhanced.

Most of the graduates had never been inside the High school before, and those of the different buildings had not met together previous to S. A. M. on graduation day, yet they marched in true soldierly precision, stowed themselves away into a very small space, and gave a good account of themselves when the musical numbers on the programme were reached. The music for the marching was furnished by a drummer, Walter G. Field, of grade VII, and two young lady graduates, and deserves special mention, especially the drumming which was original with Master Field.

The programme was as follows:

March—Music by Hannah O. Litchfield and Belle W. Curtis, pianists, and Walter G. Field, drummer.

Chorus—(a) Cease this Dreaming, Franz Abt; (b) Star of Descending Night, L. O. Emerson.

Greeting to the Parents—Herbert Warren Lull, Superintendent of Schools.

Chorus—(a) Recessional, Rudyard Kipling; (b) Ring on, ye Bells, Franz Abt.

Greeting to the Pupils—Colonel Edward Anderson, Pastor of the Washington Street Church.

Song—(a) Star Spangled Banner, Ten Boys. One from each of the ten schools, choros by Graduates. (b) Pledge to the Flag, by Graduates.

Greeting from the Committee—Hon. Charles H. Porter, Chairman of the Board.

Presentation of Diplomas by Chairmen of Sub-Committees.

Chorus—Our Public Schools, Words by Fred. Eric Allison Tupper.

Mrs. Laura C. F. Smith, the director of music in the Quincy schools, deserves credit for the success of the singing, the graduates responding to every call of her baton, and taking an interest in their work. Very little extra time was given to the songs sung, as 143 have been taught during the year.

Supt. Lull's greeting to parents impressed upon them the importance of graduates going to the secondary schools, not particularly the High, but any of our other excellent schools, the Woodward, Adams, Thayer or Boston. The mind rules today, and commands larger wages. No one knows the possibilities of the graduates of today. A life of strenuous endeavor is wanted. Quincy is spending thousands of dollars to hold a high place in education in the State, and Massachusetts is spending millions to keep ahead of the country. This is why Massachusetts has twice the average education, and earns nearly double per capita. The revenue was 25 times the cost of education. Parents should encourage the child to apply their education.

Mr. Lull spoke of the crowded condition of the High school and would not swerve anyone from a desire to attend other schools but will try to accommodate all who apply.

Col. Anderson was introduced by Col. Porter as a gallant soldier, accomplished divine, and fine gentleman, and as requested by Supt. Lull delivered an entertaining address to the children. Others enjoyed it but the Colonel got into touch with the children to a remarkable degree. People at large were aware of the fact that Presidents came from Quincy, also signers of the Declaration of Independence, etc., so that they expected that whatever came from Quincy was going to make its mark.

He congratulated the graduates on their marching, and their progress in school. On their fine class of parents. In the fact that they were born near the last of this century so that they could enjoy the wonderful things to be unfurled. He noticed the great changes since his youth and the new methods in everything. Also the progress in the education of women, and the high places they were already filling.

He urged all to make their mark.

Chairman Porter in his greeting from the School Committee urged the necessity of taking a higher education. A keen mind was needed and education will repay for all sacrifices. He quoted figures on the school attendance of Quincy. He referred to the success in the Spanish war as the result of education. May you live long and prosper was his closing wish.

The New Hancock Market.

As will be noticed by advertisement, the new market of Brooks & Ames, in the Faxon block, at the corner of Hancock and Savill streets, will be opened Saturday. The market will occupy the corner store having large show windows on both streets. The interior of the store is finished in natural wood and the furnishings are the most modern. The slabs and benches are of marble. Adjoining the cutting block is a chute in the marble top bench adjoining, through which the scraps are carried to the basement, instead of being left on the bench. In the rear of the store is a large slate beef tank. There is also a large refrigerator for meats, which is kept cool by six tons of ice. On the shelves are canned goods of all kinds, pickles, olives, etc. Also a full line of fancy crackers. In addition to these the firm will carry a full line of meats and produce and fruit.

In the centre of the west side of the room is the office which is connected by telephone. Near by is a handsome butter refrigerator. In the rear of the main room is a store room with a large table upon which the bundles will be done up. The large windows furnish ample light during the day and at night the store is made as light as day with electric lights which are supplied with Wheeler reflectors. Both Mr. Brooks and Mr. Ames have a long experience in this line of business, and need no recommendation. Mr. John H. Mason, who is also well known, has been engaged as delivery clerk, which is a sufficient guarantee of the prompt delivery of orders.

THE MORNING FIRE.

Double House on Franklin Place
Badly Damaged.

The alarm from Box 37, at 8:35 this morning called the fire department to a stubborn fire in a dwelling house on Franklin place, owned by Charles H. Spear, and occupied by James Roache and Alex. Robertson.

When the department arrived the fire had worked itself into the attic and clouds of thick black smoke were pouring out through the roof from all sides. Four streams of water were soon being thrown into the attic through the windows on the ends and rear of the building. At first the water did not seem to have any effect on the flames, but persistent work of the firemen soon began to manifest itself, and it was seen that the fire was reluctantly giving way to the powerful streams, so that at 9 o'clock not a spark remained.

When Mr. Robertson arrived on the scene, the house was full of smoke, and in one of the upper rooms was his young child asleep. He rushed up and taking the child in his arms, carried her to a place of safety, but was unable to enter the house again on account of smoke.

Early during the fire, willing hands began to remove the furniture. Mr. Robertson occupied the north side of the building and the greater part of his was removed and taken to a place of safety. Mr. Roache, however, was not as fortunate, and none of his furniture was gotten out until after the fire had been extinguished.

The interior of the attic was badly burned and a new roof seems almost necessary. No fire came below the attic, but the gallons of water soaked down through the floors flooding the lower part of the house, in many places taking the plastering with it, and what did not fall down was so badly wet that it will have to be replaced.

As soon as possible, Mr. Roache entered his tenement and almost immediately came out with the family cat in his arms. The cat was rather stupid from inhaling smoke, but soon recovered when brought into the air. His furniture was taken out into the yard and while no fire had reached it, water had made a wreck of it.

The furniture in the Robertson side of the house had been removed early, but some of it had got more or less wet.

The damage to the house will probably reach $600, and is fully covered by insurance in the Dedham Mutual. The loss on the contents is hard to estimate. Mr. Roache's loss is the largest and will possibly be $500, while that of Mr. Robertson will not exceed $100. Neither had any insurance.

Since writing the above, it has developed that the fire probably started from a defective flue in the side of the house, occupied by Mr. Robertson. Mr. Roache, who occupies the other part of the house, says that he left home for work at 6:30 this morning, and at that time he noticed that he flue in Mr. Robertson's side was on fire. His failure to take steps to have the fire extinguished at that time or report it will cause him considerable loss.

Probate Business.

Probate court for Norfolk county was held in Brookline Wednesday and these wills allowed: W. S. King of Quincy, Izora Pinkham executrix, bond, $15,000; Sarah Kingman of Brookline, A. A. Kingman, executor, bond $1,000; Philip Fanning of Needham, Elizabeth Fanning, executrix, bond $5,000; Sarah Mellen of Brookline, H. H. Mellen of Boston, and D. H. Daniels and C. H. Stearns, both of Brookline, executors.

Administrations granted—E. W. Arnold, Braintree, Maria Arnold, admx.; Martha Emerson, Quincy, J. N. Emerson, admr., bond $800; Thomas McDonnell, Quincy, Mary McDonnell, admx., bond $10,000; Frank Jaquith, Randolph, Georgianna Jaquith, admx., bond $300; Louisa Tidale, Westwood, H. W. Tidale of Boston, admr., bond $1,000.

By the aid of an advertisement a woman living in Meadville, Pa., secured a husband; he was one of the patriotic sort and soon after enlisted, and being also a devoted husband he insured his life for $3,000, making the policy out to his wife; he went to war and was killed by some malicious Filipino, and the only consolation she now has is $3,000 and a widow's pension; as the advertisement and wedding expenses foot up $15, any good mathematician can readily reckon the financial profit of that little card. "Wanted a Husband," which appeared a few months ago in the columns of the local paper. We do not care to make any suggestion, more than to suggest that the incident is suggestive of future possibilities in other directions.—Clinton Item.

City Finances.

Councilman Jameson has been criticised for his statements in the debate on the refund order, and the Ledger is pleased to give the gentleman fair play. He writes as follows:

To the Editor of the Daily Ledger:

Referring to your report of the City Council proceedings, in the Daily Ledger of June 20th, wish to say that one of the statements made by the writer is incorrectly reported therein.

The writer stated before the City Council substantially this: "The members of the City Council are in a position to know more about the affairs and finances of the City than those outside." "The majority of the people know but little of the finances of the City."

Yours very truly,

Officers Think Many Volunteers Will Return After They Visit Home.

Secretary Long's View on the War in the Philippines.

Should Enforce Our Authority and Treat Natives Liberally When They Submit.

Washington, June 30.—The first volunteers to be raised for service in the Philippines will be those for the skeleton regiments now being formed by General Otis. It is not believed there will be the least difficulty in obtaining these men. It is probable that some time will elapse before the troops of the provisional army are sent to Manila, but meanwhile they will be drilled in camp. The officers of the war department think that a number of volunteers now coming home will desire to return to the Philippines for a short service after they have had an opportunity to see home and friends.

The announcement that a portion of the provisional army was to be raised has caused a swarm of applications to be sent to the war department by those who are seeking commissions in the new regiments.

For the first time Secretary Long has given an authorized interview on the Philippine question. His utterances, coming as they do from one of the cabinet officers closest to the president, are of importance.

Secretary Long regrets that the Philippine islands were forced upon us, but since they were, as the result of the Spanish war, he believes that American authority must be preserved over them. He is in favor of the most liberal form of government possible for the natives when they have yielded to our authority and have demonstrated their ability for self-government. The future government of the Philippines, however, the secretary says, must be determined by congress.

"At the beginning of the war with Spain," said Secretary Long, "Commodore Dewey with the Asiatic fleet was at Hong Kong. The declaration of neutrality by Great Britain made it imperative that the American admiral should sail away. Spain's Asiatic squadron was stationed only a few hundred miles away, at the seat of the Spanish stronghold in the East. Military strategy made it clear, as Dewey's success soon afterward proved, that the thing to do was to strike at the heart of Spain's power in the Philippines."

"After the destruction of the fleet it was necessary for Admiral Dewey to maintain the advantage thus gained. After the conquest of the city of Manila by the army and navy, the interest of humanity, property and commerce made it compulsory upon the United States to maintain its authority and thereby prevent arson, riot and chaos, which would have followed the abandonment of the city by the Spaniards."

"Personally, as I have said before, I would have been very glad if the Philippine elephant had never been put on our hands. But at the end of the war the islands were in our hands, as the result of the destiny of war, and there was no other alternative. It was our duty to hold them and endeavor to maintain order until their future government could be mapped out by congress.

"In the maintenance of American authority in the Philippines, the president had in mind their future welfare and the betterment of their condition. Military Orders were sent to General Otis to do all in his power to preserve harmony with the Filipinos, and to impress upon them the good intentions of America toward them and their future. Notwithstanding the constant efforts of General Otis and the American officials to preserve peace and to avoid a conflict, Aguinaldo and his army of Tagals attacked our soldiers, who had delivered them from Spanish despotism. After their attack there was nothing left to do but to take aggressive measures until the insurgents surrender to our lawful authority and keep the peace.

"I am in favor of the most liberal form of government for the Filipinos, and I have no doubt that when they have proved that they are capable of self-government a form of government will be given them which will be acceptable. Of course the insurrection must be quelled before the matter of civil government can be decided. I believe peace will soon come in the islands. The question of their future government congress will have to deal with."

"Official reports received by the administration show that many of the best elements in the islands are in favor of American control. When the American authority has secured good order I predict a future for the Philippines which will be one of peace, contentment and prosperity for the people there."

The report of Major General Thomas M. Anderson, commanding the first division of the Eighth army corps during the first battles with the insurgents in the Philippines, has been made public. It relates mainly to the operations of Feb. 5. The report says: A line of delimitation had been agreed on between the department commander and the insurgent Filipino authorities. Finding that we did not hold our line of delimitation, the Filipino military forces advanced beyond this line and began to throw up a formidable line of entrenchments. They also constructed other entrenchments. As the insurgents saw their formidable works approaching completion they became more insolent day by day, and finally did everything they could in insolence and insults to provoke us to a conflict. As they were permitted to go and come through our lines at will they knew just what troops we had, where they were located and that we were making no visible preparations for defense. It seems proper to make these statements in order to justify the assertion that no troops ever behaved better under intense provocation, showing excellent discipline and self-control.

The report then goes on to describe the outbreak and the battle which followed.

"SHY" ON PITCHERS.

The Champions Fall Easy Victims of Joe Quinn's Cleveland Aggregation.

Cleveland, June 30.—Boston's need of pitchers was glaringly apparent in the game here, when Lewis was kept in the box while Joe Quinn's almost forsaken aggregation was piling up runs enough to win in the ninth inning. It was an easy victory for the home team, and pleased the 400 spectators immensely.

Knepper pitched a steady game for Cleveland, and kept the champions' hits wide apart. His support was almost perfect, Dowd, McAllister, Lockhead and Tucker doing some sensational fielding.

Mayor Killed by Office Seeker.
Muskegon, Mich., June 30.—Mayor James Balbirnie was assassinated yesterday by J. W. Tayer, a disappointed office-seeker. Tayer shot Mayor Balbirnie while the latter was standing in the doorway of his store. The ball entered his left breast and he expired 12 minutes later. Tayer swallowed some carbolic acid and then shot himself and died in a short time. Tayer was ex-city poor director. At the time of the shooting Western avenue, on which the mayor's store is situated, was filled with people. The affair arose over Mayor Balbirnie's refusal to reappoint Tayer director of the city poor. Tayer had held the position for some years, but this spring was ousted.

Another Mix-Up at Cleveland.
Cleveland, June 30.—A crowd of 300 or 400 men and boys stopped a south side car on Jennings avenue last night and chased the non-union conductor and motorman, as well as the passengers, away. The conductor was followed for half a mile, and he finally drew a revolver and began firing at his pursuers, but without hitting anybody. The crowd hurled stones at him and he took refuge in a house. The motorman was chased a long distance, but escaped in the darkness. The police charged the mob and arrested the conductor, who was locked up on the charge of shooting in violation of the law.

Michigan For McKinley.
Washington, June 30.—Senator Burrows of Michigan was among the president's callers yesterday. Much interest attaches to his visit. Upon leaving the White House Senator Burrows said the Michigan situation had not been mentioned. "You can say, however," he said, "that Michigan is unqualifiedly for the administration, and that any man who is opposed to the administration, directly or indirectly, will go down in that state." Senator Burrows declined to discuss the question of Secretary Alger's possible retirement from the cabinet.

Will Be No March-Out.
Boston, June 30.—The proposed march-out of the Second brigade, M. V. M., along the Cape shore, Aug. 3 to 9, has been abandoned because it has been found impossible to outfit the command, owing to the poor quality of equipment material sent to the state by the quartermaster general's department of the army, a greater part of which it was found necessary to return.

Sunk In Mud and Died.
Machias, Me., June 30.—John Elder of East Machias started to search for some cattle in a pasture near his home, in favor of a searching party was organized. After beating about the woods in the pasture for some time, the searchers finally found the body of Mr. Elder in a swamp. Only the head was visible. The remainder of the body had sunk into the soft mud.

But How About 1904?
Albany, June 30.—Governor Roosevelt, who stopped off in this city for a few minutes on his way to New York city from the west, declared that he was not a candidate for the Republican nomination for president in 1904, and that he was McKinley. He said: "Everybody in the west is for McKinley's re-nomination."

THE CRIMSON.

In vagaries, and the boat was for some minutes sadly off an even keel. The last mile was a repetition of the first. Harvard gaining steadily until at the mile and a half she had nearly six lengths to the good. Here Yale was rushing her slides temporarily, but with commendable pluck and dash she pulled herself together for a final spurt and did well.

Harvard grew stronger and spurred with vehemence. Yale tried to meet it, but her efforts were futile, and a few moments later the Harvard four had crossed the line a winner by six lengths and a fraction in 10m. 51s., Yale crossing in 11m. 6s.

Both fours rowed back to their quarters, Yale to receive commendation for faithful work; Harvard to be showered with encomiums.

The race of the fours had hardly been finished when the freshmen eights were at the starting point. Yale had drawn the western course; Harvard the eastern. The conditions for this, the second race, were better, if possible, than those under which the previous race had been rowed. A strong outgoing tide caused considerable trouble at the start, but at about 4:45 both crews were ready and the starting shot was fired.

Harvard was the first to find the water, and the two boats were off. It was a false start, for No. 2 in the Harvard boat had jumped his slide. The Yale eight had pulled several hundred feet down the course before the men appreciated the fact that the start was a false one. The boats maneuvered for their positions, and at 4:56 they were successfully sent away.

Yale took the lead instantly, rowing magnificently. Harvard, too, was pulling in beautiful style, and it was clear that the freshmen race was to be a great contest. At the half mile Yale led by a margin half length. Here both crews did some splashing. At the mile Yale was in better form and she had acquired a lead of one length. It looked like a Yale win, but in the final stretch the only unfortunate incident of the day occurred.

As the Yale freshmen shell reached down to the finish flag it was seen that the drawbridge of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company was open and that a sidewheeler excursion steamer was ploughing up the river directly in the course of the crews. Exclamations of disgust at this glaring piece of stupidity or wanton violation of orders were heard on every side. The boat proved to be the sound steamer Glen Island, swarming with spectators on an excursion from New Haven. Striking whistles, shouting thousands and scurrying police boats finally served to impress upon the offending helmsman that he was dangerously careless, and the big bulk turned off to one side.

Her wash wrought havoc with the oncoming crews. Harvard's position on the course, on the eastern side of the river, saved her boat from serious harm, however, and impeded her progress but comparatively little. With the Yale boat matters were worse. The blue shell was almost swamped; barrels of water were shipped, and the crew lost entirely half a dozen strokes.

Meanwhile the lead which she had so carefully nourished throughout the race was ruthlessly snatched away by the Harvard boys, and a few seconds later the Harvard youngsters crossed the line, winners by 2½ lengths. The time was a record breaker on the Thames, Harvard winning in 9m. 33½s; Yale, 9m. 40s.

This record, however, does not stand in American intercollegiate rowing, as the time made by the winning freshman race between Cornell, Yale and Harvard at Poughkeepsie in 1897 was: Yale freshmen, 9m. 19½s; Harvard freshmen, 9m. 26s; Cornell freshmen, 9m. 29s.

At the close of the freshmen race indignation at the offense of the Glen Island was so pronounced that an investigation was instituted. It transpired that those having control of the bridge had received orders from the government officials at Washington to keep the drawbridge open between the hours of 5 and 6 p. m. The Glen Island, however, was allowed to pass through at about 5:10, while the City of Lowell, another large excursion steamer, went through at about 5:29.

Those responsible for this disregard of government orders will, it is said, be called to account. The blunder marred and possibly changed the result of the result of the freshmen race. Impartial observers, however, believed that Yale could not have won the race under any circumstances. The Harvard freshmen were pulling strongly and smoothly previous to the interference, and their shell was traveling at a rate which promised to dispose of the meagre Yale lead.

With the exception of this unfortunate occurrence the events of the big regatta passed off with remarkable smoothness, and the variety race of the evening wound up a most successful convention of Yale and Harvard oarsmen.

Mrs. Ramsay Declared Insane.
New York, June 30.—The coroner's jury yesterday brought in a verdict that Harvey J. Ramsay was murdered by his wife while she was temporarily insane. She cut his throat last Friday and gave as a reason that her husband snored. Mrs. Ramsay was committed to the Tombs and will wait there pending an application for her discharge on the plea of insanity. As Mrs. Ramsay was on her way to the Tombs she made several attempts to thrust a hat pin into her neck, but was eventually disarmed by a policeman.

Went Down Stern First.
Chicago, June 30.—The steamer Margaret Olwill, owned by L. P. Smith of Cleveland, went down in a storm off Lorain, Lake Erie. Twelve persons were lost. Seaman Duncan Coyle was the only man saved. He was picked up by the steamer State of Ohio. The Olwill, of 554 tons, was bound from Kelly's island to Cleveland with limestone. Her cargo shifted in the heavy sea, sending her down by the stern.

Important Advice.

It is surprising how many people wake up in the morning nearly as tired as when they went to bed, a disagreeable taste in their mouth, the lips sticky, and the breath offensive, with a coated tongue. These are nature's first warnings of Dyspepsia and Liver Disorders, but if the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets are resorted to at this stage they will restore the system to a healthy condition. A few doses will do more for a weak or sour stomach and Constipation than a prolonged course of any other medicine.

If you can not get them at your drug store, send 10c. for a package of 12 to the U. S. ARMY & NAVY TABLET CO., 17 EAST 14TH ST., NEW YORK.
